What Negro Youth Expects From National Defense

MAY 3 - 1941

By HENRY PARKER DAVIS II

We, the Negro youth of America expect from national defense unlimited rights and privileges, which at present are denied us because of racial differences.

We expect admission and equal rights and privileges in the army, navy, marine, and air corps of our national defense. Our fathers showed by the excellent record they made under fire in the last World war that we merit a chance to serve our country in whatever branch of service we may choose.

EQUAL RIGHTS IN TRADE AND LABOR UNIONS

We expect admission and equal rights in all trade and labor unions. Restricted membership practices in these unions barring our race frequently prevent successful competition for jobs. For example there are openings in many private and government munition and supply factories where only union workers are hired, but because Negroes are not allowed membership in these unions they cannot obtain these positions.

Negroes have been and will be called upon again to take up arms, even lay down their lives to preserve this so-called democracy that is treating us, its most loyal minority group, with hatred and resentment. We have proved our loyalty and certainly we should be taken in preference to foreign born citizens.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS PRESERVED

We expect the right to have the accomplishments of members of our race past, present and future in science, medicine, art, literature, sports, etc, preserved for generations to come. Members of our race in less than 77 years have gone to the height of success in difficult fields, and considering our background of slavery and servitude should be justly rewarded. These feats should stand to encourage our race youth to aspire to greater accomplishments in these and new fields, which we hope some day will be open to us.

We expect free voting rights. This country cannot and will not have the right to call itself a democracy for the people and by the people as long as there is practiced in the Souh or any other section of this nation a POLL TAX. This law is the outgrowth of racial prejudices and should be abolished by all true believers in democracy.

EXPECT DEMOCRACY ENFORCED AT HOME

We expect the right to establish residence in any section of any city, township, or county in America. If this country can again consider going 3,000 miles to enter the present war on the pretense of preserving democracy (which for many Negroes does not exist), let us all true Americans stop and do more than consider; CLEAN UP OUR OWN BACKYARD FIRST.

We expect positions in all public service companies: such as the street cars, motor coach, rapid transit, subways, telephone, gas, and electric companies. These are but a few of the many firms that receive millions of dollars from Negro customers each year, and still refuse to employ us.

We expect the right to attend all theatres, cafeterias, lectures, hotels, dance halls, or public places where the public is invited, without the embarrassment of being told there are no accommodations for Negro patrons, or the prices being raised to unreasonable heights. We expect a dollar to mean as much in the pocket of a Negro as it does in that of a white person.

IMPORTANCE OF TRAINING

We expect the right to attend any school of learning open to the public. If every Negro youth will obtain as complete an education as possible, we will have in our possession something no Hitler can take away and a major asset with which to break down the racial prejudices that are blocking our youth today. This will force the white employer from using the usual excuse, that he would be glad to hire colored if we only had the proper training or schooling for the position. As long as we fall short on qualifications because of our own lack of initiative we shall be pushed around and turned down at random, but if we can answer a prospective employer with all the necessary requirements, then we will be in a position o bargain successfully against the unfair color line.

LOYAL NEGRO CITIZENS

If and when this country goes to war, we, Negro youths will be expected to shed our blood as freely as white youths, who are enjoying a Utopia here in America as compared to their ancestral homes. Regardless of their boasts, many are active bund and "ism" members, whose policies are openly anti-American. But as long as their skin is white they are taken in preference to loyal Negro citizens.

We, the Negro youth want, expect and should do all in our power to put into practice the meaning of democracy and national defense for all. Viewing the chaos of the world today and the precarious position in which America herself lies, one can hardly help thinking of the truth of the old adage, "A house divided against itself cannot stand.' America must stand and live up to the ideals upon which it was built: Liberty and justice for all loyal citizens regardless of race, creed, or color.

APR 29 1941

120 Depart From County As Largest Draft Month Is Recorded In Jefferson

One of the largest quotas of Negro selectees to be sent to camp from Jefferson County departed at 7:15 a.m., Tuesday, on a Southern Railway train for the Ft. McClellan induction center.

The quota totaled 120 and rounded out the largest draft month here since passage of the selective service act. Tuesday's departure would have been larger, it was disclosed, if the medical examiners for Board No. 1, Bessemer, had examined enough men to fill a 25-man quota. Because the physicians did not have any others certified, according to the board's chief clerk, only five of the 25 were drafted.

Selectees who entrained Tuesday morning for Ft. McClellan were:

Board No. 3, Fairfield—Tommie Jackson, 25, 416 Fifty-Fifth Street, machine operator; Lee Webster, 33, 249 Laura Street, T. C. I. loader; Louis Lemar Hollenquest, 25, 707 Chestnut Street, crane hooker; Scott Gill, 35, 533 Fifty-Fourth Street, tin mill worker, and Joseph Ernest Kir, 30, 504 Sixty-Third Street, unemployed.

Board No. 8, National Guard Armory—James Cleveland, 23, 5300 Avenue I, Vinesville, unemployed; Herman Evans, 23, 1413½ Sixth Avenue, North, unemployed; Jack McMillan, 35, 224 Green Street, Ely-ton, ore dumper; David Elliott, 29, 209 South Sixty-First Street, miner; Walter Percy Jackson, 28, 450 Thomas Street, dining car waiter; Elmore Hill, 22, 1023 North First Street, paper carrier; James Rice, 27, 303 West Fifth Street, laborer; Arthur James Childs, 24, 1028 Charles Street, supply house attendant; Walter Alex Jackson, 23, 613 Fourth Court, North, unemployed; Henry James Williamson, 22, 1063 West Ninth Street, NYA librarian at Slossfield.

Board No. 10, Five Points—Samuel Lee Staples, 32, 527 South Twenty-Third Street, waiter; Hurdo Jones, 33, Route 2, Brewton, unemployed; Johnnie Ivie Williams, 35, 830 South Twenty-Third Street, chauffeur; John Mitchell, 30, 200 South Twenty-Fourth Street, laborer; Jesse Hunter, 34, 3819 Second Avenue, South, truck driver; Henry Carrington, 24, 2616 Third Avenue, South, unemployed; Willie Simpson, 32, 2127 Eighth Avenue, North, unemployed; Booker William, 22, 1516 Third Avenue, North, barber shop porter; James Reynolds, 31, 919 North Twenty-First Street, laborer, and Ernest Carrington, 21, 2616 Third Avenue, South, truck helper.

Board No. 11, Title Guarantee Building—William Carrington, 22, 933 North Twenty-Fourth Place, janitor; Ben Ellington, Jr., 24, 1324 North Twenty-Third Place, unemployed; Artie Frank Perry, 28, 3005 Seventh Avenue, North, truck driver; Carthell Rutland, 26, 4312 Ninth Court, South, laborer; John Gilliam, 33, 718 South Thirty-Second Street, laborer; Elmer Brown, 32, 1305 North Thirty-Sixth Way, unemployed; James Monroe Phifer, 20, 1419 Sixth Avenue, North, laborer; Thomas Henderson, 26, 2917 Fifth Alley, South, unemployed; James Harrison Norman, 31, 1619 Tenth Avenue, North, truck driver, and Johnny Marion Smith, 26, 1420 South Twenty-Eighth Street, helper.

TODAY'S TALK

BY A. N. FIELDS

"FOUR FREEDOMS" EXCLUDE NEGRO RACE ALTOGETHER

SECRETARY OF WAR HENRY L. STIMSON, speaking over an international hookup last Tuesday night, addressing himself to a world condition reaffirmed his faith in the much-discussed "four freedoms." According to Mr. Stimson they are: freedom of person, freedom of mind, including the freedom to think, talk and write, freedom of enterprise and travel, and finally the crowning freedom of all, political freedom. These are high-sounding manifestos and could be regarded as all inclusive in our national life if they were really true.

OF course they are true in the sense in which they were spoken; they are true to all white citizens of America, but these four freedoms strike a discordant note when made referable to American black citizens. They exclude us in the same proportion that democracy excludes us. We neither enjoy fully and freely any of the four essentials in American democracy. We are not permitted to share in the economic democracy, hence we cannot enjoy the opportunities which go to make for financial progress of the nation.

A. N. Fields

PRIVILEGES DENIED

We are denied the privilege of being employed even in times of great national distress as other American citizens, not because of our inability to perform the same service, but because of a national racial discrimination which is a part of our economic system.

This untoward situation prevents us by reason of insufficiency of finance to institute and develop industrial and commercial enterprises, which would in turn give us equal opportunity in competition with other racial identities to become a factor in the business and commercial world.

WE do not enjoy full and complete political democracy because we are robbed of the right to exercise our suffrage of vote in ten of the States of the Nation, thus precluding us from having any choice either as to the character or ability of those who are to speak for us in the affairs of their respective governments. And this particular privilege Mr. Stimson stressed in his radio talk as being "the crowning freedom of all political freedom." Thus when this freedom has been denied, the other freedoms to which Mr. Stimson referred fall by their own weight.

GESTAPOS HERE, TOO

We cannot conscientiously condemn Gestapo in Germany as exercised under Hitler, yet remain consistently silent on Gestapo in the Southern States. They assume to interpret the Constitution of the United States in its application to black men and women in accordance with particular prejudices incidental to Southern tradition. True, our Constitution in principle applies to all alike, but customs of the South do not conform to the principles of the Constitution when those customs are concerned.

LAWMAKERS of the several Southern States have set up governments separate and distinct in respect to black citizens from the form of government created by the Constitution. They have decried that certain rights and privileges granted as a national right shall lose its potency in its exercise where black citizens are concerned. This custom has been imaged into their State laws by brute force.

BROTHERHOOD OF MAN

One would be led to think that after three-quarters of a century the most zealous advocates of human servitude and attendant evils would have now found themselves changing through the natural influences and refining processes of Christianity and civilization, but the opposite appears to be true.

THE pretext to disavow the spirit of the law in America by those sworn to uphold it, leaves us as a minority group no other alternative but to stand squarely for the enforcement of all laws. Who knows but it may be our privilege to be recorded by fairminded historians of days to come as being the one race who emphasized the Fatherhood of God through standing firmly for the brotherhood of man.

TWO RACE MEN IN 'C. O.' CAMP

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29—Two colored men were among the 23 conscientious objectors placed in a nearby Maryland camp last week.

As reported several months ago after an interview with Major Campbell C. Johnson of the Selective service, there would be no discrimination in the camps of the conscientious objectors. Why there was no discrimination practised in these camps, yet exercised in others, remains a mystery and the experiment will well bear watching.

Instead of receiving the same pay the army doles its draftees, the C. O.'s, as the men prefer to be called, will have to pay their own board amounting to $35 per month. If he can't afford it, his church will have to foot the bill. Each man is paid $2.50 per month, which is considerably less than the Army rate of pay.

Army Seeks Negroes For Regular Duty

The U. S. Army needs 75 Negroes for three-year enlistments in the regular service, Recruiting Sgt. Curran M. Potts announced yesterday.

At least half of the 75 must be men who have completed grammar school and the remainder must have completed the sixth grade. High school graduates for duty as clerks, stenographers and similar specialists also are wanted.

Missouri Boy Tells About Army Life at Texas Camp

The Call has received the following letter from Private Norman Ellington of Fulton, Mo., who is a member of the 54th Coast Artillery medical detachment located near Galvestion, Texas:

Editor, The Call:

We are way "Down in Texas" at Camp Wallace; a part of the 54th Coast Artillery. Only 18 miles from Galvestion and the Gulf of Mexico. This section of Texas is very flat around the camp, there is not a tree to be seen. Most of the camp roads are composed of oyster shells. When the sun comes straight down on these white shells it is almost unbearable. But "We're in the Army Now" so we carry on.

One of the organizations at our camp that seems to help our troubles fade is the Glee Club. Thirty-two voices strong, this group is under the direction of Corp. Ray Wilson of Atchison, Kas., Pvt. Norman Ellington of Fulton, Mo., is president of this aggregation, Pvt. Spc. William Massey of Topeka, Kas., and Springfield, Mo., is the impressive master of ceremonies.

Some of the other Kansans who are contributing their bit to our national defense program is no mean manner are:

Corp. George E. Harvery of Parsons, Kas., battery clerk, and church school instructor; Corp. Robert Johnson, battery clerk; Pvt. Alvin Officer, personnel office clerk, both of Topeka, Kas., Pvt. Bennie I. Frey, Pittsburg, Kas. Regimental postal clerk, Corp. Charles H. Jones battery clerk, of Leavnworth, Kas. In addition to his extra-training activities with the Glee Club, Pvt. Spc. Massey serves as the regimental file clerk.

The Glee Club completes next Wednesday a series of five programs over radio station KLUF, Galvestion. After the first broadcast, the group was literally swamped with invitations and as a result we were going out several times a week. Probably the triumph of this striving Club was the program rendered several Sundays ago at a large white Baptist church in Galvestion.

They really enjoyed the program and were very liberal in their expressions of appreciation and goodwill. We leave Texas the 19th of May for N. Carolina here we hope to continue this particular phase of work.

Some day before our time is up, we look forward with much anxiety to give our relatives and sweethearts in Missouri and Kansas a chance to hear the pride of the 54th C. A. Glee Club.

Richland Negro Defense Bond Group Is Formed

The Richland county committee of Negroes for promotion of the sale of National Defense bonds and stamps—the first such county group yet formed in South Carolina—was organized yesterday with W. H. Harvey as chairman and Professor G. E. Nelson of Benedict college as secretary.

William P. Bowers, state administrator, and James H. Hammond, acting state chairman, addressed the meeting and assisted in the organization.

Committee members present included the Rev. L. C. Jenkins, representing the ministry; Dr. A. J. Collins and E. A. Adams, civic organizations; Harold R. Boulware and the Rev. J. M. Hinton, publicity; F. B. Paul, government employes; D. C. Counts, druggists; J. W. Brunson, business; W. C. Johnson, undertakers; Dr. D. K. Jenkins, dentists; J. E. Dickson, agriculture, and E. W. Vance, banking.

Other committee members: R. G. Hagood, business; John F. Potts and Eugene Barnwell (Eastover), education; Dr. R. W. Mance, physicians; Charles A. Brown, government employes, and Modjeska M. Simkins, women's clubs.

THE NEGRO IN THE DEFENSE PROGRAM

MAR 20 1941

MRS. J. H. KYLES, Chairman

The following article was prepared by Miss Katherine Terrill of the Council for Social Action at the request of the Church Women's Committe of the Department of Race Relations Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, Mrs. Josephine Humbles Kyles, Chairman.

The said committee has endorsed this statement and is soliciting the active cooperation of every Church woman in the country in an effort to bring democracy into the active functioning of National Defense.

At any time, but especially in times of stress and strain, one measure of our democracy, of our Christianity, is the degree to which the Negro can participate fully and freely in this "American way" of life.

The many sided defense program impinges upon almost every phase of our life. The defense industries take on more workers. Jobs and housing are paramount issues. Men from 21 to 36 under the Selective Service Training Act are called from their homes and communities to training in the armed forces. These Training Camps in turn create new responsibilities for the church and the community.

A searchlight turned on the defense program in its numerous phases reveals with brutal truth that for one-tenth of our people, eager fully to contribute their share, democracy does not exist.

Consider the case of John J. Allen. Mr. Allen is a graduate of the School of Engineering, University of Iowa; was employed by the Illinois State Highway Division giving satisfactory service. Through white fellow workers he learned that Griffells and Vallett, a firm of La Porte, Ind., needed engineers for work on government contract. Their inquiries brought blanks which he and three of his white fellow workers filled out. After filing his application, he received a telegram to report for work at a salary of $237.50 per month. He was so sure of success that he and his wife went to La Porte and secured lodgings, after which he reported at the factory. When he presented his telegram to the office stenographer she looked much confused. After waiting a long time the chief engineer came out and said, "the company hasn't given me authority to employ Negro engineers. I will take it up with them." In order to have the case a matter of record, Mr. Allen returned to Chicago, sending a telegram accepting the offer previously given him by telegraph. Nothing happened so he telegraphed again. A registered letter was sent him by the firm saying they considered his attitude arbitrary and uncalled for. Mr. Allen answered, reviewing his experience and stating, that he would report it to Sidney Hillman of the U.S. Office of Production Management. In the meantime his white fellow workers all were employed and he has learned that the concern is still hiring engineers.

Take The Defense Industries

Robert Weaver, administrative assistant to the advisory commission of the Council of National Defense charges that the Glenn Martin Aircraft Company of Baltimore has persistently evaded the responsibility of hiring Negro workers.

"In spite of the fact that this company has large contracts from the government for planes, it has not hired Negroes," Dr. Weaver said. "It is true there has been very little community pressure brought to make the company comply with the law. Perhaps, when this matter is attended to, conditions will improve."

Defense employers all over the country are being polled on their job policy as it affects Negroes. The Kansas City returns were in first, and released with the comment that they would probably prove typical for industrial cities all over the country.

Each of the 54 employers interviewed in Kansas City, now has or has had government contracts. The National Defense Advisory Committee has stated clearly that there must be no discrimination because of race in the employment of workers on defense contract jobs. Yet of these 54 firms engaged in defense industries only four hired Negroes as anything but janitors, watchmen, or common laborers. Thirty firms employed no Negroes in any capacity.

The firms interviewed were manufacturers of everything from Army uniforms to cot covers, to axle grease to tanks, to structural steel. Thomas A. Webster, executive secretary of the Kansas City Urban League, is authority for the statement that there are in Kansas City Negroes possessing the requisite skill who are eager to go to work in every one of these industries. Almost everywhere they find the gates barred. Yet the few concerns that do employ mixed crews report themselves perfectly well satisfied with their Negro workers and perfectly content to go on giving them a just share of the work. For example, the Columbian Steel Tank Co., which made tanks for Franco and is now making them for the U.S.A. and Great Britain, uses fourteen Negroes to dip steel in the galvanizing process, a dozen others as painters; and reported to the Urban League "no friction at all." The American Brake Shoe Co., had working when the survey was conducted: 180 employees—60 white, 60 Mexican, 60 Negroes. "We have no trouble at all."

Those firms that laid their lack of Negro workmen to union rules were chiefly companies that had closed shop contracts with the A.F. of L. Machinist Union and Sheet Metal Workers Union. Several companies stated that they had no policy against hiring Negroes, but that the unions just did not admit them to membership, and they could not hire them without breaking their union contract. Meanwhile the Kansas City Urban League interviewed labor union officials as to their position on the question of Negro workers in the defense industries. These are typical responses:

The business agent of the "Painters District Council" declares, "We have already considered the matter of Negro workers in the union in case we are unable to fill future labor supply for this area . . . The union will accept applications of painters for both out of town and local jobs. The fee for new painters will be spread over a period of time."

Iron Workers Union No. 10 reports that there are "now no Negroes in the outside division of the Iron Workers Union. We had not considered the matter of Negroes becoming members but we should be glad to have a Negro committee appear before the Executive body to discuss this matter."

The Tent, Awning and Mattress Makers No. 173 says: "The union does not discriminate against Negroes. Negro members in the Union are engaged principally as mattress fillers. One Negro woman in a small plant is a power machine operator. There are no objections to Negro workers in any department of the mattress industry."

Take Youth

"What the colored people also find very hard to bear," writes Oswald Garrison Villard, "is that the great industrial preparedness program is doing nothing to relieve unemployment among Negro youth." Fo rexample, a young Negro recently completed the aircraft metals course at Bakersfield Junior College with a B average. This course was given by the San Diego Consolidated Aircraft Company which had agreed to hire graduates of the school. But shortly afterwards the firm sent out a call with the statement: "No colored persons accepted."

Then, there is the well-known case of the seventeen Negro boys recently graduated from the Manhattan (New York) High School of Aviation Trades. Their vocational training was especially to prepare young men for service in armament factories. Their white classmates who received exactly the same training, many of them with poorer ratings, have been accepted by armament concerns. Not one of these Negro boys has been able to find employment in the industry for which he is trained. Everyone knows that there is a tremendous demand for labor in factories building airplanes, tanks and so forth. But there are no vacancies for the colored boy.

Take The Army And Navy Itself

At the same time the question of finding employment for Negroes in defense industries was being discussed, the still unsettled problem of the status of the Negro in the Army and Navy was again brought to the attention of high ranking Army officers. In statement Brigadier Gen Lewis B. Hershey, of the Selective Administration said: "The Conscription Bill states that there is to be no discrimination as to race, but the bill also say "no man may come into the Army who is not acceptable to the Army. I regret to say that the Army gets the final say."

General Hershey pointed out that there are relatively few positions for which the Navy will accept Negroes, while the Marine Corps will not accept Negroes under any circumstances. On the question of seperate battalions of Negroes he said:

"The Selective Service system has nothing to do with where the man goes. We are, in a way, purchasing agents. What the Army does later is of no interest to us. Even though the Selective Service Act has specific provision against discrimination, the Army still has the right to introduce the question of acceptability," reports the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Take Ourselve

Briefly this is the picture our searchlight reveals. What will we do? As church people

1. We can inform ourselves. We can know what is being allocated for defense industries in our community. The local Chamber of Commerce will tell us.

4

We can know our State employment services and other employment agencies— YMCA, YWCA, Urban League. Find out if there are local Negro committees with which we may cooperate and carry on joint activities.

2. We can discover what are the vocational opportunities for Negroes in the community—schools, NYA and plant schools. Not only for straight labor and repetitive jobs, but the full gamut of jobs offered.

3. We can let others know by acquainting the community with the information we have secured be it favorable or unfavorable. We can report to our own church organizations, use the letter column in the local papers, and take the opportunity to speak before service and community clubs.

4. We can bring specific cases of discrimination against Negroes in the defense industries to the attention of Mr. William Knudson, Chairman of the Office of Production Management, sending copies of our communication to our United States senator and representative in Congress.

In all this we remember that if democracy is to have meaning, it must be realized by all the people. There can be no color bars. Opportunities for work, for education, for training, for participation in our common life must be open for every man, woman and child.

DISUNITY

APR 5 - 1941

ORGANIZATIONS MEET BUT FAIL TO ATTRACT SUPPORT OF MASSES.

BY MARJORIE MCKENZIE

APR 5 - 1941

WASHINGTON is in a welter of conferences and mass meetings over the status of the Negro in Defense. Within a week, four distinct organizational efforts have left the Nation's No. 1 example of disfranchised citizenry blandly innocent of how or when or where anything can be done about the problem.

Miss McKenzie

Those of us who, in spite of the haphazard advance publicity, may have heard accidentally of the confusion in our midst are aware of one clear impression; which is, that our disorganized Negro leadership is a hydra - headed monster that is incapable of serving us well in this emergency.

The first alarm was sounded by the Chicago Council of Negro Organizations, which held a two-day conference here March 27-28. The Council, representing some 80 or 90 civic, religious and labor groups in Chicago, slipped quietly into town with a six-page memorandum on the evils of and remedies for our present situation, which they discussed in secret session at a local church.

They hotly denied a suggestion that Washington residents were not adequately informed of their visit. The Council has a sound program that can safely be adopted by any group fighting for the rights of Negro citizens, but scarcely anyone has heard a murmur about it outside of Chicago.

CLERGY DOMINATES

EVERYONE who attended the sessions could observe that it is dominated by ministers. There is no quarrel with this area of leadership, but the white folks allowed us to meet and hear the exhortations of our preachers during slavery. Why haven't we produced leaders in the other professions into which we have graduated? Where were the teachers and social workers and physicians? The voice of labor disturbed the Washington clan only once at a mass meeting on March 28 held by the Colored Firemen's Conference. A long and impressive program included addresses by the able A. Philip Randolph, international president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters; the courageous liberal lawyer, Charles H. Houston, and William A. Green, president of the A. F. of L. But not more than 200 people were present to hear them.

Why should William Green feel constrained to force a policy of no discrimination on his unions when we show him to his face that we are without organization or purpose How have our economists failed us when we know so little and do much less about our basic right to earn a living? Where are the economists and sociologists who should be interpreting the market place to us?

FIFTY HEAR GRANGER

THE third conference holding discussion on Negro rights in democracy and defense was sponsored by the D. C. Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild on March 29. Lester Granger, assistant executive secretary in charge of Industrial Relations, National Urban League, gave a brilliantly interpretative analysis, based on acute, factual material about the Negro in defense industries.

Not more than 50 people heard him, among whom were two Negro lawyers. Lawyers understand better than our other leaders the essence of liberty and the details of its administration. Where, at a meeting where white people were concerning themselves with our problems and are fighting our battles for us, were our Negro lawyers?

Closing the cycle of duplicating activities is the mass meeting of the National Negro Congress on April 1. This organization several years back was the white hope of all who yearned to see a national consolidation of the myriad groups interested in the Negro's welfare.

Unfortunately, the National Negro Congress permitted itself to become discredited by charges that it contained subversive elements. There has been a great falling off by those who would otherwise work untiringly under organized, nationwide leadership. Where are our politcians who could have saved the Congress from these charges and preserved the organization for the people it was intended to serve?

MUST GET TOGETHER

No one of these four conferences and mass meetings was able to command the attention of the masses. And, until the masses of the people are informed of the programs intended for their benefit, until they come to believe in a unified leadership, our liberties always will be encroached upon shamelessly. Ever since the early abolitionist agitators, our battles have been waged by a few liberal white people and our Negro ministers. It's about time our professionals joined hands and programs and began to fulfill their proper function as leaders of the people.

TO the existing corps of capable consultants in various phases of the defense program has been added James C. Evans, Director of Trade and Technical Education at West Virginia State College. Mr. Evans is assigned to the Office of Production Management and will function as vocational training assistant in the Racial Relations section of that office.

By experience and training Mr. Evans is qualified to augment the good work that is now being done by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, Dr. Frank L. Horne, Dr. Ira De A. Reid, Judge William H. Hastie, Major Campbell Johnson, Dr. Channing H. Tobias, Robert R. Taylor, Jr., and others.

He has been placed in a spot where a good man is certainly needed. There is a distinct lag in the training and employment of our own men with certain skills and aptitudes.

Mr. Evans' addition to the corps of consultants should strengthen the defense workers training phase of the program.

On Sunday afternoon, April 13 1941, at the Greenwood Baptist Church, the members of the Tuskegee Men's Club ratified several proposed amendments to the Constitution. The two amendments of major importance were those which (1) changed the name of the organization from The Tuskegee Men's Club to The Tuskegee Civic Association, and (2) provided for the admission of women to membership. All women who are interested in the promotion of civic well-being are invited to become members of the Association. The regular meetings are held at various churches in the community on the second Sunday of each month, at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

At the last meeting of the organization, Dr. Prince P. Barker of the Veterans' Administration, discussed The Importance to the Community of a Mental Hygiene Program. Following Dr. Barker's formal presentation, he answered numerous questions which came from the audience. Keen interest in the recently organized Tuskegee Mental Hygiene Society was revealed by persons present and the hope that the Society will render useful service to the community was expressed.

Army Agrees To Have One In Each 13 Physicians, A Negro

Await First Calls; Will Use Them in Regiments, Station Hospitals, Induction Centers; NMA to Supply Civilian Medics

JAN 31 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—Negro doctors and dentists in the reserve forces of the war department will be called to duty within the next 60 days, will be used in regiments, station hospitals and induction centers in the eventual ratio of one in each 13, the proportion of colored to white doctors throughout the nation, and will finally total over 300. These promises were made to a special committee representing the National Medical Association by Judge Paterson, assistant secretary of war, and General William Shedd, assistant chief of staff in charge of personnel, at a conference held recently in Judge atterson's office. The N.M.A. will also be called upon to furnish the names of civilian Negro doctors for army service when those in the reserve corps are assigned.

This was the outgrowth of an earlier conference held October 10, Sen. Arthur Capper of Kansas aided the N.M.A. group in getting its program accepted and personally conducted them to Patterson's office where he recommended the acceptance of their requests. Judge William Hastie, civilian aide to the secretary of war, helped work out details.

It was brought out that the war department conceded the right of Negro medical officers in all Negro regiments, national guard units and units of the regular army officered by whites. There are only 65 colored reserve physicians available and since the plan eventually called for 300, the remaining 225 would be furnished by the N.M.A.

The practice of placing all Negro cases in one wing of an institution without regard to the nature of their diseases was discussed and it was agreed that placing infectious cases with others was unfair and in the future would be discontinued.

As regards discrimination against Negroes in private industries holding national defense contracts, Judge Patterson said the war department itself did not discriminate but difficulties were encountered because of the employers themselves mainly through the anti-Negro attitude of labor unions. Under the present law the war department could not specifically ask private employers to hire Negro labor, the assistant secretary said, but expressed a willingness to study the problem further.

Army To Call 110 Negroes For Medical Service

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(SNS)—The War Department announced Saturday that about 110 Negro medical officers and nurses would be called to active service within the next sixty days. It is planned to assign them as follows:

In addition to the immediate plans, it is anticipated that the three Negro National Guard Regiments will require a small number of Negro doctors and dentists to bring their medical staffs to full strength. It also is anticipated that a number of Negro Medical officers and nurses will be authorized soon for assignment to other regiment and station hospitals where there are Negro troops.

In the large general Army hospitals, it is not planned to use Negro professonals although Negro patients will be accommodated without discrimination, receiving the same treatment and facilities as other patients.

FEB 2 19

As Negro officers are called from the Medical Reserve, additional Reserve appointments will be made to fill vacancies. Recommendations of the American Medical Association and the National Dental Association will be considered for such personnel. Nurses will be procured through the American Red Cross.

The present available Negro Medical Reserve includes 55 doctors and 10 dentists, most of them either captains or first lieutenants.

One In Each 13 Will Be A Negro

JAN 26 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—Negro doctors and dentists in the reserve forces of the war department will be called to duty within the next 60 days, will be used in regiments, station hospitals and induction centers in the eventual ratio of one in each 13, the proportion of colored to white doctors throughout the nation, and will finally total over 300.

These promises were made to a special committee representing the National Medical Association by Judge Patterson, assistant secretary of war, and Gen. William Shedd, assistant chief of staff in charge of personnel, at a conference held in Judge Patterson's office. The N. M. A. will also be called upon to furnish the names of civilian Negro doctors for army service when those in the reserve corps are assigned.

CAPPER GAVE AID

This was the outgrowth of an earlier conference held Oct. 10 Sen. Arthur Capper of Kansas aided the N. M. A. group in getting its program accepted and personally conducted them to Patterson's office where he recommended the acceptance of their requests. Judge William Hastie, civilian aide to the secretary of war, helped work out details.

It was brought out that the war department conceded the right of Negro medical officers in all Negro regiments, national guard units and units of the regular army officered by whites. There are only 65 colored reserve physicians available and since the plan eventually called for 300, the remaining 235 would be furnished by the N. M. A.

TO CHANGE PRACTICE

The practice of placing all Negro cases in one wing of an institution without regard to the nature of their diseases was discussed and it was agreed that placing infectious cases with others was unfair and in the future would be discontinued.

As regards discrimination against Negroes in private industres holding national defense contracts, Judge Patterson said the war department itself did not discriminate but difficulties were encountered because of the employers themselves mainly through the anti-Negro attitude of labor unions. Under the present law the war department could not specifically ask private employers to hire Negro labor, the assistant secretary said, but expressed a willingness to study the problem further.

Negro Physicians and Dentists to be Used in Regiments and Hospitals

Call K.C. Mo.

65 Reserve Officers to Be Called to Service In 60 Days; 300 Eventually to Be Used, Medical Association Is Told

JAN 31 1941 JAN 31 1941

Negro doctors and dentists in the reserve forces of the army will be called to active duty within 60 days, William H. Hastie, civilian aide to the Secretary of War, has informed the National Medical Association.

The doctors and dentists will be used in 15 Negro regiments, station hospitals and probably in induction centers in the eventual ratio of one Negro for every 13 whites, the proportion of colored to white doctors throughout the nation. The total number of Negro doctors to be used in the service has been estimated at about 300.

Writing to Dr. Roscoe C. Giles, chairman of the Liaison committee of the National Medical Association, which recently held conferences with army and navy officials in Washington, Mr. Hastie said that the present plan is to use Negro doctors, dentists, nurses and medical officers, sanitary companies, at Fort Devens, Mass., with the 366th infantry, Fort Bragg, N. C., for members of the station hospital staff and at Fort Livingston, La., for members of the station hospital staff.

The present plan calls for eight doctors and two dentists at Fort Devens, 17 doctors and two dentists at Fort Bragg and 17 doctors and two dentists at Fort Livingston, making a total of 42 doctors and six dentists to be used in the immediate future. The Call

In addition, Judge Hastie said that the three Negro National Guard units will require Negro doctors and dentists to bring their medical staffs to full strength.

"Looking beyond the immediate future," Judge Hastie said, "it is contemplated that a number of Negro medical officers will be appointed and assigned to other regiments. The number of such appointments will be limited for some time by the need of including in every regiment some officers with substantial military experience. It is also contemplated that the assignment of Negro doctors, dentists and nurses to the staffs of other station hospitals will be authorized." Kansas City, Mo.

As officers are called from the Reserve corps for active duty, the war department aide said, additional Negro doctors and dentists will be added to the Reserve to be eligible for call to active duty in the expanding program.

"The surgeon-general will request the recommendation of the National Medical Association and the National Dental Association to procure such additional personnel for the Medical department reserve," he said. "It is presently contemplated that nurses, colored and white, will be procured through the American Red Cross."

Judge Hastie said that the matter of using Negro physicians in medical examinations at induction centers is under immediate consideration. Call-K.C.Mo.

Hastie's letter was written to Dr. Giles with the approval of Brigadier General William E. Sledd assistant chief of staff of the army, with whom the N.M.A. committee conferred on January 8.

The committee consisted of Dr Giles, chairman; Dr. William McKinley Thomas, Leavenworth, Kas. chairman of the executive board of the N. M. A.; Dr. G. Hamilton Francis, Norfolk, Va., speaker fo the House of Delegates of the N M. A.; and Dr. W. G. Alexande of Orange, N. J., chairman of the commission on public health.

The committee conferred with Surgeon General Thomas A. Parran of the U. S. Public Health service; Under-Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of Navy Knox.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas accompanied the committee to the conference with Under-Secretary Patterson. Secretary of War Stimson was not able to be present. Kansas City, Mo.

Assistant Secretary Patterson stated that the requests of the committee were "fair and just and shall be granted."

Mr. Patterson said that the war department had already conceded the right of Negro medical officers in all Negro regiments, National regular army officered by white Guard units and in units of the men.

Judge Hastie said that at the present time there are about 65 Negro medical reserve officers subject to call. To reach the number 300, he said the remaining 235 to make up the total of 300 would come from the membership of the National Medical Association.

The delay in calling these men to active service, he added, was that the cantonments at the army camps were not ready. Beginning February 1, the first 65 would be inducted and the remainder in increasing numbers with all mobilized, Negro units havinb Negro medical officer personnel.

The committee discussed with the officials the practice of placing all Negro cases in one wing of an institution, without regard to the nature of their disease. The committee staed that it considered it unfair to place infectious cases with other diseases. Secretary Patterson agreed that this was unfair and said that the practice would be abandoned. The Call

Under-secretary Patterson was in complete accord with the committee's requests and referred the matter to General William Sledd to work out the details of putting the approved plans into execution.

In a later conference with General Sledd, Dr. Thomas requested that members of the National Medical association be given the opportunity to serve Negroes in need of medical aid in corps hospitals. General Sledd agreed and said further that Negro doctors would be permitted to serve as examining physicians in all induction centers where Negro inductives were examined by civilian physicians.

General Sledd said that in all National Guard units, the entire medical personnel would be colored. In old line organizations, he said that not less than three-fourths of the personnel would be Negro. He said it would be necessary to retain some old line medical officers to acquaint the new officers with military surgery.

Dr. Thomas, who released the N. M. A. report to The Call through authorization of Dr. A. N. Vaughn of St. Louis, president of the N. M. A., wrote Judge Hastie this week asking that Negro physicians be assigned to examine Negro inductees at the induction center at Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kas.

The N. M. A. committee was especially appreciative of the courtesies extended to them by Senator Capper, Judge Hastie and Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune. The senior senator from Kansas offered the committee the use of his office and although very busy working on the finance appropriation, he took time out to accompany the committee to the office of Undersecretary Patterson. The Call

Senator Capper informed the secretary that the committee represented the "cream of the medical profession, that he had considered the requests of the group and found them both fair and just. He asked the assistant secretary, as a matte of senatorial courtesy, to hear the committee and to grant its requests." JAN 31 1941

Army to Call Negro Doctors and Trained Nurses

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—About 110 Negro medical officers and nurses are to be called to active Army service within the next 60 days.

Announcing this, the War Department said eight doctors and two dentists would be assigned to the 366th Infantry, Fort Devens, Mass.; 17 doctors, two dentists, 28 nurses and three medical officers would be allotted to the Station Hospital staff, Fort Bragg, N. C.; and 17 doctors, two dentists, 28 nurses and three medical officers to the Fort Livingston, La., Station Hospital staff.

The War Department said it was anticipated that the three Negro National Guard Regiments would require a small number of doctors and dentists to bring their medical staffs to full strength, and also that a number of Negro medical officers and nurses would be authorized soon for other regiments and station hospital where there are Negro troops.

It is not planned to use Negro professionals in the large general Army hospitals but Negro patients will be accommodated.

Draft To Call 50 Negroes in Atlanta Area

FEB 1 4 1941

46 Volunteers Among Group Due To Enter Army's Service.

At least 46 of 50 Atlanta Negroes who will be inducted into the Army next week will be volunteers, and a survey of the draft situation shows that local boards are finding it as hard to explain to some why they can't get in the Army as to prove to others why they must. FEB 1 4 1941

A Negro volunteer this week told his draft board director he was joining the Army "to eat, not to fight."

Another, when sent Form 150, telling him to report for induction and bring clothes for three days, showed up at his local board and said he wanted to withdraw, because:

One read the same notification and appeared for induction with his personal belongings in a steamer trunk so large a truck had to be hired to haul it.

A Negro who volunteered last month received his notification for induction this week—in a south Georgia chain gang.

2,000 Of 4,700 To Be Drafted Negroes

MAY 2 - 1941

Fuor thousand and seven hundred Georgians—2,000 to be colored—are slated to be inducted into the Army during June. This number will bring the state's total number of trainees in military service to nearly 12.000.

Adjutant General Sion B. Hawkins made the announcement of the record-smashing quota Thursday following receipt of instructions from the War Departmen and Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

Some 788.000 draftees are slated to be in the service by July 1.

In January, Georgia furnished 1,379 trainees.

MAY 2 - 1941

It is not known whether the June speed-up of the rate of induction will set the tempo for future calls upon this state, or whether the Army is taking this means of reaching its prearranged schedule of men in uniform as of July 1.

MAY 1 - 1941

All Georgia local boards have been advised to speed up their work of classification in view of the heavy demand for Georgians to fill the June quota.

It previously had been indicated that all of Georgia registrants would be classified in the near future.

Patient Jailed For Refusing Treatment

168 Selectees Found With Syphilis

City health authorities have had to jail one person, a Negro, for refusing to take treatments for syphilis after being reported by Selective Service officials.

Dr. B. B. Bagby, chief health officer, said today that a total of 168 men checked by Selective Service boards has been reported to the Health Bureau as being infected with venereal disease since induction began. Of this number, 102 persons are already taking treatment either from private physicians or from clinics.

"Right now we're working on sixty-five persons by letters and by talks," Dr. Bagby said, "urging them to take the treatment as soon as possible. We had to put one person in jail yesterday, and he will begin taking treatment next week."

This drastic step of arrest and imprisonment, according to Dr. Bagby, is taken only after three letters have been sent to the person involved. The third letter, it was understood, is delivered in person by a city health nurse.

"But the fourth letter," Dr. Bagby stated, "is carried by a policeman and he is under instructions to bring back the recalcitrant person."

All these 168 cases, Dr. Bagby pointed out, were reported to city health officials for the first time through Selective Service channels. Previously, the bureau had no knowledge of the existence of these venereal-disease cases.

"When persons referred to us by Selective Service declare they will go to private physicians for treatments," Dr. Bagby summed up, "we don't let the matter drop there. We make a thorough check-up and follow-through with the private physicians the patients say they will go to and if for any reason we find that the physicians haven't heard from the prospective patients, we begin an immediate check and do something about it."

NEGRO DRAFT QUOTAS VERY DIFFICULT TO FILL

HIGH PERCENTAGE IS REJECTED BECAUSE OF PHYSICAL DEFECTS OF BODY.

As the problem of securing sufficient negro men to fill quotas for negroes in Terrell county has become serious, the problem has likewise become acute throughout Georgia as the record-breaking calls in June have set the state's negro quota at 2,700 men.

Boards in the state with large percentages of negroes have long faced the problem of venereal diseases, which in some localities have caused the rejection of as high as 90 per cent of the negroes examined. The problem became intensified as boards faced the prospect of huge negro quotas to be filled during the next two months.

Mack Dodd, clerk of Board 1, Macon, said if past rejections because of syphilis continue at the same rate as in the past he will be unable to furnish his share of 38 negroes required in a call for induction May 21. In his previous examinations less than one negro in three have been found free of venereal disease, it was said.

Dodd and Dr. J. D. Applewhite, city-county health officer in Macon, have recommended that the army accept men with non-infectious venereal disease and force them to take treatment during training.

An order went out from state selective service headquarters only this week that will make acceptance of treatment for venereal disease a part of selective service regulations.

At the same time an order issued by the selective service headquarters instructing local boards not to accept for service men who cannot read or write is expected to further complicate the job of filling negro quotas.

The ruling, which was issued from national headquarters, affects about 46,000 Georgians who signed their registration cards last October with an "X." This is slightly over 10 per cent of the total registration.

The move was supplemented by an order permitting local draft boards to reclassify any 1-A registrant who does not have the capacity to read, and placing him in 4-F deferred. The ruling does not affect illiterates already inducted.

State officials pointed out that the regulation will release many men from military service and may, to a certain extent, alleviate the shortage of common labor which has been growing over the state.

Soldier Illiterates

The nature of modern soldiering is indicated by this government announcement that after May 15, no more illiterates will be taken into the United States armed forces. The finest specimen of physical humanity will be rejected after that date if he cannot read and write up to the level of the fourth grade in school.

The times have changed. There was a day when it mattered little if a soldier could read and write. Although there are no statistics on the matter, it is a pretty safe guess that a large proportion of George Washington's soldiers could not read themselves the orders their commander issued. Later on, Davey Crockett got to Congress barely able to sign his name, although he was one of the bravest soldiers this country has ever seen.

But those days are gone forever. To be a good soldier today requires far more than the ability to look down the sights of a rifle. The demands of modern war and modern military training are too great to leave time for explanations to illiterate soldiers. Soldiers are needed who can understand orders, who have had enough mental training to grasp without too much difficulty the intricacies of a machine gun or a howitzer or a tank.

Keeping the illiterates out of the armed forces is only a part of military streamlining. There is no time now for the dead weight represented by those who cannot read and write.

MAY 10 1941

In the World War, some attempt was made to teach the rudiments of reading and writing to illiterate draftees. Not much was done, however, or could be done. Time was too short and too much needed for other things to permit educational processes that should have been finished years before. The experience of that time probably was one of the influences leading to the present decision.

Of course, there is a slightly unpleasant thought in the fact that the educated must run the risks of death in war while the illiterates remain at home safe. But that fact is only another illustration of the truth that war kills off the best young men of a country and leaves behind the physically and educationally inferior to become the fathers of the next generation.

More Negroes Volunteer Than Shreveport Whites

SHREVEPORT, La. — In Caddo Parish, of which Shreveport is chief city and parish headquarters, Negroes outnumber whites by far in the number volunteering for selective service in the national defense program, according to information from official sources. The disparity is so great that it is startling. However, this section of Louisiana has a heavy Negro population.

The tentative Caddo parish quota for January is 53 men to enter military service during that month, according to official notices sent the five local draft boards Thursday.

The January quotas by boards follow:

Board No. 1—Six whites and TWELVE Negroes.

Board No. 2—Three whites and EIGHT Negroes.

Board No. 3—Three whites and FOUR NEGROES.

Board No. 4—Four whites and SIX Negroes.

Board No. 5 — (Vivian) — Two whites and FIVE Negroes.

According to informed sources, the white registrants are expected to be called between January 6 and 14. Negro registrants are expected to be called between January 16 and 20.

A comparison of registrations for selective services on a national scale discloses that Board No. 1 has the "second heaviest registration in the entire nation." This one board now has eight white and 46 Negro volunteers registered in class A-1 which, of itself, will more than fill the January quota.

Race Draftees Like Army, Say It's Pleasant

CHARLESTON, S. C.—(SNS) "Army life is really swell," were the words of James Young, 26 year old race draftee of Union Heights, inducted into Fort Jackson at Columbia December 9, and on leave of absence from December 31 to January 5, describing camp life of the draftees.

"Jimmy" as his friends know him, was called for one year's training from Berkley County at Moncks Corner, where was employed on the WPA with the Santee Cooper Project. He and three other race draftees, the first called from Berkeley County, were feted in public ceremonies, December 8, and sent to camp.

At camp Jackson he is a member of Company 3, Infantry I and between drills and schooling in army techniques, cooks for companies 3 and 4.

Asked how he liked the routines he replied, "All of us boys like it fine. Most of us were sorta scared when we were called, but after we got there and found out what really was going on, most of us wished we had been there long ago." The army day begins at 7 a. m. and ends at 6 p m. The men are instructed in offensive and defensive techniques, usually twice daily. After 6 p. m., they are free until mid-night. His company is under five Negro officers and consists of about twenty men, with additions almost daily. There are about fifteen men, he said, at the camp from Charleston County and a total of several thousands from this and neighboring states.

To fill free time the camp has a complete recreational set up where the draftees may engage in any type of sport, ranging from football to table tennis and checkers. The food, morale and enthusiasm are high and the life has made a big hit with all draftees. A short distance away where draftees are housed and followed a life similar to that race draftees.

Negro Employes Excluded--Charge

HAMPTON, Va., Feb. 11.—(AP)—A resolution, charging discrimination in the employment of Negro workmen on national defense housing projects, was telegraphed to President Roosevelt and 19 other key government oficials tonight by the Hampton Institute Builders' Conference and National Builders Association, meeting at Hampton Institute.

The 580-word resolution charged "numerous firms holding government contracts and certain organized labor groups" with "subtle and illegal collusion for the purpose of evading government racial 'discriminatory' clauses in order to exclude skilled Negro workers from a full participation in national defense work."

George L. Zuidema, hiring agent on the Fort Eustis project, appeared before the conference yesterday to relate that approximately 2,300 of the 5,800 workmen on the project are Negroes.

Negro Leaders To Honor Their Local Draftees

Chauncey Hudson, well known Negro leader of Valdosta and member of the Advisory Board under the Selective Service Act, today called a meeting of all ex-service men among the local Negroes and others who are interested in providing a form of entertainment for the five Negroes who are to leave Valdosta on Wednesday of next week for Fort Benning. This meeting will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. Paul A. M. E. church on South Ashley street.

At Sunday's meeting plans for the entertainment will be discussed and a time and place for it will be determined.

It is expected that the entertainment will be held on Tuesday night, January 21, but the nature of the affair and the place are yet to be decided.

An invitation is extended to all colored citizens to be present on Sunday.

SHIPYARD LABOR TALKED AT MEET

B. B. Cameron, Of Defense Council, Addresses Gathering Of Negroes Here

Approximately 100 negroes of Wilmington at a meeting, sponsored by the Colored Citizens League, last night pledged their loyal and undivided support in the solution of any problem which might arise in the employment of negro labor in the shipyards here.

B. B. Cameron, vice chairman of the Wilmington Defense Council, addressed the group, picturing the present satisfactory relations existing between the two races and the necessity for preparation that full advantage might be taken of the opportunities offered by the shipyards so that the community will not be disrupted by the sudden influx of foreign labor and subversive alien influences.

Among those attending the meeting were ministers and representatives of every church in the city, physicians, dentists, business men, principals and teachers in the schools, social workers, representatives of the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation commission, labor and labor leaders.

A motion was unanimously passed that a letter be written to the Newport News Shipbuilding company expressing the sentiment of the negro population of Wilmington to give their loyal support to the successful operation of the shipyards.

At the conclusion of the meeting, those present expressed their appreciation to Mr. Cameron for his interest in the matter. 1

1500 Harlem Negroes Off To Army Camp

JAN 22 1941

Bands played and mothers cried as 1,500 Negro soldiers marched from Harlem last night to entrain at the Mott Haven railroad yards for three months training at Fort Ontario, N. Y., and an unknown future thereafter.

The Negro soldiers, a fine looking bunch of young men in their prime, marched from their armory at Fifth Ave. and 142nd St., the headquarters of their 369th Regiment, with thousands of Harlem folks running along side.

Star Negro athletes were among them. John Woodruff, 800 meter Olympic champion of 1936, is a second lieutenant. Thomas Carey, metropolitan 60-yard dash champion, is a sergeant. Captain Roy Morse was national champion in the 100-yard dash about 25 years ago.

The 1,500 soldiers marching down Fifth Avenue knew they were going to no picnic.

Some were murmuring the slogan, which someone had started:

"We're not coming back till it's all over."

"Maybe we're not coming back at all," the Daily Worker reporter heard one sturdy youth saying, as he marched almost at the double across the 138th St. bridge with his rifle and full marching equipment on his back.

A small boy breaking out from some playmates ran after the soldiers saying: "I want to join the army too."

The band was playing gaily all the while.

"Up north to freeze for three months, then down South where it's hot," another answered.

"Damned hot for us," said another with a laugh.

The men of the 369th, inducted into the regular army from the National Guard, have a Negro Colonel —Chauncey H. Hooper—and will be kept segregated at Fort Ontario, it is said. Later, it is reported, their group will be broken up into smaller Negro units.

The 369th has had both infantry and anti-aircraft training.

Tampa Negro Quits $50 A Week Job To Volunteer In Draft

A Tampa negro yesterday quit his $50-a-week job with a private construction firm at Camp Blanding, came home to be inducted into the army, and will go back to Camp Blanding today, this time as soldier at $30 a month.

He is Tom Lee Hall, 25, of Route 4, one of the 13 Tampa negro volunteers who will leave for Blanding this morning at 9 o'clock after a brief ceremony at Booker T. Washington school and a parade to the Union Station.

Hall is a sewer line placer, and he volunteered for the army while he was in Tampa two months ago. Later he was sent by his employers to Camp Blanding to work on sewer construction there. His first big salary, of $50 a week, was carefully saved.

13 Negroes to Go

Hall and the 12 other volunteers for army service wil assemble at 8 o'clock this morning at the Washington school, Fourth avenue and Blanche street. Roll call and delivery of instructions will be made by J. N. Canning, chairman of Draft Board 4, at 8:15 o'clock.

Ben Kellis, commander of the Carmichael Legree American legion post No. 6. will take over the program and introduce three speakers, P. H. Jackson, pastor of the New Salem negro church; Henry H. Cole, commander of the S. S. Tampa American legion post, and Marguerite Hamilton, president of the Carmichael Legree auxiliary.

After the ceremony, the parade will move north on Sixth street to Fifth avenue, west on Fifth avenue to Nebraska, and south to the Union station.

Those Leaving

Selected men from the five Tampa districts leaving today are John Henry Williams, jr., 24, of 3100 San Carlos, truck driver; Richard V. Williams, 18, of 614 Elliott street, stevedore; Levi White, 31, of Lutz, farmhand; King B. McMullen, 28, of 1521½ LaSalle street, WPA worker; Tom Lee Hall, 25, of Route 4, Tampa, sewer line placer; Jerry Lowe, 31, of 1217 Kay street, concrete cutter; James Thomas, 23, of 1219 Kay street, laborer; Edward Stockton, 23, of 104 Estelle, bus boy; Thomas Hudson Dukes, 28, of 1623½ Jefferson street, truck helper; Clyde Washington, 26, of 3108 Lucky Lane, truck driver; James D. Thompson, 22, of 3614 Twenty-third street, waiter; John Henry Lott, 26, of 1011 Constant street, unemployed; Ernest Parson, 31, of 2708 Tenth avenue, butcher.

17 NEGROES CALLED FOR DRAFT MONDAY

Draft Board No. 2 to Furnish 12 for 2d Contingent of Hamilton Colored Men

Seventeen Hamilton county Negroes have been ordered to appear at the courthouse Monday morning for induction into the army under the selective service program.

This will be the second draft for Negroes, the first having been called last month. The second contingent of white men was called up on Jan. 10 and the third contingent will probably be called for about Feb. 10.

The bulk of the draftees for the second Negro call will be furnished by Draft Board No. 2. This board has practically all of South Chattanooga in its area and well over half of the registrants on its lists are colored. This board will furnish twelve of the quota of seventeen. Board No. 1 will furnish two, while Boards Nos. 3, 4 and 6 will furnish one each. Board No. 5 will not furnish any.

Following are the names of those called up for duty.

Negroes Entertained On Going to Army

Morris Felder and John Lee Dawson, Negroes selected for army service from Peach county who entrained for Fort Benning Wednesday afternoon, will not soon forget the day of their induction into the armed forces of the United States.

At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning they were guests at a special assembly of the Henry A. Hunt high school for Negroes, of which Aaron Brown is principal. At 11 o'clock, a special assembly presided over by Dean W. W. E. Blanchet was held in the college auditorium with several hundred college and high school students attending. Patriotic songs resounded enthusiastically, beginning with "America" and ending with the American national anthem. A feature sung with fervor was the Negro spiritual "We Are Climbing Jacob's Ladder, Soldiers of the Cross."

The principal address of the occasion was made by Dr. Horace Mann Bond, president of the college, who reviewed the military history of the Negro, and stressed the significance of the occasion as being, first, that Negroes were part and parcel of America, and secondly, that Negroes had always been in the forefront of the struggles of this country for freedom and for the rights of man. He made interesting references to historic events in which Negroes played an important part.

Following the assembly, a seven-course dinner, with fried chicken as the main course, was served to a party including the guests, President Bond, Principal Brown, Business Manager L. R. Bywaters, Dean Blanchett, and other college officials in the college dining hall. The young men were escorted to their point of departure by a bus load of students from the Henry A. Hunt high school, who sang patriotic airs as they departed for Fort Benning.

'Conscientious Objector' To Get NAACP Legal Aid

JAN 16 1941

CHICAGO, Ill.—The local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced this week that it will take action in the case of Ernest Calloway, whose request for exemption from military service because "the United States Army denies me or any other Negro the right and opportunity to make an equal contribution to the welfare and defense of my country", was denied in a draft board ruling here last Wednesday (January 8).

Calloway, educational director of the United Transport Service Employes of America (Red Caps), had his case officially referred to the N. A. A. C. P. on January 9, according to Ira Williams, president of the branch, after local draft board No. 81 had also ruled that the union official could not appeal to the State Appeals Board.

Board Admits Truth

Admitting the truth of a statement made by Calloway January 1 in a letter to the board pointing out that "deep-seated prejudices" exist against me and other Negroes in the U. S. Army and Navy", board officials nevertheless ruled, in a formal opinion handed down January 8, that the board was without power to exempt Calloway or to remedy the ills complained of. The board wrote:

"It is the opinion of the board that the social ills of which Mr. Calloway complains are true, but this board is without power to remedy the said ills and affords no forum for their discussion and redress . . . . therefore, the registrant is hereby placed in Class 1A."

In a letter to the New York headquarters of the N. A. A. C. P., explaining the development of his case from December 20, 1940, when he received a copy of the Selective Service questionnaire from the board, up to the present time, Calloway said:

"In filling out the questionnaire, I indicated that I was a conscientious objector, and in doing this I attempted to simplify for the board the possible trend my objections might take. I did this in the form of drawing a line from the phrase 'religious training and beliefs', to the margin of the page and indicated certain social concepts which were my intention to incorporate into 'religious training and beliefs'. I placed a check in both squares to indicate my unwillingness to serve in any capacity. Also an informal statement was attached to the questionnaire (not a sworn affidavit) outlining certain racial inequalities existing in the armed forces.

Calloway Explains

"In injecting the question of racial discrimination in the armed forces, he said, "it was not my intention to narrow it down to a purely 'racial issue', as was later assumed by my draft board, but was prepared to consider it in a much broader perspective. . . ."

Contending that the board did not have before it the full facts, and in denying him the right of appeal acted in an "arbitrary" manner "contrary to the provisions established by the Selective Service Act," Calloway said:

"I was under the impression that I was supposed to receive from my Board Form 47 upon which to establish my formal case of conscientious objector. This I did not receive, but instead a card which placed me in 1-A classification with the instruction that I had five days in which to appeal this classification, if I desired. Attempting to comply with the five-day limitations, I presented the appeal notice before my Board.

Says Decision Arbitrary

"Through a newspaper report, Friday, January 3, I learned that the board decided that my objection did not come within the definitions of conscientious objection to war by reason of religious training and beliefs, and refused to allow it, and further held that my case cannot be considered by the Draft Appeals Board.

"I maintain that I have not presented any formal case upon which the board may possibly arrive at a fair decision. As to the procedure the board has followed: it is arbitrary and contrary to the provisions established by the Selectionve Service Act and the instructions (form 5) isued to draftees at the time of registration. The informal memorandum I presented was merely to prepare the board for my formal and much broader cast of conscientious objection on the grounds of religious training and beliefs which incorporate certain social concepts, and I feel that the board exceeded its authority when it refused to supply me with form 47 and to arbitrarily render its decision in the absence of this form [illegible] proper hearing."

VOLUNTEERS FIND LITTLE PREJUDICE AT CAROLINA CAMP

GREENVILLE, S. C., Jan. 9 (ANP)—"They told a group of us when we first enlisted to forget that we were colored and to only remember that we were Americans enlisted in the U. S. Army."

This was Corporal James Seawright's reply when asked how the colored soldiers fared in the army. Young Seawright, a youth barely out of his teens, enlisted in August, and in less than three months was promoted to the rank of corporal. Seawright is thoroughly sold on army life and declared that he intended to make the army his career. According to Seawright there are two colored officers in his regiment, the 41st Engineers, stationed at Fort Bragg, N. A., a captain Penn and Lieut. Pyas. When asked if there was any difference in the status of colored officers, Seawright proudly replied, "At Fort Bragg, a soldier is a soldier and an officer is an officer."

Corp Seawright and Private Byrd, another Greenville boy in the same regiment both said that one of the highlights of camp life is the coming of the colored papers every week. Both youngsters are members of prominent S. C. families.

WHITE DRAFTEES ONLY ARE CALLED; BOARDS ALL WHITE

JAN 4 1941

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—A vigorous protest against the studied policy of carefully preparing the ground for complete segregation of Negro troops from white troops in training camps by selecting and inducting, only white draftees into the army until "camp facilities are available for Negro troops," was launched with the War Department on Monday, Dec. 23, by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

ONLY WHITES WILL BE SELECTED, INDUCTED

The protest was made following the issuance of an order to local draft boards here on Monday by New York City's selective service headquarters, advising board members that only white draftees will be selected and inducted into the army under the first 1941 draft call until sometime during February, when facilities for Negro troops are expected to be ready. The order means that, regardless of number, Negro draftees will be passed over and only white draftees will be ordered to report for training during the present period.

Association officials said that they believed similar orders have gone out to draft boards in many sections of the country. The complete text of the type of order sent to local boards in New York City follows:

"This is an order coming from the Selective Service Headquarters (in New York). The Army has called for a total of 3,663 white men to be furnished from the City of New York in the initial call for January, 1941. Your quota for this call is 21 men.

"If any of the men whose order numbers bring them within your quota call are Negro, they will not be directed to report at the induction station. Instead, notice of selection will be sent to these men and they will be called for induction as soon as camp facilities are available for Negro troops, probably during the month of February.

"For example, if the quota for your board is fifteen men and two out of the first fifteen men on the order list are Negroes, the two Negroes will be given only notice of selection, and the thirteen white men will be given notice of selection and also the order to report for induction."

DRAFT BOARDS ALL WHITE, IT IS FOUND

From reports that continue to come in from N.A.A.C.P. branches, as a result of the association's survey launched several weeks ago to determine conditions facing the Negro under the draft law, announcement was made that no Negroes are serving on either local or advisory draft boards in St. Paul, Minn.; Newport, R.I.; Nashville, Tenn.; Fulton, Ark.; and

Tacoma, Wash., has one Negro serving on the local board, but none on the advisory board; New Bedford, Mass., reports none on the local and two on the advisory board. Bridgeport, Conn., has one serving on the local and one

Bedford, Mass.; Newport, R.I.; Fulton, Ark.; and Charleston, Mo. on the advisory board.

In none of the above-named cities are Negroes employed as paid workers on either local or advisory draft boards, it was reported. While ten Negro volunteer physicians work with local draft boards in Nashville, Tenn., they examine only Negro draftees. Negro physicians work with local draft boards in Nashville and in St. Paul, Minn.

RACE SHOULD SAVE MONEY IT IS MAKING NOW FOR DEFENSE AGAINST NEXT DEPRESSION

BY P. L. PRATTIS

Courier Pittsburgh Pa. FEB 1 1941

FEB 1 1941

DEFENSE is the current catchword. Defense of the nation. Defense of Democracy. Black men are agitated over defense and rightly so. They see billions of dollars being levied from them and spent for defense. They want to see some of this money come back to them for service in our military and naval defense forces and in our defense industry. But all this is the defense of the present.

What about the Defense of the Future? Are black men thinking about that? Although thousands, millions, of black men are fighting for jobs, thousands already have them. More are going to get jobs. Newspapers report black carpenters earning as much as ninety dollars a week.

Mr. Prattis

All of the defense effort of the United States is geared to meet an emergency which may never come. Part of the defense effort of Negroes should be geared to meet an emergency of the future which we can't escape.

That emergency is the depression which is bound to follow all this hullabaloo about war.

Camp Lee Wants Skilled Negro Men to Enlist

Lieutenant Colonel Leland W. Skaggs, chief of army recruiting officers in Virginia, today announced twenty vacancies for skilled Negro workers at Camp Lee, provided they join the army for regular three-year enlistments.

Eventually there will be from 200 to 250 openings for Negroes at the camp, largely in the Quartermaster Corps, he said. Vacancies announced today were five for skilled automobile mechanics and fifteen for truck drivers.

Recently announcement was made that there were fifty such vacancies open for enlistments but the army order covering them was cancelled when it was learned the camp was not ready to receive the men, Colonel Skaggs stated.

The recruiting chief said the army orders to recruit Negroes had nothing to do with a recent protest voiced by Negroes that men of their race seeking to aid in national defense were "relegated to unskilled categories."

Applications for enlistment for service as mechanics and truck drivers will be received from Negroes at the Richmond Army Recruiting Station, Room 507 Parcel Post Building, until the vacancies are filled, today's announcement said.

The army also announced Signal Corps vacancies for service in the Philippines and Field Artillery vacancies for service in the Panama Canal Zone. Requirements for the Signal Corps include graduation from a high school or the educational equivalent in journeyman rating. The only special requirement for the artillery was said to be minimum height of five feet ten inches.

Negroes Answer January Call

The January call for negro trainees for a year's selective military service was answered today —by seven volunteers. Another volunteer, who was to have appeared this morning, was being given the rest of the day to show up before being sought.

Two volunteers went from draft board No. 1, and five from board 2. The missing trainee is from board 2, the quota of which for this call is six.

Those going from board 1 were Slocumb Hair, 22, route 5, cook; and George Troy Council, 20, laborer, of route 5. Council, who did not register, being under the age limit, was allowed to volunteer only with the written consent of his guardian.

From board 2 went Johnnie Francis Williams, 22, funeral home assistant who gave his address as Crump's funeral home; Willie Ricks, 32, route 6, truck driver; Henry E. Hart, 21, laborer, Linden; Charles D. Fisher, 24, cook, 246 Robeson street; and Walter McDougle, 26, concrete worker, 119 Moore street.

The volunteer failing to appear this morning was James E. Legrand, 26, 422 Murchison road, according to draft officials.

The men appeared at their draft boards at 9:30 a. m. and went to Fort Bragg by bus.

COLORED Physicians in New York City are said to be up in arms because nine white doctors were appointed at $15 a day to examine men of the 369th regiment (colored), while numbers of colored physicians who hold reserve commissions were available for this work.

In Philadelphia several dentists are being paid $15 a day for work with draftees. As far as we have been able to discover, no physicians in this city are yet being paid for the work they are doing in this connection.

Nevertheless, if physicians are being paid in New York City, there may come a time when they will be paid in Philadelphia for their work in examining draftees. When that time comes, there is no reason why some of the many competent colored physicians in Philadelphia should not be chosen for this work.

The suggestion has been made — and we think it a good one — that colored members of the various draft boards in Philadelphia county might get together for a discussion of procedures as they affect colored citizens, draftees and employees of the draft boards alike.

Every colored member of a local draft board in Philadelphia is above the average in intelligence, and there is no reason why they should fall into the common error of allowing policies to be formulated and put into action, and then protesting.

360 Negro Georgians To Answer Draft Call

JAN 26 1941

Daily World
Atlanta, Georgia

According to an announcement made Saturday by Fourth Corps Area headquarters here, the state of Georgia will be called upon to furnish 1,332 selective service trainees for military service during the period from February 17 to March 11.

The eight southern states in the Corps Area will be called upon to furnish 14,771 men during the same period.

It was learned officially that 360 of Georgia's quota of 1,332 trainees will be colored men.

This past Friday, the state of Georgia completed its January quota of 1,992 men, and by June 15 will be expected to furnish a total of 12,500 trainees.

All of the colored trainees in Georgia are being sent to Fort Benning. The whites are enrolled at Fort McPherson.

The February quotas for the other eight Southern states within the Fourth Area are as follows:

Alabama, 1,940 white 940 to Fort Barrancas and 970 to Fort McClellan; 395 Negroes, all to McClellan.

Florida—2,061 white, all to Camp Blanding; 282 Negroes, all to Fort Benning.

Louisiana—1,582 whites, all to Camp Livingston; 446 Negroes, all to Livingston.

Mississippi—2,417 whites, all to Camp Shelby; 624 Negroes, all to Shelby.

North Carolina—1,300 whites all to Fort Bragg; 355 Negroes, all to Bragg.

Tennessee—1,312 whites, all to Fort Oglethorpe; 222 Negroes, all to Oglethorpe.

After induction and preliminary training, the draftees are to be transferred to permanent stations

Will Be Assigned To 24th Infantry

FORT BENNING, Ga.—(SNS)—Approximately 8,000 selective service men are due to arrive at Fort Benning during January for assignment to regular army units at the post. Most will go to the Second Armored Division and the 24th Infantry, large increments for Fort Benning's Fourth Division not being due until early in February.

First groups to arrive will be for the Second Armored Division, which will receive 2,500 men from induction stations outside the 4th and 5th Corps Areas in a four day period starting Jan. 3rd. Another 2,300, also from outside the 4th and 5th Corps Areas, will arrive shortly thereafter, in daily increments of several hundred men.

Colored selectees, of whom 1,475 will arrive at Fort Benning during January, will start reaching the post on January 20th, with a daily influx of 100 until the quota is filled.

The Second Armored Division and the 24th Infantry will operate temporary replacement centers, at which the new arrivals will receive thirteen weeks of basic training, largely individual, before joining the units to which they are assigned.

One thousand of the 1,475 colored enlisted men trained in the 24th Infantry replacement center will be assigned to units of tha regiment to bring them up to war strength. The remainder will b assigned to newly organized units of the Fort Benning Station Complement.

Of the colored selective service men arriving at For Benning in January, 370 will be inducted at the Fort Benning Induction Station. The remainder will come from induction stations at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, and Fort McClellan, Alabama. They will be processed and assigned to units by a reception center staff especially organized at the post for the purpose.

It is estimated that by February 15th, the enlisted strength of the garrison will be approximately 40,000 men. With students at the Infantry School, officers assigned to organizations, and dependents of military personnel added, the resident population of the post will approach 50,000 at that time.

Select Group To Look After Negro Interest

Bar Association Picks Committee To Check On Race And Defense

ST. LOUIS, Mo., (ANP)—Sidney Redmond, president of the National Bar association, announced Friday the following committee on legislation intended to provide a fair deal for Negroes in the armed forces and defense industries in the United States.

It will be the duty of this committee to camp on the heels of congress and to have enacted amendments to the laws creating armed forces and defense industries that will secure equitable treatment, said Mr. Redmond.

Perry W. Howard, chairman, stated, "I shall be very happy to work with the splendid set of gentlemen who have been appointed on this committee because of their ability and unselfish interest in matters affecting our group.

It is true that we have two representatives selected for service in the war department in the person of William H. Hastie and Campbell C. Johnson. But these gentlemen must be supported by appropriate legislation that will guarantee a fair deal."

Negro Draftees Lack Training Says Director

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 9—Because of the lack of training facilities in the army at the present time to Negro selectees, the January call for colored registrants will be very limited, it was announced this week by Paul G. Armstrong, state director of Selective Service. At a later date, however, the quota will be equalized and in months thereafter the total quota of Negro registrants, a quota based on their proportion of the state's population, will be filled. The delay in construction of camps and cantonments has generally affected the dates for induction not only of Selective Service trainees, but of National Guard units as well, Mr. Armstrong said.

"The army has had only four Negro regiments in the past," he continued, "two of cavalry and two of infantry. A new policy has now been adopted, however, which will provide new organizations for Negro trainees in every arm and branch of the service. In order to organize and train these troops properly there must first be organized a nucleus of seasoned non-commissioned officers and this takes time.

"Within a few months Negro selectees will have an opportunity for training as quartermasters, engineers, ordnance men, medical assistants, aviation and motor mechanics, artillery men and all the other army branches."

HILLMAN NAMES WEAVER TO HEAD NEW DIVISION

WASHINGTON, April 17—Warning that skilled labor stringencies, now evident in several fields vital to defense production, threaten to become more general within the next three months, Sidney Hillman, co-director of the Office of Production Management, called on all defense contractors last Friday to abandon employment policies which bar colored workers or other minorities.

He disclosed at his press conference that in one week alone he had received more than 3,000 letters complaining of discrimination against employment of colored workers in defense industries because of racial prejudices of either industrial management or labor unions for which the local labor supply should be exhausted before recruitment of labor from outside areas.

"Every available source of labor capable of producing defense materials must be tapped in the present emegency," he said in his letter circulated to all government contract holders with the approval of William S. Knudsen, director-general of OPM.

Mr. Hillman warned contractors that artificial factors are tending to aggravate an increasingly serious skilled labor stringency.

As evidence of the necessity of giving defense jobs to all persons capable of performing them, his aides estimated that 1,500,000 additional men would be required before January

Mr. Hillman announced that Robert C. Weaver, an administrative assistant on his staff, would direct a new OPM section to integrate colored workers into the defense effort.

SOUTH SOUR ON COLORED DRAFTEES

Macon Politicians Lodge Protest with War Dept.

MACON, Ga., April 17.—According to well informed circles here, the politicians and other race baiters of this Southern city have lodged a strong protest with the War Department and Representatives from districts below the Mason-Dixon line against the assignment of colored draftees from northern communities to training stations in the South.

This situation came to the fore recently when a group of several hundred selectees from Harlem and other Eastern cities arrived at Camp Wheeler, near here, for their training period. The politicians point out that these Northern soldiers will only complicate and accentuate the race problem.

DRAFT TO TAKE MORE NEGROES

100 Trainees Scheduled To Leave County Monday, Tuesday

Approximately 100 Negro trainees of Jefferson County are scheduled to leave Birmingham next Monday and Tuesday for the Ft. McClellan induction station, Anniston, Thomas E. Huey, draft inspector for District 2, said Friday.

The trainees, Huey asserted, will leave the Terminal Station here at 1:40 p.m., Monday and Tuesday, on the Kansas City-Florida Special of the Southern Railway.

Draft Board No. 1, Bessemer, announced that 11 Negroes under the jurisdiction of that board will leave Monday and listed them as follows:

Huey said he had requested each of the 19 draft boards in the county to release by letter to daily newspapers here identify of trainees before their induction.

Negro Volunteer Trio To Enter Army Tuesday

Two Knox County Draft Boards yesterday announced the three Negro volunteer draftees who will leave Knoxville for Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Tuesday at 1:35 p. m. for a year of Army training.

James B. Brown, 444 Ohio Avenue, and James L. Watkins, Union City, have been mailed orders to report to the headquarters of Draft Board No. 3, Daylight Building, Tuesday at 12:10 p. m. Tom Ellis Harris, Knoxville, Route 10, has been ordered to report to Draft Board No. 4, Post Office Building, at 11 a. m.

DRAFT OFFICIAL SEES NEGRO DEFENSE ROLE

Mississippi Is Termed 'Testing Ground' For Democracy

FEB 1941

From The Commercial Appeal Jackson, Mississippi, Bureau

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 31.—Mississippi was characterized as the "testing ground" of whether democracy will solidify its strength in the present world crisis by Maj. Campbell Johnson, negro executive assistant to the National Selective Service director of Washington, in an address here Thursday night at a negro defense rally.

"We find the greatest problem of democracy here in Mississippi, where the races are so evenly divided," Major Johnson said. "Mississippi is in position to show that the problems of the races can be adjusted and all of us go forward together to defend the democracy."

Patriotism Unquestioned

Major Johnson said patriotism of negroes is unquestioned, and that "all we want Uncle Sam to tell us is what he wants us to do." He advocated full aid to Great Britain, "not so much for that Nation's benefit, but for the preservation of democracy."

He said that efforts were being made to seek wider employment for negroes on defense projects.

"We are trying to convince those in charge that in discriminating against negroes they are not hurting the negro so much as national defense," he said in explaining that the negro was "as patriotic as other citizens and wants a part in the work of his Government."

He said the lack of skilled labor among the negroes was partly due to members of the race in "drifting from the vocational education field."

Right To Freedom

"There are certain restrictions on the negro, but he still has the rights in this free America to fight for his freedom," he said.

Dr. S. D. Redmond, negro Jackson civic leader, urged negroes to stand behind the Government.

8 Negro Trainees Off to Camp

Eight Gadsden County negro volunteers left Wednesday morning for Camp Blanding for training under the selective service law, raising the county's total number of trainees now in camp to 18.

Their places were more than filled during the week by nine more volunteers whose names will be called for duty ahead of other registrants. There are now 20 volunteers in all available for duty in Gadsden County, the selective service board announced.

The men who left Wednesday had a brief preliminary induction ceremony at board headquarters, in charge of Fount H. May, board chairman. Rev. G. P. Pierce delivered a short address to the trainees, which was followed by a prayer by Rev. H. E. Daniels.

During the last week nine negroes volunteered for service at

The Gadsden selective service board has sent questionnaires to 709 registrants and announced plans to mail 25 more on Saturday. It si still without notice of how large a quota of men will be due from the county during February. Two weeks ago the State Selective Service Board indicated 152 men would be drawn from Gadsden County by July 1.

Dr. Taylor Wood Griffin, of Quincy, first lieutenant in the officers' reserve, was the only Gadsden County member of the Reserve Corps known this week to have received definite information concerning when he is likely to be called for active duty.

Dr. Griffin returned from Atlanta Wednesday, reporting that he was told at headquarters of the Fourth Corps Area to be ready for duty Feb. 5. No official orders have been issued to him, but unofficially he learned he is scheduled to report on that date at Camp Clairborn, La., for service in the medical corps. He had offered to report at any time after Feb. 1.

Dr. Griffin plans to abandon his practice, built up since he set out with his own office, and hopes that when the Army returns him to civilian practice, his former patients will return to him.

Tarver Visits 260 in Dalton Defense Study

Vocational Training Project Rushed in Georgia City.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DALTON, Ga., April 10.—That Dalton has definitely gone "defense minded" was the opinion expressed here Wednesday night following a tour of inspection of defense courses being taught in a dozen different school rooms and factories with an enrollment of some 260 students, the tour being made by Congressman M. C. Tarver of the seventh district; M. D. Mobley, state director of vocational education; Dalton school officials and members of the local vocational advisory board.

Defense courses, begun here in January, have attracted widespread attention, and pupils and instructors have joined wholeheartedly in the plan, along with school officials who have co-operated in placing school facilities at the disposal of the classes and local businessmen and manufacturers who have loaned the use of their factories for practical laboratories.

Among the courses are acetylene and electric welding, auto mechanics, airplane mechanics, sheet metal work, pattern making, radio repair and maintenance, radio communication and mechanical drawing and two courses for Negroes, blue print reading and auto mechanics.

Defense courses are being conducted in Dalton six nights each week in a dozen or more factories and school rooms with Jack Lee, Dalton High school vocational instructor, as general supervisor. An advisory board composed of Lamar Westcott, Julian Longley, George Horan, Shirley Crook, H. V. Williams and B. L. Chambers has been set up to work with Instructor Lee. C. B. Keown, of the State Re-employment Service, is consultant.

The Dalton board of education composed of Paul B. Fite Sr. chairman; Judson Manly, Phi Stone, J. J. Copeland and O. C Alley, has placed all school facilities at the disposal of the advisory board for conducting class room work. For experimental purposes, the city of Dalton gives use of the water works plant. Cabin Crafts, bedspread manufacturers; Crook Brothers Machine Shop, Whittemore's Cabinet Shop, Hardwick Chevrolet and Dalton Sheet Metal Company are furnishing use of their shops for practical experience.

Selective Service Total

Under terms of the Selective Service Act as originally approved, the Army was to have been permitted to call up 900,000 men in the first year. Only 800,000 were called, however, and even that figure has not been reached.

Under terms of the amended act there is no restriction on the number of men who can be inducted in any one year. In view of the Army's failure to induct the number originally authorized it can well be asked now why all the fuss and agitation to get the ceiling removed.

Latest available Army personnel totals show that only 705,000 selectees are included in the grand total of 1,587,000 officers and enlisted men, and the Selective Service Act has been operative for almost a year.

No doubt lack of equipment and housing facilities are responsible for the fact that a larger number of selectees has not been inducted, but, even so, expansion has not been at the rate the national dangers require. In fact, when those are considered, the present strength of the Army is disappointing.

Lower Harlem Ahead of Drive--Raises $4,000

Unique in the history of the Lower Harlem section of the Communist Party is the raising of over $4,000 in 13 weeks.

The people of Lower Harlem—in the main, Puerto Rican, Negro and Jewish—have the highest percentage of unemployment in the city, according to organizer Armando Roman.

Their contributions to the Party's anti-Hitler fund, he said, represents deep-going sacrifices, gladly made because of their awareness of the Nazi peril to the nation.

When the Daily News conducted its poll on the issue of American entry into the war, it was Lower Harlem that registered the highest percentage of votes in favor of immediate entry, Roman pointed out.

One of the outstanding features of the fund drive, he said, was the involvement of non-Party people in fund-raising. He cited the formation of a committee of seven non-Party people, which through affairs and personal solicitation raised more than $200 for the Communist Party. This Committee — organized by one Party member — met every two weeks with the Party organizer for political discussion.

Another member of the section—Comrade Lugo — gathered around herself several close supporters of the Party and went among the most poverty-stricken section of the community. Solely through nickels and pennies she raised $23.

The drive did not however, reach its successful conclusion without the adoption of urgent measures, Roman explained. Early in August, because of the slowness of the tempo, a meeting was organized to which every branch pledged to bring a minimum of $25. The pledges were kept and the basis was laid for the subsequent completion of the drive two weeks ahead of the Oct. 1 deadline.

Administrative Authority Delegated To Prominent Citizens of Lone Star State

Advisory Committee To Be Named For Permanent Duty

Attempt To Get Jobs For Discharged Draftees

WASHINGTON.—(ANP) — Following the general trend of administration of selective service affairs, the governor of Texas has just named 125 Negroes, prominent in various sections of the state, to serve on the selective service draft boards in that state.

Upon the return to Washington of Major Campbell C. Johnson he was advised through Gen. Hershey, his superior officer, that Brig. Gen. J. Walter Page, state administrator of the Selective Service act, had called in Dr. Everett H. Gaines of Austin, Texas, and upon the advice of the doctor submitted the names of prominent Texans to serve on the boards in their various localities.

Major Johnson was greatly pleased with this turn of events and further called attention to the State of Louisiana where a conference recently held was working toward a similar achievement.

Among the propositions discussed at the conference were illiteracy among the Negro registrants and how best to improve their educational standards; deferment of Negro students and Negro teachers; the improving of living conditions and health standards; with particular emphasis on the unduly large percentage of venereal cases in Louisiana among the Negro population; the unemployment situation now and reemployment problems after separation from service and the promotion of better interracial relationships.

It was further agreed that an advisory committee of outstanding Negro citizens from all sections of Louisiana be made permanent, with the three already named to serve. Additions are to be made to the committee being drawn from representatives of labor, agriculture, industry, medicine and law.

This is the third of a rather extended group of tours that Major Johnson has made throughout the country in behalf of the Negro registrants.

As the major said, the selective service branch's duties ended with the turning over of the registrants to the army officials. It is the duty of the selective service to furnish the men called for and from there on, the responsibility is the army's.

There has been a generally lowering of the rejections, Major Johnson said, due to many causes, chief of which was the reduction in the age limits.

Selective service is getting ready now to take care of men discharged to see that they are reemployed just as they were before being inducted into the army.

On the whole, the general ratio of Negro selectees has been about 15 per cent although in some sections where the Negro population is almost on par with the whites, it runs higher, and in sections where the Negro population is low, it runs considerably lower than for the whites.

Wherever he has been in his official capacity, Major Johnson says his treatment has been excellent and the local officials have shown every consideration and courtesy to bring about a smooth, efficient working of the selective service act.

U. S. WILL AID HAITI AS PART OF CANAL DEFENSE

Program For Building World's Biggest Navy Takes On Speed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 —(AP)— Endeavoring to reinforce the hemisphere's defenses and make the approaches of the Panama Canal impregnable the government agreed Tuesday to send $1,100,000 worth of lease-lend materials to Haiti.

Secretary of State Hull and Fernand Dennis, the Haitian minister, signed an agreement covering the shipments, repayment to be made in imports from the strategic Caribbean island.

The navy, meanwhile, announced it had let contracts for the construction of every warship that has been authorized by Congress "in the creation of the greatest array of fighting ships under one flag the world has ever seen."

At the same time, testifying before the House Banking Committee, Jesse Jones, the federal loan administrator, asked Congress to give the RFC $1,500,000,000 additional borrowing power, mostly for defense. He said the agency had nearly reached the limit of its credit.

After Jones testified, the committee agreed to approve the borrowing bill, with an amendment to limit its life to June 30, 1943.

The products which will be imported from Haiti in return for defense materials are to be stipulated in future agreements. Probably, they will include rubber, sugar, cocoa, fibers and other raw materials.

The Haitian government and the United States had previously collaborated, in the interest of defense, in building an airfield at Port-Au-Prince, to be used by either military or commercial planes.

The navy, in summarizing its building program, noted that the new 35,000-ton battleship North Carolina and Washington had been added to the battle line—the first capital ships to be built here since 1923. The country now has 17 battleships in service.

Another new capital ship, the South Dakota, has been launched, but not yet commissioned, and another is to be launched next Tuesday.

A total of 2,831 combat and auxiliary vessels have been ordered since Jan. 1, 1940, the department said, at a cost of $7,234,262,178. An additional $460,000,000 has been allocated for expanding public and private shipbuilding facilities.

The Shrunken Bellies of Negro Harlem Face More Shrinking for the Glory of Churchill

By Eugene Gordon

Lord Woolton, England's Minister of Food, has asked us to reduce our "normal consumption of milk, cream, sugar, cheese, canned salmon and meat so that these foods can be sent to Britain. The Food Minister pointed out, according to the New York Times, "that there was more to living than maintenance of physical life and that Britain's food supplies were unbalanced, necessitating an 'unhappy and dull diet'."

What Lord Woolton says of Britain's food needs may be said in precisely the same words for the food needs of Harlem. Nobody realizes better than the thousands and thousands of Negro people in Harlem that "there is more to living than maintenance of physical life," and nobody knows better than they that their "food supplies are unbalanced, necessitating an 'unhappy and dull diet'."

The question is particularly pertinent rights now, for two reasons.

MORE SHRINKING

First, because of England's Food Minister's brazen request that America's "shrunken bellies" shrink themselves even more (in the interest of Britain's imperialist war) and, secondly, because the Federal Food Stamp Plan has been operating in Harlem for three months now and may fairly come in for a review and an estimate.

It has been said that about half the Negro population of Harlem is on relief. Which means that more than a quarter of a million persons live in that chronic state of under-nourishment which led Lord Woolton to observe that Americans cannot afford to permit the British to continue on an "unhappy and dull diet." It means, further, that more than a quarter million persons —not in Britain but right here in the City of New York—need something like a "Ministry of Food" to take an interest in their diet.

We are referring especially to persons on relief. We say nothing of the hundred or more thousands who, although not on relief, suffer as much from under-nourishment, owing to their poverty-stricken incomes.

More than three months of the Food Stamp Plan's operation prove that it not only does not take care of the relief recipient's food supply, but that it actually places him in a position no better than the people for whom Lord Woolton pleads.

FOOD FOR RENT

The Plan is limited to relief families, yet hundreds of such families don't get the benefit of the Plan. Because stamps may be purchased in specified amounts only (the relief bureau setting the limit). These amounts are based on the food budget of each family. Since practically every Harlem family on relief pays more than the Welfare Department allows, they don't have enough money left with which to buy stamps. They must use a part of the food allowance with which to pay their rent.

As terribly as the relief families needed and wanted more food, there was from the first considerable resistance to the Stamp Plan. Even the most callous investigator understood this opposition. She knew that, ahead of everything else, there came the question of "a roof over our heads." And she knew that all the pretty talk imaginable couldn't change this fundamental reaction of the family. The Department of Welfare must have foreseen it, too, for, before the actual mechanics of the Plan went into effect, the Departments sent its most skilled executives from one District Office to another to lecture the social workers on how to "educate" relief clients on the "great advantages" of the Plan. The Department has its answers already prepared for the recalcitrants.

Tell 'em their buying power'll be increased by 50 per cent—for every dollar's worth of stamps they'll get 50 cents worth free. Just show them this factor and within three months there'll be 100 per cent participation.

OR ELSE

Three months have passed and, although the relief family has "no right" to use "food money" for anything else, they still use much of it for rent. Must do so, or else! And that means cutting down on the food allowance and bringing about that "unhappy and dull diet" which Lord Woolton complains about and which he wants Americans (including Harlemites) to remedy—for the British!

There are a few families that get what is politely called "excess rental," the Welfare Department paying the actual rent for the family by a special case-work process. The Department makes this process so reprehensible, however, that any honest investigator will admit that she could not begin to request "excess rentals" justifiably. She just doesn't have enough time or energy to make a special, individualized case-study of a problem faced by nearly every Harlem family.

After three months of the Federal Food Stamp Plan the already glaring rent situation has been constantly spotlighted by reports from hundreds of families: "We want to buy stamps but can't, because we don't have money enough after the rent is paid." Investigators are ordered to go again and again to these families, in order to "persuade" them that they have "no right" to use food money for rent (not to mention razor blades, stockings or socks, and other items which relief makes no allowance for).

RENT COMES FIRST

And what is the final answer the investigator receives? It is always the same—and will always be the same, under the present set-up —"We have to pay our rent first!" No amount of "persuasion" or of "reeducation" seems to affect that reply.

If the Roosevelt Administration grants Lord Woolton's request that we cut down on our food consumption even more than it has already been cut down by higher prices and low wages, who will be the first to suffer? Who will be the first among us to be forced to give up our "normal consumption of milk, cream, sugar, cheese, canned salmon and meat?"

In the light of what has already happened to the people on relief, we know that it will be they whose consumption will be cut first. Their already sub-normal consumption of foods, the absence of which makes an "unhappy and dull diet," will be almost if not completely destroyed.

And for what? For the greater glory of British imperialism and of the Lords and Ladies of Britain!

BALTIMORE, Md., June 29.—Denouncing Hitler's attack upon the Soviet Union and endorsing the campaign for aid to the USSR, a number of well known Maryland educators, churchmen and union leaders this week voiced their sentiments on the new turn in the war.

Dean Grant, of Morgan State College here, declared that the "security and well-being of the American Negro depends upon the outcome of the struggle against fascism."

"The Negro people are interested in the preservation and improvement of democracy," he asserted. "The rise of Hitler threatens democracy in general and specifically threatens the security and well-being of the American Negro. His latest aggression against the Soviet Union is typical of his disregard of any nation of people to live except by his sufferance.. He has even less regard for minority groups. Therefore the Negro gives a cheer to any force or combination of forces which will strike to earth this menace to the democratic way of life."

Dr. G. I, for my part, hope for more progress and a better democracy."

BALTIMORE, Md., June 29.—Denouncing Hitler's attack upon the Soviet Union and endorsing the campaign for aid to the USSR, a number of well known Maryland educators, churchmen and union leaders this week voiced their sentiments on the new turn in the war.

Dean Grant, of Morgan State College here, declared that the "security and well-being of the American Negro depends upon the outcome of the struggle against fascism."

"The Negro people are interested in the preservation and improvement of democracy," he asserted. "The rise of Hitler threatens democracy in general and specifically threatens the security and well-being of the American Negro. His latest aggression against the Soviet Union is typical of his disregard of any nation of people to live except by his sufferance.. He has even less regard for minority groups. Therefore the Negro gives a cheer to any force or combination of forces which will strike to earth

Louis Gilbert, organizer for the United Furniture Workers, CIO termed "Hitler's attack on Russia a clear act of aggression."
"I believe we should give Russia all the aid we can," he said.

Dr. G. Lake Imes, prominent lecturer and former field agent for the Lincoln University, endorsed Welles' statement expressing sentiment for aid to the Soviet Union declaring the statement of Secretary Welles fully expresses the sentiments of every loyal American. "The armed conflict concerning the broken out between Germany and Russia and which has just has my hearty endorsement. In the present world situation the choice is not between dictatorships but between dictatorship and democracy. Up to this time the greatest progress of the mass of Negroes has been made under

WPA WORKER BARRED FROM DEFENSE CLASS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30—(ANP)—Race prejudice and discrimination promoted by the local WPA revealed itself as a menace to Negro defense workers last week.

Although it is supported and maintained by the federal government, in local schools, regulations were promulgated by the WPA to prevent the training of Negro applicants in defense classes. The first information as to this un-American move was given by Henry Walker, who stated that when he reported on routine order to begin training as a sheet metal worker, the timekeeper told him point blank that he was being released because sheet metal training was being given only to whites who could qualify as being employable in the aircraft industry .

Walker, who had been working in one of the community distribution centers as a warehouse laborer, had been chosen and assigned to a training class for sheet metal workers at Inglewood High School. He reported there on January 11, after benig informed that trainees reecive their usual wages during the training period.

QUOTA FOR NEGRO ARMY SELECTEES IN COUNTY GIVEN

Four Local Boards Asked to Provide Five Draftees for March 4

Four of the five Spartanburg local boards in which are administering the selective service act in the county have been assigned quotas of negro selectees for military training effective March 4, it was learned here yesterday from state headquarters for selective service.

The quotas were included in a list of quotas and schedules of arrivals for the 197 negro selectees to be inducted into the army late this month and early in March.

50 Per Day

Major George C. Warren, delivthat the negro selectees would arrive at the rate of 50 on February 27, 50 on February 28, 50 on March 3, and 47 on March 4.

Sixteen of the state's 83 local boards will not be called on to furnish selectees under the present call for negroes, Major Warren explained, since the quota was set up to affect boards with a large preponderence of negro registrants.

Local boards which will not furnish men are Abbeville, Blacksburg, Cheraw, Hartsville, Dillon, Georgetown, Greenwood Board No. 2, Lancaster, Clinton, Easley, Pickens, Saluda, Spartanburg Board No. 5, Union, and York. Two counties, Georgetown and Union, have not been called on to furnish any selectees, either white or negro, since credits for men already in the armed forces exceed the quotas through June 30.

The state's negro selectees will report to Fort Jackson where they will be given physical examinations and will go through the induction process according to the following schedule:

91 More Reserves Report At Fort

Ninety-one reserve soldiers of the Fourth corps area reported at Fort Jackson today for induction into the army with 71 more expected Monday and two Negro reserves next Thursday.

Already arrived this week are 89 men who reported Thursday and 88 who came into camp yesterday afternoon. This total of 339 white and two Negro regular army reserve soldiers is being given physical examinations at the fort, before the whites are sent to Fort Bragg, N. C., and the Negroes to Fort Benning, Ga., for the reception process.

Following completion of the induction of the 2,555 reservists of the Fourth Corps area, 350 of these men will be sent here for permanent station with the corps area service command. These reserves will replace the special duty soldiers now serving with the military police and in headquarters.

Thirtieth Short Only 1,055 of 6,000 Draftees

The Thirtieth division at Fort Jackson at present is only 1,055 men short of the full 6,000 selective service men scheduled to bring the division up to war strength in January. Division officials said yesterday they believed the shortage would be made up in the near future.

The first February selective service men to be assigned to the division went through the division assignment center early yesterday.

From Fort Bragg 17 white selective service men arrived late Monday night, while from Fort McPherson eight white selective service men arrived early Tuesday morning.

The men from Fort Bragg included 16 North Carolinians who were assigned to the One Hundred and Twentieth Infantry, and one South Carolinian who was assigned to the One Hundred and Eighteenth Infantry.

Three of the Georgians from Fort McPherson were assigned to Thirtieth division special troops, and the remaining five went to the One Hundred and Twenty-first Infantry.

These 25 selectees are the first to arrive for the division in February and are generally considered as a part of the supplement of the January quota of 6,000 of which only 4,920 men arrived at Fort Jackson.

Arriving with the 17 white selectees from Fort Bragg Monday night were ten Negro selectees. These men were assigned to the station complement.

These men too, were thought to be in supplementation of the January quota of 475 Negroes. During January approximately 375 arrived.

Organized Reserves To Be Stationed At Fort After Exams

Fort Jackson officials were notified today that all of the 339 white organized reserve men of the Fourth corps area who are being inducted now into the army at the post would be returned after further processing for permanent station.

Beginning last Thursday, the reserves, men who had previously served in the army but been honorably discharged, have been arriving daily. These men, like the selective service men, are being given physical examinations, sworn in and their service records started. They are being sent to Fort Bragg, N. C., for the reception process in which they receive clothes and equipment and are classified.

Tomorrow two Negro reserves of the corps area will report at the post for induction, and then be sent to Fort Benning, Ga., for reception. These two reserves will be the only ones of the 341 being processed here who will not be returned to the post for permanent station.

The 339 white reserves after processing will return here to take up corps area service command duties with headquarters and the military police.

Next Monday, the first of 416 white selective service men from South Carolina's February call will report, followed by more than 5,000 selective service men from the second corps area the first week in March.

1,200 Negroes Will Soldier At Army Post

Activation of three more Negro outfits, in addition to the three already formed at Fort Jaskson, will bring to 1,205 the number of Negro troops stationed at the local army post.

The Negro units are all stationed in the southwestern part of the old Eighth division area and rapidly being completed there is a camp which will be all their own. Twenty barracks are planned for the Negro soldiers, 18 of which have been constructed or are under construction, and two more to be erected.

Located on the Old Hickory road, the Negro outfits have their own post exchange, headquarters and recreation building. Possibly their own theater will be erected at a later date.

Already activated at Fort Jackson are the post quartermaster detachment, the Service company and companies E and G of the Second battalion, Twenty-eighth Quartermaster regiment. The battalion headquarters and Company F are yet to be activated. The battalion will have 316 men when brought to full strength.

Already functioning at Fort Jackson is the post Quartermaster detachment with 14 men and the Service company, with 362 men.

The three new outfits to be activated in June include Company D, Two Hundred and Fortieth Quartermaster battalion (Service), with 240 men; Ninety-first Quartermaster company (railhead), with 102 men, and Sixty-seventh Quartermaster troop (pack), with 71 men.

Discrimination against Negro skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled workers on the extensive $281,000,000 defense housing program was banned this week through an executive order issued by John M. Carmody, Federal Works Administrator.

Seeking to assure full participation of Negro workers in the employment phases of the huge construction program, Mr. Carmody, acting under the authority vested in the FWA Administrator by Section 11 of the Act of October 14, 1940, issued the following regulation under which all contracts must be prosecuted:

"There shall be no discrimination by reason of race, creed, color or political affiliations in the employment of persons, qualified by training and experience, for work in the development of defense housing at the sites thereof."

At the same time, the FWA administrator established machinery to implement the Agency's non-discrimination policy and to handle specific complaints growing out of possible violations. Copies of the regulation were sent to all contractors work ing on defense housing and the executive order was published in the Federal Register on Thursday, January 9.

A. J. Saare, the director of personnel of the Federal Works Agency, and W. J. Trent, Jr., who is the racial relations officers in that office, will give special attention to the enforcement of the regulation against discrimination in work on the defense housing program.

To Erect Many Units

The vast defense housing program will be carried out under the direction of several agencies in the FWA. This program includes the construction of an undetermined number of dwelling units to be erected with the $150,000,000 appropriation authorized in the Lanham Act. A number of these projects are now under construction.

JAN 25 1941

Thirty-two defense housing projects, containing 13,035 dwelling units, will be constructed by the United States Housing Authority at an estimated cost of more than $45,000,000 in contracts.

Other phases of the total defense housing program are being carried but by the Federal Works Agency. One is the construction of the bulk of the housing provided for in the War Department's share of the $100,000,000 housing allocation in the Second Supplemental Defense Appropriation Act.

The Secretary of War recently allocated $45,700,000 of this sum to the FWA for housing projects for families of enlisted Army men and for married civilian Army personnel. Adminstrator Carmody designated the Public Buildings Administration as the agency to carry out this program. Under this designation the PBA will construct a minimum of sixty-eight projects.

One of the high lights of the afternoon session on Friday was an address delivered by William H. Shell, administrative assistant of the Colored Division, National Youth Administration of Georgia. Speaking from the supbject of The National Youth Administration for Georgia and the Negro in the Program of National Defense, he said:

"On October 16, 1940, every male citizen who on that date was between the ages of 21 and 35 was required to register under the provisions of the Selective Service Oct of 1940. Then and there it was realized that this nation was in the midst of the greatest peace-time effort of preparedness e er attempted for the defense of our own country and our own way of life. In this effort our Negro citizens are asking for an opportunity to do their part. I shall seek, therefore, to discuss what the National Youth Administration for Georgia is doing for Negro youth in the program of national defense. Briefly:

In playing its part, the Georgia NYA has assumed responsibility of improving the employability of large numbers of youth through developing work projects which will give youth basic work experience for participation in industries vital to the national defense program, which may be used after the defense crisis is over.

"The National Youth Administration has set aside a special fund to provide educational opportunity in a limited number of special cases of Negro needy college and graduate students who are eligible but cannot comply within a particular institution's quota for student work. This is in addition to regular assistance provided for college and high school students. During 1940-41 approximately 11,466 high school pupils (7,048 white and 4,418 colored) and 2,928 college studen (2,363 white and 565 colored) participated in the school work programs. For the academic year 1940-41 about 6 graduate schools equally divided between racial groups with approximately 107 graduat students (16 white and 93 colored) are participating in the graduate work program.

TYPES OF WORK UNDER NYA

"Young people earning financial assistance through NYA school programs at the graduate level are employed as departmental assistants, construction and maintenance assistants, clerical assistants, and semiprofessional work. Through such work they are given a three-fold opportunity to participate in the national defense program. First, through studying in institutions which are most vital to the preservation of democracy; second, they are learning to appreciate what democracy really means, resulting from a newer emphasis on the freedom offered in this country, and third, through the work which they perform, the educational institutions and the community are entering into a closer relationship that should exist during the present national crisis.

"There are two general types of out-of-school work projects for eligible young people; first, local projects to which they report to each day; second, resident projects which provide employment for periods of six months to year and the young people live upon these projects.

"The NYA of Georgia is making a contribution to the program of national defense in relation to Negroes through the state-wide public forums project operated each season during the months of October through March. These forums have assisted young people and adults alike to appreciate during these times of national stress the democratic way of life in the United States.

"Finally, the NYA for Georgia is contributing to the program of national defense through providing first, a closer realization of the democratic principle of equalizing educational opportunity for youth at all economic levels; second, providing work experiences which will enhance the employability of youth and prepare them for performing more useful work and participating in industries vital to national defense; third, health activities that are designed to correct physical defects and increase physical fitness are provided; fourth, through rendering increasingly valuable services to local communities, and fifth, developing through youth activities and forums young people who possess a stronger and more intelligent civic understanding capable of appraising facts, issues and leadership—young people with a toughened moral fiber and a more solid faith in democratic processes.

Negro Selectees Told To Be Strong Defense Link

Sam Mills Addresses Group Leaving to Train in Camp

Sam Mills, prominent colored leader of Hendersonville, in a talk to three colored boys who leave tomorrow morning for induction into the U. S. army at Fort Bragg, urged them to "make your race proud of you" in their effort towards the defense of God and their country.

Mills, advisory member of the Henderson county draft board, has been placed in charge of the colored men who leave for service and always makes a short talk to the men before they leave for service and sees them off on their bus for camp.

"The colored people are as much indebted to the preparedness program of the United States as any other people," Mills said. "Government rules by three methods—love, hate and fear—and we give our service to this country through love and for no other reason."

Standing beside the flag of the United States, he pointed out what the colors of the flag stand for, and also that negro men who had gone before had shed their blood for the flag, and that their blood is a part of the red that is in the flag.

Referring to a statement he had heard that the negroes might be the basis of a fifth column here, Mills stated flatly that there is no fifth column in the negro race.

"The negro has traveled a rough road from slavery," he said, "and it has taught us the real meaning of the freedom we have found here. We are proud of our part in national defense; be sure you do nothing to make a black mark against your people."

In a short prayer following the talk, he asked God's protection of those in authority in the nation and of the nation itself and the help of the Almighty for those men of the negro race who are serving their country.

The colored men who leave on Wednesday morning are Allen Robinson Reid and T. J. Dunbar of Hendersonville and Hicks Logan of Etowah.

Draft Board Unable to Get Negroes Free From Disease

The high rate of social disease among negroes is hampering the defense program here, Draft Board Clerk J. S. Tarrer said yesterday in asking that negroes free of the disease volunteer in order to fill an upcoming quota of 10 negro soldiers for the draft army.

"In filling the first 12 calls we had 24 negroes rejected because of social disease," said Mr. Tarrer. "It is so prevalent that we have difficulty in making up quotas before the deadline. In one case a negro contracted the disease after he had been examined and before we could send him off.

"The state board of health offers assistance to negroes in general but the trouble is in getting them to take treatment. The injection used as a remedy makes them sick as a horse and they won't submit to it. There is at present no law to compel them to do so.

"This thing is a menace in any community and something should be done about it, seems to me. One of the negroes we had examined and who was rejected was a pantry boy in a hotel so you can see there is a great danger of the infection being spread to innocent victims."

Mr. Tarrer said that Rep. Guy Strayhorn, who is chairman of the draft board, mentioned that he was considering sponsoring some corrective legislation in the current term of the legislature which opens today. Mr. Strayhorn is already in Tallahassee for the session.

Mrs. Mary Judd, wealthy philanthropist, two years ago set up a trust fund of $10,000 with the interest revenue to go to charity treatment of social disease in this county. The fund is not operative yet and will not be for some time until enough money has accumulated to provide considerably widespread treatment, Dr. Guy Longbrake, who will give the treatments, said last night.

Georgia Leads In Volunteers To Negro Units

Major Campbell Johnson Cites Record in Visit to Draft Office.

Problems of the Negro race in selective service are the subject of study by Major J. Campbell Johnson, Negro Army officer, who yesterday visited state selective service headquarters to confer with local authorities.

Health conditions as indicated by selective service reports, rate of sending Negroes into the Army, and methods of handling racial problems were discussed, Colonel A. T. Colley, executive officer at headquarters, said.

Johnson, who is interracial relations advisor at selective service headquarters in Washington, said there are 40 Negroes on draft advisory boards in the state and 24 Negro examining physicians, and that he knew of no other state where the percentage of Negro volunteers had run so high as in Georgia. Of 1,803 in the state that had been put in the Army through selective service on April 18, 1,000 were volunteers, he said.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL

MAY 3 1941

REJECTED DRAFTEES As a member of a selective service board, it seems to me that America is confronted with still another of the problems of democracy.

The problem of the rejected draftee keeps coming back to my mind. Nothing is being done about him. Most of the time he wants to serve. He comes believing he will be accepted. He is examined and finds that his teeth are bad; that he has too few teeth; that he has tubercular spots on the lungs; that he has high blood pressure, a heart condition, perhaps syphilis.

He is rejected.

He goes back to his job. He is discouraged. He understands why he has been subject to colds, to sore throats, to that "run-down" feeling.

The odds are his teeth have been so long neglected the expense deters any action.

MAY 3 1941

Tuberculosis frightens him but he thinks in terms of sanatoriums, and can't quit his job. So, he goes on until it is too late.

Other conditions contributing to bad health also are neglected.

About 30 per cent of the men being called by the draft boards are rejected. The average in other states runs as high as 40 to 45 per cent.

It seems to me to be a very serious national problem—

What is going to be done to rehabilitate the rejected draftee?

Too many people in America have bad teeth. The dentists have been saying so for years. The old advice about seeing one's dentist at least twice a year has been neglected. The average person takes teeth as a matter of course and does not go to the dentist until one or more teeth begin to ache.

But the draft boards and their doctors are disclosing a shocking condition to exist. If the men being rejected, between the ages of 21 and 36, are an index of national health, then conditions are disturbing.

It very definitely is a national problem.

FOOT TROUBLE Next to teeth, orthopedic faults cause the most rejections. When a soldier complains his "dogs are hurting," he becomes a liability, until he is able to carry on.

The Army makes a very thorough test of feet. The soldiers who went in during the first World War recall the test for those suspected of having weak arches.

The years from 21 to 36 are among the more important years of a man's life. To discover that anywhere from 30 to 45 per cent of the young men of the nation suffer from physical defects which prevent them from serving in the Army ought to be disturbing, if it is not.

Also disturbing is the fact that a large number of the psychologically unfit are being found among those presenting themselves for examination.

The draft board doctors are doing a good job. Now that they have learned the requirements, only a few get by them to the doctors at the Army camps. The Army doctors do find a few, but only a few, who must be rejected. A number of these are neurotics, some of them really unfit to be going about without custodians.

Indeed, some boards in the east are running as high as from 8 to 12 per cent rejections because of mental and nervous diseases. The Army is urging more and more care in examinations for these diseases.

In the south, the syphilitic rejections are about 90 per cent among the Negro candidates for the Army. Several cases, however, in both white and colored, have been discovered which were not known to the victims.

GERMAN YOUTH Two years ago we were reading reports from experts who were estimating that the German army would not have the stamina needed for a long war because of its diets of ersatz foods.

Now we see the German army is made up of splendid physical specimens whose diets, if partially of ersatz, nevertheless must be scientifically more correct than some of our American diets.

Some years ago we used to laugh at movies of German boys and girls, in the mass, taking setting-up exercises in the fields, hiking, running. Now we see they have the finest-looking men, from a physical standpoint. That we may see in photographs and movies taken in Europe.

If from 30 to 45 per cent of the young men of the United States have bad teeth, bad feet, bad eyes, respiratory infections and other diseases, we have not done a good job.

The important thing is that, to date, no plan has been announced or begun, to care for the rejected draftees. It would be the part of wisdom for all rejected draftees to be enabled to have dental work done by private dentists, to be sent to doctors who would carry out rehabilitation.

The mental and nervous ones who are rejected, merely go back to their homes and are not heard of until they become violent or die. Something should be done to put these men under treatment.

The economy of the nation and its industrial production undoubtedly are suffering because of this disturbingly large number of young men, in their most productive years, who are not in good health.

Why not a year of health treatment for all those rejected?

Some sort of government plan, using private physicians and dentists, could be worked out just as clinics for social diseases now are conducted.

And we aren't doing anything about it.

TRANSFER OF NEGRO SOLDIERS AT CAMP WALLACE UNFORTUNATE

Whatever the cause for the army to transfer the 54th Coast Artillery Unit from Camp Wallace near Galveston, is an unfortunate situation. Camp Wallace offered many advantages to the training of the 2,000 soldiers as an artillery unit. The climate, near the Gulf of Mexico is mild and the camp offers ideal facilities the year round.

It is difficult for us to place the blame for the transfer of the soldiers. Some put it that business interests, white and colored at Galveston were unanimous in the report that the soldiers hurt the business rather than helped it. As Galveston is a seaport town and a lot of its business depends upon the sporting and transient element, the restrictions placed on the town because of the soldiers, practically wiped out that type of business.

Another argument has it that some of the soldiers did not give proper respect to civil authorities.

Negro business reported the soldiers would order their goods and refuse to pay for them, or sit at the tables and occupy booths when they had finshed, and refused to remove for waiting customers.

If these charges are true, it is obvious the soldiers are themselves to blame.

It should be no surprise that the whites in this section would protest the establishment of Negro troops in view of the experience of the 1917 race riot at Houston involving Negro soldiers, also the incident at Brownsville several years before.

The excuse offered by some that the Galveston beach was too small to accomodate the soldiers, is not worthy of consideration. We do not believe the Dar Department would give any consideration to moving the soldiers becuse of the complaint that the presence of the soldiers on the beach might cause racial friction.

We can hardly conceive that the War Department would incur a lot of expenses in transferring a whole troop of soldiers across the country, to satisfy a small group for commercial interests. There must be something else—what it is we can't say.

Secretary Henry Stimson, of the War Department, said "I have looked into the matter of the assignment of Negro troops to Camp Wallace. In view of the exceptional conditions which exist in Galveston area, the War Department is planning to move the greater part of these troops elsewhere." The secretary did quote these "exceptional conditions." We hesitate to believe the War Department would act purely on prejudice since the Selective Training and Selective Service Act necessitates the acceptance of men for training without regard to race or color. If the government adopts the policy of moving Negro soldiers or whites every time a complaint is made there would be no place in the country to train them. Soldier camps, though they bring money, are not always welcome to certain communities.

Sound Big Anyway

The following story was taken from the current copy of Palmetto Pick-Ups, published monthly by the South Carolina Selective Service Headquarters. A Negro registrant in a Sumter local board was discussing the war situation with a Sumter Policeman. After a lengthy discussion the Negro remarked that of course he would not "valentine" but if he was "concerted" he would not ask for any "redemption."

Next Quota Calls For 3,005 Negroes

The ninth selective service quota for the Fourth Corps Area calls for induction of 3,005 Negroes from eight Southern states into the Army for a year's military service, it was announced at corps area headquarters Wednesday. Georgia will furnish 479.

The all-Negro quota by states is as follows: Alabama, 347; Florida, 297; Georgia, 479; Louisiana, 302; Mississippi, 638; North Carolina, 265; South Carolina, 454; Tennessee, 223.

Georgia Negroes will be sent to Fort Benning during the period between May 1 and May 10.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL

MAY 3 1941

REJECTED DRAFTEES As a member of a selective service board, it seems to me that America is confronted with still another of the problems of democracy.

The problem of the rejected draftee keeps coming back to my mind. Nothing is being done about him. Most of the time he wants to serve. He comes believing he will be accepted. He is examined and finds that his teeth are bad; that he has too few teeth; that he has tubercular spots on the lungs; that he has high blood pressure, a heart condition, perhaps syphilis.

He is rejected.

He goes back to his job. He is discouraged. He understands why he has been subject to colds, to sore throats, to that "run-down" feeling.

The odds are his teeth have been so long neglected the expense deters any action.

MAY 3 1941

Tuberculosis frightens him but he thinks in terms of sanatoriums, and can't quit his job. So, he goes on until it is too late.

Other conditions contributing to bad health also are neglected.

About 30 per cent of the men being called by the draft boards are rejected. The average in other states runs as high as 40 to 45 per cent.

It seems to me to be a very serious national problem—

What is going to be done to rehabilitate the rejected draftee?

Too many people in America have bad teeth. The dentists have been saying so for years. The old advice about seeing one's dentist at least twice a year has been neglected. The average person takes teeth as a matter of course and does not go to the dentist until one or more teeth begin to ache.

But the draft boards and their doctors are disclosing a shocking condition to exist. If the men being rejected, between the ages of 21 and 36, are an index of national health, then conditions are disturbing.

It very definitely is a national problem.

FOOT TROUBLE Next to teeth, orthopedic faults cause the most rejections. When a soldier complains his "dogs are hurting," he becomes a liability, until he is able to carry on.

The Army makes a very thorough test of feet. The soldiers who went in during the first World War recall the test for those suspected of having weak arches.

The years from 21 to 36 are among the more important years of a man's life. To discover that anywhere from 30 to 45 per cent of the young men of the nation suffer from physical defects which prevent them from serving in the Army ought to be disturbing, if it is not.

Also disturbing is the fact that a large number of the psychologically unfit are being found among those presenting themselves for examination.

The draft board doctors are doing a good job. Now that they have learned the requirements, only a few get by them to the doctors at the Army camps. The Army doctors do find a few, but only a few, who must be rejected. A number of these are neurotics, some of them really unfit to be going about without custodians.

Indeed, some boards in the east are running as high as from 8 to 12 per cent rejections because of mental and nervous diseases. The Army is urging more and more care in examinations for these diseases.

In the south, the syphilitic rejections are about 90 per cent among the Negro candidates for the Army. Several cases, however, in both white and colored, have been discovered which were not known to the victims.

GERMAN YOUTH Two years ago we were reading reports from experts who were estimating that the German army would not have the stamina needed for a long war because of its diets of ersatz foods.

Now we see the German army is made up of splendid physical specimens whose diets, if partially of ersatz, nevertheless must be scientifically more correct than some of our American diets.

Some years ago we used to laugh at movies of German boys and girls, in the mass, taking setting-up exercises in the fields, hiking, running. Now we see they have the finest-looking men, from a physical standpoint. That we may see in photographs and movies taken in Europe.

If from 30 to 45 per cent of the young men of the United States have bad teeth, bad feet, bad eyes, respiratory infections and other diseases, we have not done a good job.

The important thing is that, to date, no plan has been announced or begun, to care for the rejected draftees. It would be the part of wisdom for all rejected draftees to be enabled to have dental work done by private dentists, to be sent to doctors who would carry out rehabilitation.

The mental and nervous ones who are rejected, merely go back to their homes and are not heard of until they become violent or die. Something should be done to put these men under treatment.

The economy of the nation and its industrial production undoubtedly are suffering because of this disturbingly large number of young men, in their most productive years, who are not in good health.

Why not a year of health treatment for all those rejected?

Some sort of government plan, using private physicians and dentists, could be worked out just as clinics for social diseases now are conducted.

And we aren't doing anything about it.

Whatever the cause for the army to transfer the 54th Coast Artillery Unit from Camp Wallace near Galveston, is an unfortunate situation. Camp Wallace offered many advantages to the training of the 2,000 soldiers as an artillery unit. The climate, near the Gulf of Mexico is mild and the camp offers ideal facilities the year round.

It is difficult for us to place the blame for the transfer of the soldiers. Some put it that business interests, white and colored at Galveston were unanimous in the report that the soldiers hurt the business rather than helped it. As Galveston is a seaport town and a lot of its business depends upon the sporting and transient element, the restrictions placed on the town because of the soldiers, practically wiped out that type of business.

Another argument has it that some of the soldiers did not give proper respect to civil authorities.

Negro business reported the soldiers would order their goods and refuse to pay for them, or sit at the tables and occupy booths when they had finshed, and refused to remove for waiting customers.

URGE NEGROES TO APPLY FOR NEW COURSES

Editor Assured Colored Men Will Get Equal Consideration

MAY 23 1941

WASHINGTON. Details for application and selection of 2,300 students from warrant officers and enlisted men of the Army of the United States to attend the opening courses in Ten Officer candidate Schools have been given by the War department.

Quotas by Corps Areas and departments have been set, and applications will be received immediately for the first of the three-month courses, which will open on July 1, 1941.

Applications should be made through immediate commanding officers. Commissions as Second Lieutenants in the Officer Reserve Corps will be given those who successfully complete the courses.

While in Washington last week, C. A. Franklin, editor of The Call, conferred with war department officials and was assured that the Officer Candidate Schools would be open to white and Negro enlisted men alike, with no discrimination based upon race.

Negro men who meet the qualifications as set out in this news article will be given the same consideration as white candidates, the editor learned. Enlisted men interested in an officers' career should make application immediately through their immediate superior officers.

The basic consideration governing the selection of students will be leadership, as demonstrated by actual service in the Army. Corps Area and department commanders may assure themselves in any manner they consider appropriate that the applicant possesses the intelligence necessary for a commission as an officer.

Officer candidates will be limited to warrant officers and enlisted men of the Army of the United States who must have served at least six months in the active Federal service prior to submitting applications to attend a school.

Men whose terms of enlistment or service will expire prior to the completion of the course for which they apply, will observe the following procedure:

Enlisted men of the Regular Army will be discharged and reenlisted prior to the opening date of the course. If, at the completion of the course, the man fails to earn a commission, he will be returned to his organization, or be discharged if he so requests.

An enlisted man of the National Guard in Federal Service or of the Army of the United States other than trainees, will be discharged and reenlisted for one year in the Army of the United States prior to the opening of the course. If he fails to be commissioned, he will be discharged from the service.

A trainee will be transferred to a reserve component at the termination of his year of service, and immediately ordered back to active duty under authority of Public Resolution 96, 76th Congress, and continue the course of instruction to completion. If he fails to be commissioned, he will be relieved from active duty if he so requests, or be returned to his organization.

The candidate cannot be more than 36 years of age. He must make application through the proper military channels to the post, stations or camp commanders and thence to the Corps Area or Department Commander of the area in which he is serving. The letter must bear the indorsement of his Company Commander, showing either approval or disapproval, a statement that the applicant has served six months or longer, and if he has less than three months to serve, that he will accept discharge and reenlist to attend the school.

The company commander also must indicate that the applicant is of excellent character and possesses the necessary qualifications as an officer.

The applicant must agree that if he is selected to attend the course and is commissioned, he will serve one year on active duty under his commission. Applications to attend the schools must be accompanied by the regular application for a commission and a final type physical examination form.

Selection of candidates to attend the schools will be made under the supervision of The Adjutant General by Corps Area and Department Commanders. Boards of final determination in each of the arms conducting schools will, at the end of the course, review all candidates to determine those to receive commissions.

In addition to the area quotas, 250 candidates will be selected from warrant officers and enlisted men actually serving with the Armored Force to attend the Armored Force school, starting July 1. Graduates of the school will be commissioned in the Infantry or Cavalry. The Commander General of the Armored Force will make allotments to the various units of his command and will perform the functions in the selection of these candidates otherwise prescribed for corps area commanders.

A quota of 50 has been set for the Air Corps, of which 25 will attend the Signal Corps school, 10, the Ordnance school, 10, the Engineer school, and 5, the Quartermaster school. A combined quota of 18 for the Chemical Warfare service and the Finance department will attend the Infantry school.

The Officer Candidate Schools will be inaugurated as follows:

BRANCH	LOCATION	NO. OF CANDIDATES	DATE OF REPORTING
Infantry	Ft. Benning, Ga.	200	July 5
		200	Aug. 9
		200	Sept. 13
Field Artillery	Ft. Sill, Okla.	125	July 8
Coast Artillery	Ft. Monroe, Va.	125	Aug. 19
Cavalry	Ft. Riley, Kas.	200	July 5
Engineers	Ft. Belvoir, Va.	100	July 1
Signal Corps	Ft. Mammouth, N. J.	100	July 7
Ordnance	Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.	500	July 1
Quartermaster	Camp Lee, Va.	50	July 8
Medical Administrative Corps	Carlisle Barracks, Va.	150	July 7
		250	July 1

General subjects that will be covered in all schools include the following:

Leadership, physical training, military law, sanitation and first aid, military courtesy and customs of the service, interior guard duty, equipment, clothing and shelter, supply, administration and messing, army organization, motor transportation, training methods, discipline, associated, arms and branches, and efficiency reports.

Training during the three-month course in all of the schools will be very intensive. It is designed to qualify each man as a Second Lieutenant in the arm or service in which he is being trained. The emphasis at all times will be placed on leadership.

Through basic training in technical subjects peculiar to each arm or service will be given by the respective schools, in addition to the subjects common to all branches.

VACANCIES IN U. S. ARMY FOR NEGROES ANNOUNCED

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(SNS)—Announcement was made this week, through Sergeant John H. Newsom, United States Army Recruiting officer, stationed in Memphis, that there is now an unlimited number of vacancies in the Army for colored men who would like to enlist.

Sergeant Newsom's statement, made to the Memphis World early this week, follows inquiries first made by this newspaper last fall, concerning the case of colored men who would desire to volunteer or enlist in the regular Army for a period of years.

At that time it was stated at the Recruiting office here that there were no vacancies for Negro recruits in the Army; but that as soon as such vacancies occurred the World would be notified. Sergeant Newsom's announcement this week is the notification.

Besides stating that there is an unlimited number of vacancies in the U. S. Army for colored men, Sergeant Newsom stressed the fact that it is especially desired to obtain men trained in trades, such as carpentry, auto mechanics, and related fields, among the new recruits. However, men without such training will pe acceptable.

Registration may be made at the U. S. Post office (Custom House), Room Six (6), United States Army Recruiting Office, at Front and Madison Avenue. Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 35. They must be single, have no criminal record, and be citizens of the United States. They may enlist for a term of 3 years, instead of the usual four. Minimum pay for enlisted men is around $1 per day, with a chance for an increase as their experience broadens.

This is the first time within the past year that vacancies have been available for colored men in the United States Army. This has been true for the country generally. The Memphis area is one of the first to announce the new openings.

Sergeant Newsom stated that there has been an exceedingly large number of colored men who have made inquiries by personal visits, letters, and calls to the Recruiting officer here, relative to getting into the Army. An average of 25 to 30 men a day have made such inquiries. All have been deferred because of absence of vacancies.

These, and others, now have the opportunity to fulfill their wishes by registering at the Recruiting office.

Hampton Polls Officials For Opinions On Negro Participation in National Defense

MAY 24 1941

Hampton Institute, Va., May 17th—Responsible Government officials throughout the United States have pledged their aid and assistance to the Hampton Institute program of a fuller participation of Negroes in National Defense, it was revealed today by the local committee following up the findings and recommendations of the November Conference on the Participation of the Negro in National Defense.

The report shows that key personnel in government, business, industry, labor, and other fields have been acquainted with the work of the defense conference and that the response indicates a widened understanding of the Negro's problem in today's crisis.

Gleanings from the voluminous correspondence of the Hampton Institute group reveal many interesting viewpoints on the problem. In a personal letter to Dr. MacLean, President Roosevelt said "I am grateful to you and your associates for your wholehearted expression of loyalty and cooperation in the national emergency."

Harriet Elliott, consumer commissioner of the Council of National Defense, says: "It is my belief that the findings of your Conference on the Participation of the Negro in National Defense are both searching and challenging. They make clear the responsibility we all have in working toward real national unity. I have asked several members of my staff to read the findings, knowing that acquaintance with the results of your conference will contribute to their better understanding of this major problem facing our democracy."

In agreement with these views was Edward R. Stettinius of Office of Production Management, who says, "I most heartily concur in the thought that the success of our national defense program depends in large measure upon the fullest possible utilization of all groups."

That the work of the Findings Committee on Housing has been of good effect was seen in a communication from Robert R. Taylor, of the Division of Defense Housing Coordination, who says, 'The section of the report dealing with defense housing will certainly receive careful consideration by the Coordinator and principal members of the staff of this division.'

Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, says, "We have been acutely aware of the problems discussed at this conference and have been making efforts to contribute to their solution in the field of public housing, both in providing shelter and in creating work opportunities."

Hampton institute officials report that continued use of the work of the recent conference is being made by authorities in Washington, and quote scores of communications that bear out this thought.

J. W. Studebaker, Commissioner of Education says, "This office continues to exert its influence to see that more adequate facilities and training programs are provided for Negroes in connection with the entire educational program of the country." And H.R Tolley, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, states that he considers "the recommendations of the conference committees to be a genuine contribution to the cause of democratic unity in the present world situation."

David Rockfeller, secretary to Mayor La Guardia, writes that "It is indeed tragic that so many Negroes with the will and ability to play a significant role in our defense program should be thwarted by the prejudices of narrow-minded employers."

Among other responsible officials who have made known their appreciation of the work done by the Conference on the Participation of the Negro in National Defense are H. A. Millis, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board; V. A. Zimmer, director of the Division of Labor Standards; Ralph Budd, transportation commissioner of the Council of National Defense. Robert C. Weaver, of the Office of Production Management; R. K. Thompson, of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense; Clark Foreman, Director of Defense Housing of the Federal Works Agency; L. S. Hawkins, Director of Vocational Training for Defense Workers; Edna P. Amidon, hief of the Home Economics Education Service; Hugh H. Bennett, of the Soil Conservation Service; A. G. Black, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. M. L. Wilson, Director of Extension Work of the Department of Agriculture; R. M. Evans, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration; General Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army Abner H. Ferguson, administrator of the Federal Housing Administration; Secretary of the Interior Ickes; Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt; Katherine C. Blackburn of the Office of Government Reports. Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson; W. T. Spanton, chief of the Agricultural Education Service; Leon Henderson(administrator of the Office of Price Administration, and Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

Two Negroes In First Group Of Conscientious Objectors

No Discrimination Is Practiced In Maryland Camp

WASHINGTON, D. C. (ANP)—An exmplification of Christ's teaching was enacted over ni nearby Maryland Friday afternoon, when 23 young men arrived in an abandoned camp to give the year's service required of them by the United States government, in lieu of the year's service in an army training camp. They were the first of a group of conscientious objectors. An in their midst were two Negroes, plain men, who because of their religious convictions felt they should not bear arms against their fellowmen.

Speaking for his companion, Reuben Cobbs, 23 of Metuchen, N. Y., who had been working in a Manhattan brokerage house, said:

Should Christ return and lead us, then we would fight, but not under any other circumstances."

As reported several months ago exclusively through the Associated Negro Press after an interview with Major Campbell C. Johnson of the Selective Service, there would be no discrimination in the camps o f eht vd5ive camps of the conscientious objectors.

Why there was no discrimination practised in these camps, yet exercised in others, remains a mystery and the experiment will well bear watching.

which do not believe in wars and The men are all members of sects armies.

In outward appearance, the men differed not at all from the thousands of others who answered the call to military service. They were a healthy, clean cut lot, without fanatic among them. Laughing and jocking as they washed dishes, peeled onions, made up bunks and made themselves useful in preparing the camp for what they believed will be one year's constructive service for the nation.

Instead of receiving the same pay the army doles its draftees, the C. O.'s, as the men prefer to be called, will have to pay their own board amounting to $35 per month. If he can't afford it, his church will have to foot the bill. Each man is paid $2.50 per month which is considerably less than the Army rate of pay.

The National Park service, which is responsible for the men in camp has planned a strenuous program of activities for the boys. They will build roads, reforest, fight first job is to get the old camp in fires and keep the park trim. Their order, for now it is little more than a ruin.

Alabamians Don't Need Calling

Compulsion For Army Service Unnecessary; They Are Flocking To The Colors By Hundreds

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—Alabamians by the hundreds are offering themselves as volunteers for Uncle Sam, to maintain his armed defenses—making the compulsion of selective service unnecessary and inactive in many areas of the state.

Army records showed Wednesday this state has almost 30,000 men in the army, navy and marines, and of these only 1,235 were "draftees." The 30,000 includes those who entered service before acceleration of defense preparations.

Of the 4,500 men Alabama will furnish the army through March, under the selective service program, 3,165 will be men who volunteered, not awaiting orders from the selective service boards.

Alabama must furnish 13,711 men under the selective service program by June 30, and state military sources estimated 8,000 to 9,000 of that number would be volunteers.

The War Department fixed a March quota of 728 men for Alabama, Gov. Dixon's office announced Tuesday night, but this can be filled, with the exception of 15 places, by persons already having offered for service—voluntarily.

While 453 Negro draftees have been called for, Alabama has 1,200-odd trying to volunteer. The white quota for March is 275 and 260 have volunteered.

The men entering the service from Alabama are being sent now to Ft. McClellan, Anniston, and Ft. Barrancas, Florida. They are moving to these camps by the hundreds. With induction of the February quota of 1,940 whites and 385 Negroes, Alabama will have furnished 3,772 men under the selective service program—2,857 whites and 915 Negroes.

State Draftees Head For Camps

Alabamians To Enter Service At McClellan And Fort Barrancas

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 24. (AP) — Alabamians began moving by the hundreds today to military camps, for intensive training under the nation's selective service preparedness program.

From throughout the state 1,340 white men will report this week to Fort McClellan, Ala., and Fort Barrancas, Fla.

This will bring to 2,707 the state's contributions under the selective service program, 862 white and 505 colored men previously having been inducted.

By March 18 the total will have reached 4,600 and officers at the state military headquarters here estimate Alabama then will have around 30,000 men in the armed services, including men already in the army, navy and marines before the intensive preparedness began, around 4,000 national guardsmen put in active training and the 4,600 selective service men to report by that date.

Today—70 to Barrancas, 170 to McClellan; tomorrow — 100 to Barrancas, 200 to McClellan; February 26—100 Barrancas, 200 McClellan; February 27 — 100 Barrancas, 200 McClellan; February 28—200 McClellan. All these are white men.

March 3—125 to Barrancas; March 4—125 Barrancas; March 5—125 Barrancas; March 6—125 Barrancas. All these white men. March 4—150 colored to McClellan; March 5—150 colored McClellan; March 6—85 colored McClellan.

Another call is expected on March 11 for 453 colored; March 15—100 colored; March 17—100 colored; March 18—100 colored; March 12—140 white men, and March 13—100 white.

Nearly 4 Classify 50,086 Men To Present

1,624 White Men Ready To Leave When Notified

COLUMBIA, Feb. 17—(AP)—A reservoir of 3,908 South Carolinians between the ages of 21 and 36 years has been classified as fit for immediate military training but the men have not yet been called for induction, state selective service headquarters reported today.

1,467 Are Inducted

Maj. George C. Warren, delivery and induction officer, announced that as of January 31, 50,086 of the 240,788 registrants had been classified. Of that number, 1,467 have already been inducted at Fort Jackson. The 3,908 already placed in Class 1-A by the state's 83 local boards will be ready, on notice, for induction according to future calls which will emanate from fourth Corps Area headquarters in Atlanta.

Of the 3,908, 1,624 are white registrants and 2,284 are Negroes. In addition, 1,279 whites and 188 Negroes have already been accepted for training and service by army officials at Fort Jackson.

Of the 50,086 registrants classified, 29,025 were whites and 21,061 were Negroes.

339 College Students

College students—automatically deferred until July 1—numbered 339, of which 253 were whites and 86 Negroes.

Chairmen of the state's local boards were originally advised to classify only 20 per cent of the total registration, selective service officials believing that the state's quota of 5,957 through June 30 could be filled from that number. A recent order was issued, however, directing that classification be resumed.

"The fight against the war-dictatorship bill is not over. It has just begun" declared Dr. Walter Scott Neff, executive secretary of the New York Council, American Peace Mobilization, yesterday as he announced a program of demonstrations to impress Congress with the strength of popular opposition to HR 1776.

First of these will be a mass lobby of 500 American Peace Mobilization members from New York and the Eastern seaboard, who will travel to Washington next Saturday, March 8, in a special train.

"In every mail we receive evidence of the overwhelming will of the American people to remain at peace," said Dr. Neff. "Administration sponsors of the bill are trying to create a newspaper and radio atmosphere of victory for the war party. They repeatedly issue statements claiming a majoroity of Senate votes.

The special train will leave Pennsylvania station next Saturday at 6:30 A. M., and will return to New York the same night. Tickets are $4.75 and should be purchased before Friday night at the New York Council's office, 381 Fourth Ave.

Thousands of other local American Peace Mobilization members will gather in a series of community demonstrations. Twenty mass meetings and public parades will take place in 20 different neighborhoods.

NAPOLEON AGAIN

Napoleon Bonaparte, a New Orleans Negro porter of the Lykes Bros. steamship company, is registered in the draft and expresses a desire to fight the Germans. We understand that the chances are against his doing so. But should he not be given a chance to live up to his name as a fighter of eminence?

Not very long ago some solicitous communistically-bent members of the Youth Movement, Youth Party, or Young Workers—the organization said to have booed Mrs. Roosevelt at a meeting—held a convention in Washington; during recesses they demonstrated here and there, visited the Capitol with impertinent-interference intent. They also visited the Secretary of War and demanded that the Negroes be given a place in the army, or the camps, or the preparations for defense, or any old war that might be lying around loose. Secretary Stimson was very tolerant, considering, and explained what the committee did not wish to hear.

But aside from all that, the United States has been so interested and concerned by the welfare of Africans in the United States, in Ethiopia, Haiti and Liberia, that it would seem perfectly reasonable, in consonance with and agreeable to tradition, that a Negro company be organized to visit relatives or old homesteads in Africa, particularly in the Somaliland and Abyssinian regions. There (being armed) they could hunt any kind of wild or tame animals they desired, or merely achieve a good cause—as it might require. They probably would give the Lion will mission. Alabamians Don't Need Calling

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—Alabamians by the hundreds are offering themselves as volunteers for Uncle Sam, to maintain his armed defenses—making the compulsion of selective service unnecessary and inactive in many areas of the state.

Army records showed Wednesday this state has almost 30,000 men in the army, navy and marines, and of these only 1,235 were "draftees." The 30,000 includes those who entered service before acceleration of defense preparations.

Of the 4,500 men Alabama will furnish the army through March, under the selective service program, 3,165 will be men who volunteered, not awaiting orders from the selective service boards.

Alabama must furnish 13,711 men under the selective service program by June 30, and state military sources estimated 8,000 to 9,000 of that number would be volunteers.

The War Department fixed a March quota of 728 men for Alabama, Gov. Dixon's office announced Tuesday night, but this can be filled, with the exception of 15 places, by persons already having offered for service—voluntarily.

While 453 Negro draftees have been called for, Alabama has 1,200-odd trying to volunteer. The white quota for March is 275 and 260 have volunteered.

The men entering the service from Alabama are being sent now to Ft. McClellan, Anniston, and Ft. Barrancas, Florida. They are moving to these camps by the hundreds. With induction of the February quota of 1,940 whites and 385 Negroes, Alabama will have furnished 3,772 men under the selective service program—2,857 whites and 915 Negroes.

State Draftees Head For Camps

Alabamians To Enter Service At McClellan And Fort Barrancas

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 24. (AP) — Alabamians began moving by the hundreds today to military camps, for intensive training under the nation's selective service preparedness program.

From throughout the state 1,340 white men will report this week to Fort McClellan, Ala., and Fort Barrancas, Fla.

This will bring to 2,707 the state's contributions under selective service program, 862 white and 505 colored men previously having been inducted.

By March 18 the total will have reached 4,600 and officers at the state military headquarters here estimate Alabama then will have around 30,000 men in the armed services, including men already in the army, navy and marines before the intensive preparedness began, around 4,000 national guardsmen put in active training and the 4,600 selective service men to report by that date.

Today—70 to Barrancas, 170 to McClellan; tomorrow — 100 to Barrancas, 200 to McClellan; February 26—100 Barrancas, 200 McClellan; February 27 — 100 Barrancas, 200 McClellan; February 28—200 McClellan. All these are white men.

March 3—125 to Barrancas; March 4—125 Barrancas; March 5—125 Barrancas; March 6—125 Barrancas. All these white men. March 4—150 colored to McClellan; March 5—150 colored McClellan; March 6—85 colored McClellan.

Another call is expected on March 11 for 453 colored; March 15—100 colored; March 17—100 colored; March 18—100 colored; March 12—140 white men, and March 13—100 white.

Nearly 4 Classify 50,086 Men To Present

1,624 White Men Ready To Leave When Notified

COLUMBIA, Feb. 17—(AP)—A reservoir of 3,908 South Carolinians between the ages of 21 and 36 years has been classified as fit for immediate military training but the men have not yet been called for induction, state selective service headquarters reported today.

1,467 Are Inducted

Maj. George C. Warren, delivery and induction officer, announced that as of January 31, 50,086 of the 240,788 registrants had been classified. Of that number, 1,467 have already been inducted at Fort Jackson. The 3,908 already placed in Class 1-A by the state's 83 local boards will be ready, on notice, for induction according to future calls which will emanate from fourth Corps Area headquarters in Atlanta.

Of the 3,908, 1,624 are white registrants and 2,284 are Negroes. In addition, 1,279 whites and 188 Negroes have already been accepted for training and service by army officials at Fort Jackson.

Of the 50,086 registrants classified, 29,025 were whites and 21,061 were Negroes.

339 College Students

College students—automatically deferred until July 1—numbered 339, of which 253 were whites and 86 Negroes.

Chairmen of the state's local boards were originally advised to classify only 20 per cent of the total registration, selective service officials believing that the state's quota of 5,957 through June 30 could be filled from that number. A recent order was issued, however, directing that classification be resumed.

"The fight against the war-dictatorship bill is not over. It has just begun" declared Dr. Walter Scott Neff, executive secretary of the New York Council, American Peace Mobilization, yesterday as he announced a program of demonstrations to impress Congress with the strength of popular opposition to HR 1776.

First of these will be a mass lobby of 500 American Peace Mobilization members from New York and the Eastern seaboard, who will travel to Washington next Saturday, March 8, in a special train.

"In every mail we receive evidence of the overwhelming will of the American people to remain at peace," said Dr. Neff. "Administration sponsors of the bill are trying to create a newspaper and radio atmosphere of victory for the war party. They repeatedly issue statements claiming a majority of Senate votes.

The special train will leave Pennsylvania station next Saturday at 6:30 A. M., and will return to New York the same night. Tickets are $4.75 and should be purchased before Friday night at the New York Council's office, 381 Fourth Ave.

Thousands of other local American Peace Mobilization members will gather in a series of community demonstrations. Twenty mass meetings and public parades will take place in 20 different neighborhoods.

The Sperry Co., recipient of government defense contracts totalling many millions has refused to employ Negroes.

NAPOLEON AGAIN

Napoleon Bonaparte, a New Orleans Negro porter of the Lykes Bros. steamship company, is registered in the draft and expresses a desire to fight the Germans. We understand that the chances are against his doing so. But should he not be given a chance to live up to his name as a fighter of eminence?

Not very long ago some solicitous communistically-bent members of the Youth Movement, Youth Party, or Young Workers—the organization said to have booed Mrs. Roosevelt at a meeting—held a convention in Washington; during recesses they demonstrated here and there, visited the Capitol with impertinent-interference intent. They also visited the Secretary of War and demanded that the Negroes be given a place in the army, or the camps, or the preparations for defense, or any old war that might be lying around loose. Secretary Stimson was very tolerant, considering, and explained what the committee did not wish to hear.

But aside from all that, the United States has been so interested and concerned by the welfare of Africans in the United States, in Ethiopia, Haiti and Liberia, that it would seem perfectly reasonable, in consonance with and agreeable to tradition, that a Negro company be organized to visit relatives or old homesteads in Africa, particularly in the Somaliland and Abyssinian regions. There (being armed) they could hunt any kind of wild or tame animals they desired, or merely achieve a good-will mission. They probably would give a good account of themselves in either capacity. Certainly there would be in a regiment some singers who could give the old home country some swing music in lieu of the bush rattle of their forefathers' days. And they could give anyone a good, stiff fight, if occasion required—as it might require.

Could not this be accomplished without going beyond short-of-war or breaking off diplomatic relations with anybody?

Objectors Of Both Races To Be Placed In The Same Camp

WASHINGTON—(A. N. P.)—Unless something untoward turns up, there will be no separate Negro camps for conscientious objectors, according to Major Campbell Johnson of the Selective Service board, who said on Monday, that the camps being formed would serve all conscientious objectors, Negro as well as white.

When asked about the camps, Major Johnson explained at length that several proposals were under consideration and that the question of color had not as yet arisen in the matter.

Camps are being utilized, he said, for religious groups the two largest being the Quakers and the Menonites. In the former, there is a possibility of having Negro members of the sect, but there are none in the latter group, which adheres to customs peculiar to their forebears in the 18th century.

Both are peace-loving folk and have no wish to carry arms or to be identified with any military matters. Therefore, they will be utilized in other capacities. At present several plans are under way for caring for them—one by which the government will take charge of their activities, the other, a joint control by the government and religious group with both sides furnishing the necessary money, and the third for the religious groups to finance the entire cost of the camps, which, however, would be under governmental supervision.

The largest number of Negro conscientious objectors will come from the Seventh Day Adventist group which has made a large number of conversions among Negroes.

To date, no problem of race has arisen, but major Johnson says that the Selective Board will attempt to meet all situations as they arise.

A THOUGHT ON NATIONAL DEFENSE

The National Defense Program is well underway and rapidly taking form to the extent that the economic and industrial changes that will come about are written very plainly across the horizon of tomorrow. Again we warn our people to prepare to make adjustment toward the new social order which is destined to come. We cannot afford to stand around forever complaining and protesting. We must do something about our situation in order that we might be prepared for whatever is in store for America in the future.

All of us are well aware of the many injustices, discriminations and jim crowisms heaped upon our people because we are of African descent. The door of opportunity has been slammed in our faces in the past and they will continue to be slammed as we crowd around the mountain side trying to reach the top. It is our duty to gird ourselves in the midst of obstacles in order that we can continue to climb up the mountain side rather than slip back.

The National Defense Program has awakened the Negro in America perhaps more than anything else since Reconstruction Days. Now that he has been aroused and is concerned about his future as an American citizen we sincerely hope that that interest is kept up. The Negro must stand on his own today as never before in the history of America. He must shoulder his own burden and fight his own battles. Things do not come to pass by mere accident but through hard struggle, patience perseverence and consecrated action toward a noble purpose. We must realize that our group must keep a pace ahead if we are to keep up wih civilization. The years spent in slavery are a great handicap but not enough for us to lament over. So again we advise our people to keep their eyes open and their ears to the ground and not let any opportunity pass by. We see no reason why we should stop because some one says no. There are many doors and many ways to progress. And we believe that we can enter through those doors.

Just a few weeks ago, the Associated Press reported that the total war orders for Great Britain and the United States would reach the figure of $15,000,000,000, or more than six times the estimated value of the entire output of the automobile industry in 1939; and nearly $6,000,000,000 of authorized orders to be filled.

These figures give you a bird's-eye view of how much manpower will be needed to turn out vast quantities of airplanes, tanks, naval vessels, ammunition, artillery, and other commodities.

There is a shortage of labor. This presents a fine opportunity for Negroes to integrate themselves into American Industry. The Twentieth Century Fund recently asserted that "the number of idle workers in the labor market available for employment in the near future is probably not far from 4,000,000" and warned that a shortage of labor in the defense program is likely to come about.

Regardless of the shortage of labor, the Negro will have to integrate himself into the national defense program with a fight and bold determination to not be pushed aside. We must hold our heads up as never before, take insults, smile and pursue along the mountain side and some day in this world, not the world to come, the Negro race will share in American democracy.

The Army as an Education

"To the extent to which you concentrate on training men for war, to that extent you are likely to unfit them for peace."

This is the view of President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, and to it we demur.

College graduates have helped to fill the ranks of the unemployed, and one of our educational headaches is the failure of the liberal arts college to prepare its students so that on graduation they will be quickly integrated into community life.

The large proportion of draft rejections on account of physical defects indicates that education hasn't done its job any too well on the health side.

In army camps, 2,000,000 men are to get, perhaps, the first real touch of discipline they have ever had, and we think it should prove equally as beneficial as any time spent in the average college or university.

Says Shows Lift Troops' Morale

Col. Long Once Was A Movie Villain

By ROBERT BAGAR,
World-Telegram Staff Writer.

FORT DIX, May 29.—Mobile entertainment for the men of Uncle Sam's new army has the approval of Fort Dix authorities, the support of Billy Rose, mighty mite of show business, and the unofficial but enthusiastic backing of the boys in olive drab.

Using two huge General Motors exhibition trucks—one as a stage and the other as a bandstand—Mr. Rose offered three performances of a big-time show yesterday in separate parts of the grounds.

Lieut. Col. Walter Long, once a movie villain and now active in the army's entertainment forces, was one of the observers. He termed the morale effort one of the most important in the program.

"We've got to keep the men happy and singing," he said; "that's why we've distributed one million and a half songbooks as a part of the plan. An army that can sing is an army that can fight."

Colored People Arrange Registration

On Wednesday evening, May 28 an enthusiastic group of men having been called by Wm. Zeigler met at the Hill Grocery Store to arrange for the registration of all negroes. This registration will be in comliance with proclamations by Governor Holland and President Roosevelt.

Those present at this meeting were Wm. Ziegler, G. H. Wynn, J. H. Glenn, A. B. Ingram, Wiley Hendricks, Mattie Campbell, D. Hawkins, Dallas Andrews, J. H. Stevenson, John Crooms, M. M. Millner, Charles Britt and S. H. Bullock.

After stating the purpose of the meeting Zeigler called for the selection of a chairman and a secretary. W. W. Zeigler and S. H. Bullock were respectively selected for these offices.

Prayer was offered by J. H. Stevenson who had been selected chaplain of the group. The secretary read the President's proclamation, the Governor's proclamation, and the purpose of and arrangements for the registration by the Florida State Defense Council.

The chairman of the following committees were appointed, each of whom pledged to do his very best that the part to be played by the negroes of our community shall be just all right in every respect:

Advertising committee, J. H. Glenn, chairman. Registration committee, Louise C. Baker, chairman; Type writing committee, G. H. Wynn chairman; Parade and mass-meeting committee, S. H. Bullock, chairman.

The Hill Grocery Store was chosen as the place of registration for all colored people of this community.

The meeting was characterized by enthusiasm, harmony nd oneness of accord throughout.

Colored Soldiers Best For Driving By Night

FOR BRAGG, N. C.—Colored soldiers have a "distinct visual superiority over white soldiers for night driving."

This conclusion was reached and announced by Fort Bragg authorities this week as a result of army drivers' tests given to 4,000 soldiers as an experiment.

In the rigid tests given to determine the visibility of soldiers whose duties would call for driving by night, army officials conducting the experiment found that, as a rule, colored soldiers were the most successful.

The tests also further showed that night vision of all soldiers could be improved by giving the drivers a special "sugar drink." Contests of the [illegible] were not revealed in the announcement.

AN APPEAL TO NEGROES

To the Editor The News:

Have you felt the longing desire to realize an accomplished fact? Has that fact ever vitally affected you? If you have, then you can understand the position of yourself in the national defense program.

Your son and my brother are now faced with a realistic problem, one which will need more than letters or a few gifts from home. They will need ever-present guidance from those who understand their longing hunger for spiritual, physical and social development.

What are you, my Negro brother, going to do about it? What will happen if we don't act now? It will mean moral and physical chaos. We, as Negro Americans, will provide equal opportunity by giving generously, financially, to the USO, Inc.

We will not ask to be given to; we will have equally given, and no military demand will be necessary for equal opportunities for moral, religious and physical guidance. Mr. and Mrs., Miss and Master, this is a challenge to you to prove that our clamor for equal army, navy and industrial opportunities is not an idle fancy.

Negroes And Defense

The drive for funds for the United Service Organizations is being carried on among Negroes in Birmingham and throughout Alabama, as in other states, by a Negro Division affiliated with the national organization. An appeal to Alabama Negroes to support the USO appears in the "Voice of the People" column on this page from Virgil S. Harris, campaign director of the Negro Division for this state.

This appeal serves as a reminder of the important place that Negroes have in defense, and that the needs of Negro soldiers and defense workers for the facilities and services to be provided by the USO should not be overlooked.

The USO is intended to serve not only men in the country's armed forces, but also workers in defense industries. Both in the armed forces and in defense industries Negroes are doing their part. They are subject to the draft just as others are. Many of them have enlisted as volunteers just as others have.

There are many Negro soldiers in camp in Alabama. There are many Negroes working on defense projects in the state. Alabama Negroes are serving in camps in other states and working in defense industries elsewhere. The USO and the public should remember that Negro soldiers and defense workers, who are doing their patriotic part, should not be neglected in the provision of facilities with USO funds.

Physician Examines 121 For Service

Dr. J. R. Hawkins, of 711 East Market street, negro physician who volunteered his services as a medical examiner for local draft board No. 3, has examined 121 negro registrants since taking over his volunteer duty January 31, the board said today in publicly thanking him and the other examiners for their interest.

Of the 121 negro men examined by Dr. Hawkins, 18 were men registered with boards outside the state. During the latter part of May he was assisted by Dr. F. E. Davis, another local negro physician, in rushing through the examination of all A. and T. college students who are registered with No. 3. All examinations were made in the doctors' offices.

The board, headed by Chairman Charles J. Hunt, expressed appreciation to these two doctors and to the group of white physicians who have likewise been serving as volunteers in clearing registrants as they were called.

Board No. 3 is now being served by a white medical examining board composed of Drs. S. F. Ravenel, J. J. Post, H. R. Parker and C. W. Durham, who, together with Dr. A. K. Maness and Dr. H. L. Johnson, have examined a total of 158 white registrants, including 12 men registered with boards outside the state.

JUN 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

AMERICUS, —Young Georgia Negroes not long out of the cotton fields are mastering the techniques of such national defense skills as radio and motor operation in a banner-winning civilian conservation corps camp here.

The enrolees are delving into five defense courses in all at Camp Sheffield on Americus' outskirts, a CCC unit which has won top rating for Negro outfits in this division of the fourth corps area for the past five months.

Two of the youths operate the camp's short-wave broadcasting and sending station. Instructor in radio is Roy N. Danbury. One 19-year-old enrolee was sending easily after he first saw the dot-dash alphabet.

The camp commander of this 26-building, shiny-neat unit is Capt. W. R. Meyer. The sports program recently produced results when Camp Sheffield won the district basketball and boxing tournaments. A new bowling alley is going up, a swimming pool is planned.

The defense theme caught on quickly at the camp and enrolees erected at the entrance Captain Meyer's slogan: "Our only regret is that there are only 24 hours in each day we can give our country."

The woodwork classes are taught by J. T. Fagan. The students said they wanted a shot at reconstructing a tank, and hoped the fort would send them one. The instructor is J. T. McBride, former Buena Vista garage mechanic.

Negro Youth's Defense Role To Be Noted

JUN 13 1941

'National Defense Day' Is Proclaimed By Governor Dixon

Contributions of Alabama's negro youth to the national defense effort will receive important notice during the celebration of Alabama national youth defense day, June 26.

Proclaimed by Governor Frank M. Dixon, youth defense day will salute the youth of this State for the role they are playing in rearming America for the emergencies of the future. The National Youth Administration will take a prominent part in the celebration.

Project of the National Youth Administration will hold "open house" on Youth Defense Day and are planning appropriate programs. The main program, however, is to be held in Montgomery.

Outstanding youth from NYA projects over the State will be sent to Montgomery to meet with Montgomery NYA youth at the State Teachers College. They will be taken on a tour of the city, seeing Gunter Field, Kilby Prison, the Governor's mansion, the capitol, and the Department of Archives and History.

In addition, they will hear addresses by Dr. Nyabongo, professor of philosophy, State Teachers College, and by youth from Snow Hill Institute and Slossfield Youth Center in Birmingham. The Slossfield Youth Choir will sing.

Miss Pauline Redmond, Consultant, National Advisory Council of the National Youth Administration has been invited to deliver the feature address to the youth.

Negro NYA projects throughout Alabama will have exhibits of work done by the youth at their respective projects. A large exhibit of NYA work will be shown in the gymnasium at the State Teachers College in Montgomery.

Approximately 7,000 young negro boys and girls are employed on the NYA program in Alabama. Of these, approximately 3,000 are employed on the out-of-school program and 4,000 on the school work program. Every tenth youth on the NYA program is a negro youth.

Outstanding negro projects are located at the Slossfield Youth Center, in Birmingham, at Scottsboro, Hartselle, State A. & M. Institute, Huntsville, Boligee, Livingston, Snow Hill Institute, Miller's Ferry, Hayneville, Gee's Bend, Mobile, Repton, Grove Hill and the State Teachers College.

NEGROES CALLED TO SUPPORT U. S. IN DEFENSE PLANS

A call to the Negro to contribute in every way possible to support the program of the government for national defense was made Friday in a statement issued by 16 bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal church at their annual council in Union Bethel church, South Liberty and Thalia streets.

"In every branch of armed service, there will, from time to time, arise cases of discrimination," the statement said, "but instances of bias are decreasing. As a nation, we are striving to achieve the goal of national unity in the face of the present international crisis.

"We are proud of the fact that our race has never produced a traitor to our country's flag, or to the cause of American democracy. We shall not fail our country now, but as the largest minority group in America, who ardently believe in freedom, we shall support our country with the faith that a chastened nation and a sick and chaotic world restored to sanity will apply the spirit of Christ to the relations of men in human society."

Committee Appointed To Seek Donation Of Various Articles Needed

The responsibility of procuring equipment for the negro Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. proposed for Columbus has been assumed by negro members of the general committee working for the establishment of the building, upon which construction is to start shortly.

Members of the committee are Dr. T. H. Brewer, chairman; E. E. Farley, secretary; Dr. K. H. Terry, treasurer; John L. Sconiers, C. B. Marshall, Rev. T. W. Smith, P. L. Taylor and Rev. H. L. Bearson.

The committee has secured a list of the equipment, with the prices that would have to be paid if the items were purchased outright, and in listing them said it was its plan to procure donations of as many of these articles as possible from firms and individuals and raise enough money from colored people to purchase the remainder.

A list of the items needed are being printed herewith and persons willing to contribute to this splendid undertaking have been requested to telephone the Ledger-Enquirer or E. E. Farley, secretary of the Negro Y.M.C.A. at 6293.

DADE'S DRAFT QUOTA TRIMMED

40 Per Cent Reduction In Whites, 80 Per Cent In Negroes

Dade's next draft quota, announced Friday, will be reduced by 40 per cent for whites and 80 per cent for negroes, it was revealed today in notices received by local draft boards from Harold C. Wall, head of the mobilization division under Col. H. P. Baya, state selective service head.

According to the new estimate, 417 white men will be inducted from Dade county in several groups, beginning Feb. 17 and ending March 6, and sent to Camp Blanding. The earlier quota called for 684, a figure which threw local draft boards into mild confusion because insufficient questionnaires had been classified to handle such an unexpectedly large demand.

The new quota reduced the number of negroes from 271 to less than 60. They will be inducted between Feb. 17 and Feb. 19 and be sent to Fort Benning, Ga.

Official notice, containing exact figures, is expected within the next three or four days, local board clerks said. Today's notice was merely one of an advisory nature, they explained, and none of the figures given below of the expected demands on each district are final:

Board	White	Colored	Total
3	52	5	57
4	51	5	51
5	48	2	50
8	41	4	45
9	43	1	44

Registration of 21-Year-Olds Closes Tonight

With a total registration of between 15,000 and 20,000 men expected for this state, registration of men in South Carolina who have reached the age of 21 since October 16, will be completed by 9 o'clock tonight.

Men who have failed to take advantage of the two-week registration period must report today to the established places. Penalty for failing to report can be as severe as $10,000 fine or five years' imprisonment or both, the selective service offiicals have announced.

Registration places designated for today are:

Men living in Wards Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6 should register at Columbia high school (for whites) and Booker Washington high school (for Negroes).

Men living in Wards Nos. 5, 7, 8, 9 and 10 and School District No. 1 outside the city limits, should register at Dreher high school, Hamrick school in the Pacific community and Hyatt Park school in Eau Claire.

For men living in the rural area of the county, registrations will be held at the following places: Eastover, Hopkins, Pontiac, Blythewood, Cedar Creek school, Camp Ground and Ballentine.

In addition to the places above designated the Columbia office of the selective service board, 1316 Washington street, will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight.

It has been pointed out that men from other cities and states who are in Columbia today are required to register at one of the designated places or at the local office.

SIDNEY HILLMAN'S LETTER

"The Office of Production Management expects defense contractors to utilize all available local labor resources before resorting to the recruiting of additional labor from outside their local areas. Our program of training and labor clearance are being established in accordance with such a policy. In many sections of the nation there are today available labor reserves of Negro workers. Plans for their training and employment in capacities commensurate with their individual skills and aptitudes should be undertaken at once."

This is a partial text of a letter which was sent this week by Sidney Hillman, associate director general of the Office of Production Management, to all holders of defense contracts. We are unable to find in this or any other part of the letter any ground for rejoicing. Though perhaps written in good faith, Mr. Hillman's communication amounts to a plea for the utilization of available labor. Those of us who are familiar with discriminatory policy know that mere pleading will not remove such an evil, and we suspect Mr. Hillman konws that as well as we.

The Office of Production Management has the power to force holders of defense contracts to drop their discriminatory practices. The national defense act has a clause which is directed specifically against discrimination in the defense industries. Why not invoke that clause? It is not optional to these industries to determine whether discrimination on account of race shall or shall not exist in their plants. It is a contractual obligation which they agree to fulfill automatically when they accept government contracts.

The OPM has, therefore, the legal authority to compel the industries to comply with all of the provisions of their defense contracts.

We view with suspicion any plea that does not carry with it an implied threat of drastic action. If Mr. Hillman really meant to do away with discrimination, he would not ask holders of defense contracts to examine their employment and training policies. He is well informed on the nature of the practices of the current in the defense industries. In government. His letter has all the earmarks of stead he would demand immediate suspension of any policy that vitiates the a theatrical stunt intended only for the gallery.

Now's Their Chance

The AFRO queried several colleges and schools last week asking in what way they were taking advantage of the Federal offer of $8,000,000 to provide equipment for defense courses.

It asked, also, what they were doing to turn out graduates who can qualify for defense industries.

Howard University has two defense courses in engineering: drawing and tool engineering.

Virginia State has supplementary and evening courses in carpentry, sheet metal work, auto mechanics, masonry, drafting and electrical wiring.

Fisk, Morgan, North Carolina State, Cheyney, and Atlanta report no defense training, although the question has been under consideration.

The need for vocational training being what it is, it is most unfortunate that liberal arts schools find themselves without shops and equipment to teach trades.

They can add technical courses now, if they are willing, to take advantage of Federal offers to furnish both teachers and equipment.

Physics laboratories can be used for electrical and radio training without much renovation, and with some serious study and ingenuity other sections of expensive university buildings can be used for defense training.

THE DEFENSE PROGRAM

MAR 7 1941

No subject affecting the Negroes has been provocative of wider comment in the Negro press and among our group generally wherever assembled than that of our integration into the National Defense Program. From California to Maine, from the Lakes to the Gulf, the chief question among our people has been: what part are we to play in the armed forces of the nation during this mighty arming of the manpower of this country in the matter of National Defense? And the twin complaint which goes right along with the above is: what part are we to play in the industries which are engaging in the production of the things that are needed and are being used for National Defense? Those who have observed the situation say that there seems to be a general conspiracy on the part of certain industrial officials to deny the Negro work in the industries, while others who appear less prejudiced claim that the Negroes are unprepared, for the most part, to meet the qualifications of workmen in most of the technical and skilled trades.

Just to what extent this is true we do not know, but we do know that our local Board of Education has consistently and persistently refused to provide certain kinds of technical training that would fit the Negro youth for integration into many of the skilled trades which are open to all, regardless of race or creed.

The statement by Assistant Superintendent F. J. Jeffrey, who has charge of technical training of youths in the school system, that he will not recommend certain trades or courses for Negro youths unless there is a demand for such services, should be met with a suit at law without further delay by some Negro youth, or by the parents of some youth. For school officials to deny a child the right to learn a trade that will help him in life is one of the meanest crimes that we can picture that may be committed by a public official. But that is the thing that is being done daily by the officials and members of the St. Louis Board of Education in an arbitrary way. Surely it is time for the Negroes to wake up

47c

Only Three Now In Regular Army Forces

FEB 2 2 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—Forty-five Negro chaplains will be needed in the army when the full strength of our fighting forces are placed afield, said Col. William R. Arnold, chief of chaplains in an interview with the Associated Negro Press.

Ranking as first lieutenants, with pay rate at $2,000 per year for the duration of the emergency, these positions offer an excellent opportunity for the right kind of man, Col. Arnold said.

One of the innovations instituted in the new army is a chaplain and a chapel for every 2,000 men or regiment. In one of the huge army cantonments, there are 55 chapels —where almost every religious denomination in the army can find spiritual comfort.

Selection of the chaplains will necessarily be based upon the applicant's physical fitness to stay with the troops and to actually serve the men under wartime conditions.

DAILY GATHERINGS

"The job, as we see it," said Col. Arnold, himself a Catholic with 27 years army experience to his credit, "means more than just holding a service of an hour on Sunday. It means daily gatherings and working closely with the men giving them the advice they need and the encouragement they demand."

According to a religious survey made by the census bureau, some 70 per cent of the Negroes surveyed were Baptists, with the remaining 30 per cent distributed among 31 denominations, excluding Catholics, who are said to have some 600,000 included in their midst.

ASKS FOR NORTHERN CHAPLAINS

Col. Arnold declared that if a sufficient number of Catholics were found in a division (several regiments), a Catholic chapel would be built for them and a Catholic priest provided. And that well may happen.

In other instances, he said, especially among the Protestants, there is a division there, where one group uses a ritual and another group does not. The minister of the ritualistic group can conduct services for the informal group, but the minister of the informal group cannot conduct services for the ritualistic group, although he can go part way in giving talks and preaching sermons, but he cannot administer communion and such other beliefs of the creed.

One commanding officer, said the colonel, in a big southern camp, has asked that no northern chaplain be sent for the colored troops in his outfit. There is a general misunderstanding created when this is done and the northern chaplains do not fit into the scheme with the men as do the southern chaplains who, according to the belief, are well schooled in the racial aspects in their sections.

At present in the regular army there are three colored chaplains and from the reserves there came four chaplains, leaving a big deficit to be supplied.

FEB 21 1941

All packed up and ready to go were two Macon Negroes yesterday who reported to their respective draft boards. But they weren't supposed to go.

Walter Smith, 357 Hazel street, read his name in the list of draft registrants for duty and reported at board No. 3, and Jesse Limb called at Board 1.

Smith had received no notice, he said, but saw the newspaper article. Investigation revealed that the Walter Smith mentioned in the list was a volunteer who lives on Forsyth road.

In Limb's case, questioning revealed that he had seen his name on a replacement list. He is not subject for induction unless someone is rejected.

BELIEF NEGROES SHARE IN DEFENSE CALLED ERRONEOUS

WASHINGTON, D. C. —(ANP)— The erroneous general belief that Negroes are profiting by the various defense programs, which is causing certain congressmen to ask for cuts in relief appropriations, is supported by a report from the Employment Security Review of April, a publication of the United States Employment Service. Gloomy indeed are some of the statements, although there is hope for a lifting of the bans which have surrounded Negro workers.

''Employers generally continue to show reluctance in hiring Negroes for skilled and semi-skilled occupations, except in foundries,'' says the Review. ''The aircraft industry generally has ignored possibilities of utilizing Negro labor. Negroes have been trianed in defense centers, but even these are generally unable to secure employment in skilled occupations.

''Only in a few plants in Ohio are Negroes working in occupations other than those of janitor or in the personal service occupations. The exceptions are mainly in foundry work; and a few are employed in riveters, shake-put men, cleaners and grinders.

''In the fact of a shortage of foundry workers, a Chicago foundry refused to hire Negro moulders. The same was true in Delaware, where they were employed only as laborers

''The importance of the Negro in the labor service reserve is shown as soon as there is any substantial drain of white labor reserves. In the Charlestown, Ind., area, where the building of a huge powder plant has seriously depleted the labor supply, the Indana employment office reported in November that while there had been only a slight realization of the discrimination against Negroes, company officials are giving serious consideration to the use of Negro labor. If they can be prevailed upon to change their former policy, it will open up a large new pool of labor.

''Discrimination against the Negro has not been intensified as a result of the defense program. If anything, it has been slightly relaxed, and Negroes are continuing to find employment in the occupations and areas in which they have always been accepted—as janitors, laborers, truck drivers, waiters and waitresses, etc.

''Some liberalization of color requirement of domestic is taking place in New York. A greater willingness to hire handicapped persons, (who will escape conscription) is also marked.

''Employer specifications in some parts of Pennsylvania show further signs of relaxation in some respects. Color restrictions have been greatly reduced, particularly in the Eastern section of Pennsylvania. Age limits are almost completely broken down and experience requirements in semi-skilled jobs are continually being lowered.''

Lieut. Lawrence A. Oxley, supervisor, Negro Placement service of the Employment Service division of the Social Security Board, finds little in the current employment picture to warrant happiness. In a statement to the staff adviser, he called attention to the fact that during the period, August 1, 1940, to January 31, 1941, the unemployment service has a record of placement of 15,448 trainees from the vocational training classes in defense industries. Of this number only 50 or .32 percent were non-white. During this same period 118,422 trainees were referred to vocational classes by the WPA and the uses. Of this number 5,628 were Negroes trainees. Lieut. Oxley also called attention to the fact that in November, 1940, total Negro placements of Negro male and female workers in the defense industries were disproportionately small.

The quoted figures are 188,466 whites places in all types of work in November, 1940, compared with a total of 45,209 Negroes placed in all types of work in the same period.

Looking over the situation, leaders are justified in their gloominess over the outlook for Negroes. There are a great many instances of Negro workers being refused employment by manufacturing concerns with defense contracts in all sections of the country. Some of these refusals are abscribed to color bans set up by labor unions, but it is worthy of note that of the more than 200 major unions in the United States not more than 25 actually exclude Negroes through their constitutions.

The blame is placed primarily by the press in high places. It is felt that the large industrialists could employ Negro workers if they were so minded regardless of labor union attitudes. It is also believed by many that an uncompromising attitude on the part of the government, particularly of the Office of Production Management, would effect some employment.

Whatever jobs Negroes are getting, for the most part, are in the unskilled category, with the exception of the building trades where in the South, Negroes maintain a pretty high average.

But the majority of Negroes are wallowing in the slough of despondency as far as work is concerned under the defense contracts and in the large industrial plants and look further to Uncle Sam to continue his largess of relief and work relief. Under the current trend, further distress will come to the Negroes of the United States unless some immediate action is taken, either to see that they are included in the defense contracts or to make it an out and out WPA program for Negroes and give them work and at salaries comparable to those being paid by private industry to prevent a further increase in the class and caste system in the greatest democracy of them all, A few well chosen words from the White House on this subject would end once and for all, the debacle.

Negro May Be Named To Aid Army Recreation

Race Performers Will Be Asked To Donate Services

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—The appointment of a wealthy New Yorker to head up the recreation division of the army for the entertainment of soldiers in camp has brought about the possible appointment of a Negro to do a similar task for the thousands of colored troops also serving the government, according to a report being circulated in Washington this week.

Differing from the morale division in that this group will see to it that entertainment is provided for soldiers, and experiment was conducted recently with a topliner from Broadway bringing a group of professional entertainers down to two camps. The entire show was a howling success, it is reported, and the actors are willing to cooperate further in putting over the program.

One of the recommendations made by the Broadway star who conducted the first show was that the camps need, in addition to their present equipment, theaters large enough to accommodate the soldiers. The first shows were presented out of doors and on one occasion, the weather was a bit rough and didn't add to the effectiveness of the presentation.

As in the past, when hundreds of colored performers have donated their services to benefits, etc., it is expected that they will rally to a call to entertain the soldiers and give their usual high class entertainment with singers, dancers and bands participating in the program.

146 GET DIPLOMAS FROM HOWARD HIGH

James Atkins, of WPA, Cites Opportunities for Negro to Serve in Defense

The 146 graduates of Howard High school, at their commencement exercises in Memorial auditorium last night, were told that they have "broad opportunities for service, if they will maintain the fine tradition of loyalty of the Negro race, that has long been a part of the history of this country," by Prof. James A. Atkins, specialist in Negro education, works progress administration, Washington.

Approximately 3,800 attended the fifty-fifth commencement program of the institution, which carried as its theme "The Negro in National Defense."

Ruth Luvenia Brown spoke on the subject, "Why the Negro Should Share in the National Defense Program," and delved into the history of the Negro in America and his loyalty "in all crises that have faced this country, even in the case of internal strife when our country faced disintegration." She spoke as salutatorian, chosen by the class from the second honor students.

Following her talk, Eleanor Anita Bryson treated the subject, "What the Negro Expects From the National Defense Program." She stated pointedly that "because of the tried virtues of the Negro in industry, our country should see to it that they have opportunity in the factories and plants that are vital to defense and as native-born citizens we should have jobs and positions of trust."

Prof. Atkins told the audience "the Negro cheerfully accepts full share in the responsibility for the defense of his country, realizing that governmental policy and national practice are in conflict so far as his participation in national defense, particularly in industrial defense, is concerned."

Musical numbers were rendered by the school chorus and the mixed glee club under direction of Edmonia Johnson Simmons. "America My Wondrous Land" was the most loudly acclaimed number rendered aside from the choral interpretation of "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho," a Negro spiritual.

Prof. William J. Davenport, principal, presented the class to Supt. W. F. Robinson, and Commissioner Thomas H. McMillan, chairman of the board of education, awarded certificates.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AND THE NEGRO

By Noble Y. Beall

History was made when the United States conducted the first peace-time conscription in its existence as a nation. Virtually all are more or less agreed that such a move was made necessary due to the exigencies of the present world situation.

Twenty-three years have passed since America assembled her man-power for participation in the last World War. Among the millions of American youths and men who answered the call to defend this nation were thousands of valiant Negro men. The large majority, of course, came from the Deep South, for that is where the bulk of the Negro population of this country is located. In the last war these men from the South entered the defensive services willingly and without restraint.

War veterans recall that Negroes themselves were given little opportunity to participate in any phase of the national defense, except as they were directed by persons of the other race. Registration of draftees was carried on almost entirely by the whites. No Negro, in the majority of sections, served on the draft boards or the appeal boards.

Thousands of Negroes all over the country were simply herded to registration places, without fair and accurate records of their physical and mental status being taken for the benefits of their relatives. Many a Negro mentally and physically incompentent to make a good soldier was drafted into service.

PROGRESS MADE

However, preparation for training men back in 1917 was done under pressure of actual warfare, and failure to include Negroes in larger measure for the national defense was somewhat excusable under the trying circumstances of the times. This certainly has not been the case in 1940.

The educational advance made by Negro people during the past two decades has raised the literacy level of the race to a much higher point than it was in 1917. It has been felt, and is still felt, by thinking Negroes throughout the South and nation, and by many liberal-minded and straight-thinking white people that the failure of local, state or national officials to call upon Negroes to serve as registrars, clerks, and members of the draft and appeal boards set up over this country in 1940, is an abject and unjustifiable neglect to recognize the progress that the race has made during the past twenty-three years.

As the United States girds itself in the hostile atmosphere of a world of unrest, its leaders will do well to consider the entire resources of this nation—its Negro resources as well as all others. One of the most effective ways in which it can guarantee the sincerity of its efforts is to accord the Negro a place in the entire scheme which will be appreciably higher and better than was accorded in 1917.

ENLARGED MINISTRY NEEDED

Selections of chaplains in the present defense program will necessarily be based upon the applicant's physical fitness to stay with the troops and to actually serve the men under wartime conditions.

"The job, as we see it," says Colonel Arnold, himself a Catholic with twenty-seven years' army experience to his credit, "means more than just holding a service of an hour on Sunday. It means daily gatherings and working closely with the men, giving them the advice they need and the encouragement they demand.

"One of the things a number of citizens can do in their communities which will be of help to the army, especially those ministers who are over the age limit of 42 years, is to help clean up the communities adjacent to the camps where so much harm is done the army. The army itself never harmed a man, but many a man has come into the army who was not fit to be in it. The communities adjacent to the army camps are the spots where missionary work needs to be done.

When the information first came to various institutions concerning the availability of well trained men to fill these jobs, different denominations immediately got busy to see if their groups would be called upon to supply the necessary chaplains.

According to a religious survey made by the census bureau, some seventy per cent of the Negroes surveyed were Baptists, with the remaining thirty per cent distributed among thirty-one denominations, excluding Catholics, who are said to have some 600,000 included in their midst.

This makes an interesting problem for the chief chaplain, who will be besieged with letters from religious denominations asking for apportionment according to their representation in the census.

QUALIFIED CHAPLAINS SOUGHT

One commanding officer, said the colonel, in a big southern camp, has asked that no northern chaplain be sent for the colored troops in his outfit. There is a general misunderstanding when this is done, and the northern chaplains do not fit into the scheme with the men as do the southern chaplains, who, according to the belief, are well schooled in the racial aspects in their sections.

At present in the regular army there are three colored chaplains, and from the reserves there came four chaplains, leaving a big deficit to be supplied.

Quietly but efficiently Colonel Arnold is working with the religious institutions seeking the type of men they need for this work in the army, and although he deplores the fact that most of the men will be new in the work, he feels that great good will be done when the final selections are made and the men are placed together in their respective camps with their respective units.

Forty-five Negro chaplains will be needed in the army when the full strength of our fighting forces are placed afield, ranking as first lieutenants, with pay rate at $2,000 per year.

Negro Quota For Army Here Is Wide Open

Quotas for Negro applicants for enlistment in the army have been thrown wide open in the Carolinas for the first time since the World war, First Sgt. Chester R. Vaughn, Columbia recruiting officer, said yesterday.

Volunteers must be able to read and write. High school graduates are preferred, with men who have finished grammar school grades receiving secondary preference.

Numerous grades and ratings are awaiting Negro soldiers who enlist. Specialist ratings offered include clerks, mechanics, electricians, carpenters, chauffeurs, radio and telephone operators, mess sergeants, painters, musicians and others.

Seven first sergeant ratings also are waiting. Negro high school graduates, after serving the necessary four months of basic training, can thus be promoted at once from privates to top sergeants.

NEGROES PLAN TO HOLD PARADE

Negro Committee to Sponsor Parade and Memorial Services at Cemetery Friday

Although separate and distinct from the exercises planned by Danville's white citizenry, the Memorial Association of Danville and Vicinity, colored, has outlined extensive plans for observance of Memorial Day here on Friday.

The Negro Association will stage a parade from the intersection of Gay and Holbrook Streets to the National Cemetery on Lee Street, where appropriate exercises will be held.

Heading the parade will be the Waldon France American Legion Post (colored) Junior Drum and Bugle Corps, 1939 State Champions, and the line of march will then be made up of all uniformed ranks, organized classes, cavaliers, patrons and Legionnaires and other war veterans.

The parade will form at 4 o'clock and officials of the Association last night stressed the desire to have all participating organizations on hand promptly.

The line of march will be up Holbrook Street, across Main to Holbrook Avenue, down Holbrook to Paxton Street, up Paxton to Jefferson, along Jefferson to Lee and then to the cemetery.

At the cemetery, the following program will be carried out:

Music, "America"—Led by Maude W. Fullen.

Invocation—Rev. W. G. Anderson.

Music, "Battle Hymn of Republic."

Remarks—President J. M. Cunningham.

Music—Drum and Bugle Corps.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address—Gregory Swanson.

Music—Drum and Bugle Corps.

Introduction of speaker—Dr. G. W. Goode.

Address—Rev. H. B. Moore.

Salute to The Dead—American Legion Firing Squadron.

Benediction.

AS I SEE IT

By C. W. RICE

NEGROES WERE BETTER PREPARED TO DEFEND THEIR COUNTRY IN CIVIL WAR THAN NOW—VOCATIONAL TRAINING NEEDED; GENERAL TREND TOWARDS WORKERS' WORLD.

Professor Nat Q. Henderson, veteran educator and principal of Bruce School, had something when he advanced the thought, in an article appearing in a white daily last Sunday, that "The New South could not, as the Old South, depend upon the Negro in an emergency as it had during the Civil War days, for the reason Negroes now lack skilled training to carry on the work.

Professor Henderson pointed out that as slaves, Negoes were better trained to do the necessary work than they are today. The result of such training was that when the war between the state broke out and the white man power had to go to war, Negroes in the South could carry on the farms, shops, mills, mines and even factories—"there was no 'bottleneck' in the industries making implements and munitions of war on account of strikes."

Because of the lack of skilled training to fit in the present emergency of this nation, Mr. Henderson in meaning points out,—"The Negro race cannot pledge that the sons and grandsons, of the faithful Negro of the Civil War days if called to defend their home land, can add in this crisis, fresh luster to the illustrations fame of their ancestors of the 'Old South.'"

Commenting on vocational training for Negroes, Roscoe Dunjee, of the Black Dispatch, Oklahoma City, said recently Negro convicts in the penitentiary were getting better training to make a living than students in our colleges and universities.

The United States office of Education was granted THIRTY-SIX MILLION dollars in federal funds for defense training. In allocating this sum to the various state Negro educators were assured there would be no discimination of these funds on account of race. But, despite this stipulation, a WPA survey over an eight month period, shows that only dribbles of this fund have been used for Negroes.

In Region VI, which embraces Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Texas which have large Negro populations, the report shows that up to March there were only 522 Negro trainees, the lowest total in the nation.

In discussing the situation with an NYA official at Houston last week, I was informed that practically nothing is done for Negroes in this section yet Houston has a Negro population of 100,000 or more. It was admited there was a lot of red tape to secure vocational trainning for defense jobs such as sponsorship, adequate building, qualified teachers, etc. An organization, it is reported, attempted to sponsor a project and was told the building would have to be on government property with certain acilities.

Sometime ago an organization of which I am head, attempted to sponsor a practice house for domestic workers under the WPA set-up and was turned down because it was not able to locate a house suitable as local officials in charge of funds specified the house had to be of a type where Negro domestics would be employed after finishing the course.

Few Negroes have rent houses or homes, furnished for purposes as required and whites would not permit such practice houses to operate in their section. In this instance funds that could have gone to a Negro instructor and for the training of Negroes, were used for training of white youth and other purposes, yet 88 per cent of the domestic work in Houston is done by Negroes. Employers are having one problem after another trying to find efficient domestic help. Many try to solve this problem by living in hotels.

AS I SEE IT, if Negro and white youths are to march side by side on the battlefield whether in Europe or in America in defense of this noble land of ours, there should be no discrimination in training and the sections practicing such discrimination are hurting the national defense program more than the race. Every day we are realizing more and more that we are face to face with a crisis, the outcome of which no one is able to determine or by whom sacrifices will have to be made.

The spirit of the Negro today is like in all others—willing to do his part. But, how can he if he is denied proper training. We should remember the statement made by the Eunich who was puzzled over the scripture when someone came along and asked—"Do you understand what you are reading?" He answered how can I unless I have someone to teach me?

It is hard for me to understand why and how the school boards and those in authority would hesitate to train the Negro as well as all citizens to do the "common things uncommonly well". It doesn't take a prophet or soothseer to see we are, every day, drifting towards a Workers World. Those will be respected most who can do the job best.

In speaking of the Negro people of today, the leadership of the South should consider the philosophy and statement of the greatest apostles of the New South, Henry W. Grady, when he immortalized the faithfulness and loyalty of Negro workers and said, "The conduct of the Negro has taught mankind a higher, a nobler, a divine meaning for loyalty and devotion. No where in history, sacred or profane, can be found a counterpart of the Negro's love for the only land they ever knew."

White Rejections Outnumber Colored

Approximately one of every ten local white selectees and one of every three colored selectees were rejected for physical defects at the induction stations during the month of May, according to statistics disclosed yesterday by local draft headquarters.

The report showed that of 561 white selectees sent to the Richmond induction station 61 were rejected. A percentage of 10.92. While of 332 colored selectees sent to the Baltimore induction station 110 were rejected. A percentage of 33.10.

The principal causes given in the report for rejection of the 61 white selectees were: Psychoneuroses (men temperamentally unsuited for military service), 22; hernia, 13; eye defects, 6, and dental defects, 5.

Reasons for rejection of the 110 colored selectees were given as mental deficiency, 25; gonorrhea, 25; illiteracy, 15; albuminoria and pyuria, 11, and syphilis, 8.

Lieut. Col. A. C. Gray, selective service medical officer who compiled the report said the rejection rates for reasons other than nervous and mental diseases, mental deficiency, illiteracy and the venereal diseases, are quite satisfactory. On the whole, he said, Washington's record is "better than the average."

The total number of selectees sent to induction stations during May was 893. According to the report 171 of these men were rejected. A percentage of 19.15.

Other causes for rejection were: Ear defects, varicose veins, hemmorhoids, musculo skeletal, heart disease, arterial hypertension chronic alcoholism, over or under weight, nasal and sinuses and acute illness.

Should The Army Be More Mechanized?

There is some criticism in high quarters of our present Army program. The critics argue that too many of our ranking officers are still thinking in terms of the last war, and have been incredibly blind to the lessons of this war.

The Army's program calls for comparatively few mechanized divisions. Backbone is still the traditional infantry. While there will be more specialization than in the past, the emphasis will remain on tremendous masses of men with only basic training.

The critics believe that what we need is a small, mobile intensely specialized, 100 per cent mechanized army. They point out that the German divisions which defeated the French army of 3,000,000, numbered only 150,000 men, and that German casualties were astonishingly light. The German theory seems to be that one thoroughly trained soldier with modern weapons is worth a dozen ordinary soldiers armed only with a rifle and bayonet. And so far, that that theory has worked dangerously well.

There is likely to be talk in Congress about this soon. There may be demands that the Army change its program in the light of what has happened in Europe. Those demands will be backed by many an expert.

It is true that the Army has often resisted radical change. The case of General Billy Mitchell is one in point—he was demoted for criticizing the Army command for not doing more to develop air power. Some say this extreme conservatism is the result of the Army's system of promoting officers largely through the seniority system, instead of on the basis of merit alone. Our generals average about 60 years in age—Hitler's average 45. Everyone knows what happened to France, which pinned its faith on great masses of infantry and old-type artillery, backed by such "impregnable" fixed positions as the Maginot Line.—Industrial News Review.

Lip Service Oratory Won't Weld Country Behind Unified Program, He Says—Believes U.S. Realizes We Must Be Included.

By EMMETT J. SCOTT

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5—Gerald W. Johnson, writing in Harper's Magazine for June, declares that, in seeking the safety of free peoples, our own "cannot be assured without assuring that of others."

The vitality and force of this assertion has not yet plugged its way into the minds and hearts of all the people of the United States—particularly that Southern part of our United States, where a group of approximately 8,000,000 people is kept, by force and fear, submerged economically and politically, and where a spiritual depression as black as Stygian darkness hovers over and influences practicly every normal activity of the people, white and black, alike.

LIP-SERVICE ORATORY

It is this section where emotional frenzy is easily excited by lip-service oratory paying tribute to the ideals of democracy, and where lusty changes are, loudly rung with national freedom and individual liberty as theme songs.

In the Democratic South, the Bilbos, the Rankins, the Overtors, the Ellenders, the Peppers, the Connalys, are to be found raucously proclaiming the solemn guarantees of the Federal Constitution, and sonorously chanting the refrains of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights.

They are insensible to the irony implicit in professions of faith when contrasted with the practices visited upon the submerged group to which reference has been made.

The truth contained in Gerald Johnson's statement, quoted at the beginning of this article, never occurs to these Congressional statesmen.

Their own freedom, the freedom of white men and women, and the future of their children, is inextricably bound up with that of those whom they now oppress and discriminate aginst as official policy.

Which of thes Democratic States of the South-North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Tennessee, Kentucky —has any honest faith in the Four Freedoms as they affect the colored population of the South, and the poor white, who, also, have no "respected place in the achievment of national purposes," or even, along with Colored citizens, a minor part in the political affairs of their section.

Wholesale disfranchisement is shamefully practiced, and Democratic Congressmen from these 11 States are elected by a disproportionately small electorate, when compared with the freedom of voting choice accorded free men in those freer sections of the North, East and West.

The "moral order" and supremacy of human rights" are slogans and not verifiable facts in that section.

EQUALITY OF OPPARTUNITY

The assurance of equality of opportunity is another of those slogans so industriously paraded by these Southern Democrats who wish to make the world safe for democracy, while denying and thwarting it in their own sections.

So far as they are concerned, the one-third ill-fed, ill clad, and ill-housed may remain so if only these bubbling gentlemen may retain their seats in Congress.

These eloquent gentlemen have not yet apreciated, or learned, the true meaning and significance of that fundemental concept of Americanism which seeks to restrain the exploitation of one man, or group, by another man, or group, and which recognizes human dignity as the birthright of every citizen of the Nation.

There are those who decry having these things said at this time. They profess to think that if they are not said now everything will be all right after—.

We do not believe such a wishful-hoping-policy has in it any of the elements of wisdom, or sound public policy.

A DIRECT APPEAL ADDRESSED TO NEGROES

Something of the feling of the Negro people seems to be percolating through the streams of public opinion, for it was only last week that the newly-organized Fight For Fredom Committee, in a half-page advertisement, addressed directly to the Colored people of the United States, declared, that the American people are now in a fight for fredom, and that that "fredom" must be for all men.

While frankly admitting that the American people have not sufficiently lived up to the American tradition of justice and dignity for all, they [illegible] not abandoned hope of doing so.

Further, the Committee declares, now that dark danger threatens, the American people must prove themselves worthy of building a more perfect democracy at home.

Without equivocation, the Fight for Fredom Committee states that:

"Nobody knows better than the American Negro the vanity of promises made in an hour of peril, but left unrealized when the peril has passed.

"During the last war we made brave promises of inter-racial justice—after the war was over. The promises were forgotten. Today, we must prove as we march towards war that we mean to advance freedom for ALL men here in America."

The Fight for Freedom Committee makes this direct appeal to Colored American citizens: "We believe we can honestly ask American Negroes," the Committee continues, "to join us in our effort to save and to forward the America we all desire."

COMPLETE ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Many moons have shown since so complete an acknowledgment has been made by any group of citizens in acknowledgment of the disillusionment and the bewilderment forced upon the Negro people following World War 1.

Ever loyal for the preservation of our form of Government, and all that it stands for, now, as in all the past, no group in the United States is more anxious and determined than the Negro group that the New Moral Order shall do away with present discriminations and prejudices based on color and economic servitude, the suppression of civil liberties, and the long roll of injustices known to whites and blacks alike.

They are wiling, they are anxious, to join with their fellow-citizens in every part of the country in working for common purposes and common principles.

Name Hubert T. Delany U. S. O. Director To Aid Men In Uniform

NEW YORK—Hubert T. Delaney, tax commissioner of New York City, has been elected to the board of directors of the United Service Organizations for National Defense, it was announced here this week—and will take part in directing the policies of the organization which will operate 360 service clubs for soldiers and sailors.

The U. S. O. is now engaged in a national campaign for $10,765,000 with which to finance its work for a year.

A. Philip Randolph, president, Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and honorary vice chairman of U. S. O., and Channing H. Tobias, one of the six members of the President's Advisory Committee on Selective Service and senior secretary for colored work of the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Associations, both hailed the appointment of Mr. Delany.

Appointment Hailed

"Realizing the problems of the Negro in military service as I do," Dr. Tobias declared, "I am greatly heartened at the appointment of a distinguished Negro citizen like Mr. Delaney to the U.S.O. Board of Directors.

"I feel that this appointment, in line with policies of the government itself, will aid the board as a whole immeasurably in having the needs of this group presented from time to time by one who is so intimately acquainted with them."

U.S.O. plans include arrangements to render adequate service adjacent to the camps where Negro troops will be massed.

The work of the U.S.O. represents the joint effort of six great national service organizations — the Young Men's Christian Association, National Catholic Community Service, Salvation Army, Young Women's Christian Association, Jewish Welfare Board and National Travelers Aid Association—in building up the morale of our men in the armed forces of the country. Mr. Delaney adds his membership on the U.S.O. Board of directors to a long list of activities. He holds national directorships in National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the National Urban League. He is a member of the board of managers of the Harlem YMCA, and is the only Negro on the board of directors of the YMCA of New York City. He also is a member of the vestry board of St. Martin's Protestant Episcopal Church.

NEGRO GROUPS TO AID TROOPS

Plans Being Made to Provide Social Activity For Negroes at Air Base.

Negro churches of Charlotte and the Charlotte Negro Chamber of Commerce plan to co-operate with the Charlotte air base in providing for the social life of Negro troops at the post, according to a report made after evening services at Friendship Baptist church Sunday.

The 15 Negro troops at the post attended the services in a body. Also present were C. O. Kuester, Charlotte Chamber of Commerce vice president, and Lieutenant Wesley Bare, air base chaplain, who asked the Charlotte Negro churches to support a move to provide recreation for the Negroes downtown.

The Charlotte Negro Chamber of Commerce plans to establish a downtown club for the Negro troops, and to assist in equipping the day-room of the Negro troops adjacent to their barracks, Mr. Kuester said yesterday. At the Sunday evening service, the Rev. Dr. J. S. Nathaniel Tross was the preacher.

Psychology And The Negro In Our Defense Program

By HERMAN G. CANADY

Note: Herman G. Canady is professor of psychology at W. Va. State College and chairman of the Department of Psychology of the American Teacher's Association. He has a Ph. D in psychology from Northwestern University and specializes in racial psychology.

THE PROBLEM OF psychological differences between Negroes and whites has always been one of keen interest to the psychologist At present, however, it is receiving a practical application and political significance which make it more than an academic question.

Out worn and forgotten racial theories are being revived in an attempt to rationalize political, economic, and social actions and policies. For example, the results of intelligence and mechanical aptitude testing are being used for the purpose of denying Negroes a wider scope of employment in our defense program.

Several industries, e. g., aircraft plants, have refused to employ Negroes either because "they are not as intelligent as whites", or they "lack mechanical aptitude", or both. Since these practical applications are being justified in the name of science, it is especially important that Negro leaders know with some precision the findings of scientists who have worked in this field.

ENVIRONMENT INFLUENCES

A large number of studies involving the administration of mental and mechanical aptitude tests to Negroes and whites have been made since the development of the testing technique. In most of these studies, the test standing of Negroes have suffered in comparison with whites because of their poorer social environment which consists of such factors as schooling, socio-economic level of the home, opportunity, segragation, discrimination, and community influences.

Together these conditions constitute a serious handicap in making scores on our current intelligence and mechanical aptitude tests. However, when sufficient allowances have been made for these serious handicaps, tests do not show a reliable difference between Negroes and whites in these abilities.

In certain localities, the Negro youth's performance shows no inferiority to that of the white youth. The recognition of this aspect of the problem was first brought to light by the Army testers, who found Negro recruits from the North, not only far superior to Negroes from the South but in several cases actually superior as a group to the whites from a number of Southern states.

MEASURE ABILITY

Contrary to popular opinion, tests measure, not native capacity, but ability as developed by environment and education. A low score does not indicate heredity stock or irremovable racial handicaps but chiefly lack of opportunity and training. Hence the folly of the present talk about Negroes lacking mechanical appitude or being innately inferior to whites.

This is pernicious propaganda and represents the sort of campaign Hitler carried on against the Jews in Germany to get their jobs and wealth for his followers. Race, nationality, nor color determine ability and all judgements based upon such artifices cannot be trusted in the treatment of human beings.

It is true that the early authorities in the field of testing expressed the opinion that their tests were true measures of native intelligence or aptitude relatively free from the disturbing influences of education and environment. In recent years, however, more work has been done on the tests themselves and the conviction has steadily grown that the early opinion was an exaggeration, and that the conditions of the environment cannot be ignored in any interpretation of test results, especially in Negro-white comparative studies.

TESTS UNSCIENTIFIC

Recently a group of white psychologists prepared a protest against the "non-scientific interpretations" of racial psychology which "Fascists are using to justify persecution" of minority groups. The protest was prepared by psychologists who are specialists on racial psychology and was issued officially by the Council of the Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues. It reads, in part as follows:

"In the experiments which psychologists have made upon different peoples, no characteristic, inherent psychological differences, which fundamentally distinguish so-called races have been disclosed .. There is no evidence of an inborn Jewish or German, or Italian mentality. Furthermore, there is no indication that the members of any group are rendered incapable by their biological heredity of completely acquiring the culture of the community in which they live. This is true not only of the Jews in Germany, but of groups that actually are physically different from one another."

At the 1938 meeting of the American Anthropological Association, a resolution was unanimously adopted, in part as follows:

"Anthropology provides no scientific basis for discrimination against any people on the ground of racial inferiority, religious affiliation, or linguistic heritage."

POSITION CLEARLY STATED

The position of American anthropology and white specialists in racial psychology is thus clearly stated. It is that psychologists have not ascertained whether differences in mental or mechanical ability exist among the races of man. More specifically the position would be that it is at present wholly unknown whether there are differences in intelligence or mechanical aptitude as related to race. However, slavery, segragations, discrimination and three centuries of anti-Negro propaganda through every avenue of information has set Negroes apart from their white compatriots and given them certain psychological and sociological problems and group characteristics not possessed by the surrounding whites.

NO PROOF OF DIFFERENCE

Thus, the only conclusion that can be drawn at this time from the mass of available data is that there is no adequate scientific proof of fundamental Negro-white differences in intelligence or mechanical aptitude, and that those differences which are found are due to lack of opportunity, training, and other enviromental factors. There is no reason, therefore, to treat Negroes and whites different because they differ in skin color. There is no justification for denying a Negro a job because he is a Negro.

No one has been able to demonstrate that ability is correlated with skin color or head shape or any other characteristic used to classify races. A man must be judged as an individual, not as a member of a group. Incidentally democracy revolves around the individual, for it is his rights, property, and civil liberties that the American way of life seeks to protect and defend.

White Man Asks His Local Draft Board To Send Him To Camp With Negro Selectees

Because he sincerely believes in true democracy, Roger Starr, young New York writer, filed with his local draft board Wednesday, July 9, a vigorously worded protest against the denial of democratic rights to Negro Americans. The protest accompanied Mr. Starr's questionnaire in which he placed himself in class 1.

"You will note that I have appropriately filled out the part of my questionnaire dealing with my racial ancestry. As a white, the Army wants to place me in a unit with white troops.  I should prefer to being placed with Negro troops. for then they would become mixed troops: American troops. Certainly there are others beside myself who went to school with Negro boys, who learned beside them the history of our country and the theory of its government and who want to be allowed to contribute their services to their country under conditions that do not hold that theory to ridicule."

Specifically named by Mr. Starr as weaknesses in the democratic system were discrimination against Negroes in the administration of the Selective Service Act, segregation of Negro troops from white, denial of equal opportunity to Negroes in the air corps, their total exclusion from the Marine corps and relegation in the navy to mess attendant, and anti-Negro training and employment policies by large corporations.

American Spirit

From Georgia comes the story of a Negro man who was trying to fill out his questionnaire. He wrote and paused, and scratched his head. Finally he said to himself:

"Ah kain't answer all them questions in a year."

So he turned the sheet over and wrote on the back:

"Ah is reddy when you is."

In those six humble words is embodied the sincerity and the sentiments of millions of young men in the United States today. The attitude shown by the Negro man reflects, we believe, the splendid American spirit which, having a task to perform, sets forward to do it with determination and enthusiasm.

We are impressed every day with the fine spirit shown everywhere by the young men who have been or will be called into service before the present crisis is over.

It is essentially American, and it is the spirit of America.

We are proud of our young men.

Weaver Named To New Labor Board In OPM

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(SNS)—Sidney Hillman, Associate Director-General of OPM, gave emphasis to the drive for Negro employment in defense industries Wednesday by announcing that Dr. Robert C. Weaver has been appointed one of the twelve officials of governmental agencies who comprise the newly-created Labor Supply Branch of the Labor Division of the Office of Production Management.

At the same time, Negroes were given representation on the Regional Labor Supply Committee just established by Mr. Hillman, and members of Dr. Weaver's staff in the Negro Employment and Training Branch of OPM are being assigned to regional offices of the committees in New York City, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Washington, D. C.; Cleveland, Ohio; Chicago, Ill.; Birmingham, Ala.; Kansas City, Mo.; San Antonio, Texas, and San Francisco, Cal.

HEARD BY FLEMMING

The new Labor Supply Branch of OPM, which is charged with the responsibility of making recommendations to Mr. Hillman on policies to be followed in assuring a full complement of labor in defense industries, is headed by Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming of the United States Civil Service Commission.

In addition to making recommendations relative to OPM policies of labor supply, the new branch will also be responsible for putting these policies into operation by using the resources of existing governmental units.

Dr. Weaver declared that the new Labor Supply Branch and its field service would do much to accelerate the work of his office in integrating Negroes into national defense employment.

TO EFFECT NEGRO

"Among the policies passed on to the regional offices," he said, "are several which are significant for Negroes. First, there is the recently announced policy of the Defense Training Branch of OPM that Negroes will be trained in selected occupations in communities where heretofore have been no employment opportunities for them.

"Second, the U. S. Employment Service has been instructed by OPM to assume responsibility for exhausting sources of available labor supply within a locality before resorting to recruitment or training of labor from outside the locality. This includes the responsibility for exerting effort to place available workers of minority groups.

"Third, the policies relating to the supplying of labor for the defense program and passed on to the regional offices contain a complete copy of the President's Executive Order of June 25, 1941, reaffirming the policy of full participation in the defense program of all persons, regardless of race, creed, color, or national origin, and directing certain actions in furtherance of said policy."

Athens Picture In Draft Files

Georgia selective service headquarters has had in its files for months the original photograph of officials at the Athens "send-off" dinner for Negro volunteers for the Army.

Major Charles Brockman, occupational deferment officer, who was among those in the picture, said it was kept as a matter of routine with activities of all draft boards which participated in patriotic programs at the beginning of selective service. A copy was also mailed to national draft headquarters in Washington, he said.

Practically all draft boards in the nation gave similar dinners as a patriotic gesture to the first men leaving to serve their country.

CAMP CLAIBORNE, La.—The 367th Infantry rhythm orchestra, directed by Julian E. Christmas, is always in demand—for regimental entertainment, for social activities given by officers in parts of the camp, and for civic gatherings in nearby communities.

On Tuesday night of this week, these swingsters provided a sizzling jam session for the white soldiers of the 168th Infantry—and there were cries for "more—more!" until the boys had actually packed their instruments away.

And when they returned to the 367th, Col. Ralph C. Holliday, commanding officer, had already sent word to the chaplain that the boys and the regimental dancers were to entertain again on Saturday night.

Popular and Good

They're popular and they're good. Most of the men in the aggregation have been playing side by side for four years. They came to the 367th Infantry as a unit, and the regiment is proud of them—from top to bottom.

They volunteered for army training, en masse, after finishing their college training at Alcorn A. and M. College, Alcorn, Miss.—where the group was known as the Purple and Gold Serenaders.

Christmas, the orchestra leader, not only holds an A. B. degree from Alcorn, but has done graduate work at the University of New Mexico. He was serving as dean of men and directing the orchestra at Alcorn when given leave of absence to join the army.

Have FDR's Okey

Most of the bandsmen are members of the class of 1940. Their wholesale volunteering is unprecedented and the fact that they are remaining intact had to have approval of President Roosevelt. The venture was taken with the full approval of President William H. Bell of Alcorn.

The orchestra personnel includes:

Band Personnel

Other personnel which makes up the regiment's thirty-piece band includes:

Band leader: Warrant Officer Jesse J. Stanbrough.

Assistant band leaders: Technical Sgt. Robert Wade, Staff Sgt. Ishom Richard, Sgts. Joseph Calvin, A. P. Martins and J. Simmons;

3 HOSTESSES AND LIBRARIAN TO CAMP DAVIS

Ordered To Report For Duty At Service Club Now Being Built

CAMP DAVIS, N. C.—Appointment of three hostesses and a librarian for the service club now being built at Camp Davis for colored troops was announced Friday.

The senior hostess and librarian have been directed to report immediately for duty, while the two junior hostesses will not take over their positions until the service club is completed.

Miss Carrie G. Hargrave, formerly a case worker for the New Hanover County Welfare Department, Wilmington, N. C., has been named senior hostess. Miss Hargrave is 48 years old, was graduated from Gregory Normal institute and attended summer sessions at Hampton institute and Columbia university, New York City. Before being employed by the county welfare department, Miss Hargrave taught in the Williston elementary school and later was principal of a girls' school in Freetown, Sierra Leone, West Africa.

A Louisville, Ky., resident was given the post of librarian for the colored service club. She is Mrs. Hortense H. Young, who until her appointment was librarian for four years at Louisville Municipal college. Mrs. Young attended school at Fisk college, the University of Illinois, and the University of Chicago. She is 36 years old.

Named junior hostesses were Miss Laura Belle Truzerls, 28 years old, resident of Warsaw, N. C., and Miss Iona Crawford. 40 years old, a dietician at Community hospital, Wilmington. Miss Truzerls has been a teacher. Miss Crawford holds a master's degree from Columbia university in home economics.

Under a recent acthorization by the War Department, 27 Jim Crow service clubs are being constructed for colored troops throughout the nation.

Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune

Thousand of radio fans in the Southwest heard Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, at 8:30, Thursday morning over WKY speaking from the subject "The Negro Woman in National Deense."

Mrs. Bethune, who in addition to her work as President of Bethune-Cookman College, is also Director of Negro Activities, National Youth Administration.

Making a plea for a united motherhood during "a time like this" Mrs. Bethune pleaded for the right of Negroes to be integrated into every arm of the military service.

Mrs. Viola Cutler, YWCA Secretary, was instrumental in securing time for Mrs. Bethune.

Mississippi Camp Has Some Justified "Beefs"—Northern Officers Try to Avoid Incidents

CAMP SHELBY, Miss., July 31—Complaint and grievance mills operate at all Army camps on a 24-hour basis. An investigator going from one camp to another, finds some camps better than others. Some are found to be very good. But there are no camps which have not reached a production peak in "beefs", some justified, some unjustified.

As Army camps go, Camp Shelby is a good camp. Besides colored service troops there and a battalion of colored engineers, the 37th division (Ohio) and the 38th division (Ky., W. Va., and Ind.) are quartered there. Usually, the white boys from the North act better in the South than they do in the North when they are in camp if they have any contact with colored soldiers. And nearly all the officers in Camp Shelby are from the North. They make a point of trying to do the right thing racially.

LACKS PREVENTIVE STATION

COMPLAINT NO 1—Men from the colored service detachment are assigned to menial tasks at the camp. Men from the white service detachment are given the "white collar" jobs in the headquarters. The colored boys were given the job of washing dishes for the white enlisted men at headquarters. The colored boys were paid $12.00 extra a month for this work, but they thought that these white enlisted men were soldiers just like themselves and that they should wash their own dishes or have some white soldiers from the white service detachment wash them.

COMPLAINT NO 2—Prophylactic stations are usually set up by the Army in towns near the camps. The nearest big town to Camp Shelby is Hattiesburg, Miss. There is a first class Army prophylactic station in Hattiesburg, but colored soldiers can't use it. The first reason is because, the color line in the Army being what it is, it would not look just right for colored soldiers and white soldiers to be going to the same prophylactic station. Of course, a separate section might be set up for Negro soldiers, but the station is set up in the white district, too far removed from the district where colored soldiers have their fun.

As a result, an untidy shanty with a sergeant in charge has been set up in the colored district for the exclusive use of colored soldiers. These soldiers protest that the place is not only dirty and unattractive, but that it is inadequately equipped and staffed.

OBJECTS TO SINGING FOR WHITES

COMPLAINT NO. 3—Even in the Army the old practice of trotting out Negroes to sing spirituals for white folk, prevails. Glee clubs to sing spirituals are encouraged and engagements are accepted to sing for white clubs and churches. The boys like to sing, but they don't like to pretend to enjoy singing for people who deny them most of the advantages of citizenship. They don't like the white folk they are required to sing for and they see no reason for mixing deception and religion.

COMPLAINT NO. 4—Within easy motoring distance from Camp Shelby is Mississippi's Gulf Coast. This coast is lined with resort towns, health camps and picnic grounds. White soldiers are taken to these places in truckloads and have a gay time. The chief reason is because most of the camps and pleasure resorts are operated by whites and operators invite white soldiers for a Gulf Coast spree. Colored soldiers received an invitation to a colored resort, but found nothing there to enjoy after they got there. This doesn't look like one which can be laid at the door of the camp authorities.

COMPLAINT NO. 5—There is no uniformity in Army camps in the rules for the operation of automobiles on the military reservation. The speed limits vary, the penalties vary, enforcement varies and the costs vary. Enlisted men at Camp Shelby feel that the cost of a camp license, $40, is excessive, especially in view of the fact that a soldier may be at that camp a month or two, then be transferred to some other camp. This tax is in addition to the state license and seems to be in excess of most city and state license charges.

"WOMAN'S ROLE IN NATIONAL DEFENSE IS INCREASINGLY IMPORTANT," SAYS OFFICIAL

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Negro women are playing an increasingly important role as skilled workers in the national defense program, Thelma McKelvey, special assistant in the labor supply branch of the Office of Production Management, told the National Association of Colored Women, Inc., Tuesday evening, July 29.

Addressing the biennial convention of the association in Oklahoma City, Okla., Miss McKelvey also urged the assembled delegates to work through their state and local federations to increase the enrollment of Negro workers in defense training courses.

"In several communities in which the courses were open to all workers, regardless of race, creed or color," she said, "it has been found that Negro youth has failed to take advantage of these opportunities. As a result of this, many of these prospective defense workers were unable to enter local plants when OPM had altered discriminatory employment practices in these communities."

Touching on the role of Negro women in defense, Miss McKelvey declared:

"Our program of total utilization of our human resources includes plans to increase the participation of Negro women as well as men, for they are a vital part of our labor supply."

Some progress has already been made in this direction through the work of the Negro Employment and Training branch of OPM, the speaker pointed out.

"Through the activities of Dr. Weaver's office and other branches of the labor division of OPM, hundreds of Negro women have been employed during the last year as power machine operators in the garment industries of St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo.; Chicago, Ill.; Philadelphia, Pa., and in other urban centers.

"As of June 1, 1941, more than 400 colored women were employed as gas mask assemblers in the Edgewood Arsenal at Baltimore, Md. One of the largest parachute manufacturers in the country has placed Negro women on parachute assembly work in Manchester, Conn., as a result of OPM activity. And the State Employment Service offices in various communities have placed colored women in defense industries in such unusual occupations as sheet metal workers, press operators, jewelers, sign painters and electrical goods assemblers. A recent report of the Bureau of Employment Security shows more than 117 placements of this nature in recent months."

Medic Named To Advisory Council Selective Service

Dr. Paul B. Cornely, associate professor of preventive medicine and public health at Howard University Medical School, has been appointed to the Medical Advisory Council of the Selective Service System, the National Selective Service Headquarters announced this week.

The duties of the council are to provide liaison between national headquarters of the Selective Service System, the American Medical Association, National Medical Association, the medical profession at large, and to acquaint these organizations with the medical needs for the most effective administration of Selective Service.

At the present time the council, among other things, is considering plans for rehabilitation with regard to the minor physical defects of young men.

Dr. Cornely received his preliminary education in Detroit. He was awarded an A.B. degree from the University of Michigan in 1928, an M.D. in 1931, and a degree of doctor of public health in 1934. He studied public health under the renowned Dr. John Sundwall. He is author of a number of articles on medical problems.

The other members of the Council are: Dr. Francis X. McGovern, chairman, chairman of the executive board of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia and state chairman of the Committee on Medical Preparedness of the American Medical Association; Dr. Henry C. Macatee, past president of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia and a delegate to the American Medical Association; Dr. Thomas Stephen Cullen, professor-emeritus of gynecology, of Johns Hopkins Medical School and a trustee of the American Medical Association; Dr. Harvey Brinton Stone, associate professor of surgery, Johns Hopkins University and a member of the Committee on Medical Preparedness of the American Medical Association; Dr. Robert A. Bier, secretary of the Medical Advisory Council and liaison officer between the council and national headquarters; and Theodore Wiprud, executive secretary of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia and secretary to the Committee on Medical Resources of the District Medical Society.

Dr. Cornely is a member of the following honorary societies: Alpha Omega Alpha (medical), Delta Omega (public health), and Phi Kappa Phi (literary). He is a member of the National Medical Association, American Public Health Association and the Medical Chirurgical Society; member of the board of directors of the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association and the District Social Hygiene Association; fellow of the American Public Health Association; consultant for the National Tuberculosis Association and the American Social Hygiene Association.

Roger Starr Has Set Example For Other Fair-Minded Whites

ROGER STARR, a young New York writer, who is white, wants to join the army but in sending in his questionnaire he expressed a strong desire to be connected with a colored unit.

Mr. Starr wrote the draft officials:

"You will note that I have appropriately filled out the part of my questionnaire dealing with my racial ancestry. As a white man, the Army wants to place me in a unit with white troops. I should prefer being placed with Negro troops, for then they would become mixed troops—American troops.

"Certainly there are others besides myself who went to school with Negro boys, who learned beside them the history of our country and the theory of its government and who want to be allowed to contribute their services to their country under conditions that do not hold that theory to ridicule."

Mr. Starr has put his finger on something that is important in any fair discussion of the race problem. Too many people assume that it is the Negro problem. And any solution or effort seeking its abolishment must come from colored people. It is an American problem.

Fair-minded white folk could do much to end segregation if they would take similar action to that of Mr. Starr. Perhaps if several thousand white men would advise the War Department that they want to join the so-called Negro units, the brass hats would sit up and take notice.

The reason given for the rules and regulations which segregate and discriminate against Negroes in the armed forces is that white soldiers would object to fighting with colored ones.

Since it is difficult and at the present time impossible for colored soldiers to Americanize the Army maybe white soldiers can break the barriers in the opposite direction. But it will require hard work. In fact, it will require more skill and work to break up segregation in the Army of the greatest democracy than it would take to capture a whole army of Hitler's soldiers. But anyway it would be interesting to observe what would happen if several thousand white soldiers sought to join units made up of colored soldiers. Mr. Starr has started something; we hope he follows it up among his friends and other intelligent Americans.

Negro Proportion Of Draftees Les Than 10 Per Cent

70,000 Negro Troops Called Into Army Through Selective Service

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—The proportion of Negroes in the United States army, against the total population, will not be the usual and accepted ten percent. To the contrary, the proportion will reach the puny mark of around five percent of the planned host of 1,500,000 men.

Had the regular army followed the principles laid down by the selective service board, this small total would not be true. However, under the acts of the former group, approximately 12 per cent of the total Negro population has been called to the colors—to serve in various units and not in restricted regiments.

An interesting chart, showing up to June 1, 1941, the population proportions has been prepared and is given herewith:

1	99.19	.81	98.59	1.41
2	91.41	8.59	95.81	1.41
4	65.49	34.50	56.83	43 17
5	92.85	7.15	94.25	5.75
6	96.20	3.80	93.56	6.44
7	95.02	4.98	93.13	6.87
8	94.42	5.58	87.80	12.20
9	99.82	.18	99.07	.93
Tot'l	90.30	9.70	88.03	11.97

Exceeding by 2.2 percent the percentage of the population, the total number of Negroes thus called by the selective service since November numbers around 70,000 colored troops. This does not say that all of these troops are in encampments for the rejection rates have been high in some instances, and, prior to the addition of illiteracy, or the equivalent of a fourth grade education, were caused chiefly by physical defects of which syphilis was the leading cause.

Rejection of selectees, white and colored, was 16 percent in the District of Columbia; 11 percent in Hawaii and 15 percent in Porto Rico.

The remainder of the states ran from 5 percent to 12 percent rejections.

An analysis of the cases showed that the higher disease rate prevailed in the country areas away from the urban districts, which had been contrary to expectation. Officials believe that this condition is due to the inability of the country youth to obtain treatments for the disease as easily as do residents of cities and towns.

The widespread ravages of syphilis in the rural areas indicates to these officials two things: the need for more educational facilities among these people and the rendering of medical treatment, in these sections.

The advent of the literacy test for selectees greatly increases the number of rejects, especially in the areas where school facilities have been poor and in many instances, lacking entirely for certain communities.

Placing the requirements as low as could be done with safety and efficiency for the individuals and the army, officials are proving the need for more schools and better schools as well as for additional health facilities.

Vocational Study Helped Balto. Youth in Army

By ARCHIE R. SMOTHERS

FORT EUSTIS, Va. — Elmer Watkins, graduate of the Colored Vocational School in Baltimore, now enrolled in a three-month mechanic engineering course at Camp Holabird, Md., is class of approximately five in the only co[illegible] student in a dred soldiers.

Aided by his vocational training, Watkins's work and evidence of ability at the Motor Transport Garage here merited him the opportunity to attend the school.

Two other members of Watkins's detachment, the Service Unit of the Quartermaster Detachment, are studying in the machinist's school at Camp Holabird. They are Benny Carter and Jesse Johnson.

The detachment is commanded by Lieut. John O. Looney, assisted by First Sgt. Alton Beavers, who has had fifteen years of army experience, and six sergeants and eight corporals. The detachment is made up of two hundred men and the number of rated men is mounting daily.

Members of the detachment occupy five barracks and are served in their own mess hall. A new day room, fully equipped with recreational facilities, was opened recently.

The duties of the service unit consist largely in driving and maintenance of trucks, driving staff cars and serving and, warehouse clerks, movie attendants and ushers.

Negroes Raise $150 In United Service Drive

Already $150 has been collected in the Negro drive of $1,000 for the United Service Order, Chairman E. M. Wilson, pastor of the Friendship Baptist Church, reported today.

The bulk of this amount came in two separate checks donated by local plants.

Chairman Wilson urges that the solicitors emphasize the importance of the work that is being done, and asks that pastors impress on their people the need for everyone's contributing.

In addition, the pastor stated that he has been authorized to aid in the county drive for defense aluminum, and asks that all Negroes give liberally to this cause.

Complimenting Colored Army And Navy YMCA

COLUMBUS, Ga.—(SNS)—
We wish to thank and heartily congratulate Mr. E. E. Farley, who through long years of work, trials and numerous disappointments has at last given to our community one of the finest buildings with recreational facilities that are second to none in our country. We are also deeply grateful to Mr. M. R. Ashworth and his committee of management who has made this this possible. Mr. Ashworth has endeared himself to our race as no other, we thank all of the others who were reponsible for this wonderful edifice.

Especially do we wish to compliment and express our gratitude to Mrs. Lizzie Lunceford whose unselfish contribution made the Army-Navy YMCA a financial possibility. She has set a fine example for others of our group who have the means with which to make it possible for more of our people to enjoy the "abundant life".

To the members of the staff for their efficient services we wish to encourage and give our cooperation. Mr. J. A. Davis, who is one of the assistant directors, is a graduate of Talledega College and has studied towards his M. A. degree at Fisk University. Mr. Davis has served as principle of the following training schools, Russell County Training School at Hurtsboro, Alabama, and Fayette County Training School at Fayetteville, Alabama. Plus his educational background, Mr. Davis brings to us a pleasing personality and years of experience in working with people. He quiet unassuming manner has already endeared him to many.

Mrs. Nell Blackshear, the other assistant director, has as her educational background Atlanta University, Atlanta School of Social Work and Columbia University in New York. Her experience as a social worker has been wide-spread, having worked with the following agencies, Federal Emergency Relief Administration, as case worker, Administrative Interviewer for the Recertification Department of the Work's Progress Administration, Department of Public Welfare, as case worker, Travelers's Aid Society, as community organization worker, and as investigator for the American Red Cross. Her pleasant personality and smile is already winning for her a host of friends. Miss Irene McAllister, the office secertary, is a graduate of Butler's College at Carver, Texas, and had her business training at Morris Brown College in Atlanta. She has proved herself efficient and alert at all times. She will aid all visiting the building in getting acquainted with the facilities.

The Custodians, Mr. James Allen, Mr. Homer Allen and Mr. Will Marley, are to be commended on the way they are keeping the building attractive. They are all men of fine character and honesty. Mr Francis Jones, the Canteen Operator, is a graduate of Morehouse College and has a great deal of business experience having worked for a long period in this city as an insurance man.

Mr. Farley is to be again commended upon his choice of staff as he has shown care in his selection to get experienced and qualified persons. It again evidences his ever broadening vision and his open hearted interest in humanity. Mr. Farley has done a job well and we as citizens want him to know that we appreciate and admire him. His Christian attitud and his belief in prayer, has today given him. His Christian attitude and his forts realized. Hats of COLORED COLUMBUS to a man who has proved to us that he is a PATHFINDER and a LEADER.

NEGROES COLLECT TODAY

Boy Scouts Will Pick Up Aluminum For Defense Use

Collection of aluminum for defense use in the negro communities of the city will start this afternoon at 5 o'clock when Boy Scout troops of the Seminole Division, under the sponsorship of the Council of Colored Civic Clubs, start a house-to-house canvass.

The city has been divided into zones with outstanding civic club heads and Scout masters in charge of each zone. All negro Scouts are to report to the head of the division in their community this afternoon for instructions before starting to work. After the aluminum is taken to depositories in the various wards trucks will carry it to the main pile in Court Square.

Negro Girl Scouts Help Aluminum Drive

One of Columbia's Negro Girl Scout troops has done its share toward the defense aluminum drive.

Troop 14 conceived and executed a novel idea, in co-operation with the Capitol theater in the 1000 block of Washington street. The troop sponsored a film showing to which persons were admitted for a piece of aluminum.

There were 400 or 500 persons attending the show yesterday morning with approximately 300 pounds of aluminum being received. J. E. Dickson is chairman of the Negro aluminum drive in Columbia. His wife is in charge of Troop 14.

Negro Workers Turn In $150 For USO Fund

Negro workers in the USO campaign turned $150 into the pot yesterday but the drive was still $1500 short of the $18,500 goal.

Working entirely among Negroes, the Negro Business League and the International Longshoreman's local union canvassed and plugged until the $150 was scraped up in nickels and dimes, the largest contribution of the day.

LaMar Sarra, general chairman of the USO drive, urged workers to make reports on the results of their collections today and tomorrow, in hope that the drive can be pushed over the top by Saturday.

Negroes Glean 1,000 Pounds Of Aluminum

One thousand pounds of aluminum have been gleaned by the Negro aluminum campaign committee in Columbia, it was announced last night by J. E. Dickson, chairman. He said that the goal was 2,000 pounds before the campaign is concluded July 29.

Chairman Dickson said that city Negro ministers had been requested to make a final appeal tomorrow from their pulpits for contributions. "The drive is progressing satisfactorily and the community is co-operating wholeheartedly," he said.

He spoke highly of the service rendered by Negro Boy Scouts in their house-to-house canvass, a feature of the program which has met with marked success.

Scoutmasters of the various participating Negro troops are: A. M. Entzminger, troop 54; L. S. Scott, troop 50; A. W. Young, troop 58; W. H. Burton, troop 59; W. J. Gilliam, troop 57; L. A. Shelton, troop 56; Monroe Taylor, troop 51; C. W. Madden, scout commissioner, and C. A. Johnson, district chairman.

Stations to receive the aluminum are located at the following points: Harding and Taylor streets, House and Senate streets, Booker Washington Heights, Ridgewood, Howard Community center and Saxon school.

Members of the committee are: J. E. Dickson, chairman; M. A. Entzminger, secretary; the Rev. J. C. Colclough, J. W. Brunson; Dr. D. K. Jenkins, the Rev. W. L. B. Clark, Dr. J. J. Starks, Nurse A. A. MORE VENEREAL DISEASE AMONG YOUNG DRAFTEES

The exemption of men 28 years old and older from the army draft has decreased slightly the number of rejections and has revised considerably the causes for such rejections, officials at the Chicago induction center said yesterday.

The 28 year group has been granted deferment since July 1. The period during which they were subject to call extended from Nov. 1941 thru June—eight months.

Mental disorders remained the first cause of rejections in July, but rejections because of venereal disease showed a sharp increase. During the month 104 men, or 1.98 per cent of those examined, were turned down because of venereal disease. For the November-June period rejections for this cause constituted only .84 per cent of the men given examinations.

Army medical officers said rejections for venereal diseases had been expected to rise as the proportion of younger men increased.

An indication that the younger men have sounder teeth was found in the number of rejections attributed to dental faults. Rejections for bad teeth previously ranked second in importance. During July they dropped to sixth place—from 2.41 per cent to .78 per cent.

Mental	2.89	2.61
Venereal	1.98	.84
Bones	1.88	1.25
Eyes	1.43	2.17
Ears	1.41	1.30
Teeth	.78	2.41

Chronic alcoholism, which previously accounted for .47 per cent of those rejected, dropped to .06.

Medical officers said the increase in ear defects was not surprising, since many of them resulted from childhood ailments. Disorders of the eye showed a substantial decrease.

IN COMMON DANGER

Editor, The Journal: Power, roads and aluminum will win the war. All three are necessary for defense. Beg to inclose a clipping on power and roads and wish to state that it is time to open up the aluminum mines of Georgia. In northwest Georgia, near Rome, and across the state from east to west below the fall line from Augusta by Macon to Columbus, are millions of tons of aluminum.

Your editorial on "Carrying On" points the way; and in connection with it may we say that for the first time in life we witness the governor of a great state falling below the law of nature which is observed by the "lower" animals. In the face of a common danger all strife ceases. Witnessed during a fresshet in the Ogeechee River a rabbit and a rattlesnake floating down the river on the same log. In face of a common danger our governor is trying hard to turn race against race for political gain.

WALTER CHIVERS SAYS:

The Negro And Nat'l Defense

By WALTER R. CHIVERS

THE NEGROES OF Georgia have had, this week, a forceful display of intolerance in race relations. It has been a clear demonstration of how the temper of the ruling classes becomes inflamed when it feels that the status of the minority race group has outgrown the limits of its particular structure of tolerance. The whole disgraceful show is a display of the unbalance created by the insanity which is surely possessing the white people of America.

CHIVERS

The sense of these three articles has been that Negroes as a minority racial group must tread more cautiously during this vexatious period in American life. This is true because when the ruling classes begin to fear for their own self-perservation they are likely to commit many injustices against those who are most defenseless. What people in America would be more defenseless, today, than Negroes?

INTOLERANCE SPREADING

Dr. Lyman Bryson in a recent speech on "Majority-minority needs in the National Crisis" made the following thought provoking statement, "The most noticeable thing about the American temper of the moment is that the vast majority of the people are getting more intolerant of minority opinions, more angry with those who disagree with them and less patient with the slow deliberations of real democracy. This is a tendency that can be understood even if it cannot be justified. And it would seem to be only realistic for minority groups must adopt, as a guide, the truism which says that it is right to tell the truth but the one who tells the truth should be guaranteed that the one he tells it to is capable of handling the truth.

With such a guiding of philosophy it is possible to go through the small holes that appear in the social pattern and cause real discomfort to the pattern wearers. Whatever changes effected three would be unconscious

A PREDICTION

May I conclude then by saying that I do not believe that either the Committee on the Participation of Negroes in National Defense or the threatened "March on Washington" affected the position of Negroes in National defense employment. It was more than likely the sudden deadly attack of the German military machine upon a militarily weak Russia. The defeat of Russia, now, will endanger in no uncertain terms the security of majority groups in this country.

I predict that the closer the German military parade approaches to Moscow and the rich Ukraine the more gains Negroes will receive in this country. This will not be because of sympathy or fear on the part of the political administration of Negro revolution but because Negroes have become more necessary to the preservation of the American white concept of the democratic way of life.

Daily World
Atlanta, Georgia

WALTER CHIVERS SAYS:

TO PLAY THE role of a normal member of any society and be a member in good standing in a minority racial group within that society at the same time requires an extremely keen sense of balance.

If members of the minority racial group happen to be marked by a different color this sense of balance operates under continued pressure and consequently in constantly subjected to severe stresses and strains. Such is the case in times of relative peace How difficult this balance must be in times of war when the lives and culture of the ruling classes are threatened with extermination?

The seriousness of the situation of the American Negro in the present crisis as it effects his native country is dramatized by this mark of color. His color differentiates him and thus subjects his behavior to more minute and analytical scrutiny. The limits of racial tolerance are set by the majority racial group upon a gauge which records the intensity and apparent sincerity of the Negro's patriotism.

The closer then the country approaches war and thereby, more certainly endangers the state of self-preservation of the majority racial group the narrower becomes the limits of tolerance by white people. The important thing to be remembered here that white people set the limits of tolerance and Negroes must measure up to them, regardless of the invitations invoked, if they are to survive.

HATE IS ORGANIZED

Preparation for war institutionalizes hate against the enemy—it has to. For people can not fight fiercely unless they hate intensely. Modern warfare is prepared for in advance. The seeds of hate are sown early and carefully nurtured. When the vitriol has reached its adolescence and is full of energy and sap it begins to strain at restriction. It must be used for its purpose or it will, as any thwarted emotion, find its own outlet.

A most logical and convenient outlet would be Negroes because of their distinctive marking and the lack of social stigma attached to the destruction of another race You see the other race is not quite human anyway—never is. The destruction of Jews is a good example of this, even though they are white people. The same answer is arrived at by substituting minority cultists for race.

EXAMINING SOME ERRORS

Let us examine some of the errors of Negroes that are likely to subject them to the penalties for violating the limits of racial tolerance in times of crisis. For instance, the recent accumulation of threats aimed at the national defense, to force concessions from the morale of the overall societal culture, which might be simply translated at "white culture." What are a few of these threats?

One is the National Committee on Participation of Negroes in National Defense. The leader of this group has recently created a slogan which reads, "the white man's misery is the Negro's gain." Certainly such a slogan is not calculated to encourage the white political administrators to want to move in order to make room for Negroes in National defense It is in reality a challenge to racial conflict.

MARCH ILL-CONCEIVED

The argument that such public noise as this organization makes will expose the sins of democracy to the Nazis, Fasicists, Communists and what have you thus shaming white America into giving Negroes more defense employment is in its essence the creator of very antagonistic cooperation. The reaction will be the same in type as would be the case should one neighbor "air the dirty linen" in another's closet as a means of forcing that neighbor to admit him into his intimate social group.

The "March on Washington" was ill-conceived. It was an attempt to place pressure upon the majority racial group at a time when it is fighting for self-preservation—a threat of sabotage of national unity. In the first place not only 100,000 Negroes but thirteen million cannot successfully force upwards of 120 millions of advantaged people to do anything. The thought is particularly ridiculous when one realizes the importance of Negroes. Hitler has taught the world that a bluff is worthless unless it can be backed, if needs be, by action—action sufficiently strong to counteract violent reaction. White people control all of the implements of war, if you get what I mean.

BAD STRATEGY

It is equally as bad to advertise broadly, in a spirit of braggadocia, the belief that the threat of the "March on Washington" forced the President of the United States to make concessions to Negroes by issuing an order to the office of Production Management to the effect that Negroes must be employed by defense industries. The truth is that the war can be fought with Negroes in concentration camps. The military energy of Fascism has been attuned to its high state of efficient operation on the emotional current of anti-Jewry. There are upwards of ten millions of ineffective Jews in Continental Europe. In this relationship, the significent thing is that American indignation has produced no feasible plan for rehabilitating those Jews who may leave the walled in ghettoes.

WALTER CHIVERS SAYS:

The Negro And Nat'l Defense

I PROPOSE THAT neither mass threats, such as militant committees, mass meetings, "Marches to Washington", nor any other objective pressure methods force the majority racial group to alter its way of life in such a way as to disadvantage itself for the benefit of a minority racial group. When this is done it is only as a matter of expedience. It is done at the stage of societal evolution when the minority racial group becomes essential to the survival of the ruling classes.

CHIVERS

This type of cooperation is antagonistic and therefore is as stingy as the seriousness of the need will permit.

UNCONVERTED WHITES

One famous sociologist recites the following truism in a statement of the operation of interracial relations. "In our Southern States, before the Civil War, whites and blacks had formed habits of action and feeling towards each other. They lived in peace and accord and each one grew up in the ways which were traditional and customary prizes and keeps almost as well preserved as the day he received it—that he had been appointed a clerk in the Manchester Post Office, effective two days before. When he returned from Macon, he took up the new post and there he has been until heart trouble forced his retirement in April of this year. It was in that month that he received a letter from Postmaster-General Frank C. Walker congratulating him on his many years of loyal and efficient service.

Testified to His Excellence

five, where Joseph was transferred not many years after his appointment, had testified to his excellence not only as a clerk but as a man.

While still working as clerk back in the 1920's, Joseph took up the study of law at Virginia Union University. Upon completion of the course in 1926, he took the State Bar examinations and passed without difficulty. He still retains his license as attorney, though he has practiced but little.

"I have argued some cases in court, but not lately," he said. "It takes eternal vigilance to make anything out of it."

Joseph said he has a bad heart and, by the doctor's orders, can't take up anything now. "I intend to take it easy," he said, and then with a quiet smile, "but not through choice."

The Civil War established legal rights and left the two races to learn to live together under other relations than before.

The whites have never been converted from the old mores. Those who still survive look back with regret and affection to the old usages and customary sentiments and feelings. The two races have not yet made new mores. Vain attempts have been made to control the new order by legislation. The only result is the proof that legislation cannot make mores. There is a new trend in the mores now as they begin to form under the new state of things. The strong point in the new code seems to be that any white man is boycotted and despised if her associates with Negroes .. Some are anxious to interfere and try to control.

They take their stand on ethical views of what is going on The results will be such as the facts call for They do not depend upon ethical views. The only things with which we can deal are those which are . . . "

THE WRONG TIME

Mass appeals to the majority racial group for action that would eventually inconvenience its "way of life" belong to times of peace—times when the limits of tolerance have grown flabby and elastic. This does not necessarily mean that they will be effective in the way Negroes would have them be. They probably would not. A people, minority or majority resists strongly any attempt to change their way of living.

However, such organized pressure methods are essential to the processes of Civilization. They keep them in the state of flexibility necessary for proper performance in a dynamic society.

In critical times, like the present, group safety calls for the most dramatic displays of loyalty patriotism and willingness to sacrifice. Negroes must demonstrate courage in the face of danger and ability to pay the price of defending democracy. Race relations are not based on sympathy—they react to expediency.

COOPERATION ANTAGONISTIC

Cooperation between races is inherently antagonistic. There are plain evidences of antagonistic racial cooperation in even the most harmless and humane appearing efforts at cooperation between races. Antagonistic because no more disturbance of the scales of racial inequality is ever allowed, at one time, than is thought expedient to the welfare of the majority racial group at the particular moment.

This antagonism is not necessarily conscious of responsibility for any brutality nor do all members of the majority racial group recognize its antipathetic action. Such feelings are more and more subdued as the ruling racial group become aggressively conditioned to their concept of the total term "Civilization".

This cooperation possessing a bare minimum of philanthropy, at any one time, may be conceived of, at least, by the privileged members of the minority racial groups as being antipathetic and a brutalizing process. One writer has said that "the black man has two worst enemies; the over-zealous advocate who claims too much for him, and the execrable creature wearing a white skin who says "I hate a nigger".

NEGRO BOYS GET DEFENSE TRAINING

The Smith Hughes Department of the Madison County Training School extends National Defense courses to rural and non-rural youth between the ages of 17 and 25 years. More than 25 boys have registered in these courses, a remarkable increase over the last enrollment.

The extension of these courses will last for a period of eight weeks. At the end of the eight week period, all young men who have put in the required number of hours will get a certificate which will give them preference over many others as to their respective training whenever they seek employment.

The purpose of the courses is to train these young men to take the places of young men who have been inducted into service by the draft boards. Secondly it is to speed up the home defense program.

"I am hoping that more young men will enroll as they come into the knowledge of these courses; therefore making the scope of service greater," said A. C. Hooks, Negro teacher of Vocational Agriculture and Supervisor of National Defense courses in the area of Madison County.

The Negro and Defense

By Dean James T. Taylor of the North Carolina College for Negroes

Negro youth are like all other youth in that they love adventure, action, drama, change, and a chance for self-expression. Negro youth have been exposed to the same sort of history teaching and history textbooks as other youth and as a consequence have learned to admire our military heroes, and their exploits. So when the drums begin to beat and the flags begin to wave, young Negro Americans feel the same call to fight and die for country as other young Americans.

Such has been the story in every crisis which this nation has faced. On Boston Commons, on Lake Erie, at New Orleans with Andrew Jackson, at San Juan with Theodore Roosevelt and with Pershing in Mexico and in Flanders, Negroes "paid the last full measure of devotion" to the land and country which they love.

During the crisis of 1861-65, Negroes fought to free the slaves and to preserve the Union, while other Negroes stood guard over the lands and the families of the South, while the flower of its manhood wasted itself in a vain struggle against the rising tide of democratic imperatives.

Some have attributed the loyalty of the Negro to the South in this period to ignorance, others to fear of reprisal; any such explanation does the Negro a grave injustice. In standing by the South, the Negro was prompted by the same motives which activated Robert E. Lee and many other white Southerners in the crisis. The South was his home, he loved its hills, its valleys, its rivers and its plains; and though a slave he was bound to the people of the South by the strongest sort of emotional ties. His loyalty and devotion arose from a deep and abiding feeling of "belongingness."

Some may be ashamed of this chapter in the Negro's history, but personally I am proud to be a member of a race that refused to stick a dagger in the back of a neighbor.

Seventy-five years of freedom and of education, and the disillusionment that followed the last world war have left their mark upon Negro thought and attitude. On almost every issue which faces the nation, segments of the Negro people may be found aligned with every school of thought. This is to be expected, since Negroes like other racial groups have extensive intellectual and volitional differences which preclude the possibility of any one type of attitude or reaction developing in all of them. Furthermore, the very heterogeneity of the Negro's inter-racial contacts and experiences make a general pattern of thought, attitude, or reaction impossible. As a consequence, there are Negro Communists, Socialists, Democrats, Republicans, Pacifists, Jingoes and the like. In this respect Negroes are like other Americans. I believe, however, that they are unlike some Americans in one particular—very few Negroes put their loyalty to party alignments above loyalty to country.

What then is the Negro's attitude in the present crisis? What is he thinking?

First: There is a considerable segment of the Negro population that is anti-British. These Negroes feel that England has treated her colored peoples very badly, exploiting them and reducing them to economic serfdom under the pretense of civilizing them. This group is unwilling to help save the British empire, but they would serve America in the event our country found it necessary to go to war.

A smaller group of Negroes feel that America has not dealt fairly and justly with them, and that the present crisis affords the very opportunity which the Negro needs; this group thinks the Negro should take advantage of this hour to make demands upon the country; that now is the time for the Negro to state his grievances and insist upon their correction as a reward for his help in the present emergency.

One runs into these attitudes and points of view in discussing the world crisis with Negro groups, but it is my opinion that these views are held by a relatively small part of the Negro people. As in the past, so in the present crisis the great mass of the Negro people are loyal and devoted to America and to the democratic way of life.

Do not misunderstand me—there is much in American life that Negroes do not approve of. We feel that discriminations and injustices based on color and race are the very antithesis of the democratic ideal, and that such discriminations and injustices should be discontinued; but we do not believe that any group of citizens should use the present emergency for realizing purely selfish gains. We feel that the present crisis is a time to insist upon serving rather than a time to bargain for privileges.

So here we are eager and willing to serve. The army and the navy and other branches of the service need men. Negro youth stands in line asking for a chance to play his part as an American citizen. He desires no special favors; he insists that the same rigid standards for admission and for service be applied to him.

Negro youth stands at the gates of factories at the shipyards, and other defense industries. He has come because his country is in danger. The institutions which he prizes are threatened from without by power drunk dictators, and from within by subversive propaganda and acts of sabotage. Negro youth stands at the gates and along the highways and calls to America: "I am strong," he shouts, "I am eager and willing to help." "I know no country but America." "I have no loyalty save to the stars and stripes." "I have been a sailor, a soldier, and a worker, and I have never shirked or been disloyal in time of crisis." "May I come in?" "May I help?"

This I believe is the spirit of the great mass of Negro youth in the present crisis. America has nothing to fear from him. He wants to preserve freedom, and our democratic way of life. The danger to America does not come from the Negro, but from those, who in this time of national crisis, when it is imperative that we have a united nation, would by policies of job denial and discrimination keep alive ill-will and racial misunderstanding. They are real enemies of democracy at home, and they give aid and comfort to the dictators abroad.

In the present crisis America needs the energies and the united effort of all its citizens; any individual or group of individuals who deny any American the right to share in the defense of our common land is undermining the foundations upon which our democracy rests. This is sabotage of the most sinister sort; it does not destroy ships, or industrial plants, which, after all, can be rebuilt, but such practices destroy men's hope and belief in the democratic way of life; such men become fertile soil for subversive doctrine and the willing tool of the revolutionary propagandist.

Negro youth feels that by birth and by social heritage he belongs here. He does not plan any mass migration elsewhere, nor does he contemplate race suicide. He wants simply to play his part as a man and an American in this hour of national crisis. To do other than this voluntarily would brand him as a traitor; to be denied the right for full participation will rob him of his self-respect, and deprive him of that feeling of "belongingness" out of which has come the Negro's loyalty and devotion to this land.

This is a crucial hour in the life of our nation. Let all Americans live this hour magnificently, so that other generations of Americans looking back across the centuries at us will say in the words of Winston Churchill, "This was our finest hour."

Negro Defense Meets

(By Otis Buffaloe.)

On Saturday of last week 21 Negro ministers and 10 deacons representing practically every Negro church in Anson county met in our office at Wadesboro for the purpose of formulating plans to contact every Negro farm family, and solicit their cooperation in connection with the "National Defense" program of which most of our people are so urgently in need.

The food and feed program was outlined to the group by Mr. J. W. Cameron, county agent. Rev. J. W. Diggs, Route 1, Pee Dee stated immediately following Mr. Cameron's speech that "He was sure the ministers would support the County Wide Food and Feed program 100 per cent."

O'Nell Cauley, Grace Peterson, and J. H. Rump were other speakers at the meeting. A schedule of meetings was arranged, and the following are yet to take place, all at 8 P. M.:

Thursday, May 1, Deep Creek church.
Friday, May 2, Ansonville H. S.
Monday, May 5, Gatewood Station.
Tuesday, May 6, Meltonville church.
Wednesday, May 7, Brown Creek church.

Following the meeting at Janier High school here, plans were outlined under which Negroes will participate in the statewide program under Colonel Lea B. Robinson, chairman of the state civilian defense council.

Keynoting the meeting, Governor Johnson asserted that "we are all Americans, and this is a fight in which all Americans must do their part."

"This isn't any particular group's fight, it's every man and woman's fight and we must all do our part to see that Hitler does not succeed in his efforts to defeat America from within," the governor said.

Colonel Robinson was chairman of the meeting, Major W. E. Holcomb of the state selective service system, explained that phase of the work, while G. S. Vincent, chairman of the placement section of the state defense council, outlined the July 18-19 registration of all civilians between the ages of 16 and 65 years.

Dr. W. H. Bell, president of Alcorn college for Negroes, urged members of his race to stand together and do their part, and to resist fifth column activities. He also revealed that a 15-member band unit of his college had become the first unit volunteer group for army service. A special proclamation from President Roosevelt invited the unit to enlist and be assigned as a unit to a Louisiana training camp.

Dr. S. D. Redmond, Jackson Negro civic leader, pointed out that Govenor Johnson was the first governor of the state in 60 years to address an all-Negro meeting. He admonished members of his race to lend their full cooperation to the defense program, stating that "unless we stick together now we'll hang together later if Hitler should be victorious—which God forbid."

Sanger Raps Defense Policy Crippling Hospital Staffs

By JOHN LEARD

Dr. W. T. Sanger, president of the Medical College of Virginia, today called "unwise" and "false" the defense policy he maintained is assuring an acute shortage of dietitians, graduate nurses and doctors.

Speaking as a member of a panel on the effect of the national defense program upon social institutions in Virginia, Dr. Sanger said the calling of many trained professional men and medical students into public service for a valid and worthy objective nevertheless created an acute problem now and for the future in respect to medical services available.

Dr. Sanger's remarks were made in the course of a lively discussion of disruption caused by national defense at the closing session of the fifteenth annual meeting of the Virginia Social Science Association.

After the panel discussion, the association elected William Sands Meacham, associate editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, president to succeed George T. Starnes, of the University of Virginia. Dr. Belle Boone Beard, of Sweet Briar College, was elected vice president; Raymond Uhl, of the University of Virginia, secretary, and Leland B. Tate, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, treasurer.

"Calling medical students from their colleges at any given year is a far different thing from calling liberal arts students," Dr. Sanger said. "There will be mass failures of students on their return from service if these young men, patriotic as they are, are assigned by their local boards to regular army training before they have completed their medical courses."

"We have learned that the government is asking for more dietitians than there are members of the American Dietetic Association," Dr. Sanger said in outlining his position to the association's members. "There is also an estimated shortage of 10,000 graduate nurses, which can be alleviated a little by the development of subgraduate nursing."

"In addition," he said in answer to a question, "many doctors who held reserve commissions in the army have been called up over the protests of their local communities. We have also lost several trained men in key positions on our faculty—and there isn't a thing we can do about it."

Dr. Sanger emphasized that the medical profession realized the unusual demands of the national defense emergency and added the need for trained physicians by the government was fully appreciated.

"But this presents a problem of furnishing health services to civilians—a challenging problem of terrific implication. There is a danger that we will be unable to perform the expected of us."

The assignment to training by local boards that act differently in various localities of young men taking medical training is "false national policy, when the young men could be much more useful after their training had been completed," he declared.

Before Dr. Sanger presented his viewpoint, other members of the panel had discussed disruption from several angles, with some degree of emphasis on the problem of the Negro.

Dr. Charles S. Johnson, director of the department of social science at Fisk University, said he had observed a problem of discrimination against Negroes by industry. He contended a cycle increased such discrimination in the period of national defense.

"Wasted Effort," Excuse Given Against Negroes

"Industries," he said, "raise the objection that Negroes are not qualified by training for some types of work. When training programs are organized, it is said that training Negroes would be wasted effort because there is no opportunity for them in industry." This cycle, and the necessary diversion of funds from relief to defense projects, Dr. Johnson declared, give the Negro less opportunity for work and for relief at a time when costs are rising.

A commentator in the audience assured Dr. Johnson that there was adequate equipment for training Negroes in some areas, but that an enlarged program to train those with ability seemed necessary to supplement refresher courses given under the defense program for persons already trained.

Speaking of disruption on a national scale, Dr. Geoffrey May, associate director of the Bureau of Public Assistance in the United States Social Security Board, reported that government men in Washington were considering, on the basis of experience in the World War, a system of pay adjustments for army men. The adjustments, he said, probably would be based on the size of the family the soldier supported and other factors.

Other members of the panel were Dr. Robert K. Gooch, of the University of Virginia, chairman; Dr. Beard, Professor of Sociology, Sweet Briar College; Dr. W. E. Garnett, Professor of Rural Sociology at Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Mr. Meacham, associate editor of The Richmond Times-Dispatch, and Dr. Lorin Thompson, director of the population study of the Virginia State Planning Board.

Elected to the executive committee were Robert H. Barker, of the State Labor Department; Charles Marsh, Williamsburg; President David Peters, of Radford State Teachers' College; Miss Olive Stone, College of William and Mary, Richmond division, and George T. Starnes, University of Virginia, retiring president of the association.

Former World Employe Tells Of Incident

WINDY HILL, S. C. (SNS) — Negro soldiers are not allowed on public streets of certain cities of the South, it was revealed here recently.

Private Thomas E. Watson, Jr., the 77th Coast Artillery, Battery B, formerly a linotype operator for the Atlanta Daily World, said that he and another soldier had gone into Myrtle Beach, S. C., with the permission of their commanding officer to transact personal business.

Having left their Army truck, the two had not been upon the street five minutes before armed city officer told them to come with him to the city hall, just as they were about to purchase a magazine from the sidewalk at a white cigar stand.

On his way to the city hall with Watson and his companion, Private Albritton, the officer reportedly told a civilian that he was going to "lock these n—s up."

Inside the city hall, the arresting officer is said to have asked a superior if he wanted to "lock 'em up". The officer-in-charge, informed that the soldiers were in town shopping, reportedly warned them:

"Well, you have to shop, but remember we don't allow n—r soldiers on the streets. Git on back to your truck and don't forget that."

The soldiers wasted no time in getting back to their camp where they protested to their commanding officer, Lieutenant Stokes, and sought a formal protest to the township of Myrtle Beach from the U. S. Army.

State May Not Be Able To Fill Its Negro Quota

The Negro draft problem in Georgia became more acute yesterday as local boards in the state began receiving news of the record-breaking call for 4,700 registrants in June, 2,700 of which will be Negroes.

Boards in the state with large percentages of Negroes have long faced the problem of venereal diseases, which in some localities have caused the rejection of as high as 90 per cent of the Negroes examined. The problem became intensified as boards faced the prospect of huge Negro quotas to be filled during the next two months.

Mack Dodd, clerk of Board 1, Macon, said if past rejections because of syphilis continue at the same rate as in the past he will be unable to furnish his share of 38 Negroes required in a call for induction May 21. In his previous examinations less than one Negro in three have been found free of venereal disease, it was said.

Dodd and Dr. J. D. Applewhite, city-county health officer in Macon, have recommended that the Army accept men with non-infectious venereal disease and force them to take treatment during training.

An order went out from state selective service headquarters only this week that will make acceptance of treatment for veneral disease a part of selective service regulations.

NEGROES FORM CHURCH GROUP

Seek to Meet Workers' Needs

Preliminary organization of a Negro laymen's group to take the influence of the church among new residents drawn to the Peninsula by the national defense program, with resultant heavy increases in population, took place last night at a conference held at the Negro community center.

J. A. Williams, manager of the center, was named president of the body; Benjamin Perry, vice-president; and Edward Sharpless, secretary.

Another meeting was called for the Third Baptist church, Hampton, at 7:30 p. m. May 20 and a committee was named to complete arrangements. It includes Prof. J. S. Lee, L. H. Miles, Mrs. Nora B. Taylor, G. S. Everett, J. Rupert Picott, and J. E. Everett.

About 30 ministers and laymen from Lower Peninsula churches attended the meeting, which was called by the Peninsula Ministers' alliance to discuss promotion of the church's influence in the community under emergency conditions. The opinion was expressed during the discussion that the church and the home today face an emergency equally as serious as that confronting the national government.

Ministers attending were Revs. T. J. Johnson, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist church, North Newport News; I. Benjamin Pierce, Walter's Temple A. M. E.; L. A. Williams, Second Baptist; A. A. Galvin, First Baptist; B. C. Harrod, Calvary Christian; Dr. C. E. Jones, Zion Baptist; I. J. Gladden, Third Baptist, Hampton; J. Wayman Henry, St. Paul's A. M. E.; George S. Russell, Queen Street Baptist, Hampton; and J. B. Henderson, Trinity Baptist.

Colored Soldiers Increase Population of City by 8,000

ALEXANDRIA, La. — (ANP)— This little city, located in the deep, deep South, nearest the heart of the state of Louisiana, is becoming an important center in the gigantic national defense program.

There are four army camps located in its vicinity, and in each will be stationed colored troops to number 10,000 when the army troop movements have been completed. At present, there are several thousand already in camp.

The city presents an air of militarism with its thousands of uniformed troops appearing on its streets.

To this great number, there are thousands of laborers who are engaged in various occupations at the camps as well as in other capacities.

The citizens as a whole are doing much to aid in providing recreation for the colored soldiers. A center for their recreation has already been established. Prominent local professionals, educators, and civic-minded persons are working on various committees to see that no phase for the entertaining of the soldiers is neglected.

Due to the many unsavory reports which have come from this location, this writer has spent the past six weeks here in the midst of camp life, as well as life in this "Boom Town." so that a true picture could be given to the press of how the colored soldiers were blending in this particular atmosphere.

First of all, there is that great hustle and bustle, common to any kind of boom town. There is the drifter, the loafer, the gambler, the schemer, and worker. There is the flow of money, and there is that evil created by an easy financial downpour. There is the landlord, who, seeing room becoming at a premium, raises the rent. There is the business managers, who adds to his original price, and of course there is the downright "beat." All this is true of Alexandria.

This little city is doing a grand job of keeping as nearly normal as possible, with such a gigantic increase in population. Normally Alexandria's population is around 27,000. This has been increased to more than several times that number in a brief space of time, therefore realizing this, it is no small task to become adjusted to such a state of affairs overnight.

Of course, there is some skepticism among the local white citizenry in regard to the movement of Negro troops from other sections (particularly the North and West) to Louisiana, as they doubt whether they will be able to mix in this southern atmosphere. Thus far there has been no serious friction.

2,000 Troops Entertained Last Night

Columbia's 11 recreation centers and dancing project, directed by the WPA national defense recreation program, were hosts to more than 2,000 enlisted men from Fort Jackson last night. In the city and out at the fort hundreds of soldiers were entertained by the various units organized for that purpose.

The most spectacular event was the big dance that opened the recreation hall of the Thirtieth division, at the fort. There more than 700 men were given a dance under the auspices of the dancing project, directed by Mrs. John T. Sloan, Jr., WPA unit supervisor of dance. Columbia girls, invited for the occasion, gathered in the city at a central point where they were met by a convoy of "jeeps" and trucks to take them to the fort. Never were hansome cabs more romantic than the sturdy gulley jumpers with their burden of chiffon and silk clad girls. Numerous chaperons volunteered their services and after the dance saw the girls safe home again.

Besides the dance at the fort, 11 recreation centers were in full swing last night. Eight of them have been opened for whites and three for Negroes. Most are in recreation centers of the various churches near the center of the city. Others are elsewhere in nearby halls equipped and devoted to entertainment of the soldiers.

In all of these halls are trained leaders who welcome the men, and supervise the entertainment. There are from two to four men or women at each center who have undergone a month's pre-service training and who continue this training at various hours when the centers are not operating.

At each center are table games such as ping-pong, carom, shuffle-board, etc., with a piano where group singing proves to be one of the most popular forms of entertainment. Books and magazines have been donated for those who care to read, as well as writing tables and materials. In some centers there are basketball courts with showers for the players after the games. There are also small stages in some of the centers, where the enlisted men, as well as the organizations sponsoring the center, give special programs.

These centers are open several nights each week, some every night. The attendance at the centers for the white soldiers totals several thousands per week. At the Negro centers it is much smaller, due to the fewer Negro soldiers at the fort.

Dancing is the chief entertainment at most centers and on special occasions, parties are given by organizations of the churches, and clubs in the city. At the special parties mothers bring their daughters and the host group sees to it that the girls and young men get together and have a good time.

In addition to the activities conducted through the week by the national defense program in Columbia, there is an extensive program of dance instruction and dancing given at the fort. This is directed by Mrs. Sloan, who had charge of the opening dance last night at the Thirtieth division recreation center.

Three centers have dancing classes each week where the supervisor is assisted by volunteer instructors from the Junior Leagues and others. Some 1,100 men of the Thirtieth division announced they wanted to take these lessons when they were announced. Besides the classes, formal dances are held several times a week when the specially invited girls wear evening dresses and the men are in white shirts for the occasion.

"You certainly can tell the difference in the men the day after a dance," one officer was heard to remark last night. "They appreciate the opportunity to meet the nice girls and it means a great deal to them."

Besides the many activities for the enlisted men, a special program has been arranged for the commissioned officers at the recreation hall of the Washington Street Methodist church.

The eight recreation centers for the white soldiers are located at the Trinity Church parish house, the First Presbyterian church, the Washington Street Methodist church, the First Baptist church, the Main Street Methodist church, St. Peter's Catholic church, the House of Peace and the Masonic service center.

For the Negro enlisted men there are centers at 1125½ Washington street, sponsored by the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity, at the old Howard school community center, and at the gymnasium at Allen university. A big dance is planned at Allen to take place in a short while. Among the Negroes, as well as the whites, there is good co-operation between local civic and religious organizations and the national defense program of the WPA.

Trained leaders for all centers have been enabled to work out their programs through the goodwill and interest of public spirited citizens who contribute both time and money for first class hospitality and entertainment for the men while they are at Fort Jackson.

Georgia June Draftee Quota Is 4,700 Men

Largest Call Yet Made; Rate May Be Stepped Up.

The largest draft quota for the state since selective service began, calling for 4,700 Georgians to be inducted into the Army during June, was received by state headquarters yesterday, Brigadier General Sion B. Hawkins, director, announced.

The record-breaking quota followed close instructions from national headquarters in Washington, asking immediate classification of all the 399,000 Georgians who have not yet received their questionnaires. Only about 30 per cent have been classified so far.

Stepped Up.

Some draft officials saw in the increased June quota an indication that the rate of putting men in the Army through selective service might be stepped up in the future.

The June call is for 2,700 white men and 2,000 Negroes, General Hawkins said. It will bring the total number of Georgia selectees in the Army to nearly 12,000, the state's quota for the first year of selective service.

General Hawkins urged local boards in the state to speed up their work of classification in view of the heavy demand. Quotas will be sent to the boards from state headquarters today and tomorrow, it was said.

General Hawkins also announced yesterday that Commander Jesse Draper, prominent Atlanta Naval Reserve officer and businessman, will be assigned to state headquarters as liaison officer for the Navy in procurement of men through selective service. The Navy is not yet getting men through selective service, accepting them only for full-term enlistments, but it has been indicated some selectees may be put in the Navy later.

Troops Get Swim Holes

Eight Lakes Are Assigned Men At Fort Jackson During The Summer

COLUMBIA, May 2—Eight lakes, former swimming and fishing favorites of Columbians and now included in the Fort Jackson reservation, were officially assigned to various units for swimming during the summer.

Dozier lake was assigned to the 30th Division for use by the division's personnel and other units in that general area. Marion pond, including the recreational facilities of that area, was assigned to the 8th Division.

Barstow lake, including the recreational facilities, was also assigned to the 8th Division. The property belonging to the Boy Scouts, which is temporarily stored at the lake, will be removed on request of the local scouts. The scouts, however, will be allowed to use this storage space until such time as they arrange a new lication.

Heise's pond was also assigned to the 30th Division, while the Weston and Forman ponds were assigned to the 8th Division.

Twin Lakes will be operated by the post exchange as a recreation center for enlisted men stationed at the forst. The YMCA and the Legion lake on the reservation were assigned to the Negro personnel at the post exclusively.

Mary Bethune Calls Conference For June On National Defense

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 15—From her office in Washington, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the National Council of Negro Women; president of Bethune-Cookman College at Daytona Beach, Fla.; director of the Division of Negro Affairs of the National Youth Administration, and leader in so many causes for the welfare of her race, has issued the following call to the National Council of Negro Women and to the thinking Negro womanhood of America:

New York Age
New York, N. Y

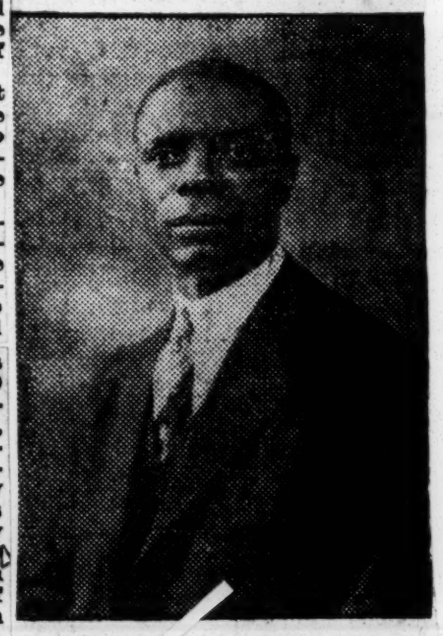
"A call to the National Council of Negro Women and to the thinking Negro womanhood of America:

"The hour has come for thought and action on the part of the womanhood of our country to the end that the Negro may participate fully in all phases of the National Defense program.

"At the suggestion of the ever-ready Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, which is a member of the National Council of Negro Women, a mobilization of women to study the defense program and urge the acceptance of Negroes in it, is called for June 28, 29 and 30. As president of the National Council of Negro Women, I am hereby requesting all members to participate in this conference—if not in Washington, by setting up smaller conferences during those three days in every section of our country, thereby pressing our claims as American citizens for just participation of the Negro group in every branch and unit of national defense.

"This is our hour to proclaim anew our allegiance to America and its democratic ideals by protesting the exclusion of any minority group from a national program in which all citizens should serve and serve alike. This is important today when we are mobilizing all our resources to defend our democratic heritage against subversive influences from other lands."

On Defense Savings Staff



Dean William Pickens, director of branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, whose appointment as staff assistant in the Treasury Department's Defense Savings Staff, was announced on Monday by Secretary Morgenthau.

The N.A.A.C.P. has agreed to grant a leave of absence to Dean Pickens to allow him to devote his full time to the savings program.

William Pickens Get Defense Post

WASHINGTON

The appointment this week of William Pickens, organizer for the NAACP, to the U.S. Treasury to head up the sale of defense bonds, left Democrats frothy.

Mr. Pickens will serve as a special administrative assistant, with a Southern banker, president of the Citizens' Trust Company of Atlanta, as his staff consultant.

Headed Willkie Drive

While the political affiliation of the Southern banker is not known in the capital, colored Democrats recalled with rage that Pickens had headed up the "Willkie for President" organizations during the recent campaign and it was thought that the appointment should have gone to a deserving Democrat.

Among those named as likely candidates were Bishop R. R. Wright, Jr., Dr. C. B. Powell of New York, who headed the Democratic publicity department; William L. Dawson, and C. C. Wimbush, attorney, both of Chicago.

Also mentioned was J. E. Walker, president of the National Negro Business League. who headed the Southwestern division of the Democratic campaign.

Democrats, already sore because the better Federal jobs have gone to non-political workers, such as Urban League experts, Dr. Robert Weaver, Judge William Hastie and others who took no active part in the campaign, find the appointment of Mr. Pickens, an out-and-out Republican, adding insult to injury. The job is reported to be a $6,000 plum.

Speculation is also rife as to how Mr. Pickens, who will be given leave by the NAACP, landed the post.

Nosey Democrats have traced the appointment to the slick hand of Walter White who, it is believed, used the influence of the Spingarns, Rosenwald officials and other backers to win the ear of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Mr. Pickens's job calls for the education of colored groups to the advisability of buying defense savings bonds. The Treasury hopes to float its gigantic defense loan by direct appeals to the public.

A Social Obligation To Our Soldiers

IN MACON IS the pot pouri of the soldiers quartered at Camp Wheeler. Every night the city takes on the aspect of a huge cantonment as they converge on old Broadway. Hundreds of others turn out also, and in the great milling from one end to the other one sees the need of adequate social and recreation centers so necessary for the employment and enjoyment of nobler minds than those who delight to waste their times and lives in an unwholesome and worldly fashion.

When a citizen sees the running wild of youth, the little flapper who comes out at night to offer all that remains of virtue in an effort to prey on the soldier's scout pay, he feels keenly his responsibility to these fine young men who have left their homes, good jobs, schools and all to enter the defense lines of their nation.

Unlike Columbus where Fort Benning is located with its Y. M. C. A., libraries and public social centers for soldiers, Macon affords nothing of a constructive factor for the development of the higher human instincts of the young men brought here.

Sometime ago it was advanced that a city the size of Macon should have a large Y. M. C. A. for the benefit of its local citizenry. Being in a magnificent cultural center and a great railroad pivot, it would do credit to this middle Georgia area even in peace time for a Y. M. C. A. to come into its life.

In an interview with some of the nobler minds among the young draftees it was said that things at Camp Wheeler for Colored soldiers were all but wholesome and inviting. They say they have no decent social activities, no good picture shows.

The President's Proclamation and Our Real Emergency

The President's proclamation of an "unlimited emergency" is well advised. The powers of Mr. Roosevelt, under the right of proclamation, are virtually unlimited. The President may, among many other things, increase the size of the Army and Navy; seize power plants, dams, conduits and reservoirs; seize any or all American vessels; suspend the eight-hour day commandeer railroads; commandeer electric power order convoys; declare an embargo; close any port declare preferences and priorities in shipments by rail, water or air of national defense essentials; order the Army and Navy virtually to any place in the world and to any duty short of actual war; impose a censorship on the press and radio; close or virtually seize radio broadcasting stations, wireless stations and the telephone, telegraph and cable services; call out the Red Cross and the Public Health Service.

He can do almost anything but declare war. And if the President wanted to follow a popular pattern of the day he could actually have us at war without a declaration, leaving that power in the hands of Congress where it rightfully belongs but under the compulsion of actual envolvements merely a nominal or declaratory power.

The powers of the President by proclamation of an "unlimited emergency" indicate that we too have the basis for forthright and positive action without having to shoot people or force them into concentration camps.

Whatever the powers of the President, our real emergency exists in the temper and tactics with which we propose to meet the enemy. That is to say, it requires more than power for the President to act in order to act in time and in the right direction. We contend—and the example of England supports the contention—that the fight for democracy demands an extension of democracy itself at the very moment of fighting, and not a restriction, that the best way to wage a fight for democracy is to tap and use its great energies by bringing more and more people into its fellowship and function.

We cannot help but feel that many of the people — business men and newspaper editors and many military men especially—who have hailed the President's proclamation, are much more concerned about holding Hitler off as a menace to their position here in the United States than they are with strengthening our democracy as the best possible defense against Hitler and Nazism. We submit that this kind of thinking, and the actions it fathers, will fail to meet the challenge of Hitlerism precisely because it does not understan that challenge. Hitlerism is a revolutionary movement, and only a revolutionary democracy can meet it successfully. We can no more meet Hitler as a military force with the old war methods of 1917 then we can meet his more fundamental challenge — the apostle of his "New Order" with our old prejudices about labor and the Negro and capital.

"NEGROES FOR DEFENSE"

ADD TO THE long list if white daily newspapers which have editorially attacked discrimination against Negroes in the defense program, the Jersey City Journal which recently carried the following editorials:

"The report from the U. S. Army that colored men are being accepted for service in the army air corps is one of the most encouraging signs recently discovered on the national defense horizon. Not only does it mean that the army will broaden its base for the procurement of good fliers but also that under the stress of national defense democracy is gaining a truer meaning in the United States.

"Critics of the national policy in foreign affairs have been prone to cry out for improvement of our own domestic brand of democracy before we try to rescue democracy abroad. Perhaps the announcement of the U. S. Army is the answer to these critics. It should be possible for the United States to increase the scope of democracy here at home at the same time that democracy is aided abroad.

"By opening up aviation as a career for Negro soldiers the army is taking a progressive step that the navy should emulate. The navy of this democratic United States still insists that a colored man can only serve as a mess boy. And this is 76 years after the Civil War!

"The navy has often been accused of of clinging dangerously to old and worn-out traditions. This insistence on disregarding the principles of democracy gives strength to such accusations.

"However, now that the army has made a start by providing openings for colored boys in the most desirable of all services perhaps the spirit of democracy will spread not only to the navy and the marine corps but to civil life as well.

"It is surprising how difficult it is for a Negro mechanic to get a defense industry job fiitting his ability. And no one can suspect Negroes of being Nazi agents."

NO SEGREGATION AT FORT BENNING'S HOSPITAL ANNEX

Negro Soldiers And White Not Only Sleep In Same Rooms But In Beds Right Next To One Another.

By P. L. PRATTIS

FORT BENNING, Ga., July 10—Of all places in Fort Benning where would you expect to find the least segregation? In fact, having heard of Fort Benning and Columbus, Ga., formerly the happy hunting ground of gamblers and prostitutes, you probably wouldn't with a ragged bathrobe on. He expect to find any spot, no matter stepped up behind the boy, seized how small, at Fort Benning, where the robe and split it down the segregation with a capital S is not back.

The one big place in Fort Benning where there is no apparent segregation whatever is the Hospital Annex. Municipal hospitals in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Cleveland may and do segregate their Negro patients. There are some spots in the South so mean that they won't even take a dying Negro into a hospital.

But in the Hospital Annex at Fort Benning, Negro soldiers and white soldiers not only sleep in the same rooms, big and little, together, but in beds right next to one another. They play together, laugh together, sing together and eat together.

"I don't know what I would have done if it had not been for those white boys when I was in the hospital," a sergeant out of the 24th Infantry told the writer.

White patients smiled when Cameraman Taylor took their photographs lying in bed next to Negro soldiers, also when he shot Negroes and whites crowded around a checker game.

In charge of the Hospital Annex is Lt. Col. W. R. L. Rainhardt, a native of Tacoma, Washington. Big, affable, busy, you get from his action rather than his words an idea of just how small any kind of racial prejudice is. You scarcely dare to ask him any questions bearing on the subject. There is no need.

From one ward to another, from one room to another, he hustled us, explaining this, pointing out that. He caught one colored boy

"Tell the superintendent to give you another bathrobe," he ordered.

He didn't care whether the patient was white or colored. He simply didn't want any of his patients wearing ragged bathrobes. He showed the same care in other matters.

With the utmost patience, even eagerness, he showed us from top to bottom of the hospital, through the kitchens, dining rooms, basement storage rooms and huge ice boxes.

We went behind the counter in the cafeteria from which lunch was being served. He wanted us to see the kind of food the attendants and patients who were able to get around were receiving. White and colored were mixed in the line, all getting the same food.

As we left the cafeteria counter, we glanced into the dining room and saw a group of colored boys sitting at a corner table all by themselves. We didn't have the nerve to ask him the question. We just pointed to the table and indicated the question in our expression.

"Hell!" he exclaimed, "they do that themselves, they segregate themselves. Nobody asks them to do it. You can't break 'em up if they don't want to be broken up."

The fact that there are no Negro doctors and nurses in the hospital bossed by Col. Reinhardt is certainly not his fault. This Hospital Annex would be a good place to put some of them to work, instead of restricting most of them to Fort Bragg and Camp Livingstone.

NEGRO REGISTRANTS' TEETH CALLED BETTER

Two Women Named Legal Advisors to Draft Board

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)— Appointments of Elsie Austin, national president of the Delta sorority, and Marjorie MacKenzie Lawson as legal advisers to the local draft boards, made recently, mark the first time that any such appointments have been made.

Both are competent in their professions, Miss Austin being legal assistant to the recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia and a teacher in the Terrell Law School, and Mrs Lawson being a practicing attorney in the city and a honor graduate of the school where Miss Austin is an instructor. They assumed their draft board duties immediately.

Confer On Five-Man OPM Job Committee

Randolph, White Not Candidates; LaGuardia, Willkie Mentioned

NEW YORK,—(ANP)— While conferences between representatives of the March on Washington committee and administration officials continue to deal with the knotty problem of the make-up of the five-man committee on fair employment practice to be named under the terms of the President's executive order barring racial discrimination in defense industries public speculation proceeded space

At least two meetings with government officials were held last week, one in Washington and one in New York, to reduce the list of potential members of the committee. A. Philip Randolph and Walter White met Thursday with Sidney Hillman, co-director of the Office of Production Management, in the nation's capital. Again on Saturday the march committee representatives conferred with Mayor F. H. LaGuardia here at City hall. No comment was available from any of the conferences, and Mr. Randolph immediately left New York for Chicago.

At least one thing is certain and that is that both Mr. Randolph and Mr. White have eliminated themselves from consideration for a place on this important committee. They did insist, however, that at least two Negroes be named. Spokesman for the march committee described Mr. Randolph's view as being that he is "but an incident to the whole plan of securing defense jobs for Negroes everywhere. For this reason he does not wish to be considered a candidate for that which others too have worked so strenuously."

"The Negro appointed, however," the spokesman continued in behalf of the national director, "must be one whose experience has been gathered from dealings with capital as well as labor, whose knowledge of contractural relations between these two elements of our society has been gained through thorough practice and not alone theoretical study. His worth must be known to all strata of Negroes and be appreciated by them."

The names of at least four Negroes are known to have been mentioned for the assignment, two of whom are in Chicago, one in Philadelphia and one in New York.

AGREED ON NAMES

Meanwhile, it has been learned from an unimpeachable source that the March on Washington Committee has agreed upon five and possibly six names, one being a substitute. In this case the identity is a closely guarded secret. Having agreed upon certain names it is presumed that they have been transmitted to the President either voluntarily or upon invitation.

Insofar as whites who might be appointed are concerned, several names are being heard in civic circles, but with no particular emphasis on any.

Mayor LaGuardia is one. In almost all of the conferences that preceded issuance of the President's executive order "two-job" LaGuardia has participated. Following the march committee's talk with President Roosevelt LaGuardia was appointed a committee of one to work out a solution to the demands in association with Mr. Randolph. He is a known liberal and although he disapproved of the march on Washington he felt compelled to admit that "the pious statement stage is long past and something concrete has got to be done for Negroes in defense industries." As New York's mayor, the Little Flower has several times broken precedent by appointing the first Negro to ever sit in magistrate's court and later the higher court of special sessions, and he has also named a Negro [illegible] commissioner.

WILLKIE SUGGESTED

Because he was in Washington on Thursday to confer with the President at a time when Mr. Randolph and Mr. White were there also to see the chief executive, Wendell Willkie's name has been bruited about as a possibility. The belief was that he had been sounded out as to his willingness to accept. Aside from this Mr. Willkie is not felt to have any particular qualifications for such a post.

Dr. Will Alexander, for a time acting president of Dillard university and formerly federal security administrator, has been mentioned too. His association with the Rosenwald Fund, his work among Negroes in the FSA, his knowledge and experience in connection with interracial affairs, particularly in the south, are points that are indicated in his favor.

NEW YORK,—(ANP)— While conferences between representatives of the March on Washington committee and administration officials continue to deal with the knotty problem of the make-up of the five-man committee on fair employment practice to be named under the terms of the President's executive order barring racial discrimination in defense industries, public speculation proceeded space

At least two meetings with government officials were held last week, one in Washington and one in New York, to reduce the list of potential members of the committee. A. Philip Randolph and Walter White met Thursday with Sidney Hillman, co-director of the Office of Production Management, in the nation's capital. Again on Saturday the march committee representatives conferred with Mayor F. H. LaGuardia here at City hall. No comment was available from any of the conferences, and Mr. Randolph immediately left New York for Chicago.

At least one thing is certain and that is that both Mr. Randolph and Mr. White have eliminated themselves from consideration for a place on this important committee. They did insist, however, that at least two Negroes be named. Spokesman for the march committee described Mr. Randolph's view as being that he is "but an incident to the whole plan of securing defense jobs for Negroes everywhere. For this reason he does not wish to be considered a candidate for that which others too have worked so strenuously."

"The Negro appointed, however," the spokesman continued in behalf of the national director, "must be one whose experience has been gathered from dealings with capital as well as labor, whose knowledge of contractural relations between these two elements of our society has been gained through thorough practice and not alone theoretical study. His worth must be known to all strata of Negroes and be appreciated by them."

The names of at least four Negroes are known to have been mentioned for the assignment, two of whom are in Chicago, one in Philadelphia and one in New York.

Meanwhile, it has been learned from an unimpeachable source that the March on Washington Committee has agreed upon five and possibly six names, one being a substitute. In this case the identity is a closely guarded secret. Having agreed upon certain names it is presumed that they have been transmitted to the President either voluntarily or upon invitation.

Insofar as whites who might be appointed are concerned, several names are being heard in civic circles, but with no particular emphasis on any

Mayor LaGuardia is one. In almost all of the conferences that preceded issuance of the President's executive order "two-job" LaGuardia has participated. Following the march committee's talk with President Roosevelt LaGuardia was appointed a committee of one to work out a solution to the demands in association with Mr. Randolph. He is a known liberal and although he disapproved of the march on Washington he felt compelled to admit that "the pious statement stage is long past and something concrete has got to be done for Negroes in defense industries." As New York's mayor, the Little Flower has several times broken precedent by appointing the first Negro to ever sit in magistrate's court and later the higher court of special sessions and he has also named a Negro commissioner.

WILLKIE SUGGESTED

Because he was in Washington on Thursday to confer with the President at a time when Mr. Randolph and Mr. White were there also to see the chief executive, Wendell Willkie's name has been bruited about as a possibility. The belief was that he had been sounded out as to his willingness to accept. Aside from this Mr. Willkie is not felt to have any particular qualifications for such a post.

Dr. Will Alexander, for a time acting president of Dillard university and formerly federal security administrator, has been mentioned too. His association with the Rosenwald Fund, his work among Negroes in the FSA, his knowledge and experience in connection with interracial affairs, particularly in the south, are points that are indicated in his favor.

DANCES HIGHLIGHT CAMP CROFT ENTERTAINMENT

One of the methods used in the Army to make life at Camp Croft, South Carolina more enjoyable, is dancing. First Sergeant John M. Spruell, who will soon be a Master Sergeant, is shown leading the march, which highlights each affair, with Mrs. Cornelia Young, Chief Chaperone of the young ladies who attended the dances. The decorations at this dance were said to be the most elaborate to date, a red, white, and blue scheme being used. Spruell, who will be discharged on August 10th, completing his sixth year, states that he will re-enlist immediately.

BILL BLUE JACKET JOINS THE NAVY

By John Bunyan Atkins

Bill Bluejacket, a typical Alabama boy, decided to enlist in the Navy and learn a trade. We are going to watch him as he goes through the Recruiting Office in Birmingham, through the Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Virginia, through a Navy trade school to a ship in the Fleet, where he becomes a part in his line in the United States Navy.

After Bill has completed his enlistment and passed the physical examination, he stands before Lieutenant-Commander R. B. Miller and repeats after him the following oath:

"I, Bill Bluejacket, do solemly swear (or affirm) that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America, and that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all their enemies whomsoever, and that I will obey orders of the President of the United States and the orders of the officers appointed over me, according to the rules and articles for the government of the Navy."

Bill is now an apprentice seamen in the Navy. He receives a pullman ticket to Norfolk and cash or meal tickets for dining car service on the way.

Along with Bill to the railway station in Birmingham go 34 other Navy men who took the oath when he did. Bill is directed by the Recruiting Officer to take charge of the group from Birmingham to Norfolk, and thereby is placed in a position to issue orders himself.

At the Navy Yard gate in Norfolk Bill and his party are met by a chief petty officer, who marches the men to the navy barracks. There Bill is issued clothing valued at $118.95 and told that he may send his civilian clothing home.

Bill gets three days of grace to print his name on his clothing and learn to sleep in a hammock which is swung six feet above the floor in order that men may walk under it. And he learns immediately that there are no floors in the Navy. He must learn to call a floor a deck and a mop a swab.

After three days, when Bill has learned to roll his clothes and store them in his sea bag, learned to sleep in a hammock and store it away in the morning, he is ready to learn infantry drill.

During the first three weeks he is held in detention, where he is vaccinated against smallpox and innoculated against typhoid.

Early in the morning Bill hears the bugle, then a shrill whistle and a petty officer's call, "Up all hammocks!"

NEGRO SOLDIERS AT CAMP LIVINGSTON LIVE IN DRY AREA

CAMP LIVINGSTON, La., Aug. 7—Camp Livingston, planted in the De Sota National Forest, occupies parts of two counties, or parishes as they are called in Louisiana. They are Grant parish and Rapides parish.

AUG 9 1941

Grant parish is wet and Rapides parish is dry. That is, you can't legally sell intoxicating liquors in Rapides parish, but you can in Grant parish.

They never sell anything but beer on military reservations anyhow.

But if you were a soldier and you were assigned to the section of Camp Livingston which is in Rapides parish, you couldn't buy a drink of beer unless you walked or rode to the section of the camp which is in Grant parish.

Pittsburgh Courier

Of course, this is not by special design, but it just happens that most of the Negro soldiers at Livingston are located in the section of camp which is dry and most of the white soldiers are in the wet section.

Pittsburgh

Rigid segregation prevails in most Southern camps. This segregation is of such a type that Negro soldiers know, as a rule, that they are not even expected in the stores or post exchanges in white areas. But under the impact of social necessity or sometimes, this color line is detoured in the post exchanges at Livingston.

Colored soldiers who live in the dry areas can enter the post exchanges of the white soldiers in white areas and buy their beer. Nothing happens.

By MINNIE D. SINGLETON

CAMP WHEELER, Ga., July 17—History was made for Negro trainees at Camp Wheeler, Ga., located near Macon, Thursday, July 8, when 869 trainees of the 16th Training Battalion graduated at a brilliant exercise held at 2:30 o'clock in the 6th Area Theatre building No. 2, located on the camp grounds. This marked the first replacement in the United States and they were only three weeks behind the first in the history of the country for white trainees.

The 16th Training Battalion, the only Negro training battalion at Camp Wheeler, graduation marked the completion of the army's basic training of selective service men. This training included the firing of each weapon used by the infantry, discipline, military courtesy, and familiarizing selectives with all branches of the service.

COLORFUL EXERCISES

The 16th Training Battalion, set the pace and were pioneers in beautification projects, which received favorable comments from the camp commander of the post.

The graduation was made colorful and highly enjoyable with a program consisting of speakers from the city of Macon and Camp Wheeler.

Private Morris Murray, Washington, D. C., member of Company B responded for the 16th Training Battalion. He thanked the officers of the camp and the Macon citizenry for their kindness, patience and hospitality and assured them that wherever they are placed they would try to reflect credit upon the camp personnel and the Macon citizens. Mr. Murray also praised the work of Rev. Mr. Robinson, the recreation committee and all who contributed to their happiness while in the city.

GENERAL PRAISES TRAINEES

The 16th Training Battalion Glee club under the direction of Chaplain Matthew C. Faulkner, rendered as selections, "My Soul Is a Witness," "Get on Board Little Children," and "Water Boy."

General John H. Hester, camp commander delivered the closing address for the 16th Training Battalion graduating class. The general was high in his praise of the general demeanor of the trainees and the share that Macon citizens played and the Recreation Defense Committee, for the soldiers on Cotton avenue.

The review of the battalion was very spectacular, consisting of four companies, who passed in review before the executive officers, Col. A. R. Emory, Major Barnwell, Chaplain Eastman, and the Rev. Douglas T. Robinson, the only race man. Mr. Robinson's position in this was unique in that the honor came out of recognition of his interest and untiring work for the trainees since their coming to the camp.

The trainees were distributed as follows to the various training posts: Fort Dix, 431; Fort Benning, 220; Camp Croft, S. C., 104; Fort Meade, Md., 2; Army War College, Washington, D. C., 2.

Among the officers from Fort Dix, who accompanied the 531 soldiers to the post were: Captain Berkley A. Mills, 1st battalion 372nd Infantry and Train commander; First Lieutenant Elmer Hatton, Train quartermaster and Captain Guilford B. Hoiston, medical officer.

First Army YMCA Opened for Fort Benning Soldiers

COLUMBUS, Ga.—The first colored army and navy YMCA was opened here on July 27 with a fanfare and ceremony participated in by several thousand persons, both white and colored.

The new structure is intended to provide entertainment and recreational facilities for the colored soldiers stationed at Fort Benning.

It has a lobby, with soft drink bar, ping-pong tables and comfortable chairs. Also on the first floor are several writing tables, periodicals, music and seats for couples and groups wishing to play games. Upstairs is a huge slee ropng,pE- eta shr xzfi TH T sleeping room with more than fifty beds.

31 White Y's

The records reveal that white soldiers have exactly thirty-one army and navy YMCA's—but until this one was built in Columbus, there wasn't a single such place for the thousands of colored soldiers in the U.S. Army.

This new building was financed by a local business woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Lunsford, proprietor of the Ninth Street drug store. The cost was approximately $15,000—but additional funds are needed to equip it fully.

Soldiers Contribute

The 24th Infantry at Fort Benning, the largest colored unit there, is reported to have contributed $1500, and other smaller units gave smaller sums. The city of Columbus, through a committee of which Walter Richards, white, is chairman, and a subcommittee, with Maynard R. Ashworth chairman, gave $4,000.

A campaign for equipment has realized $500 from post funds at Benning. White and colored citizens have given $1200, and the national army and navy headquarters in New York gave $4,000.

The personnel includes E. E. Farley, director; J. A. Davis and Mrs. Nell Blackshear, assistants; Miss Irene McAllister, office secretary; Frances Jones, canteen operator; and Homer Allen, Will Marley and James Allen, custodians.

Role of Negro In Army Aired Over NBC Tues.

The time of the radio broadcast which is designed to develop the role of the Negro in the Army has been changed to Tuesday, Aug. 12 from 9 to 9:45 p. m., Chicago daylight saving time, William H. Hastie, Civilian Aide to the Secretary of War announced this week. The broadcast was originally scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 5, and will be heard one week later over the NBC blue network.

Officials of the war department, colored soldiers and nationally known Negro artists will participate. Outstanding Negro singers, actors and entertainers have volunteered their services for the show which is being prepared under the supervision of the radio section of the war department.

Dean Dixon, youthful conductor who recently appeared with the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra will conduct a specially gathered orchestra on the program. Noble Sissle will serve as master of ceremonies on the program and reminisce about his war time services with lieutenant James Reese Europe and the 369th Infantry Band of World War fame.

Appearing in a specially prepared dramatic sketch will be Juano Hernandez, star of stage and radio, Lionel Monogas, Maurice Ellis and Edna Thomas. Eddie Green of radio fame together with the inimitable Bill Robinson, will contribute humor to the show.

JAN 25 1941

Negro doctors who hold reserve commissions in the army were forgotten last week when temporary appointments were made of nine doctors to examine men of the 369th Regiment. Nine white doctors, all members of the Jewish race, were selected for the $5 a day jobs.

According to information received by The New York Age, the Second Corps Army office detailed Colonel Joseph Haas, white, member of the neurology staff and in charge of the venereal disease clinic at Harlem Hospital, to select eight other doctors with reserve commissions to examine the men of the regiment.

Despite the fact that in his work at the hospital, Dr. Haas is closely associated with Negro physicians and was responsible for several of them joining an association of army medical men, the Negro doctors say he did not invite any of them to join his staff at the armory and selected eight Jewish doctors instead, one of them has just finished his internship at Harlem Hospital.

In an effort to get employment for Negro doctors, a committee of doctors went down to the Second Corp Area office and was told that the selection was made entirely by Dr. Haas. The committee went back to Dr. Haas, found out that he had places for three more doctors and asked that those three places go to Negroes. The requisition was also made downtown but the committee was informed that no more doctors would be called for service and that there were no available places for Negro doctors.

Among the Negro doctors in New York City who hold reserve commissions are Drs. A. W. Anderson, John Lord, Philip Beach, John Mosley, H. Soden, George Thorne, A. Lee, Ira McCowan, Clarence Chambers and Lowell Wormley. With the exception of Dr. Lord who has been ordered to Fort Niagara, none of the others has been called into active service.

TEN STATES READY TO AID CAMPAIGN FOR RECOGNITION

CINCINNATI, O., March 6.—Leadership in the work of the Allied Defense Councils has already been established in ten states, according to announcement made by Atty. Theodore M. Berry, this city, national chairman of the Allied Defense Councils, this week.

The Allied Defense Councils, state and local, are associated with the Washington Committee for Participation of Negroes in National Defense of which Dr. Rayford Logan is chairman.

State chairmen named in Attorney Berry's announcement are:

W. A. C. Hughes, Jr., 22 St. Paul street, Baltimore, Md.

B. W. Overton, Walnut street Y. M. M. C., Wilmington, Del.

S. Joe Brown, 207 Sixth street, Des Moines, Iowa.

J. Harvey Kerns, 312 W. Ninth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

J. B. Blayton, Citizens Trust Company, Atlanta, Ga.

Carter Wesley, 2418 Leeland avenue, Houston, Texas.

The State Defense Councils will sponsor the organization of local Defense Councils to gather factual information of discrimination against Negroes in all phases of the defense program, and to give financial aid and pressure to the National Committee in Washington.

MAR 8 1941

Mr. Berry points out that the Defense Councils will shortly be called upon to press Congressmen and Senators for passage of the bill to prohibit discrimination in employment on national defense contracts and the Senate resolution for investigation of the participation of Negroes in defense.

NEGRO, WHITE OBJECTORS TO BE STATIONED AT SAME CAMP

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13—(ANP)—Unless something untoward turns up, there will be no separate Negro camps for conscientious objectors, according to Major Campbell Johnson of the Selective Service board, who said on Monday, that the camps being formed would serve all conscientious objectors, Negro as well as white.

When asked about the camps, Major Johnson explained at length that several proposals were under consideration and that the question of color had not as yet arisen in the matter.

Camps are being utilized, he said, for religious groups the two largest being the Quakers and the Mennonites. In the former, there is a possibility of having Negro members of the sect, but there are none in the latter group, which adheres to customs peculiar to their forebears in the 18th century.

Both are peaceloving folks and have no wish to carry arms or to be identified with any military matters. Therefore, they will be utilized in other capacities. At present several plans are under way for caring for them—one by which the government will take charge of their activities, the other, a joint control by the government and religious group with both sides furnishing the necessary money and the third for the religious groups to finance the entire cost of the camps, which, however, would be under governmental supervision.

The largest number of Negro conscientious objectors come from the Seventh Day Adventist group which has made a large number of conversions among Negroes.

They are being trained by their own teachers in the finer points of first aid and will be attached to the medical corps as stretcher bearers and similar needful work, thereby eliminating the members of this sect as fighters.

The law of 1917 differed from the present law. The earlier law stated that a person had to be a member of one of the two religious groups mentioned above, but under the present set-up any person may claim exemption on conscientious objector scruples, but he must prove to the satisfaction of his draft board that he really is a conscientious objector.

To date, no problem of race has arisen, but Major Johnson says that the Selective Service board will attempt to meet all situations as they arise.

Taxation Without Representation

APR 6 - 1941

LAST month millions of people treked to the Bureaus of Internal Revenue or otherwise ordered the postman to do that chore to contribute a percentage of their last year's earning for the proper conduct of the nation's affairs. More persons paid this year than ever before for the reason that the exemptions allowed each individual were lowered to the extent that the $16-a-week porter had to file just the same as the thousand-dollar-a-week movie actor. It goes without saying that many thousand Negroes joined the army of taxpayers. The government will not be able to ascertain from the returns the number of colored taxpayers who filed their returns. The reason is there was no identification which usually is required on all applications for jobs, as to the race or color of the taxpayer. No photograph was requested on the returns.

Uncle Sam will thus feel free to spend the colored taxpayer's money to build a greater America for all Americans. That is as it should be. The money of Negro taxpayers will be used to build battleships and to pay the officers and sailors that man them. None, however, will be paid to Negro officers of such ships for the naval policy keeps colored sailors in the menial capacities of the navy. The Negro taxpayers will aid in paying the salaries for the United States Marines. But no Negroes are in the marines for our government keeps them out. Flying fortresses that soar the skies, submarines that steal through the bowels of the oceans to surprise the common foe, sub-machine guns that beat a rat-a-tat-tat at the enemy's soldiers, tanks that shoot across rough terrain like an automobile on a highway—all are being constructed in the various defense industries, many of which bar Negroes from employment although they are contributing to the salaries of those workers who are employed in the manufacture of these war machines.

The War Department has said that to put Negro soldiers and white soldiers in the same companies and to mix them generally in the various branches of the military service would be destructive of and detrimental to the morale. But our government does not think that the use of colored taxpayers' money for the same purpose as the money of the other taxpayers is detrimental to the morale. The government has not even thought it wise to inform the defense industries that all citizens of the United States are hiring the workers and paying the salaries of the employees and by the same reason persons of all minority groups should be allowed to work at any and all of these plants. It should. It has a duty to see that the people's money is used to build a united America. And if, in the attempt to build a united America, it suffers and permits practices to exist that bar full or complete participation by all groups, the practices are destructive to the main purpose and sabotage the program.

75 Negro Selectees Leave For McClellan To Enter U. S. Training

Two Large Quotas Of White Men Scheduled To Leave During Week

A quota of 75 Jefferson County Negroes, representing the first of about 600 prospective trainees scheduled to enter army camps from this county during April, stood ready Tuesday to be inducted into service at Ft. McClellan.

The 75 men were ordered to camp by 10 of Jefferson County's 19 draft boards, aboard special cars attached to a Southern Railway train leaving Birmingham at 1:40 p.m.

Two other large quotas will depart this week and other quotas will follow about the middle of April, according to schedules prepared by draft authorities here. A quota of 170 white men will depart April 4 for Ft. McClellan and another group of 75 prospective white trainees will leave Saturday afternoon for the same army induction center.

On April 11 the county will send 120 Negroes to camp and on the following day 75 additional Negro trainees will be inducted. A 15-member quota of white men will be sent to Ft. McClellan April 15 and on April 17 about 85 additional white men will be inducted.

Another Draft Call Expected Momentarily

A tenth draft quota, calling for 95 white men and 325 Negroes from Georgia to be inducted into the Army, beginning May 10, is expected at state selective service headquarters today or Monday, Colonel A. T. Colley, executive officer, said yesterday.

Although the call has not been actually received, selective service headquarters has been informed that it is on the way, Colonel Colley said.

The white men in the initial call will be used to replace men turned down after being sent to induction stations. Thus it will be the third consecutive regular call for Negroes. Replacements are not considered as being in the regular call.

The white registrants will go to Fort McPherson for induction May 10. Negroes will be inducted at Fort Benning May 15-16.

More than 21 per cent. of the 176 Negro selectees examined here for induction into the army were turned down as physically unfit.

Among the causes for the rejection of thirty-seven men were mental deficiencies, hernia, two cases of gonorrhea, two cases of tuberculosis and several heart cases.

Replacements for these men will be sent to headquarters within five days.

Rejections as a whole have been running about 11 per cent., and the high percentage registered here yesterday was surprising.

Today the physicians at Blues' Armory moved into high gear as 110 men reported for final physical examination and induction. These included about thirty from Richmond, and it is the first day of examinations under the biggest induction to date, during which 1,600 will be taken in at the rate of 200 a day through April 19.

Those who are successful in passing their examinations today will leave for Camp Lee from Broad Street Station tonight at 10:20 o'clock. At Camp Lee they will be "processed" and then be sent to various training units.

JOHNSON LAUDS DRAFT; SEES END OF JIMCROW

JAN 19 1941

Discrimination On Way Out, Says

WASHINGTON. — (ANP) — When Ernest Calloway, educational director of the Red Caps Union, and George Leon Paul Weaver requested exemption from the military service of the United States on the grounds of jim crow existing in the army and the undemocratic attitudes displayed to Negroes, the Chicago Draft board rejected their pleas, but not before Calloway and Weaver had sent letters to Major Campbell C. Johnson, civilian aide to Dr. Dykstra in the selective service system, and to ex-Judge William Hastie, civilian aide to the secretary of war.

Both replied to the men, with Judge Hastie asking that the matter be referred to Major Johnson.

"The selective service system is making every effort to operate without discrimination toward any minority group. The war department has opened several new branches of the service to Negroes. Among them are the coast artillery, anti aircraft, field artillery, engineers, signal corps and it has begun to call Negro reserve officers to active duty. Discussions are being held looking forward to further liberalization of the policies of our armed forces.

"These things are being done with much earnestness because it is realized that the greatest possible degree of democracy must exist in the country which stands before the world today as the hope of the democratic ideology. The most important service which one can be rendered by any of us at this time is to lend whatever aid we can to strengthening the arms of our nation without sacrificing for one moment the principles which we hold or giving up our constant struggle for the more complete democratization of our country."

Discussing the situation one daily paper, liberal in intent, declared that the Chicago draft board tacitly admitted the jim-crow policies of the army in refusing the exemptions. However, officials say it was adjudged purely on the legal aspects and the exemptions as laid down by the selective service system and without any regard to color.

Dear Sir: — The following is an open letter to Uncle Sam. "I have just received my questionnaire from the Draft Board and I am enclosing it herewith — filled out as requested. With a wife and two children to support, plus a thirty - sixth birthday next August, the chances of your calling me are remote.

"Were I ten years younger and most eligible (single), what grounds would you accept for a request of deferment? My being a Negro would not be acceptable to you, yet that alone would be the ground I would present.

"Naturaly, Uncle Sam, I would assume that, at heart, you are not a hypocrite, but a fair-minded, honest - intentioned soul. You would have to explain to me why you consider my life in equal balance with your white sons, since you insist in denying me the same opportunities open to them. They are protected by the "Bill of Rights."

For me, you deny passage of the Anti-Lynching Bill. Every University in the country is open to your white sons, but the doors of Louisiana State University, a tax-supported instituted institution, barred to me; and efforts on my part to enter its doors would provoke you to laughter although I am serious about it.

In the Navy, our Navy, is there an opportunity for me to become an admiral? You see, Uncle, I am a Negro, and there are a million more like me of whom you are asking the laying of lives on the line. I ask you, Uncle, for what?"

Another important point: I voted Republican and detest anything that smells of Communism; and as far back as my great - great - grand - parents, I am American born. So it would be unfair to label me "Fifth Columnist."

Negroes Are Anxious To Join U. S. Army

FEB 4 - 1941

Alabama Negroes are so anxious to enter the army under the selective service law that the March quota of 385 Negroes already has been filled—one month ahead of time—from a waiting list of volunteers which numbered 1,145.

This was disclosed by State Selective Service headquarters in Montgomery Tuesday at which time the number of Negro draftees per draft board area for March was announced.

The trainees will depart in three sections, the first 150 leaving March 4, another 150 the following day and 85 on March 6, all for Ft. McClellan.

New Draft Will Take 414 Negroes In N. Y. Area

Four hundred and fourteen Negroes will be among 7,944 New Yorkers who will come under the fifth draft call between Feb. 17 and 28, it was disclosed yesterday with the announcement of new quotas.

In the Second Corps Area, which includes New Jersey and Delaware as well as New York, a total of 10,644 youths will be conscripted, among them a total of 599 Negroes.

Negro training points (camps in which Negro conscripts are to be segregated) had been delayed, it was said.

Some time ago, a Negro assistant to the secretary of war and the draft administrator was named. Evidently each was placed in those positions to clear and adjust matters of particular interest to the Negro group.

In spite of the avalanche of criticism which Negro groups and individuals are shooting at the war department complaining of its do-nothing policy for Negoes, not one word has been heard so far from the assistant to the secretary of war and of course the draft administrator can do little until the war department fixes the policy.

If these appointees mean anything they ought to function and let the public know about it. If not, they are just so much excess baggage.

The Report On Negro Defense Labor

MAY 3 - 1941

From Norfolk Virvinian-Pilot

Charges, last winter that defense job contractors in this area were discriminating against Negro skilled workers, moved the Hampton Roads Regional Defense Council to institute a survey of employment conditions with the view of throwing light on the controversy. A few days ago it reported its findings. The findings throw little or no light on the controversy that prompted the survey.

The Council reports that Negroes are not being discriminated against in the hiring of defense workers in the Hampton Roads area. Of the 28,713 persons employed in 20 defense projects, it notes, 10,127 are Negroes. While Negroes constitute 32 per cent of the population of this section, Negro workers on the 20 defense projects reviewed constitute nearly 40 per cent of the total number of workers. This is the basis of the Regional Defense Council's finding that there is no discrimination against Negro workers in this area's defense projects.

If this is all that is pertinent to the question which the Council undertook, to explore, it has uncovered a truly astounding fact. It has uncovered the fact that defense contractors instead of discriminating against Negro workers, are discriminating against white workers! On a proportional population basis, white workers should be getting 68 per cent of the defense jobs, but are getting only 60 per cent.

Obviously, the Council has proved too much and therefore proved too little. That the defense contractors practice no discrimination against unskilled Negro workers, needed no proving. What needed proof was that they practice no discrimination against skilled Negro workers. That is the heart of the controversy. The Defense Council skips lightly over the main point with the observation that Negro employment on defense projects in this area is not confined to unskilled labor but takes in both the skilled and semi-skilled groups. This is the point on which the Council should have cited facts and figures. If it did, they have not been published.

The figures that the Council did publish prove only that Negro workers are getting more than their proportional share of the unskilled and semi-skilled jobs—an employment fact which, in the South, long antedates defense construction, and is itself a reflection of a racial stratification of Southern labor which likewise antedates the defense emergency. The central Negro grievance has been that even in the defense emergency, this stratification persists. If it is indeed giving way to unprejudiced employment, on defense projects, of skilled Negro workers, that fact does not emerge from the Regional Defense Council's report.

Induct 100 Negroes Here for U. S. Army

Induction of 100 Negroes from Eastern Virginia into the rapidly expanding United States Army took place here today. Army officials at the induction station expected to finish the rigid physical examinations of the selectees in time to send the men to Fort Meade, Md., early this evening.

In addition to the physical examinations, the army men were prepared to give reading tests if needed under the new regulation that such an examination must be given to any man who has not completed four grades of formal education. Failure in the reading test will result in rejection.

Need for Recreation For Negro Soldiers Stressed on Program

Stressing the need for additional recreation facilities in the city for the negro soldiers stationed at Fort Benning, Maynard R. Ashworth, chairman of the recreation-for-negro-soldiers subcommittee of the Columbus Defense Service committee, spoke on the Army Hour last night.

The Army Hour, broadcast from the Columbus Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., was especially dedicated to the new colored Army and Navy "Y' 'being organized here for negro soldiers, and featured the 24th Infantry.

Major Harry L. Lewis, adjutant of the 24th Infantry; E. E. Farley, executive secretary of the negro Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., and Chaplain Louis J. Beasley, of the 24th Infantry, appeared on the program also.

To accomplish the mission of providing a colored Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. in Columbus, Chairman Walter A. Richards, of the Columbus Defense Service committee, appointed a committee whose chief duty will be to procure for the colored troops an Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., Mr. Ashworth remarked.

Colored Committee Assists

An advisory colored committee, appointed by the colored folks of Columbus, has aided greatly in the preliminary thinking and planning, he pointed out.

Mr. Ashworth's speech, in part, follows:

"Chaplain Louis J. Beasley, chaplain of the 24th Infantry at Fort Benning, has, and will continue to render valuable service in connection with the recreation of colored troops.

"Colonel Lockart, commanding officer of the 24th Infantry, is also very much interested in our activities here in Columbus as regards colored troops' off-duty recreation. He has talked to the committee here in Columbus and has given us a very good picture of the situation and also the needs for this Army and Navy Y. M C. A.

"There has been for many years, in fact ever since colored troops have been stationed at Benning, a recreational program for the colored troops. All was conducted at Benning, however, under the supervision of the regimental chaplain and a civilian secretary of Army and Navy Y's.

"This plan is no longer possible because of the greatly increased number of colored troops at Benning and in addition the necessity of an "all out" training program for the troops. There is no time now for the army to do all the things which off duty soldiers should have done for them in order to keep them out of the undesirable places where they will drift to if no other more desirable place is available.

"It is the duty of civilians in this tremendous national defense movement to take over the entertainment program of troops—this is what the army is asking and this is what we are going to do. We have promised General Fredendall, commander of Fort Benning, Colonel Lockart and all the officers commanding colored troops, that we will hold up our end.

"This has been said because of the confidence which we have in the civilian population of Columbus, all of whom are anxious to show their appreciation of the soldier of the U. S. Army we are proud of him, he is our guest, and we will treat him as we would a guest, or a friend.

Plans Completed

"The plans of organizing and constructing the colored Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. are worked out in every detail. We have a public-spirited colored woman here in Columbus who has agreed to construct a building. All financing has been planned—our budget is $9,000 for the first year. All we are asking the finance committee of the larger recreational committee for is $4,000. We believe this will be allotted.

"The project will proceed rapidly as soon as this amount is assured. We expect to get assurance by the middle of this week. If we do, within two or three months, the colored Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. will be a going concern."

In his remarks to the radio audience, Maj. Lewis stated, "If there is any one thing our commanding officer is interested in, it is good, wholesome living conditions and adequate, proper recreational facilities in this community."

Seeks Aid From War Department

Maj. Lewis said that every possible effort was being made to secure additional recreational facilities from the war department for Fort Benning, but as yet nothing concrete could be reported.

"I believe that all men are clean at heart, and that if decent amusement and recreation are available to them, the majority of our soldiers will not seek companionship in the more questionable places," he declared.

Chaplain Beasley said, "To the negro soldier, nothing means more than God, country and duty, for he, too, sings 'America.' He, as every other true American citizen, believes in those principles for which the 'Stars and Stripes' stand, and he believes in them so profoundly and sincerely that he is willing to live for them, sacrifice for them, and, if needs be, to die for them."

Needs More Facilities

Stating that formerly the recreational facilities provided by the colored Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. organization had been adequate, Secretary Farley said that it is not now adequate because under the new setup, practically all of these troops will be away from home, will be youngsters and will be in a completely new and strange environment.

"Also, the number will extend well into the thousands, and will probably come from many sections of the country," he asserted.

The program was opened with a skit entitled "The Story of Siboney," and depicted the heroic work done by volunteers from the Twenty-fourth Infantry at the yellow fever camp at Siboney, Cuba, during the Spanish-American war. The sketch was written, directed and produced by Jack Gibney, in cooperation with Chaplain Louis J. Beasley.

Character parts were played by Jack Gibney, Crpl. Tellis, Maj. Lewis, Lt. Palsone, Sergt. Blake, Pvt. Williams, Crpl. Ruffins, Crpl. Henderson, Pvt. Lee, Sergt. Wysinger, and Sergt. Powell.

Music was furnished by the Twenty-fourth Infantry band, directed by W. O. R. B. Tresville, and the glee club. Sergt. James Ross, soloist, sang "Alone" and "When I've Done the Best I Could."

NEGRO IS ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT U.S. ARMY LIFE

David Miller, 24-year-old Chattanooga colored boy, has been in three camps since he joined the national defense army last November.

Here for a brief stay with his people after an absence of four years, Miller stated yesterday that his experience in the defense army was the finest "I have had in all my life." He is stationed at Camp Bedford Forrest, Tullahoma, with company K, Twenty-second Quartermaster outfit, and was transferred there from Fort Knox.

Negro Teachers Hear Address on Defense Program

J. C. Abercrombie, vocational teacher at the Carver high school spoke on national defense in the home and in the schools at the February meeting of the Spartanburg County Colored Teachers association this morning at the Community center on Evins street.

Around 100 members of the association heard the Carver high teacher as he spoke on the vital importance of national defense and on the big responsibility resting on the teachers of today.

National defense was the theme of the meeting, which began at 11 o'clock and continued until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Speakers for the group meetings, which were held prior to the assembly at which Abercrombie spoke, were C. C. Woodson for the high school, J. M. Davenport for the elementary grades and L. B. Saxton for the primary grades.

E. F. Rivers, principal of Cummings Street school, was master of ceremonies. H. L. Barksdale, principal of the Pacolet colored school, is president of the association.

The date of the March meeting will be announced later.

Aero Institute Trains Negroes For Defense

HOBOKEN, N. J., June 26—In keeping with the times and the heavy demand for trained workers by factories in connection with the national defense program, the United Institute of Aeronautics at Hudson street and Hudson place, Hoboken, has again taken a leading place in the training of men for machine shops and the aviation industries.

Since the request of President Roosevelt for a 24-hour day and 7-day week in defense industries has erected an immediate need for hundreds of thousands of additional trained men, the United Institute has inaugurated vast changes in its shops and greatly increased its training facilities to meet this new condition. According to W. L. Jourdan, president of the United Institute, "The young man of today has an opportunity, unparalleled in the last 25 years, for a career in either the aviation industry or machine trades."

The task of training men for aviation mechanics and machine shop practice is recognized as an integral part of the military program and is now called "our second line of defense."

The institution is assisting men, in every way possible, to get a specialized training, even those men with limited finances or unemployed, and these added facilities make possible the training of young men who are still attending school but who would like to improve their time during the summer months. They also have instituted a plan wehereby a man with previous machine shop experience can now greatly improve his knowledge, with a few hours specialized training.

Visitors to the shops, located at the entrance to the Hudson Tubes in Hoboken, are received between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m.

Negro Colleges and National Defense

Speaking before the graduating class of Friendship Junior college at the commencement exercises last Tuesday night Professor C. A. Chick of the Department of Economics of Fayetteville State Teachers college stressed three contributions that the things the Negro colleges can make to National Defense.

He said that Negro colleges could play a great part in National Defense by aiding the Negro race in developing a greater confidence in itself. He emphasized the fact that a group of people who do not respect themselves and who do not have confidence in themselves need not expect other groups to respect them or to have confidence in them.

He further pointed out that those of us who call ourselves well educated, in all too many cases, have less confidence in the Negro race than do those Negroes who are not so well educated. And it is a generally accepted fact that what little business we have breathes, lives, and has its being through the lungs of the so-called uneducated Negroes. He further stated that the educated Negro plans to be a medical doctor, or a dentist, or to conduct some form of business, but he himself all too often does not patronize the Negro doctor, or dentist, or business enterprize.

He said that one of the weaknesses of Negro Education is that the more we attend our colleges (and public schools too) the less confidence we have in each other, and infact the less we wish to be associated with our own race in general.

He again emphasized the point that he thought no greater contribution can the Negro colleges make to National Defense than to turn out graduates with confidence in the Negro race—both from the standpoint of integrity and ability.

In the second place Professor Chick stressed the point that minority groups everywhere should always be found upholding and defending the democratic form of government because the hope of minority groups everywhere is in the democratic form of government. He admitted that a minority group's interest in and defense of the democratic form of government is selfish. He said that in as much as we are a minority group we should always defend the democratic form of government—not as it is but as we hope it will be some day.

He closed his address by appealing to his audience to hold on to that old simple faith in an Eternal and Almigthy God. He plead ed with the graduating class to adopt anew the philosophy of the sages of old: "Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people".,

Professor Chick emphasized the fact that that education which which thought only in terms of increasing the student's earning capacity was a failure. He stated that only the man of faith can master reality only self-transcendent empiricism can be empirical without being overwhelmed by a mass of undifferentiated experiences, and only a vision that knows of a deeper dimension of responsibilities can succesfully withstand international competition and simultaneously preserve the dignity of its citizens.

Total Cost Is Estimated At $885,000 For Three Types Of Buildings

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The allotment of $254,000 by the morale branch to equip 27 Jim-Crow service clubs for colored troops at Army camps throughout the nation was announced Saturday by the War department.

Construction of these service clubs at the cost of more than $885,000 already has been authorized and is being rushed by the quartermaster corps. Three types of buildings are included in the program.

Large service clubs, designed for units of 5,000 or more men, will be equipped with a 5,000 volume library, a reading room, a social hall, cafeteria and an office for the senior and two junior hostesses. Cost of equipment for each is $16,500.

Medium-sized clubs for units of 3,000 to 5,000 men, will have similar facilities, but only a 1,500-volume library and a senior and junior hostess. Cost of equipment for each is $10,500.

Small clubs, for units of 500 to 3,000 men, will have a 500-volume library, one junior hostess and a kitchen for short orders. Cost of equipment for each is $5,000.

First Corps Area, Fort Devens, Mass., (medium).

Second Corps Area, Fort Dix, N.J. (medium); Fort Ontario, New York, (small).

JUL 6 1941

Somewhere in Georgia a soldier is mourning a lost hatchet—or he will be when the time rolls around for him to account for his equipment.

Being unable to produce the hatchet, he'll find a charge for it on the pay roll.

Then he'll get the hatchet back, because a Negro woman at Claxton, Ga., was honest and thought "the soldiers might be needing it."

Emma Johnson found the hatchet and wrote to Governor Talmadge to find out what to do with it. He advised her to send it to Sion B. Hawkins, adjutant general of Georgia. He, in turn, sent Emma the $1 it cost her to ship the hatchet to Atlanta, and then turned the instrument over to Brigadier General James L. Frink, Fourth Corps Area quartermaster.

Text of the letter sent General Frink follows:

"Dear Sir: I found this little war ax and I new it belong to the U. S. and I wanted to give it back but I didn't no where to send it so I rote the Governor and he rote me back an told me to send it to you. I found it June 24 and I was glad to know where to send it back because the soldiers may be needing it that was camping and lost it and I found it after they was gone and I didn't no what to do about it till the Governor rote me today. So I hope it will do the United States some good in this war."

830 Colored Soldiers Enlist For Army Duties

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., June 28—Colonel F. A. Prince, field artillery recruiting officer for the states of Alabama and Tennessee, announced this week at his office in Montgomery, that authority had been received by his office to enlist 830 colored soldiers for the regular army for duty in various organizations at Camp Forrest, Tenn.; Fort McClellan, Ala.; Camp Livingston, La.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Camp Davis, N. C.; Camp Shelby, Miss.; Fort Benning, Ga., and Camp Wheeler, Ga.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 35, single, without dependents and of good character.

Specialists of all trades are desired among these enlistments and excellent opportunities exist for trade schooling and are available to men with qualifications who desire to further their trade training.

Negro Hostess to Be Employed at Fort

Fort Jackson officials announced that appointment of a Negro junior hostess to serve as club supervisor for the new Negro Service club would be made soon following the naming of a board of officers to make recommendations to that effect.

Maj. Maxwell Cohen and Maj. Paul H. Floyd, both of the Quartermaster corps; First Lieut. Feltham S. James, chaplain of the Negro troops, and Second Lieut. Robert P. McVea, infantry, comprise the board.

The new service club, one of the first such Negro recreation centers on any army post in the country, is expected to be opened the latter part of August. Similar in design to the service clubs already in use here by white troops, it has a large assembly and smaller rooms furnished with writing desks and easy chairs.

Located in the Negro troop area, the service club will provide ample recreational facilities for the 700 Negro soldiers now stationed at Fort Jackson.

Tennessee Leads In Acceptances Of Service Men

NASHVILLE, July 19. (AP) — Tennessee had the lowest percentage of rejections due to physical disabilities of selective service registrants called during April of any state in the Fourth Corps Area, state headquarters reported today.

Army figures for the month show that only 6.5 per cent of the state's white registrants and 9.9 per cent of its negro trainees were rejected at the induction station, against a Fourth Corps Area average for the month of 13.8 per cent white and 17.8 negro rejections.

"For over nine months, the work of selecting men for the armed forces has proceeded in an eminently satisfactory manner," said Adjt. Gen. Thomas A. Frazier, state selective service director, in commenting on the health report.

Frazier said that 2,047 white and 992 negro registrants from Tennessee were examined in April and that of the totals, 134 white and 98 negro registrants were rejected. Venereal diseases accounted for the largest number of rejections, 17 whites and 53 negroes.

Spartan Draft Boards Receive Negro Quota

Five Draftees From County to Be Inducted Into Army March 4

Four of the five Spartanburg local boards in which are administering the selective service act in the county have been assigned quotas of negro selectees for military training, effective March 4, it has been learned here from state headquarters for selective service.

The quotas were included in a list of quotas and schedules of arrivals for the 197 negro selectees to be inducted into the army late this month and early in March.

50 Per Day

Major George C. Warren, delivery and induction officer, revealed that the negro selectees would arrive at the rate of 50 on February 27, 50 on February 28, 50 on March 3, and 47 on March 4.

Sixteen of the state's 83 local boards will not be called on to furnish selectees under the present call for negroes, Major Warren explained, since the quota was set up to affect boards with a large preponderence of negro registrants.

Local boards which will not furnish men are Abbeville, Blacksburg, Cheraw, Hartsville, Dillon, Georgetown, Greenwood Board No. 2, Lancaster, Clinton, Easley, Pickens, Saluda, Spartanburg Board No. 5, Union, and York. Two counties, Georgetown and Union, have not been called on to furnish any selectees, either white or negro, since credits for men already in the armed forces exceed the quotas through June 30.

The state's negro selectees will report to Fort Jackson where they will be given physical examinations and will go through the induction process according to the following schedule:

Negro Soldier Recreation Is Being Arranged

Plans in connection with specially operated recreation centers for Negro soldiers are rapidly materializing it was learned yesterday.

Already the date has been set for the formal opening of the first center at 1125 1-2 Washington street Made possible through the interest and cooperation of many prominent leaders and organizations, both white and Negro, it will go a long way toward meeting the recreational need.

However, further contributions will be needed to carry on the work. Monetary donations, magazines, athletic equipment, games of all kinds and other recreational equipment will be gratefully accepted and appreciated, it is announced.

All interested organizations and individuals, both white and Negro, are urged to contribute to this cause, it is announced, and may communicate with Herbert Eli Dickson, recreational supervisor for Negro soldiers, at 1125 1-2 Washington street, or phone 4979.

Girl Scout troop No. 14 and the Kappa Alpha Psi (social fraternity) are aiding the project.

NEGRO DOCTORS TO BE AT FORT BRAGG

Seventeen colored doctors will be assigned to the Station Hospital, Fort Bragg, within the next sixty days to provide medical attention for negro troops stationed here. Two negro dentists and 28 negro nurses will also be stationed here, as well as three negro medical officers for sanitary companies.

As negro doctors are called from the Medical Reserve, additional reserve appointments will be made to fill vacancies, the War Department announced. Recommendations of the American Medical Association and the National Dental Association will be taken into consideration for such personnel. Nurses will be procured through the American Red Cross.

The present negro medical reserve includes 55 doctors and 10 dentists.

Housing And School Problems Headache For Booming Cities

Populations Doubled As Preparedness Projects Draw Thousands Of Men

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The federal government is not alone in its star-spangled headache over defense. State and local governments could use a few hunks of aspirin, too.

Take the town of Charlestown, Ind., population 936, which waked up one morning to learn it was to have a $51,000,000 powder plant, plus a bag plant, which at the peak of construction would dump between 12,000 and 15,000 workers upon Charlestown, would keep 10,000 workers there after the plant went into operation.

Charlestown, 12 miles east of Jeffersonville, Ind., 16 miles northeast of Louisville, Ky., has a water supply for 3,000 persons, no sewers. Stores and residences use outdoor toilets.

A sanitary sewage system, being built by the town and WPA, is about three-fourths complete. But the plans were drawn before the powder plant site was picked. It would have taken care of Charlestown's sewage on the basis of its normal population, plus the regular supply of visitors as of the pre-defense era. The sewage disposal plant WPA is building, also planned before the boom came, would take care of 5,000.

OBVIOUSLY A TOWN OF 936 would not have housing to accommodate the influx of workmen. The very early stages of plant construction brought in 2,000 who took up every available vacant spot in every available house. Then the town began to come apart at the seams. Five trailer camps were set up. FHA approved plans for the development of two subdivisions and work started.

Or, take a squint at Starke, Fla., a town of 1,200. It is 50 miles from Jacksonville, 30 miles from Gainesville, 25 miles from Green Cove Springs.

It has a water supply for only twice its 1,200 persons, a sewage system in bad shape pending construction of a new one for which WPA has earmarked funds, one movie. Being a farming and not a tourist town, it normally has no housing nor business vacancies.

Just seven miles from Starke, Camp Blanding is being built—an army post which eventually will accommodate from 40,000 to 60,000 troops. To build the post, 15,000 construction workers are being taken to Starke and the nearby camp.

Every available room in Starke is filled with boarders. The mayor has taken in nine men. The president of the Chamber of Commerce has four. Outside the city limits, hundreds of workers live in temporary camps, in trailers, tents and horse stalls, in highly unsanitary conditions.

The contractors have built bunkhouses and mess facilities for 1,800 men. A hundred small resort cottages at nearby Lake Kingsley are being rented at from $60 to $75 a month.

But the construction period, bad as the jam is, will be only the beginning for Starke. After the thousands of soldiers are dropped into the pine-fringed camp, there will be a steady and increasing demand for recreational facilities at Starke, for dances, for movies, clean places for the men to eat when they come to town, houses to take care of the hundreds of visiting relatives.

THESE ARE ONLY A COUPLE OF THE CASES that are rising daily in the offices of Frank Bane, director of the division of state and local cooperation of the National Defense Commission: of Daniel W. Hoan, his associate director, and of Paul V. McNutt, the coordinator of health, medical welfare, recreation, nutrition and related activities for the commission.

Bane has a broad knowledge of state problems. The council is an outgrowth of the governors conference. Hoan knows city problems from the ground up. And McNutt as a former governor of Indiana takes an inside knowledge to his new task.

All of them are busy helping state and local governments to dissolve the multiplicity of new worries that are piling upon them. State and local agencies are being created to deal with the problems of the present and to plan ahead in the hope that after emergency is gone the future will not bring the chaos that followed the World War.

Their files are filled with instances that throw a piercing light into this shadowy background of the national defense picture; on health, on recreation, on public aid, on education, on welfare protection.

It shows large concrete pipes being unloaded at a small town for use by the health and housing authorities in building a main sewer for a defense housing project. The day after the pipes were unloaded, the authorities found that, lacking other shelter, defense workers and their families had set up housekeeping in the sewer pipes.

Ten miles from a camp in which thousands of Negro troops have been quartered is a conservative little town. The mayor of the little town is on pins and needles wondering what will happen when the Negro troops come pouring into the local picture soon.

Hundreds of submarginal families are being moved off the land in a backwoods county to make way for an army proving ground. They have to go out of their home county. But the minute they cross the county they lose their legal residence and are deprived of the right to local relief—if the county had any resources left with which to supply that relief.

NUMEROUS CASES have sprung up in which schools have been set up in abandoned churches, or even residences to take care of the swarm of children that come with newly arrived workers.

And McNutt's files supply the incident of the shipyard town in which authorities found 10 and 12-year-old newsboys grabbing a new source of income by charging $2 a head to introduce local girls—many of them under 16—to men from the shipyards.

Even such areas as Hampton Roads, Va., and San Diego, many times larger than some of the communities that have felt the surging impetus of defense, have found difficulties of their own.

3 DEFENSE AIDES USED TO CHECK PRESSURE GROUPS

By JOHN A. SAUNDERS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20—An assertion by Dr. Rayford W. Logan that the three race men holding administrative assistant posts in the defense program were appointed only to serve as "barriers" against Negro "pressure groups" fell like a bombshell on the 1500 patriotic, defense-conscious citizens who attended this city's first defense mass meeting last Wednesday night.

Massive Union Baptist Church, Fitzwater and Mole streets, was filled to overflowing, and when Dr. Logan, chairman of the National Committee on the Participation of the Negro in National Defense, and a member of The Courier's Defense Committee, uttered those significant words the huge audience was stunned into silence.

Not only did the eminent Howard University professor criticize what he described as an attempt to hold Negro "pressure groups" in check, but he scored the War and Navy Departments for permitting colored Americans to be victims of out-and-out discrimination in a time of threatened war.

The race men serving as assistants to various cabinet heads are: the Hon. William H. Hastie, civilian aide to the Secretary of War; Major Campbell Johnson, administrative assistant of selective service, and Dr. Robert C. Weaver, administrative assistant of the National Defense Advisory Committee.

GETTING RUN-AROUND

"I fully endorse the appointment of these men, who are all personal friends of mine," said Dr. Logan, "but I feel, as do several others in Washington, that they are just being used as 'barriers' against 'pressure groups' like this committee."

Dr. Logan also disclosed that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Urban League and the Defense Committee have endorsed a bill to be introduced in the House of Representatives demanding a Congressional investigation of discrimination against trained Negroes in the defense program.

"We are getting a grand 'run-around' in Washington," Dr. Logan added, "and I can say without fear of contradiction that no one in the Capital has the authority to prevent discrimination against Negroes in defense industries.

PASSES RESOLUTION

"Furthermore, the Negro's problem has never been explained to those in power," he said. "To let them to tell, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States knows nothing at all about the Negro's problem."

Following Dr. Logan's address, a report from the resolutions committee of the local group was read by the Rev. Marshall L. Shepard and countersigned by Raymond Pace Alexander, Sadie T. M. Alexander and Charles Shorter.

The resolution endorsed "aid to Britain," stating that "We voice the unanimous sentiment of the American Negro that while the men and women of England are giving blood, sweat and tears, we Americans, and particularly we American Negroes, at least could give sweat to aid Britain in its single-handed effort to save democracy in this world. We want to be included in the program to supply tools to Britain so that Britain can finish the job for the protection of world democracy."

Other speakers were: G. James Fleming, chairman of the committee; Dr. John Brodhead, Charles Shorter, George Craig, regional director of the CIO; Miss Alberta Norwood, E. Washington Rhodes, chairman of the mass meeting committee; the Rev. John Dillingham and the Rev. W. C. Williamson.

Petersburg, Va.—Complaints from parents concerning ill-treatment of colored selectees at Camp Lee, received by the Kansas City branch of the NAACP and forwarded to the New York office, brought about an investigation of conditions here. There are approximately 2100 Negro selectees at the Camp in the 9th Quartermaster Regiment.

The investigation showed conditions to be good and the morale of the soldiers high. There have been no apparent instances of friction between white officers and colored soldiers in the camp, although there seems to be some difficulty between Negro soldiers and southern white soldiers and civilians in the Petersburg-Hopewell-Richmond area.

Before March 31 the quantity of food served was insufficient, quality was poor and food was often served cold. Since March 31, however, conditions have greatly improved, according to the report, and trainees are now getting hot food in sufficient quantity.

Some of the difficulty with regard to poor service at mess is accounted for by the fact that colored selectees were moved out of white areas into their own segregated areas before all the mess halls in these areas were completed. This made conditions crowded and cut down the efficiency of the cooks and mess attendants.

27 Service Clubs For Negro Troops To Be Established

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The allotment of $254,000 by the Morale Branch to equip 27 service clubs for colored troops at Army camps throughout the nation was announced today by the War Department.

Construction of these service clubs at the cost of more than $885,000, already has been authorized and is being rushed by the Quartermaster Corps. Three types of buildings are included in the program.

Large service clubs, designed for units of 5,000 or more men, will be equipped with a 5,000-volume library, a reading room, a social hall, cafeteria and an office for the senior and two junior hostess. Cost of equipment for each is $16,500.

Medium-sized clubs, for units of 3,000 to 5,000 men, will have similar facilities, but only a 1,500-volume library and a senior and junior hostess. Cost of equipment for each is $10,500.

The small clubs, for units of 500 to 3,000 men, will have a 500-volume library, one junior hostess and a kitchen for short orders. Cost of equipment for each is $5,000.

Assistants Needed

IT has recently been said that every protest that goes to President Roosevelt concerning discrimination in the national defense is referred to one of two colored assistants in one of the departments and who do absolutely nothing about it. We wonder if these assistants were placed there only as shock absorbers or as assistants to the President in matters affecting the rights of Negroes.

From the multiplicity of problems that have been referred to these assistants it is obvious that the reference is not made for the purpose of action. It would require a staff fifty times greater to handle all the complaints that are sent to the President concerning the protests made by Negroes.

We believe that the nation's largest minority is entitled to have its problems given the greatest consideration by persons in a position to effect a remedy therefor. To that end it is fitting and proper for the President to increase the personnel of offices that concern themselves with the protests coming from colored people.

Drafting The Best, Omitting The Worst

COLORED people in various parts of the country are complaining of the operation of the Selective service program in that it is taking from society the most worthy leaders and leaving the worst men to remain. There is something in such protests that commends itself to the wisdom of the administrators of the peace-time draft law. It should be operated, as far as possible, in a manner that will not interfere too harshly with community life. After all we are not in war.

One complaint hurled at the officials in the national defense program is that they leave, among other undesirables, ex-convicts to harass the citizens and carry on their nefarious activities. There is no reason why one who has been convicted of a felony should not be used in the military branches of the government. Surely there should be a place for him. After all he has had a certain amount of discipline which few soldiers can boast. He has been trained to obey his superiors. He knows how to get along on rations. He knows how to march and a good many know how to kill. The latter is the immediate purpose of all wars—to maim, to kill, to slaughter. As a matter of fact, it would seem that all the ex-felon needs is a gun and a uniform. The answer to those who protest that the ex-felon has been found guilty of committing a crime involving moral turpitude is that society has exacted its ounce of flesh in the nature of a term in prison. If society is not satisfied after the term is served it ought to re-commit him rather than condemn him to an everlasting sentence in private life at the expense of others.

The draft boards should exercise more discretion in its selection of men. They should have in mind not only the defense of the country but also the welfare of the community. The latter is just as important as the former.

LUNTEER CALL ..JR STATE UNIT IS OVERFILLED

25 to Go From Here; 325 Negroes Will Be Inducted

Fulton and DeKalb Counties will furnish 51 Negroes Thursday as part of the state's tenth, all-Negro draft quota of 325 selectees, while approximately 25 local white men will answer calls for 95 regular replacements and 295 volunteers in the 101st Separate Antiaircraft Battalion, Coast Artillery, of Camp Stewart.

State draft officials said Saturday that the call for volunteers in the antiaircraft unit, a former Georgia National Guard outfit, was far overfilled. An attempt will be made, they said, to place the surplus in other Georgia units, since most of them volunteered in order to serve with fellow Georgians.

Here is a roster of Negroes reporting at Fort Benning Thursday in the regular call, and the white men who will answer the special calls:

Four Fulton Boards

2—Henry R. Ector.
4—Charles R. Milton, Leroy Colbert, Homer Henderson.
5—Willis Burks, M. Abbott, Walter Shealey.
6—Jimmie Malone, John W. Evans.
7—James O. Shannon, Forrest Bloodworth, John H. Pace, Lucius French.
8—Call for two, one selected: Andrew L. King.
9—Will Smith, Ulysses D. Shields.
10—None.
11—James Kirkpatrick, Willis Carol, Sammy L. Randall, Samuel R. West, Edward Hodges, W. H. Walton, George W. Pugh, Charlie Rusher, James D. Sims, Ernest Strother.
12—Roy Rose; special call for one white man, reporting May 12, Marvin L. Turner.
13—Jack Merriweather, John Robnison junior.
14—Two Negroes, unselected.
16—None.
17—Irvin R. Barnett
Jones.

From DeKalb Boards:

2. James Broughton. John L. Wellmaker; special call for two white men, reporting May 12: Searcy B. Slack Jr., Edwin R. Bowen.
3. J. B. Watt, Erman Ramey; special call for two white men, reporting May 12: Julian D. Grant, Clarence W. Cox.

HARMON FIELD CAMP PLANNED

As Recreational Place for Soldiers Spending Leave in Charleston

As a result of a meeting yesterday afternoon at the offices of Mayor Henry W. Lockwood an effort will be made to have the Harmon Foundation board permit conversion of the President street negro playground into a recreational camp for soldiers coming to Charleston for brief periods of leave.

The meeting was called at the instance of Brig. Gen. James A. Ulio, Washington, who was accompanied here by his aide, and left after the meeting for Myrtle Beach.

Such a camp as that projected "will bring hundreds of soldiers here for their week-ends" said Mayor Lockwood and "will mean a lot for the city of Charleston." He added that he believed with a negro playground nearby and because of the national emergency the Harmon board would act favorably on the request.

The projected camp would accommodate 1,000 men. It would be a camp of tents, with cement bases, and designed for three years of use. Construction would be by the Civilian Conservation corps. Stoney Field would be used for athletic contests. Military police would maintain order.

Also being considered is a camp at a nearby beach. This coming week-end about 160 men from Fort Jackson are coming to Folly Beach and will encamp at the western end

The Negro and National Defense

FEB 1 1 1941

AS THIS NATION faces the greatest emergency and crisis in its history, the Congress of the United States, expressive of the will of the people of the United States, under the leadership of a great President, has set aside some 16 billion dollars for National defense and industrial preparedness, and for the avowed purpose of giving all aid short of war to England in its struggle to defend and preserve the Christian democratic institutions and ideals of the civilized world against the brutal and destructive forces unleashed by Hitler's Nazi Germany.

To revitalize the program and purpose of National Defense and industrial preparedness, last week was set aside, and observed, as National Defense Week, and hundreds of speakers sought to inform the rank and file of American citizens, as to the nature and workings of the vast forces now gaining momentum in this country.

With almost one-tenth of its population Negro citizens, whose integration into this vast program is being viewed as a great problem, many Negro citizens, as well as others, are beginning to ask the question. "What of the Negro in the National Defense Program?"

Of unswerving patriotism and loyalty, having given his blood in defense of the nation, in every war in which it has engaged, with heroic valor and sacrifice, from the great Revolutionary hero, Crispus Attucks, to the gallant Negro soldiers of the last World War, the Negro asks only to be given a chance to prepare to fill any, and every place in the national fighting forces, and the right to die an honorable death in its defense.

With three hundred years of experience as a worker, he sees great numbers of workers being drawn from among those from whose ranks have come assassins and traitors, and from whose ranks the fifth columnist, who would retard and defeat this program, and destroy this government are to be found today. As millions of new jobs are being created the Negro asks only a chance to work, and if necessary, learn while he works, and the nation will have the assurance that among them, not even one, will be found a traitor to its trust.

In the clamor of the Negro citizens of the country for the right to serve in every branch of the nation's defense forces, and in the clamor of the Negro citizens for more and better jobs in the defense industries of the nation, there lies for the United States, the chance to demonstrate the Christian democratic ideals and to achieve that high morale and spirit among all its people, which is as essential to total National Defense and industrial preparedness as great stores of munitions, ships, planes, and guns.

More Than 30,000 Negroes Take Part In Draft Setup

WASHINGTON, D. C. —(SNS)— More than 30,000 Negroes have participated in the operation of Selective Service, Major Campbell Johnson, Executive Assistant and Racial Relations Adviser, National Headquarters, told Negro college journalists conferring with him in Washington.

"Incomplete figures show over 30,000 Negroes have participated in the operation of Selective Service as registrars, on local boards, as chairmen of local boards, on registrants' advisory boards, as examining physicians, as government appeal agents, and on boards of appeal," Major Johnson said.

Editors and reporters from nearby colleges attending the conference represented Howard University, Miner Teachers College, and Maryland State Teachers College. They were greeted by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy director of Selective Service. The conference was called to promote better understanding of Selective Service by Negro college students.

High Calibre Of Negro Inductees Draws Praise

MORALE MUST BE HEALTHY

"The total defense which our Nation is planning deals with such factors in our national life as education, industry, armed defense, and probably as important as any of these, national morale," Major Johnson told them.

"National morale is a composite of the condition of morale of minority groups. For that morale to be healthy, each group must have a sense of belonging to the Nation, as a self-respecting basis without any of the badges of differentiation which would set it apart as entitled to less than the full rights and responsibilities of citizenship."

Colonel William H. Davis, Jr. liason officer between the War Department and National Headquarters, Selective Service System addressing the conference, praised the high calibre of Negro inductees and commended the Selective Service administration for guarding all rights of racial minorities. He said:

FEB 1 1 1941

PRAISES NEGROES

"I happende to be at one of the camps last week where a reception center for Negroes was being operated. I was impressed with the type of men selected. Their spirit and morale are fine."

Colonel H. F. Wanvig, also a War Department liason officer, told the conference that college men have increasingly larger opportunities in modern technical armies.

"Today's armies move more and more on brains and less on brawn," he said. "During the coming months Negroes will be inducted through Selective Service in proportion to their percentage of the total population and assigned at the reception centers to every branch of the army."

Negro Trainees Quota Will Leave This Week For McClellan Duties

Sixteen Negroes, representing the first quota of Negro trainees to be sent to camp from Jefferson County in nearly two months, will depart for Ft. McClellan at 1:40 p.m. Tuesday.

One week later, on March 11 and 12, virtually all of the county's 19 boards will have additional quotas ready for departure to camp.

Tuesday's contingent will represent four draft boards; five each going from Boards No. 1, Bessemer, No. 2, Fairfield, and No. 8, West End, and one from No. 9, East Lake.

Trainees selected for Tuesday's departure are:

Board No. 1 (Bessemer) — Bud Henderson, 34, House No. 406, Woodward, unemployed; Amos Lowe, Bessemer, 21, unemployed; Willie Harris, 21, 2001 Fairfax Avenue, Bessemer, machinist's helper; Joseph Johnson, 19, Bessemer, unemployed, and James Harris, Jr., 33, Bessemer, unemployed.

Board No. 8, East Lake, has a quota of one to fill Tuesday but the selection will not be made until Monday.

Is Democracy Worth Defending?

By EUGENE KINCKLE JONES

Executive Secretary, National Urban League

WE wonder some times whether, in the excitement, furore, and confusion of nationwide debate on best procedure to be followed by the nation in the effort to defend democratic society, our leaders of public thought ever pause to ponder over the question as to whether we have in reality that way of life which we think we are to defend.

To us who have been on the firing line of race conflict in America, the formula for realizing that ideal is so simple, and the program for bringing it about can be so smoothly conducted that we wonder why the leaders of public thought and action shy away so abruptly and thoughtlessly from the question whenever the rights of the Negro are posed.

We only ask for the Negro an opportunity to share in our national life in keeping with his training and ability, and demand only that he have a chance to train himself so that his real capacity may be developed.

PUT TO TEST

The Negro population has been put to the test by every new formula for human adjustment which has been developed in other parts of the world. The Negro has appraised thoughtfully the whole situation and, quite contrary to the thoughts of many, has not dumbly accepted his lot in America without examining the challenging suggestions of others as to how his situation might be improved.

He believes that the American ideal of democracy, if allowed to develop fully, would create a system under which men of all races and classes could be indeed free. He prefers to live under, and to be a part of, the free institutions which are guaranteed by democracy.

But he finds himself denied his rights in a democracy, and therefore fighting for a chance to work in factory and foundry and train in the various branches of the armed forces. He knows that, as nations fight today, it is through total war, and all of the population must be geared to render service in behalf of the nation's survival.

Yet America hesitates to take advantage of the tremendous working and fighting power of fifteen millions of its citizens because of a senseless prejudice which has no right-ful place among humankind.

WHAT HAS THE URBAN LEAGUE BEEN DOING?

The National Urban League realizes that most of its activities in the past have been directed toward preparing Negroes for a fuller life, and therefore the league has during 1940 continued its program along the lines it has developed through the years.

But the greatest emphasis has been placed on urging those responsible for national defense to open the way for larger participation by Negroes in this defense and in urging Negroes to take advantage of every possible chance to train themselves and prepare physicaly and mentally for the service which they can render their nation in the most trying period of its history.

We have completed careful studies of the Negro population of Grand Rapids, Mich., for the Council of Social Agencies there, and of Utica, N. Y., for the board of directors of the Cosmopolitan Youth Center, and we have analyzed social work among Negroes in Monmouth County Urban League. These studies are comprehensive documents covering all phases of social life and recommending definite procedures to meet the needs exposed.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

In all our work we have stressed the important part which we believe the Negro population must play in national defense, because we realize that the safeguarding of democracy demands the fullest possible contribution from all groups and that there is nothing that the Negro can possibly do today that is quite so important as contributing to our nation's welfare and to the preservation of democracy's ways of living.

In Seattle, Washington, we were instrumental in securing the acceptance of Negroes for employment in aircraft productions by labor unions, thus opening up to young Negroes the right to special defense training in the technical schools. In Buffalo, after considerable negotiations, Negroes were accepted for technical training. In Little Rock, Ark., and near Baltimore, Md., hundreds of Negro carpenters were, after numerous conferences, accepted for construction work on army barracks.

We feel that our movement is now geared to carry on a program of helpfulness that will prove, if possible, far superior to anything we have thus far done. At any rate, we expect to make the fullest possible contribution to our nation at a time when harmony and maximum production are the prime requisites to the preservation of a free society.

NEGRO DEFENSE GROUP TO HOLD MASS MEETING

The negro division of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies will hold a mass meeting at 8 o'clock Monday night at Mt. Zion Baptist church at the corner of Eagle and Spruce streets.

Capt. Paul Rockwell, who returned to Asheville several months ago after serving with the French army in the current war, will be principal speaker. He will be introduced by T. Evans Baxter, acting chairman of the Asheville chapter of the committee.

The Rev. J. W. Hairston, pastor of the Mt. Zion church and chairman of the negro division of the committee, will preside. Combined choirs of 60 voices from the Mt. Zion church will sing negro spirituals, and the choral union of Stephens-Lee negro high school will render several patriotic selections.

Short talks will be made by several leaders of the negro group.

White persons have been invited to attend the meeting, and seats will be reserved for them.

The South In Defense

MAR 24 1941

Here in Alabama our people have been gratified by the allotment to this state of several large projects in the defense program, but the South as a whole is still running far behind other sections of the country in this regard, according to Chester C. Davis, member of the Defense Advisory Commission, who spoke the other day before the conference of Southern governors in New Orleans.

Of 302 new facilities planned for defense production, Mr. Davis, Federal Reserve System governor and former agricultural adjustment administrator, said, only 24 have been allocated to this region. Of these Alabama and Texas have been awarded seven each.

"Nothing short of the most vigorous and most positive efforts to achieve recognition" of Southern resources and reserves will correct the present maladjustment, according to Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis reported that between 40 and 45 per cent of defense contracts totaling $11,500,000,000 have gone to six closely interconnected groups and a total of 80 per cent had gone to 62 companies or inter-related groups of companies.

One of the great hopes of the South in connection with the defense program has been that it would help to mitigate the industrial backwardness and economic handicaps of this region as compared to other parts of the country. But from these figures it would appear that the South's relative handicaps may be increased, rather than decreased.

Many things, naturally, enter into the allotment of defense contracts—questions of production, speed, strategic location and so forth—but granting all that, there doubtless are many other intangible elements that have a bearing on decisions of this kind.

Board Pushes Search For Negro Selectee

The mailing of another "searcher" in an attempt to locate a Negro registrant yet to reply to his first questionnaire, the sudden appearance of a second Negro, missing since January, before his local board, and the explanation of the cost of rejections to the government constituted Selective Service interest at Houston County's draft boards today.

While the case of the missing Negro registrant is already in the files of the U.S. District Attorney, draft officials said, the direct search from the Dothan board is being continued. Whit King, Board One clerk, said that possibly the Negro's illiteracy was the cause of his delinquency.

Coincidence accompanied the return of the Negro who has been missing since January. C. S. Bohannon, Board Three clerk, had placed the case with the district attorney when the Negro walked into the office on the same day action in the matter was scheduled.

Meanwhile, State Selective Service officials called the attention of Houston's draft boards to the status of rejections in Alabama's 155 local boards.

Charles L. Jackson, Board Two clerk, said that since inductons began and up to April 1 rejections in Alabama had cost $6,500. The total cost was based on a per man expense of $15.

Eight per cent of the State's quota has been rejected, Jackson pointed out. A total, including white and Negro, of 5,349 registrants has been sent from Alabama to induction camps, and 430 of these have been rejected.

Jackson said that 58 of the State's local boards had exceeded the State's rejection average of eight per cent, and that, because of this figure, the boards had been requested to make an effort to prove the status.

Rejecton figures released by Houston County's boards were: Board One, 5.9 per cent; Board Two, 12.8 per cent; and Board Three, 7.1 per cent. Not which number nine have been rejected. The rejections were today rejected. The rejections were placed by other registrants.

FULTON SENDS 274 DRAFTEES TO ARMY

Boards Stage Farewell Ceremonies; Most Will Serve at Fort Jackson

Fulton County is sending 274 men to the Army through selective service Thursday and Friday to complete its January quota of 343 men.

Most of the 17 local draft boards participating in the call are staging appropriate farewell ceremonies, and, for the most part, the men will be inducted into service at Fort McPherson.

Thursday saw the bulk of the quota, 260 men, 214 of them white and 48 Negroes, reporting for duty. The Negroes go to Fort Benning.

Earlier in the month Fulton draft boards furnished 37 whites and 25 Negroes, and DeKalb County's three boards furnished 39 whites and 14 Negroes.

Most Go to Jackson

The white youths will be sent to Georgia National Guard units at Fort Jackson, S. C., and the Negroes will go to units at Fort Benning for their year's service.

Meanwhile, the Army has notified state draft headquarters the February call for draftees will not come before February 17, because thousands of regular Army reserves will be called back into service between now and the 17th and the regular draftee induction stations will be used in re-equipping and examining the reserves.

The February call is expected to levy a quota of 2,000 men on Georgia, and a majority, perhaps two-thirds, may be Negroes, as the Army attempts to equalize the number of the two races in service according to population percentages. Georgia's total January quota, to be completed Friday, was 1,994 men.

The War Department Thursday specified the noncombatant units to which conscientious objectors could be assigned, and, at the same time, announced provisions whereby such an objector later could be transferred to a combatant branch at his voluntary written request.

Field forces to which objectors can be assigned were listed as "any unit of the Medical Corps, quartermaster units not organically assigned to divisions or smaller units, decontamination companies of the Chemical Warfare service, construction, photographic, depot, repair or pigeon units of the Signal Corps, noncombat engineer units, and any unit or installation of the Corps Area Command or War Department overhead except reception centers."

At Fort Benning, plans were made for reception of 5,000 draftees during a five-day period starting February 10. Most of the men will come from other than the Fourth Corps Area, and will swell divisions at Fort Benning to war strength.

Nine Volunteers Off For Year Of Service With Army

Nine negro youths have been called up by the Fayette County draft board for the month of January and Tuesday, Jan. 28, has been set as the date for their departure.

Leaving here next Tuesday morning at 8:37 on the N. C. & St. L. Railway train they will go to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., for final tests and induction into the United States Army for a training period of one year. After their final acceptance they will be assigned to various army camps for their period of service.

Only one negro was called up during the first month of draft operations, but the number was sharply increased this month. All those who will leave next Tuesday are volunteers, moved up ahead of their regular order in the draft lottery.

NEGRO TRAINEES INDUCTED HERE

Contingent of 15 Men Sent to Fort Jackson From City and County

Spartanburg county completed its quota of draftees for January yesterday morning by sending 15 negroes—three from each local draft board—to Fort Jackson for induction in the United States army and a year's military service.

January Quota Filled

Local boards have already sent 104 white men to Fort Jackson this month, filling the quota of 119 for January.

The following negro men were inducted into the army yesterday morning:

Board 71: V-2565, Americus Wilson, 263 Austin street, Spartanburg; V-153, Anderson Morman, 284 Cherry street, Spartanburg; and Robert Oscar Duncan, 179 Cemetery street, Spartanburg.

WALTER CHIVERS SAYS:

Negro In The Nat'l Defense

By WALTER R. CHIVERS

FEB 9 - 1941

THE RECENT ANNUAL Conference on Adult Education and the Negro adopted as its theme "The Negro in the National Crisis." This is fast becoming a Number One subject for discussion wherever Negroes congregate for a bit of intellectual gymnastics or whenever newspaper columnists have become temporarily intellectually sterile and must have something ready for the next edition.

CHIVERS

The amount of superficial thinking displayed on this subject is short of disgusting. The Conference, however, made a serious effort to face the bare facts and with some evident success. This is the first of several discussions of Conference subjects—"Majority-Minority Relations in the National Crisis"—with particular reference to Negroes.

MAJORITY WAR-MINDED

The majority racial group has become war-minded. It now believes that it must wage war for self-maintenance. "There is no place like home" and home must be defended. Chauvinism is becoming rampant. Nationalism defies thinking and reflection. Nationalism tends to promote racial solidarity among the ruling racial groups. Their suspicions permit of trusting only those folk who show by physical features, social activity and tradition complete or almost complete harmony. This attitude puts Negroes in a difficult spot. They are forced to walk in the "sun light."

Then there is a practical side to preparation for war or defense, which ever one thinks the United States is preparing for, which is peculiar to the times. Jobs are being created by the tens of thousands and the unemployed white people need them, want them and intend by means fair or foul to have them.

The work requires, in the main, semi-skilled or skilled workmen and pays "good wages." The flavor of "loyalty to one's country" or "doing one's bit" adds prestige to these jobs and makes them "white men's" jobs.

OPPOSE NEGROES

Many thousands of white people, particularly, "professional" southerners, are not so overcome by the emotions of patriotism as to favor the minority race learning the use of arms and then being supplied with them. It is a fact that military training tends to make men have confidence in themselves and military crises develop leaders of great stature because they achieve through a combination of intelligence and reckless courage. A soldier knows that he is a citizen—many folk think such knowledge is "dangerous" for Negroes.

War breaks out when hate for the real or imagined enemy has become institutionalized. The processes that make war possible gain their effectiveness by living on an exclusive diet of hate producing vitamins. This hate is directed toward an enemy who may be a racial group or cultural group or both.

Because Negroes bear a differentiating mark of color which makes them so easily distinguished they are again on the spot. Which mean, of course, they must develop protective strategy.

Being continually in the "sun light" and "on the spot" is a trying life to say the least. It is likely to make people nervous and sensitive. People so irritated have to be careful to keep from bringing the "wrath of the gods down on their heads."

CASE OF THE NAVY

There are many reasons, and good ones too, for doubting the good that will come from Negro pressure groups trying to force openings in the armed service for Negroes where it is publicly known that they are not wanted because of raw prejudice. For instance, there is a long tradition against Negroes becoming sailors and seamen. The Navy has been particularly attractive to that group of white people who find it most "repulsive" to recognize Negroes as fit for anything other than menial service.

This hate has too long a history to be broken down overnight. Pressure from Negroes, at this abnormal times, will only serve to inflame the hate emotions of this unthinking group. Why not wait until more peaceful times "to put the heat" on such injustices to Negroes?

There are so many other vital needs that Negroes need to and can fight for that will not cause such bad and disadvantageous reactions. They can watch carefully and check the treatment of Negro soldiers in those armed forces where they are accepted freely. Fight for them on this more friendly soil and encourage them to excel in such branches of service.

FIGHT FOR JOBS

These Negro pressure groups can fight for jobs in the rapidly expanding governmental services. This expansion is largely due to national defense needs. It would be to the advantage of the Negro, as a minority group to demonstrate at every opportunity, his patriotism. A minority group, if it is to survive, must display a whole-hearted patriotism when there is a national crisis, especially one that might conceivably result in war.

APR 12 1941

CARLISLE, Pa., April 10—The new class of officers of the Medical Department of the United States Army at the Medical Field Service School, Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, includes three Negro physicians. These three officers have been selected to receive the special training afforded by the Medical Field Service School. The work began on April 2, and will continue for approximately one month.

The colored officers are: Capt. Harvey J. Whitfield, of 606 East 50th place, Chicago; First Lieut. Richard H. Irving, of 810 New Jersey avenue, northwest, Washington, D.C., and First Lieut. Alvin P. D. Hall, of 404 S. Fourth street, Richmond, Ind.

The three officers are receiving the regular course of instruction at the Medical Field Service School. The subjects include Field Sanitation, Tactics, Map Reading, Administration, Training, besides a considerable amount of drill. The Medical Field Service School exists for the purpose of converting civilian physicians, dentists and veterinarians into medical, dental and veterinary officers of the Army.

All three of the Negro officers have had previous military training. Captain Whitfield was on active duty for three and a half years with the Civilian Conservation Corps in Michigan, and his present permanent station is Fort Custer, Mich. Lieutenant Irving while a student at Howard University, completed the required Reserve Officers Training Corps training at Fort Hunt, Va., and Fort Howard, Md. He is at present attached to the 366th Infantry at Fort Devons, Mass. Lieutenant Hall, who is also attached to the 366th Infantry at Fort Devons, had active duty for six months with the Civilian Conservation Corps in 1937-38.

RESENTS ONLY PH.D. MEN IN DEFENSE ADVISORY POSTS

By A. MCD. FLATOR,
For The Washington Tribune

Throughout the Nation's "voting" States Negroes generally, and Negro Democrats especially, have become resentful of what seems to be the Roosevelt Administration's conclusion that none but Negro Ph.D's, A.M's and their satellites are competent to fill administrative posts in National Defense establishments.

It is noted that, while the President steadily crowds New Deal theorists out of the picture generally, as needs of effecting the processes of a war economy leave him no choice, he still calls upon Negro theorists to represent the race as assistants to practical white men.

As the late presidential campaign drew to its close the Democratic National Committee had got so jittery owing to increasing restlessness of Negro voters because of Wendell L. Willkie's extraordinary promises in his bid for their poll support that the administration had to make some rather formidable gestures to hold them in the Democratic voting columns.

Appoints Negro General

As lawyers say, time was of the essence, and on the verge of election-eve Negro demands for some indication of fairness to them in the defense preparation setups constrained elevation of the only Negro colonel in the army to the rank of brigadier general, first of his race to reach the grade.

Then followed designation of Negro advisers to the Secretary of War and for the Director of the Draft. But, instead of naming two outstanding Negroes from the voting States, the Roosevelt Administration simply called in two Washingtonians off the professional race-problem front namely, former Virgin Islands Judge W. H. Hastie, now the formal dean of Howard University Law School, and Major Campbell Johnson of the Y. M. C. A. These gentlemen, however, were working at that time.

The President's chief media of offense to Negroes, and Negro Democrats who vote, is Dr. Robert Weaver, at present serving as head-Negro in Mr. Roosevelt's Advisory Council on National Defense.

Like Post Cavalry Horse

Like the always well fed, post cavalry horse at Fort Meyer which serves at military funerals of deceased mounted officers whose horses are not available. Dr. Weaver hasn't skipped a New Deal payroll minute since he got going as Negro Adviser to the Secretary of the Interior in 1933. He is a Washington boy who has made good. Very good, indeed.

Paramount in the field of scholastic economics, his advancement from the Interior Department to the then newly set up, and sociologically experiment, United States Housing Authority was perhaps, a step in the right direction and, incidentally, his promotion created a vacancy at Interior which is now competently filled by an excellent youngster from down where the Negro vote doesn't count.

But when time came to make a Negro the advisor to the chief labor man in the National Defense establishments Dr. Weaver should have been overlooked and kept in the Housing Authority. Our situation does not contemplate a comparative Fort Meyer post funeral horse detail.

Weaver's assignment is in the field of labor on National Defense. He serves under Sidney Hillman, a national leader of labor, president of the CIO Almalgamated Clothing Workers International Union, which pays him a salary of $25,000 a year while he now serves his adopted country as a dollar-a-year man.

The relationship between the two therefore is incongruous; for Weaver's only contact with labor has been to keep it as far as possible out of his subordinate, official domain. And there was about as much occasion for the President's representatives to haul Weaver out of Housing to assist Hillman as there would be to use the post funeral horse for the obsequies of a dead cavalry colonel whose three horses were in the Fort Meyer corral.

And, of course, post funeral horses are altogether serviceable for needed occasion. The point is, they are not needed when the late officer's mount is in a nearby stall. And out in the voting States the "stalls" are occupied by Negroes far more competent for labor duty than Bob Weaver can ever possibly be.

What Negroes Resent

To get the picture in full effect, one has but to recall that when it suddenly became necessary to surround himself with men who know how to do things to prepare the nation for defense against totalitarianism, President Roosevelt soon sidetracked the white brief-case fellows for men like Knudson of General Motors, who can make machines but not the Ph.D. grade.

Yet the President's advisers still call on "post funeral horses," and this is what Negroes generally and Negro Democrats particularly are beginning to react to resentfully.

Way Paved for Evans

That Dr. Weaver altogether regards Negro labor as something to be for, not of, at a fat salary is quite definitely known, and now about to be publicly manifested, according to not unreliable report out of his sphere. In substance the report is—it is all fixed for Weaver's first assistant to be Joseph H. B. Evans of Washington. Mr. Evans is a big-shot, local New Deal payroll-hawk who cashes its salary-checks intermittently, now sinecuring on the patronage of Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune's colored division of the National Youth Administration.

As one on Mr. Evan's convivial front has observed: "Joe can get, but never keep steadily, latched to the Federal dough." First, and for a time, he was a head-Negro in the Federal Housing Administration, in which capacity he cut a wide swath on inspection trips usually taken in his rather snappy LaSalle sedan (or was it a roadster?) The place folded up and from that time to now he has inned and outed via Agriculture and a reported unsuccessful effort to catch on in the Social Security setup.

Not a Labor Man

But why Evans as Weaver's chief of staff? Like Weaver, he isn't a labor man! And while that is just what Weaver wants and expects, naturally it depreciates the paramount public interest, flouts Negroes generally, Negro Democrats who vote expressly would benefit nothing but Weaver's vanity and boost Evan's pay. The man for administrative chief in Dr. Weaver's office is a Negro—Clarence Johnson of Los Angeles, now a Weaver "field" man, who was forced on Weaver by California politicians because the Negro vote is counted in their State. But that is another though connected story.—Washington Tribune.

CREATES NEW JOB BUREAU FOR RACE

Section To Integrate Negroes Into Defense Training and Employment Program — Names Weaver and Dr. Alexander To New Posts.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Creation of a new section in the Office of Production Management, devoted entirely to the integration of Negroes into the national defense program, was announced last Friday evening by Sidney Hillman, Associate Director of OPM, in a speech to the First Annual Conference on the Negro in Business.

Addressing a mass meeting at the Mt. Carmel Baptist church here, Mr. Hillman revealed that the newly created Negro Training and Employment section will be headed by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, former administrative assistant in the Labor Supply and Training section of OPM. In his new capacity, Dr. Weaver will be directly responsible to Mr. Hillman.

NAMES COORDINATOR

At the same time, the Associate Director announced the appointment of Will W. Alexander, former Executive Director of the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, as Special Consultant on employment and training problems relating to all minority groups. Dr. Alexander, vice-president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, will coordinate the work of all OPM agencies which now have field contacts with employers.

The expanded machinery for the integration of Negroes into defense training and employment was revealed by Mr. Hillman during the course of a report to the conference on the progress of similar work already instituted by the Advisory Commission to the Council of National Defense and more recently by the Office of Production Management.

Through the efforts of national defense agencies, Mr. Hillman declared, thousands of skilled Negro building trades workers have been given employment in the construction of army cantonments and powder plants.

APR 26 1941

"More than 2,500 Negro carpenters alone were employed on these various sites at wages ranging from $8 to $12 a day," he said, "and thousands of brickmasons, plasterers, cement finishers, plumbers, roofers, power-saw operators, and other skilled and semi-skilled Negro workers were and are being given employment."

STATES EMPLOYMENT POLICY

Increased employment opportunities for Negroes were seen in iron and steel works, shipyards, and in other industries in which Negro workers already enjoyed employment status, Mr. Hillman said, and defense training programs are being pushed to prepare colored artisans for all other branches of defense production.

Both training and employment opportunities for Negroes had been expedited by the National Defense Advisory Commission's labor policy stipulation that workers should not be discriminated against because of age, sex, race or color, the Associate Director of OPM declared, and by an agreement with the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations that Negroes should not be discriminated against in defense employment.

These measures were implemented later, Mr. Hillman said, by a letter to all defense contract holders asking them to remove training and employment bans against Negroes.

The First Annual Conference on Negro Business was sponsored by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

APR 30 1941

Momentous Changes in U. S. War Plans Are Expected.

An unexpected order from national selective service headquarters in Washington asking immediate classification of Georgia's 399,336 draft registrants, yesterday sent local boards in Georgia scurrying to prepare for what was expected might be some momentous change in the plans of the Army to train new men.

The order amended a previous regulation providing that questionnaires be sent out only fast enough to keep 1 per cent of the total registration in Class 1-A.

Local draft officials saw three possible motives behind the sudden change in plans:

1. A speeding up of the rate of putting men into the Army may be imminent.

2. A more accurate estimate of the number of able-bodied menice channels. which the Army can expect out of those now registered is being sought, so that some immediate conclusion can be reached on the question of lowering the draft age limit to 18 years.

3. Army authorities are seeking to "clear the deck" in preparation to handle a new registration, July 1, of men who have turned 21 since the draft law became effective.

75 Doctors Added.

Although the order pointed out that the rate of giving physical examinations was not to be stepped up immediately, local boards have been provided with 75 new doctors within the past month, and are prepared for almost any call the Army might make on their services.

Colonel A. T. Colley said draft boards in Georgia should have completed the classification at least by July 1. Most of the boards, he said, can complete their list of registrants by sending out questionnaires at the rate of 300 per week, although many will be less, and some more.

Boards in the state have so far already classified approximately 30 per cent of their registrants, both white and Negroes. Of this number 5 per cent have been placed in Class I-A. If the same percentage continues throughout classification 20,000 Georgians will be placed in the Army through selective service.

Total of 8,609.

So far, 5,846 white men and 2,763 Negroes, a total of 8,609, have been inducted.

The order from Washington to state headquarters said that men not placed in Class II, III, and IV would be considered as "registrants awaiting classification." They will be given physical examinations as new calls come out from Corps Area headquarters. Boards cannot speed up the rate of examining registrants because Army regulations provide that a registrant must be re-examined if his examination was made 60 days before he reports for duty.

The order said completion of classification was desired at the "earliest practicable date" and that all restrictions hitherto placed on the rate of classification were automatically removed.

Draft officials have pointed out that in an emergency they could place 4,000 men per month into the Army through selective service channels.

Although recently it was rumored that would be a slackening of the size and number of draft calls, because of a huge number of enlistment in the regular Army and the Navy, this was considered improbable in the light of the new instructions.

Rejections of white District registrants at Richmond and Baltimore induction centers are running consistently at about two-thirds of the National rejection percentage and at one-fourth of the percentage of local colored rejections at induction stations, Washington Selective Service officials disclosed yesterday.

Approximately one white registrant in nine has been returned by induction center physicians, the figures up to this month being 228 rejected of 1823 white men approved by local boards. Colored rejections at induction centers have averaged 40 per cent, officials pointed out.

All write replacements for February and March had been completed yesterday, Lieut. Col. Edward Bettleheim, jr., said. One colored replacement for February and 57 for March remain to go, he added.

An additional District quota of May inductees was announced last night by Third Corps headquarters in Baltimore. To be inducted on May 21, 22 and 23 are 385 white and 150 colored registrants from Washington. This will bring the total of District selectees in service to 3,686, with the quota to be filled by July 1 at 3,982.

12 Replacements Go

Meanwhile, 12 replacements, three white and nine Negro, were sent to Baltimore yesterday and 10 colored replacements prepared to be inducted there today.

To fill existing draft board vacancies, three Washington businessmen were named by District Selective Service headquarters yesterday.

They are: Walter Bastian, former president of the District Bar Association, as Government appeal agent for local board 22, to succeed George Boswell; Joseph A. Herbert, real estate operator, as a member of Board 17, to succeed William N. Payne, jr., and William M. Murray, of the firm of Murray & Heister, Inc., as a member of Board 20, to replace James A. CREATES NEW JOB BUREAU FOR RACE

Section To Integrate Negroes Into Defense Training and Employment Program — Names Weaver and Dr. Alexander To New Posts.

WASHINGTON, April 24—Creation of a new section in the Office of Production Management, devoted entirely to the integration of Negroes into the national defense program, was announced last Friday evening by Sidney Hillman, Associate Director of OPM, in a speech to the First Annual Conference on the Negro in Business. APR 26 1941

Addressing a mass meeting at the Mt. Carmel Baptist church here, Mr. Hillman revealed that the newly created Negro Training and Employment section will be headed by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, former administrative assistant in the Labor Supply and Training section of OPM. In his new capacity, Dr. Weaver will be directly responsible to Mr. Hillman.

NAMES COORDINATOR

At the same time, the Associate Director announced the appointment of Will W. Alexander, former Executive Director of the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, as Special Consultant on employment and training problems relating to all minority groups. Dr. Alexander, vice-president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, will coordinate the work of all OPM agencies which now have field contacts with employers.

The expanded machinery for the integration of Negroes into defense training and employment was revealed by Mr. Hillman during the course of a report to the conference on the progress of similar work already instituted by the Advisory Commission to the Council of National Defense and more recently by the Office of Production Management. APR 26 1941

Through the efforts of national defense agencies, Mr. Hillman declared, thousands of skilled Negro building trades workers have been given employment in the construction of army cantonments and powder plants. APR 26 1941

"More than 2,500 Negro carpenters alone were employed on these various sites at wages ranging from $8 to $12 a day," he said, "and thousands of brickmasons, plasterers, cement finishers, plumbers, roofers, power-saw operators, and other skilled and semi-skilled Negro workers were and are being given employment."

STATES EMPLOYMENT POLICY

Increased employment opportunities for Negroes were seen in iron and steel works, shipyards, and in other industries in which Negro workers already enjoyed employment status, Mr. Hillman said, and defense training programs are being pushed to prepare colored artisans for all other branches of defense production.

Both training and employment opportunities for Negroes had been expedited by the National Defense Advisory Commission's labor policy stipulation that workers should not be discriminated against because of age, sex, race or color, the Associate Director of OPM declared, and by an agreement with the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations that Negroes should not be discriminated against in defense employment. APR 26 1941

These measures were implemented later, Mr. Hillman said, by a letter to all defense contract holders asking them to remove training and employment bans against Negroes.

The First Annual Conference on Negro Business was sponsored by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

APR 30 1941

Momentous Changes in U. S. War Plans Are Expected.

An unexpected order from national selective service headquarters in Washington asking immediate classification of Georgia's 399,336 draft registrants, yesterday sent local boards in Georgia scurrying to prepare for what was expected might be some momentous change in the plans of the Army to train new men. APR 30 1941

The order amended a previous regulation providing that questionnaires be sent out only fast enough to keep 1 per cent of the total registration in Class 1-A.

Local draft officials saw three possible motives behind the sudden change in plans:

1. A speeding up of the rate of putting men into the Army may be imminent.

2. A more accurate estimate of the number of able-bodied which the Army can expect out of those now registered is being sought, so that some immediate conclusion can be reached on the question of lowering the draft age limit to 18 years.

3. Army authorities are seeking to "clear the deck" in preparation to handle a new registration, July 1, of men who have turned 21 since the draft law became effective. APR 30 1941

Although the order pointed out that the rate of giving physical examinations was not to be stepped up immediately, local boards have been provided with 75 new doctors within the past month, and are prepared for almost any call the Army might make on their services.

Colonel A. T. Colley said draft boards in Georgia should have completed the classification at least by July 1. Most of the boards, he said, can complete their list of registrants by sending out questionnaires at the rate of 300 per week, although many will be less, and some more.

Boards in the state have so far already classified approximately 30 per cent of their registrants, both white and Negroes. Of this number 5 per cent have been placed in Class I-A. If the same percentage continues throughout classification 20,000 Georgians will be placed in the Army through selective service. APR 30 1941

Total of 8,609.

So far, 5,846 white men and 2,763 Negroes, a total of 8,609, have been inducted.

The order from Washington to state headquarters said that men not placed in Class II, III, and IV would be considered as "registrants awaiting classification." They will be given physical examinations as new calls come out from Corps Area headquarters. Boards cannot speed up the rate of examining registrants because Army regulations provide that a registrant must be re-examined if his examination was made 60 days before he reports for duty.

The order said completion of classification was desired at the "earliest practicable date" and that all restrictions hitherto placed on the rate of classification were automatically removed.

Draft officials have pointed out that in an emergency they could place 4,000 men per month into the Army through selective service channels. Although recently it was rumored that would be a slackening of the size and number of draft calls, because of a huge number of enlistment in the regular Army and the Navy, this was considered improbable in the light of the new instructions. Army Rejects One in Nine D. C. Whites

Rejections of white District registrants at Richmond and Baltimore induction centers are running consistently at about two-thirds of the National rejection percentage and at one-fourth of the percentage of local colored rejections at induction stations, Washington Selective Service officials disclosed yesterday.

Approximately one white registrant in nine has been returned by induction center physicians, the figures up to this month being 228 rejected of 1823 white men approved by local boards. Colored rejections at induction centers have averaged 40 per cent, officials pointed out.

All write replacements for February and March had been completed yesterday, Lielt. Col. Edward Bettleheim, jr., said. One colored replacement for February and 57 for March remain to go, he added.

An additional District quota of May inductees was announced last night by Third Corps headquarters in Baltimore. To be inducted on May 21, 22 and 23 are 385 white and 150 colored registrants from Washington. This will bring the total of District selectees in service to 3,686, with the quota to be filled by July 1 at 3,982.

12 Replacements Due

Meanwhile, 12 replacements, three white and nine Negro, were sent to Baltimore yesterday and 10 colored replacements prepared to be inducted there today.

To fill existing draft board vacancies, three Washington businessmen were named by District Selective Service headquarters yesterday.

They are: Walter Bastian, former president of the District Bar Association, as Government appeal agent for local board 22, to succeed George Boswell; Joseph A. Herbert, real estate operator, as a member of Board 17, to succeed William N. Payne, jr., and William M. Murray, of the firm of Murray & Heister, Inc., as a member of Board 20, to replace James A. Edmunds.

Guard Report Denied

At the same time, headquarters denied a report that National Guardmen face a draft call after one year in camp. Brig. Gen. Albert I. Cox pointed out that guardsmen enlist for three years and may be hel din camp after the present one-year arrangement, for an additional period up to three years, but are not subject to call by Selective Service headquarters after Colored registrants, from Board 11, to be inducted in Baltimore today are: Lonnie D. Masksul, Lawrence W. Browne, Thomas M. Pryor, Willie Ballard, Elmore N. White, Jodie G. Ferguson, James L. McLean, jr., and Charles R. Key.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — In a timely message which is creating wide discussion, James A. Atkins, specialist in Negro Education, Federal Work Projects Administration, shows what roles both teacher and student must take in aiding the National Defense Program, and indicates the steps leading to national unity through interracial understanding and cooperation.

Mr. Atkins' statement appears in the April 72, 1941, issue of the Teachers' Edition of "Our Weekly News," published by the American Education Press at Columbus, Ohio. Three other members of the Public Activities Program staff of the Federal WPA have had messages in this publication. Home and family living, workers' service, and the general field of adult education are the subjects covered by those staff members whose articles appear in earlier editions of "Our Weekly News."

"Increasingly, during the past year, has the problem of national defense occupied the minds of all Americans," the WPA Specialist in Negro Education says. "And because of the many difficulties of adjusting civilian thinking and practices to military and industrial defense, —this problem looms larger upon the Negro's horizon than upon that of many other groups. In some sections the problem of national defense has raised these difficult questions: What has the Negro to defend? Is there not an exceedingly large amount of unemployment among Negroes? Do they not live in slums where there are many lacks, such as good housing, sanitation, adequate fire and police protection, education, hospital service and so on?

"An affirmative answer to such questions as these would not relieve the Negro popoulation of the obligation to put its shoulder to the wheel to defend democracy."

Sees Many Needs

The work to be done by adult teachers, continues Mr. Atkins, centers on a speed up in national defense and the preparation for cushioning of the shock of that even more critical period which is bound to follow the present world struggle. At the same time the education specialist sees the need for expanding and intensifying the drive to eliminate practical illiteracy; to improve health conditions among Negro citizens; to raise living standards in Negro homes; to develop an adequate program of social and vocational guidance for Negro adults, and to assist wherever possible in efforts to promote national unity by removing barriers to interracial understanding and cooperation.

Turning to the question of national unity, the WPA Specialist in Negro Education claimed: "The nation as a whole may not be well enough acquainted with the achievements of the Negro . . to appreciate his possible contribution to a finer social order. Likewise, a large part of the Negro population possibly does not grasp the full significance of the Anglo-American contribution to the growth and development of the democratic way of life in the modern world. This situation presents a challenge to the teacher who is willing to work to develop a better understanding of the principles upon which our Government is built and of the manifold advantages and opportunities which it affords to its many and diverse peoples to perfect democracy in our America."

In the earlier part of his message, Mr. Atkins traces the growth of the Emergency Education to the marked benefits received by Negro students from the WPA Adult Education and Nursery Programs. He also pointed to the growth in home and community pride and cleanliness.

"There is still an enormous task ahead," the education specialist says. "In areas where most of the Negro population lives, one in every there or four Negro adults lacks a knowledge of the modern world. The average school attainment of the adult Negro is probably less than six grades of the common school. About ten of every hundred Negro adults still sign their name by making their mark."

"For Physical Disability"

It was recently stated by the medical examiner for a draft board in Greater Atlanta that prevalence of syphilis among Negroes was so great it would be difficult to secure the 2,000 quota of Negro selective service men for Georgia in June.

MAY 9 - 1941

So startling a statement, while probably exaggerated, serves to focus attention upon the too high proportion of registrants, both white and Negro, rejected for service because of physical disability.

Not only infection of such diseases as syphilis, but many other physical defects and diseases are bringing about rejection of many called for military training.

This situation is bad enough, but the real tragedy lies in the fact that no organized plan has been put into operation for correction of these defects. The nation is, thereby, missing a golden opportunity for improvement of the physical quality of its young manhood.

It would be a comparatively simple problem if examining physicians for the draft were required to notify the health officer of the registrant's county the condition of each man rejected on physical grounds. Then health authorities of the county should take steps to bring to every such young man the opportunity for correction and cure of his disease or infirmity. In cases where the patient is unable to pay for the proper treatment, it should be given either through clinics or by private physicians or hospitals at public expense.

The young men chosen for military training are fortunate, in that they face a year of rigorous life which should, in nearly every case, give to them a physique far greater in ability and stamina than they have previously known.

If the proper governmental authority would supplement this with curative or corrective treatment for the physically rejected, the draft law would enhance the national health to such a degree that it would take a particularly sanguinary war to offset the gain.

In England, it is reported, the death rate was lower, for the first year of the war, than it had been in times of peace. This because the war casualties by bombs and enemy action were offset by the saving in life due to the practical disappearance of private automobiles from the roads of Britain, and by the general improvement in public health brought about by more active life and by simpler foods—because of the rationing system—for the great bulk of the population.

This country may never suffer the war casualties that are now the daily lot of the British people. But it can, by wise action, so reduce the proportion of the physically unfit that the benefit to the nation will be incalculable.

Colored Aluminum Committee Is Organized; Scott Named As Head

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(SNS) —. At the request of Mr. Charles W. Hurst, General Chairman of the Aluminum Drive, a large group of civic-minded citizens met at the office of the Guaranty Life Insurance Company on last Friday evening to devise plans by which the Negroes of Savannah could play their part in this all important drive to salvage old aluminum for National Defense.

Mr. Walter Scott, president of the Guaranty Life Insurance Company, was elected Chairman with J. S. Stanback, Jr., as his Secretary. L. J. Brooks was appointed Chairman of Publicity, with Mr. S. L. Williams, Director of Church Publicitty. J. M. Walker and A J. Clement, Jr., are assisting the Chairman with the details.

The city was divided into seventeen units with Captains and Lieutenants in charge of each unit The Boy Scouts and the Cubs will assist in the collection of the aluminum and the city will furnish trucks to carry it to the general warehouse.

Those asked to serve on this drive are: L. C. Blackshear, M. J. Jackson, H. E. Mosley, Henry Franklin, Mrs. Bessie Adams, Mrs. Alberta Elliott, Mrs. Irene Alexander, Mrs. Isabell Cooper, Miss A. L. TODAY'S TALK

NEGRO WOMEN HAVE CHANCE AS FACTORS IN RACE DEVELOPMENT

BY A. N. FIELDS

A LADY writes from Texas asking, "that the Negro woman's place in the impending struggle now enveloping the world for solution be clarified and defined." Negro women in common with other racial identities must of course determine their sense of direction and their relation to current responsibilities in proportion to their opportunities and privileges to share in those things which may make the solution possible.

Since the world problem appears to be dominated and controlled by economic, political, and social relationships of one nation to another and since peoples of the darker races have always been regarded beyond the pale in the enjoyment of those finer things, which such relationships entails, it rather occurs to one's mind that Negro woman's best contribution would be the preparation and development of her faculties through the channel first of education which properly directed will give to her a deeper understanding of and appreciation for the obligation and responsibility which she is to play in this changing world of thought.

MUST FOCUS THOUGHT

We as a minority group have been unfortunate in that for the most part our women have contributed but little in the focusing of thought which determines the more important questions that have to do with the shaping of the ultimate destiny of their men. Hence their contribution as a determining factor in world affairs has been almost nil. However, the great problem which stands out for solution is not found in what they will do or will not do as either commercial or political factors, but rather what they can do to make their homes here in America a better place not only for their children but for the children of mankind.

It has been contended and not without some degree of truth that our men have failed to give to our women the proper support in their efforts to maintain a erspectable standard in common with other women. This is true because our men are yet linked with the tradition of inferiority complex.

WE MUST ENRICH LIFE

We do not exercise the prerogatives of free-men, for no people are free who fail to recognize the necessity of building a permanent foundation for the preservation of their freedom.

Free men, that is men who think in terms of sober reasoning, realize that liberty can best be conserved when it is maintained and solidified by culture and independence and wealth. We have blindly enriched others to the detriment of ourselves. We are still unable to sense the responsibility we owe to those who are to come after us. We continue to shadow box with our destiny. We are unable to realize any dividends from an accumulation of numbers of our people set apart in our communities who spend daily thousands of dollars to give wealth, culture and education to the families and children of other racial groups.

HENCE UNTIL Negro men wake up, the query made by the woman from Texas with respect to the Negro woman's place in the present struggle will be difficult to properly answer. There are of course many things which Negro women can do which will contribute much of character and standing to the race. First of all she must herself become cognizant of the responsibility devolving upon her. She must understand and appreciate, fully, that the foundation of any race is predicated upon the character of its womanhood.

She must become aware of the fact that virtue and respectability are the foundation upon which races that live and thrive are built. She, too, must be able to interpret intelligently the important part in the developing and shaping of character which the Church has played in this Christian civilization.

UNWAVERING STANDARD

NEGRO WOMANHOOD of today as in other days must remember that the truly great women of the world, those whose names shall be inscribed on the sands of time did not gain this recognition and fame by frequenting night clubs and taverns nor was it made through association with frivolous companionship, but rather by their strict adherence to the Christian principles of sobriety, chasity, piety, gentility and the sympathetic understanding of the problems with which they were confronted.

Army Seeking Negro Troops

First Time Since World War Unlimited Quota Received Here

For the first time since the World war, quotas for Negro applicants of the army have been thrown wide-open in the Carolinas, with the Columbia station having no limit, First Sgt. Chester R. Vaughan, recruiting officer, said today.

During the drive for volunteers in the army last year, only a few scattered vacancies were offered to Negroes. However, Sergeant Vaughan received authority today to recruit as many Negro applicants as possible.

Volunteers must be able to read and write and high school graduates are preferred, those who have completed grammar school being second.

In addition to the "no limit" quotas for Negroes, Sergeant Vaughan said that the army was also offering some of the best grades and positions in many months.

One item alone calls for seven First Sergeants. Negro high school graduates, after serving the necessary four months of basic training, can thus be jumped immediately to top Sergeants.

Other specialists ratings are offered for clerks, mechanics, electricians, carpenters, chauffeurs, radio and telephone operators, mess sergeants, painters, bandsmen and a number of other classes.

All applicants accepted at the Columbia recruiting office will be sent from there to Fort Jackson for enlistment. After becoming soldiers, the Negroes will be assigned to stations in the 4th corps area.

Fort Jackson will get 92 men in the service detachments, and 55 men for the quartermaster detachment. Other vacancies will be filled at Camp Croft near Spartanburg, Camp Davis, N. C., and Fort Bragg, N. C.

Sergeant Vaughan said today that with this first no limit Negro quota, he expected to set a record within the next two weeks in the number of enlistments. Last summer, more than 500 Negroes applied for the army, but were turned down because of the lack of vacancies at that time.

The only white vacancies which can be filled through the Columbia recruiting office now are seven men for the 38th Bombardment group at the Jackson air base, Miss. Applicants must have a high school education, or if graduates of the 8th grade, must stand an intelligence test.

Stand By The President

Of course you know this country is AT war with Hitler et al. You heard Mr. Roosevelt's great speech a fortnight since. When you boil it down it means convoys for supplies and materials to England, fighting with her back definitely against the wall to withstand the onslaught of Hitler's Blitz tactics, on sea, on land and in the air.

We are engaged in an UNDECLARED conflict with the Axis powers as the opposition. Just as soon as a German U-boat sinks one of our ships we will FORMALLY get into the fray. So you see that it won't be long. A month, we opine; two months at the latest.

Don't worry about your Uncle Sam. He can take care of himself and anybody else he chooses to side. You won't be bothered too much with strikes from here on out. An "unlimited emergency" is upon us according to the President's recent proclmation The chief executive i also clothed with "unlimited" power. Some thing too much.

They are wrong; fire must be fought with fire. It would be disastrous to tie your President's hands (in these times) with yards of red and other kinds of tape. Britain must be aided NOW! Nobody will have to worry about you. You are going to do as you have always done when war is upon the country—fight and fight to win! This is no time to bring up certain things that should be first on your calendar in times of normalcy.

You are definitely on your way to a better day. Regardless of your inclinations you just couldn't let President Roosevelt and his great wife, best friends YOU have in all the world this side of the THRONE, down. Yoor title may not be high but in just a little while you will be in ALL key places protecting your country. You will be around the White House. You will load the implements of war. You have a chance to go to town. Go!

When the skl is clear you wil have helped save the world from Hitlerism and yourself from Paganism! Stand by the President!

YOUTH AND NAT'L DEFENSE

By AUBREY WILLIAMS

It is indeed an encouraging sign of progress when the formal ceremony of induction of a president of an education institution is tied up with a stimulating conference that faces a practical situation so vital to the progress and welfare of our nation. I join with those who felicitate President MacLean on the challenging opportunity that is his to carry on the fine traditions of Hampton Institute and give them a new significance in the light of our approach to the ideals of democracy and the development of a national unity such as we have never known.

When one sets foot upon this campus, he must feel something of the spirit of its founder, Samuel Chapman Armstrong, a soldier who fought for the preservation of this Republic and learned from his contact with Negro soldiers and citizens that the continued growth and development of this nation must include the education and training of these young people whose parents had been denied the opportunity to gain a knowledge and intelligence that would fit them for real participation in the democratic American life.

It was he who wrote in a letter setting forth the idea of combining mental and manual training, that Hampton should have as its purpose, "to train selected Negro youths who should go out and teach and lead their people, first by example, by getting land and homes; to give them not a dollar that they could earn for themselves; to teach respect for labor; to replace stupid drudgery with skilled hands, and to those ends to build up an industrial system for the sake not only of self-support and intelligent labor, but also for the sake of character."

From these surroundings went Booker T. Washington, to carry the gospel of education through work into the far South. And today we recognize him as an educator of the first rank, whose philosophy of education has played an important role in the development of our public school systems. Both teacher and pupil saw the need for training Negro youth to do work that was socially effective and which at the same time looked toward the acquisition of a practical skill which could better than chances for employment.

We have come to see that in the matter of national defense education and training for semi-skilled and skilled jobs is highly important. Too often when one speaks of youth and defense, his mind goes immediately to military preparedness, to conscription of young people, to arms and munitions. Of course military preparedness is essentially a part of national defense. A false peace purchased through a refusal to train the citizen in the handling of military equipment and thus prepare him for the most effective use of the resources at our command is the surest way to invite the invader to set foot on our shores, to burn or to destroy.

Equally important to national unity and solidarity is the maintenance and the strengthening of the morale of our people. You cannot make patriots out of discontented citizens. Let me mention four things that are of primary importance when we think in terms of youth's needs and national defense.

The first is jobs—opportunity for young people to find in industry, in the professions, in the work-a-day world a chance to put into active use the schooling and training they have received. Second to this, I would put health and recreation. We need to build the health of our citizens. For a boy or girl who is sick or ailing or complaining can never expect to do a full day's work. They lose faith in their fellowman, they lose faith in their institutions, they lose faith in themselves. Say all you will about the human resources of our nation, we must remember that their strength lies in the fact that the people themselves are a healthy people. I believe that youth should have time for recreation—not recreation merely in the sense of play, but a chance to recreate the body.

I would put as another need education. I warn you that I am not thinking of the traditional and limited schooling that has caused so many of our young people to turn out as misfits, but the type of education that would develop in youth a realization of the opportunities that await them—a training of the hand as well as the mind that will weave them closer into our national fabric.

Our schools and the agencies dealing with youth and their problems have awakened to the fact that occupational adjustment—the task of putting the right workers in the right jobs—is not only an important aspect of national defense, but is likewise one of the main factors in solving our problems of unemployment. Vocational guidance, vocational preparation, job placement, have been the fore in our touch with youth through the National Youth Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Works Project Administration and the work of our Office of Education. We have learned that for every youth who plans for a college education there are four young people whose economic future lies in the training of the hand to perform those tasks so essential to our industrial and national development.

The fourth need and one which looms so large in our thinking under present conditions and times, is the need for development of the finest type of citizenship. Youth must know about its own government; it must know more about the ideals for which America stands; it must recognize the distinct difference between democracy and totalitarian rule. In educating youth for the responsibilities of citizenship in a democracy there is a distinct need for the teaching of vocational skills and the development of hardy and sound physiques. But we shall fall short in our objective if we fail to realize that young people must learn to know the strength and weaknesses of a democratic government and must be imbued with a spirit of genuine tolerance and good will for all people whether they be rich or poor, black of white, if theirs is a righteous ideal that exalts the worth of the individual and the nation.

What I have said to you touches the general theme of youth and national defense. But this is a conference called to discuss a specific segment of our population—the Negro. Those who are here represent the leadership of your race and with them are gathered representatives of the thousands of white friends north, south, east and west, who are seeing more clearly than ever that national unity can never be achieved if those in power set up false standards and practices that continue to relegate to the background any citizens whose skin color happens to be different.

The need for strong and adequate defense has turned our eyes toward the neighboring republics in South America, where large portions of the population have the same gradations of color that we find in our own United States. It is truly a spirit of democratic brotherhood that brings us into closer and more intimate relations with them. But what about our own dark-skined fellow citizens here in America—native-born workers, who have tilled our fields, mined our native resources, helped in the building of our railroads and highways, defended our flag, and joined in the crusade that was to make the world safe for democracy? Must their interests and their welfare be of lesser moment in the defense of the American ideal?

Look at the Negro in the labor field. Youth is faced with the same difficulties that white youth face, but added to these are the prejudiced barriers set up by many employers and the discriminatory practices set up by the labor and trade unions. What is the result? Only 2% get skilled jobs against 8% for white youth less than 10% get semi-skilled jobs against 20% for white youth And when they do get full time jobs, the Negro youth average 49 hours a week for a wage of $8.71, while the white youth averages 44 hours for a wage of $15.17.

We of the National Youth Administration are particularly interested in this matter of labor because ours is essentially a work program and we seek to give out-of-school youth a work experience that will fit them for places in industry. There are some who believe that Negro youth should be trained only for those occupations which exist in his locality in the traditional fields of employment. I cannot agree that under a democratic system that boasts of equality of opportunity, the federal government should be a party to the setting up of a caste system in occupations. This would be a menace to our democratic traditions for if we talk about equal opportunity we must carry in our thinking the preparation that makes one ready for the opportunity when it comes.

The morale of Negro youth will be further strengthened as they see their own government interested in the improvement of health and housing for all the people. They, too, want to live in decent respectable communities where living conditions are not substandard and attain a life expectancy that is in keeping with the American pattern. They are entitled to educational facilities that will insure a real growth and development and as citizens of a great democracy they must have the opportunity to exercise their right of suffrage and receive the same protection as to their civil rights as that given to every other citizen.

The American black man has found himself in a world that holds his color against him, but he has learned that he has a chance if he seeks to excel in the development of his brain and hand. Fortunately for his future, there are liberal forces at work and men are beginning to see that the nation's welfare must be placed above partisan prejudice. And too, the processes of knowledge—the radio, the printed word, competent and trained instructors—are no longer the prerogative of the rich.

Keep the Main Ideas in Sight, Boys

Colored New Dealers in Washington are much disturbed by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's appointment of William (Dean) Pickens to an administrative post.

Mr. Pickens, an N.A.A.C.P. field secretary, is on leave to take this purported $6,000-a-year job as a super-salesman of U.S. Bonds.

Politicians point out that all the better jobs are going to non-politicians, such as N.A.A.C.P. and Urban League men, while vote-getters like Dr. C. B. Powell of New York, William L. Dawson and C. C. Wimbish of Chicago and R. R. Wright, Jr., of Philadelphia, are still unrewarded.

Candor should compel even politicians to recognize two things. One is that Dean Pickens was an ardent anti-New Dealer—that he was unofficial head of a Willkie-for-President organization in the last campaign and only gave up its leadership when ordered "to do so or else" by the N.A.A.C.P. board.

Secondly, Dean Pickens knows more people in the country by name and during the past fifteen years has addressed more public meetings than any of the so-called regular politicians. He did not seek the job; the job sought him.

The Treasury evidently thinks he'll be an excellent bond salesman and we are inclined to agree with it.

But the granting of one or two minor political posts in these days is relatively unimportant.

On every calendar there is considerable unfinished business of far greater significance:

1. The antilynching bill is still in the Senate.
2. The President, even now, is playing with the idea of nominating Joe Byrnes, a most prejudiced and rabidly unreasoning South Carolina Senator, to the U.S. Supreme Court.
3. The navy yet closes all enlistments to colored persons save as cooks and waiters.
4. The defense industries and defense training courses are still opposed to employment of colored workers.

If the leaders in Washington can be led to bicker over jobs paying a few thousand a year, they may relax their pressure on government agencies to clean up our unfinished business.

Wouldn't that be a national catastrophe?

HOW NEGRO FARMERS ARE PREPARING FOR DEFENSE

By ALBON L. HOLSEY, AAA Field Officer

(This is the first of a series of three articles to be written by Mr. Holsey, AAA field officer, on the subject of "The Negro Farmer and Agricultural Preparedness.")

THE southern Negro farmer is making a valuable and vital contribution to the national defense program through his impressive activities in the field of agriculture.

Defense through agriculture includes ample reserves of food and proper diets to insure better health for fighting men, industrial workers and the nation as a whole.

Through many provisions of the AAA, including the ever-normal granary our nation has protective reserves of wheat and corn and through the live-at-home program of the agricultural extension service individual farmers are increasing supplies of home-grown food products for family use.

So much evidence has been assembled to show that inadequate diets and malnutrition are chief causes of poor health that the division of consumer protection of the National Defense Advisory commission has undertaken a nation-wide campaign "to improve the nutritional value of cheap staple foods," "increase the food purchasing power of low-income groups," "educate the people on proper food selection" and broaden the activities of "governmental agencies now conducting nutritional programs." The nation's health as a measure for national defense.

Emphasis on Gardens

Negro home demonstration agents, home economics teachers and home economists under the FSA are placing a new emphasis on home gardens, canning and preserving foods and budgeting the home pantry on a proper diet basis. For 1941, the AAA has extended its benefits to include more gardens and canning for home use.

Secretary Claude R. Wickard of the department of agriculture has recently asked the farmers to step up egg production during the next 15 months to 10 million cases of 30 dozen each above normal production and adds that the department "will support long-term egg prices until June, 1943 . . . at a figure which should make egg production profitable."

P. H. Stone, Negro state extension leader for Georgia, reports many activities among the 29,000 Negro 4-H club members in his state to increase poultry products. Making home-made brooder houses for chicks and the candling and grading of eggs are important features of 1941 program. Mr. Stone reports 134 members in one county who are planting gardens and purchased their seed on a co-operative basis and that the county board of education in another county has set up a revolving fund to enable 4-H club girls to begin poultry projects with 50 chicks each.

Discuss Program

R. E. Wyer Jr., Negro county agent for Leon County, Florida, with headquarters at Tallahassee, reports 23 community meetings with adults and 4-H club groups at which time the new home garden programs of the AAA was discussed. "Feeding the nation and feeding yourselves" was the slogan for these meetings.

Frank E. Pinder, Negro county agent for Alachua County, Florida, enrolls his 4-H club members in the "Home Garden National Defense club" and pledges the members "to do their part in this national defense drive by growing a year-round garden."

James M. Watlington, Negro county agent at Idabel, Okla., reports a steady increase in home grown food and feed. From 1938 to 1940 the average number of hogs for each Negro farm family in his county increased from 3.2 to 5, gardens have been doubled in size and the average number of laying hens from 18 to 30.

"These increases represent our interest in national defense and through the 1941 AAA program there will be still further increases," said Mr. Watlington.

Henry Espy, Negro county agent of Crittenden County, Ark., reports over 3,000 Negro farmers in his county enrolled in the Plant-to-Prosper campaign promoted by a Memphis daily newspaper.

Increased Interest

Paul O. Brooks, Negro county agent of Logan County, Okla., reports greatly increased interest in beef cattle production among his 4-H club members since two of his boys won cash prizes for beef cattle exhibited at the county fair.

Texas has had two meat shows this spring: one at Palestine and the other at Houston. Nearly 2,000 pieces of meat and containers of sausage, lard and other by-products were shown at each exhibition which represented Negro farmer activities of more than 40 counties in Central and South Texas.

Negroes Urged To Register For Places

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(SNS) A quota of 643, the second in 5 1-2 years, enlisting applicants from 18 to 35, has been awarded the United States Army Recruiting Office, Room 29, Post Office Building, Birmingham.

Negro boys desiring to enlist for these 643 vacancies are urged to apply at the Birmingham Post Office at once. Men who have registered in the Selective Service are eligible for enlistment in the Regular Army. Because one has regstered, it does not mean that he cannot, volunteer for enlistment in the Regular Army. The opportuity to become skilled technicians in any number line of trades is made available. Term of elistment is three years.

Quartermaster Corps at Fort McClellan, Alabama, Fort Benning, Ga. and Camp Wheeler, Ga.; Detached Enlisted Men's list at Camp Shelby, Miss., and Fort McClellan, Ala.; Field Artillery at Camp Livingston, La., and Fort Bragg, N. C.; Coast Artillery at Camp Davis, N. C. and Engineers at Camp Shelby, Miss.

TRUEST PATRIOTISM

THE Star of Elberton, Ga., recounts the story of a Negro registrant who was struggling with his questionnaire. He looked it over a long while, scratching his head and sweating profusely. Finally he said "I cain't answer all them questions in a year." So he turned the sheet over and wrote on the back "I is reddy when you is," and sent it to the draft board.

There could be no stronger statement of patriotism: to be ready when the nation calls; when the need is there. This humble Negro could not cope with the manifold questions on the document he was asked to fill out, but his patriotism and his will to serve spoke eloquently in his "I is reddy." That's all that is asked of any of us: to be ready, and to serve faithfully when the call comes.

NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM IS BOON TO NEGROES

WASHINGTON, May 22—The distrust which Negroes are manifesting in the programs of the defense projects in the United States is not without foundation, if an objective view of the situation is taken without regard to personalities involved.

While the national defense is created for an "emergency" there is every indication that there will be some degree of permanency in some of the positions now being created.

The erection of the huge factories and the long range planning for their continued use when the "emergency" no longer exists, is one of the questions which have occupied not only Negroes' attention but that of whites as well.

And in all of the training programs, refresher courses and preparations for the emergency hundreds of papers have been written and hundreds of resolutions adopted seeking to create, through legislation, some consideration for the Negro population.

To many this is a joke, for no legislation in the world can change the attitudes which exist, they claim, and these proponents are partially right in their beliefs.

But when they point out the defects of the system which has created this situation, they take their spite on those who are trying to adjust or make adjustments which will do a little to better the entire thing.

Contending that the work of many of the government workers is superficial and nothing has been accomplished, they declare, many discouraging factors have arisen.

Twenty-five percent of Negro trainees on WPA vocational training projects found it necessary to return to their former employment on WPA, it is said. Industrial plants with defense contracts continue for the most part to maintain their bans against the employment of skilled Negro workers. The greatest number of workers securing defense employment are in unskilled categories.

Further, they point out that the United States Employment service records indicate Negro workers are being placed in jobs recently vacated by white workers who have been called to defense industries, where the latter are the best paid and the former the least desirable jobs.

It is also said that the bureau of labor statistics frankly admits that employers generally continue to show reluctance in hiring Negroes in skilled and semi-skilled capacities. Records indicate industrial plants employing Negro workers in many occupations other than those of laborers or janitors are exceptions.

Employment records indicate that in the face of a shortage of skilled workers in all sections, local industrialists import white skilled workers rather than employ available Negro skilled workers.

Organized labor maintains some bans against Negro workers which militate against their employment in defense industry. Industrialists have recently resorted to the use of race issues to fight labor organizations both in the North and in the South. The United States Employment service reports only 30 Negro project trainees placed in defense industries in a six-month period.

Of these things the Negro knows, but many fair minded people are being misled and believe that under the present emergency pressure, Negroes are getting many fine positions with industrial plants that were never before opened to them. This is far from true and the same conditions persist throughout organized industry.

Congressmen and liberal minded whites are being led to believe that Negroes are getting fairer breaks now than ever before, which is far from being true. The general employment picture as far as Negro workers and defense industry is concerned has been painted with an optimism not in keeping with employment record facts. The greater portion of defense employment for Negroes has been of unskilled workers in temporary capacities. Most of the limited skilled and semi-skilled worker employment has been on cantonment construction and housing construction, which is noticeably temporary.

The United States Employment service lists a staggering number of Negro workers whose training, work backgrounds and listed occupations are among those essential for defense. These workers, because of conditions beyond their control, are not being placed in skilled and semi-skilled defense industry jobs in any appreciable number.

Unless there is a change of current conditions for the better, Negro workers may be expected to remain on WPA rolls in large numbers throughout the entire defense employment period.

Such unfair treatment of the most loyal group in America is resulting in increasing proportions of Negroes on the best thing they can get, the WPA, and likely that the WPA appropriations will be cut to the bone—thereby depriving many Negroes of even this small stipend.

It has often been pointed out that Negroes remain on the WPA rolls longer than whites, but no one has taken the trouble to find out why Negroes are forced to remain on these rolls.

With all of the ballyhoo over the new job openings for Negroes under the massive defense program, there should be some truth in statements of jobs for Negroes and some check up to determine the permanency of these jobs and their full meaning to the race.

The WPA has instituted training programs in most of the states for Negroes, with the exceptions of New Hampshire, Vermont, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Idaho, Utah, and Nevada.

Selection, assignment and training of Negro WPA workers have been attended by the usual race relations problems. In some localities as in Los Angeles, state and district WPA officials have been frankly at a loss as to what action to take, it is reliably reported.

Airplane and other industry manufacturers in the Los Angeles area informed WPA officials it would be useless to train Negro workers on these training projects inasmuch as they did not intend to hire them.

Other complaints to reach the headquarters indicate Negro workers are excluded from classes in white vocational schools, and no classes provided for them in Negro vocational schools in some southern localities where the races are ordinarily separated.

Statistics from the WPA office show that of the 7,902 Negro trainees in the continental United States, (corrected as of March 26) 3,663 are enrolled in training classes; 789 known to have obtained other employment, 461 voluntarily separated, reason unknown, 1,993 reemployed on WPA projects and 1,016 in other categories.

According to many who are watching the development of the programs, things are not entirely too good for the Negro, neither is the outlook offering any hope for improvement in the future—predicting a further increase in the WPA rolls and a gradual decrease in the amount of money essary help for Negroes. It is appropriated for this very necfelt in some circles that pressure being brought to bear on the President will result in his slashing of the non-defense projects in the budget and when the preliminary hearings are held, the feeble institutions which in the past have been targets for the opposition will begin to feel the axe and consequently, Negroes, who are not getting jobs in private industry, will again be the ultimate sufferers.

The Negro Farmer and Defense

By ALBON L. HOLSEY
Field Officer, AAA

MAY 24 1941

THE SOUTHERN Negro farmer is making a valuable and vital contribution to the national defense program through his impressive activities in the field of agriculture.

Defense through agriculture includes ample reserves of food and proper diets to insure better health for fighting men, industrial workers and the nation as a whole.

MR HOLSEY

Through many provisions of the AAA including the evernormal granary our nation has protective reserves of wheat and corn, and through the live-at-home program of the agricultural extension service individual farmers are increasing supplies of homegrown food products for family use.

INADEQUATE DIETS

So much evidence has been assembled to show that inadequate diets and malnutrition are chief causes of poor health that the division of consumer protection of the National Defense Advisory commission has undertaken a nation-wide campaign "to improve the nutritional value of cheap staple foods," "increase the food purchasing power of low-income groups," "educate the people on proper food selection" and broaden the activities of "governmental agencies now conducting nutritional programs."

R. E. INCREASE IN HOME GROWN FOOD

James M. Watlington, Negro county agent at Idabel, Okla., reports a steady increase in home-grown food and feed. From 1938 to 1940 the average number of hogs for each Negro farm family in his county increased from 3.2 to 5, gardens have been doubled in size and the average number of laying hens from 18 to 30. These examples could be multiplied many times to show how Negro farmers are cooperaing in national defense by producing more and better food.

2 Negroes Among First Conscientious Objectors

MAY 24 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (ANP) — An exemplification of Christ's teachings was enacted over in nearby Maryland Friday, when 23 young men arrived at an abandoned camp to give the year's service required of them by the United States government, in lieu of the year's service in an army training camp.

They were the first of a group of conscientious objectors. And in their midst were two Negroes, plain men, who because of their religious convictions felt they should not bear arms against their fellowmen.

Speaking for his companion, Reuben Cobbs, 23, of Metuchen, N. Y., who had been working in a Manhattan brokerage house, said:

"Should Christ return and lead us, then we would fight, but not under any other circumstances."

As reported several months ago, exclusively through the Associated Negro Press after an interview with Major Campbell C. Johnson of the Selective service, there will be no discrimination in the camps of the conscientious objectors.

Why there is no discrimination practiced in these camps, yet exercised in others, remains a mystery and the experiment will well bear watching.

The men are all members of sects which do not believe in wars and armies.

In outward appearance, the men differed not at all from the thousands of others who answered the call to military service. They were a healthy, clean cut lot, without a fanatic among them, laughing and joking as they washed dishes, peeled onions, made up bunks and made themselves useful in preparing the camp for what they believed will be one year's constructive service for the nation.

Instead of receiving the same pay the army doles its draftees, the C. O's, as the men prefer to be called, will have to pay their own board amounting to $35 per month. If he can't afford it, his church will have to foot the bill. Each man is paid $2.50 per month, which is considerably less than the army rate of pay.

The National Park service, which is responsible for the men in camp has planned a strenuous program of activities for the boys. They will build roads, reforest, fight fires and keep the park trim. Their first job is to get the old camp in order, for now it is little more than a ruin.

In charge of the camp, which is expected to receive a larger quota at an early date, is Dr. Ernest A. Wildham, former professor of chemistry at Earlham college, Indiana, placed in charge by the Friends Service committee.

MAY 23 1941

Ernest K. Lindley, columnist for the [illegible]ington Post and son of the late Ernest [illegible]ram Lindley, once chancellor of the University of Kansas, stated the Negro's case quite effectively in a recent column which he devoted to "Negroes in Defense."

Under the sub-title, "Discrimination in All-Out Effort," Mr. Lindley said:

"Sidney Hillman brought into the open last week one of the most ticklish problems in defense production: the employment of Negroes.

"The all-over fact is that relatively few Negroes are getting jobs in defense industries. In some localities employers are importing white workers—intensifying housing and health problems and adding to the postwar problem of population readjustment—while able-bodied Negroes already on hand are left on WPA and on relief. A certain number of Negroes who have had training or experience in skilled work are idle, and the employment experts of the government say that a higher percentage who could be trained quickly are being kept out while time is devoted to training less promising white material.

So Hillman is urging employers to take on Negro workers, especially those in their own localities. In some respects the Negro seems to be getting less of a break in the North than in the South; and, in the South, less of a break from Northern employers than Southerners. Excepting Ford, all the major automobile plants exclude Negroes from skilled assembly-line jobs; and the same rigid line is drawn by many other northern industries.

It is held in the rapidly growing aircraft industry except for a small breach just made in one California plant.

In Northern Industrial centers Negroes are admitted to the special training courses for prospective defense workers. At first many Negroes eagerly sought this training. Then they found, in many cases, that they could not get jobs. So in most lines the number of new applicants is falling.

In the South, few training courses in skilled lines have been set up for Negroes. This is not surprising, in view of the perennial labor surplus in many parts of the South, the dual educational system and the shortage of equipment for training in Negro schools. Moreover, the bulk of defense orders has gone to the Northeast, the Central States and the Pacific Coast.

The Negro has an old history as an artisan in the South. Even in more recent times he has found a place in industrial work in many localities. Negro leaders complain that Negroes get lower pay than white workers for skilled work; craft union policy generally has kept Negroes in the status of helpers. Nevertheless, in shipbuilding, construction work and many other lines, Negroes are employed in skilled and semi-skilled capacities.

OPM Labor-supply experts say that on the employer side, one of the chief obstacles in the South is the reluctance of managers from the North to touch the race question in any way. They are afraid that if they get into it they will do something which violates local custom and bring all kinds of trouble on their heads. Therefore they often make it a rule not to employ Negroes at all in production jobs. Southern employers, knowing what custom sanctions and what it does not — and being Southern —are said to be more flexible.

When labor is scarce the Negroes usually get a chance. During World War 1 they won a permanent foothold in a few industries in the North, notably the packing industry. This time Negro leaders are driving with special vigor to capture a place in aircraft production. This is the most rapidly expanding of all industries and by late 1942 or early 1943 it will employ at least as many men as the automobile industry.

Here Negroes have run into established policies of exclusion. Among the companies adhering to this policy is the North American Aviation Co., a subsidiary of General Motors. To complicate matters, the new assembly plants for bombers in the Middle West and South are built with Government money, although they are being operated by the established aircraft companies.

Negro leaders and their supporters are especially hot under the collar over the announcement of an official of North American Aviation that Negroes would not be employed, except for custodial duties, in a new Government-built assembly plant. Representations were made to William S. Knudsen by labor-supply people in OPM and it was reported that he would join Hillman in the appeal to employers to find places for Negroes. He did not do so, however.

The only breach in the color line of the aircraft industry occurred recently in California where one company, faced with an acute white-labor shortage, set up a Negro unit.

Labor-supply experts say that in many localities the pick of the unemployed, for industrial purposes, are to be found among Negroes. Many of them have decided aptitudes for handling machinery and tools. The better white workers with similar aptitudes have long been employed and a percentage of them have advanced to engineering, managerial and other important jobs. One expert cites an earlier experience of an important Southern company making iron products. It found that it could train a selected group of Negroes in less than half the time it took to train white labor seeking the same kind of work.

Recently, in another southern locality, contractors were arranging to import large numbers of carpenters and other skilled construction workers from the North. Government officials pointed out that experienced Negro workers were available locally. Civic leaders in the locality promptly and energetically protested against the importation of unneeded ouside labor. The local Negroes were employed instead, with benefits all around.

The defense boom and sharpening labor shortage in many sections presents an opportunity which leaders of the Negro race understandingly are quick to seize. As a matter of justice and policy the government is obligated to make some provision for Negroes on projects built with government money. As a matter of defense, it is important that the labor resources of the nation be used in the most effective way. Despite the difficulties involved, there must be some way—or many ways—of getting the maximum value for the nation from the more capable of the Negro unemployed.

ONLY 2 PER CENT OF DEFENSE FORCES ARE COLORED

The AFRO made a great deal last week over the fact that we have a shortage of nearly 5,000 colored officers in the army.

Far more important was its revelation that we are short approximately 84,000 enlisted men.

On the population basis, over 9 per cent of the army should be colored. Less than 5 per cent actually have been called.

Considering the additional fact that both navy and marine corps are closed to colored enlistments and that less than one-tenth of 1 per cent of colored persons are employed in Federal shipyards and arsenals, it becomes evident that as few as 2 per cent of the government's total armed forces are colored.

In face of this plain racial discrimination, is there any wonder labor unions and private industry, called upon by President Roosevelt to treat all citizens alike, reply: "We prefer to follow the government's own example instead"?

NEW YORKER OBJECTS TO DRAFT CALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—"I don't want to be drafted", shouted Edward Wright, 22, last week as he held a crowd of 500 persons in suspense while he perched on the ledge of his fifth-story apartment at 79 Old Broadway.

Captured by police, after fleeing to the roof of an adjoining building, the youth was taken to Bellevue hospital for examination.

Wright said he was notified on August 27, his birthday, that he would be inducted into the Army on September 3. He claimed that he didn't want to go into the Army, in the first place, because he did not believe in war, and, secondly, on account of his belief that members of his race are not given fair opportunities in the armed forces of the United States.

College Students Get Draft Delay

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Selective service headquarters today authorized local boards to defer the induction of college students into the army when immediate induction would cause "undue" hardship" because of interference with their work.

At the same time, officials reminded local boards that students preparing for occupations or professions, such as the practice of medicine or engineering, could be deferred from induction for such periods as might be necessary to permit them to complete their work and enter into their chosen professions. The primary consideration in this case, however, is that there must be a shortage in the occupation for which the deferred student is preparing.

Under the new procedure, a student who had completed half a quarter of his college year, for instance, when he was called up for military service could obtain postponement from his local draft board until the end of the quarter. This same provision applies to any other fraction of a college term.

However selective service headquarters said that if a student knew in advance that he was scheduled to be inducted shortly after the school period opened then he could not expect a postponement. It was suggested that he could either enter the army immediately by volunteering or else remain out of school until time for induction.

In any case, selective service headquarters declared, a man about to enter college should determine beforehand the time at which his induction might be expected and arrange his plans accordingly.

HAITI RESENTS NAZI THREATS IN U. S. AFFAIR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—(AP)—A German protest to the government of Haiti against acceptance of the American black list has been forcefully rejected, and the German charge d'affaires in effect rebuked for having interposed objections. This was learned Friday with the transmission to the Haitian legation here of the exchange of correspondence between the German charge d'affaires, Walter Kaempfe, and the Haitian minister of foreign affairs, Charles Fombrun.

The issue arose when, on July 30, the German legation in Port au Prince transmitted its protest to the foreign office. The protest declared that the black list had "terribly handicapped the commercial activities of German firms in Haiti." But it went further: it conveyed the threat that if Haiti accepted this American "infringement", she would suffer reprisals from Germany after the war.

The actual language of the protest at this point was: "An acceptance of this American infringement without opposition from the Haitian government . . would not, after the war, remain without bearing on the German decisions at the time when German-Haitian commercial activities are renewed."

This threat drew a warm rejoinder from the Haitian government, doubtless at the direction of President Elie Lescot, who until his inauguration last May 15 served as Haitian minister in Washington, and who is a strong supporter of inter-American cooperation.

The Haitian reply stated, "It is fitting for the German government to know in this particular case, and in any other, that the Haitian government does not accept any suggestion, nor any foreign pressure, and deems itself to be the sole judge in deciding whether or not the measure taken by the United States constitutes an infringement upon the sovereignty of Haiti." At another point the reply continued:

"If, as you write, an acceptance without opposition from the Haitian government, of what you call an American infringement 'would not be in keeping with the spirit of the treaty of friendship and commerce between Germany and the republic of Haiti, and would not after the war remain without bearing on the German decisions at the time when German-Haitian commercial relations are renewed', the Haitian government also begs you to note and to make known to your government that any intrusion of the German government in what the Haitian government considers an absolute right of free determination on the part of the republic of Haiti as an independent nation, is also not in keeping with the spirit of the treaty of friendship and commerce between the governments of Germany and Haiti, and will not remain after the war without bearing on the Haitian decision at the time when Haitian-German commercial relations are renewed."

The correspondence embraces four notes from the German legation, and three from the Haitian foreign office. In the concluding Haitian note, the foreign minister quoted a passage from President Lescot's inaugural address, in which strong adherence to the international policy of the United States is expressed. The passage follows:

"In these hours of anguish, in which humanity is living today, it is impossible for any nation to maintain an attitude of indecisions, the whole world must know that Haiti intends to move along with and in perfect union with her 20 sister republics of the continent. Moreover, let it be proclaimed with all the strength of a declaration of faith, that our destiny is profoundly linked with the destiny of the United States of America. I intend, therefore, that our international policy shall sincerely and faithfully reflect the international policy of our generous and powerful neighbor."

The Haitian action in this matter was more than a mere gesture, since the commerce and industry of Haiti are made to suffer by acceptance of the black list, there being several German firms in Haiti which employ numbers of Haitians throughout the country.

War Department Civilian Aide Says Increased Number of Negroes Will Be Assigned to Military Police Duty

WASHINGTON. — William H. Hastie, civilian aide to the secretary of war, in a speech made at the dedication of the new army recreation camp at Anacostia, D. C., on Saturday afternoon explained what the war department is doing to improve the morale of the nation's colored soldiers.

In his talk, which was broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Judge Hastie explained the responsibility of the community to the soldier as well as the soldier's side of the situation.

MUST RESPECT UNIFORM

"Honor and respect for every wearer of the uniform must become the prevailing sentiment in the comunity," Judge Hastie stated, "and at the same time the man in uniform must accord similar respect to the civilian."

Continuing, the war department official said, "The army is keenly aware of the importance of soldierly conduct at all times. It can be counted upon to deal sternly with the soldier who abuses the hospitality of the civilian community; but it is up to the community to mobilize the forces of public opinion in order that the soldier may be decently and hospitably received wherever he may go." Thus, an editorial recently published in a prominent Southern daily newspaper contained the following comment:

'For America to meet what has already come to be much more than a threat to its integrity, it must make up its mind to put all pettiness behind . . . . all men of all races must be made to feel that they are fighting to defend a country that knows no color or race or creed. They must be made to feel that the purpose of our government is to provide for the common welfare of all the people over whom it has dominion.

In referring to the violence at Ft. Bragg, Judge Hastie explained, "The Army's own responsibility to its soldiers on leaves has not been ignored. Contrary to an opinion sometimes expressed, military investigation is not a device for whitewashing the mistreatment of Negro soldiers. For example, the investigation of a recent affray between Nergo soldiers and military policemen near Fort Bragg has been viewed with skepticism by some civilians.

"I am in position to say that all aspects of the Fort Bragg controversy have been subjected to most detailed inquiry. Hundreds of pages of testimony have been taken, so that even the reading and analysis of the record is a substantial task. Although that analysis is still in process, the facts already established have led to certain important corrective measures:

"A veteran officer, experienced in military police work is being detailed to Fort Bragg as provost marshal to command the military police force and to assume responsibility for its effective training and organization.

ACTION AT BRAGG

"Arrangements are being made for increased officer supervision of military policemen while on duty in the civilian community and for the establishment of a military police station and headquarters in the city of Fayetteville, separate from the civilian police station.

"The unified force will consist of selected permanent personnel, colored as well as white, without any racial distinction as to the authority or equipment of the individual military policeman.

"It may be well to point out that at a second station where urgent need for Negro military policemen has recently been indicated, similar provision has been made for their inclusion in the regular post military police force. The salutory effect of the use of Negro soldiers as members of the regular military police force had already been demonstrated at other stations. In addition, the war department is now addressing itself to the more general problem of the organization and training of the military police force throughout the country as an important factor in discipline and morale.

INVESTIGATE CIVILIANS

While the War Department is seeking to improve relationships between the soldier and the civilian, punitive action against the offending civilian is rarely within the power of the military authorities. However, when the soldier in line of duty is the victim of unprovoked violence at the hands of persons not connected with the Army, a serious crime against the United States may be involved.

"After the event, the power of military authorities goes no further than the investigation of facts; but it is within the province of the war department in a proper case to submit its findings to the department of justice for criminal prosecution. In specific cases of this character the war department is already in contact with the department of justice. Unfortunately, the danger inherent in premature disclosure precludes more specific comment at this time.

"Two other aspects of the Army's efforts to deal effectively with racial relations deserve mention. No soldier will be coddled or treated with special favor. The Negro, no less than any other man, in uniform, who conducts himself in manner unbecoming to a soldier, may anticipate stern disciplinary action. On the other hand, proven willful abuse or mistreatment of Negro soldiers or willful failure to protect them from abuses is not condoned. Such misconduct has already been punished in particular cases by formal reprimand or admonishment, or removal from command, as the nature of the case has seemed to warrant.

MUST BUILD MORALE

"But punitive action is not a cure-all. The leave camp which we dedicate today is the first of a series of similar camps which will afford to enlisted men, particularly in areas of the South where large numbers of Negro soldiers are stationed, a decent place to stay and responsible leadership and direction in their search for wholesome recreation. This will benefit not only the soldier but also the civilian community in which housing and recreational facilities are overtaxed by week-end soldier visitors.

"I can assure you that it is the serious purpose of the War Department to build Military and civilian morale, and that the special problems of the Negro soldier are receiving particular consideration.

The speaker concluded, "We cannot be a united and effective nation in the face of a foreign foe, so long as any substantial number of us condone and appease un-American attitudes and practices at home. The job must be done by all of us. The stake is our survival as a great nation . . ."

10,000 More Nurses Needed For Army, War Department Announces

More than 10,000 nurses are needed for the Army Nurse Corps, the War Department announced Thursday.

The Surgeon General of the Army (Major General James C. Megee) said 5,973 nurses are now on duty but to meet the authorized quota, 2,264 more are needed. This figure includes 526 additional Regular Army nurses and 1,738 Reserve nurses. An additional 4,000 Reserve nurses will be needed to care for Trainees to be inducted into the Army this year.

The Army Nurse Corps anticipates that 40 per cent of the Reserve nurses who had accepted one year's assignment will request discharge at the expiration of their 12 months service. As a result, 4,144 Reserve nurses over the authorized quota must be enrolled to balance the number of retiring nurses. The total number of nurses needed comes to 10,408.

To become a Regular Army nurse, the applicant must be between 22 and 30 years of age, unmarried and a citizen of the United States. She must meet the physical requirements for Army nurses and must be a graduate of an accredited high school, a school of nursing of approved standards, and also be a registered nurse.

To become a Reserve nurse, the applicant must be between 21 and 41 years of age, unmarried, a citizen of the United States, and physically fit. She must be a high school graduate and a graduate of an approved school of nursing connected with a hospital giving a three years course in basic nursing subjects. The hospital must have had a daily average of at least 50 patients and must have had separate departments. A Reserve nurse goes on active duty almost immediately after she is sworn in as an Army nurse and remains on duty for at least a year, unless discharged sooner. When a Reserve nurse is discharged, she ceases to be a member of the Army Nurse Corps. There are no Army Reserve nurses on the inactive list..

Duties of an Army nurse are much the same as those in a civilian hospital. Initial pay is $840 a year plus maintenance. The salary increases with length of service and the pay after nine years of service is $1560 a year, plus maintenance. The new Army nurse receives the grade of Nurse, with the relative rank of Second Lieutenant. In addition to the white duty uniforms, nurses have a two-tone, blue covert cloth uniform with maroon trimmings, and a blue cape.

For information on a career as a Regular Army nurse, an applicant should write the Surgeon General of the Army Department, Washington, D .C. For information on becoming a Reserve nurse, inquiry should be made at the headquarters of the American Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

N. C. Boom Town Called Uncle Sam's Powder Keg

Fayetteville's 20,000 Population Swells to 35,000 in 2 Months; Men Sleep Five in a Room as Fort Bragg Expands

By RALPH MATTHEWS

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. — The imminence of war has converted this little Southern town into Uncle Sam's powder keg.

Less than ten miles distant, covering an area larger than the town itself, lies the spacious reservation known as Fort Bragg which, until a few months ago, was a quiet, unpretentious series of stucco-like buildings, no more dangerous than a conventional military academy, where Uncle Sam housed a few remnants of his skeleton peacetime army.

But with the draft machinery in operation, this lazy little typical Carolina town, whose only excitement of consequence during the last twenty-odd years has been little more than the Saturday night influx of farmers from the surrounding countryside, has suddenly blossomed into a boom town which reminds one of the mushroom pioneer towns of the gold rush days.

Rush for Building Jobs

Men have poured in by the thousands, and every incoming train and bus increases the number as laborers from every walk of life swarm from all corners of the State to get a slice of America's big defense mellon, while it's ripe on the vine.

Sharecroppers have quit their shanties, farmers have turned the minding of the pigs and chickens over to their womenfolk, strapping boys have kissed their sweethearts a temporary farewell, and college boys have sacrificed a semester to get in on the boom building program which will run into millions as accommodations for soldiers sprout over the great reservation.

In two short months the normal population of 20,000 has leaped to 35,000 without a single house being built in the town proper.

Along the narrow road that leads from the city to the fort, men, when their work is done, have thrown up houses of unpainted pine, but in the city every house is taxed to capacity with householders sleeping in their kitchens and renting out every inch of available space.

Five Men to a Room

Laborers are paying exorbitant prices to sleep as many as five in a room.

The small two-story house where Bill Scott, the AFRO photographer, and I wriggled a room for the night, housed fifteen men besides the family, and this condition, I am told, is duplicated in every house, most of which are of the one-floor variety.

To add to the confusion, the road leading to and from the fort is swollen with traffic day and night—automobiles of every description are laden with soldiers and workers.

Confusion reigns in the mornings as these thousands of men try to reach the camp on the few buses that the city's transportation system affords.

Jim Crow on Buses

Because it fears the boom is only temporary, the transportation company has refused to make a large capital outlay for more buses, but has tried to speed up trips. The mad scramble of workers to get on buses first results in bad feeling and often leads to fights.

This whole nefarious problem is accentuated by the jim-crow system. Although all of the men are but common laborers trying to make a quick, if not so easy, dollar, the separate seating policy is rigidly enforced.

No matter how much room remains on a fort-bound bus and although the colored in any given group of waiting passengers might exceed the whites, only those are permitted on board who can squeeze into the small space set aside for colored in the rear.

This in spite of the fact that when the men reach their jobs they will probably work side by side. The seething undercurrent of this type of racial friction is one of the many problems which keep the natives in constant fear.

Watch Labor Issue

Up to the present time, there seems to be no labor strife because, for some unknown reason, the union racketeers have not moved in on Fort Bragg. The only group organized at present is the plumbers, but the carpenters, electricians, cement workers and common laborers are non-union.

While the men have not been forced to shell out exorbitant joining fees and kick in weekly dues for the privilege of working, as is the practice at other camps, likewise, because of the open shop policy, they have received pay which is correspondingly lower than at the highly-organized camps.

There is no time and a half for overtime and double pay on Sundays making it possible for men to pile up $90 per week as is the case at Fort Meade, and the paychecks here average $35 and $40 per week.

This is a windfall, however, to farmers who were lucky to pile up $140 a year in cash after their crops were in.

The pay scale is as follows: Bricklayers, $1.25 per hour; cement finishers, $1 per hour; carpenters, 90 cents per hour; common laborers, 30 cents per hour.

By another strange coincidence, due to the preponderance of trade schools throughout the South, a much larger proportion of the colored workers here fall in the skilled labor class than in the North, where high schools put more emphasis on classical than industrial training.

65,000 Soldiers Coming

As acute as is the already vexing social adjustment problem as it pertains to the camp construction program, the situation is growing worse daily as each new barrack is completed, because this brings in more soldiers to add to the swollen population problem.

While this influx of soldiers has little or no effect on the housing situation, the men and boys do fill the streets, restaurants, bars and theatres, taxing the public facilities of the little town.

Every day new regulations are invoked to solve some new and unexpected problem.

To avoid disturbances and the possibilities of fights and insults to women, which may be a social incendiary bomb, a 9 o'clock curfew was clamped down for a while, but is gradually being lifted as the local police force finds itself inadequate to enforce a law which only drives the growing vice they seek to squash undercover, adding to their problem and making it more dangerous.

The feelings of the good people of the city are vividly expressed in the offhand statement of a venerable taxi driver, who was asked whether there had been any trouble as a result of the boom:

Expect Trouble

"Trouble?" he asked, "how can there be anything but trouble when you suddenly crowd 65,000 people into a place intended for only 20,000, and most of them men with 65,000 different minds, training and morals?

"The trouble is not 'Is there trouble,' but 'What kind of trouble is it going to be and when is it going to pop?' We just pray and wait."

Negro Draft Quota Await New Barracks

By J. C. CHUNN

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 6—Reliable sources believe that Negroes are not being inducted according to their quota under the Selective Service Act. Inquiry at the State Selective Board headquarters revealed that 2882 whites and 856 Negroes had been called from the state.

Lieutenant Colonel James A. Skelton, Jr., induction officer, sent an inquiry to the commanding officer, Fourth Army Corp Area, asking why a larger percentage of Negroes were not called and was informed that a lack of adequate housing facilities did not allow for the calling of additional men at this time but that the quota for Negroes would be raised when the building program was completed.

Negro Center Is Disrupted By National Defense Project

BY HARRIET PLOWDEN
Home Agent

Forced to break up and disband to make room for the powder plant to be built along the Coosa River near Childersburg, is one of the outstanding social service projects for Negroes to be built in the last decade, the Childersburg Community Center.

The center, which has been an important factor in guiding the life of Negroes in that community near Childersburg, although completely disorganized because of the scattering of the people who made it up, is attempting to continue its work, and set itself up in another community in the county.

Originator of the idea was Roosevelt P. Lee, a young Negro woman. Roosevelt Lee was taken sick while attending school in Arkansas, and returned to Childersburg a semi-invalid.

February, 1931, six children, three boys and three girls, sat at the bedside of this young woman and listened to Bible stories, nursery rhymes, sang songs and made scrapbooks.

Shortly after this, Roosevelt Lee approached Miss Plowden, of the county home demonstration office, and asked her if she could help the center get a log cabin clubhouse, such as she had seen around Tuskegee and Montgomery.

Miss Plowden obtained the plans for such a clubhouse, members of the community donated logs and labor, and the clubhouse was erected. It was a two-room log cabin, and formed the basic gathering place for the community.

By this time, not only the younger of the children, but also the older boys and girls and the grownups had become interested in the project. A 4-H Club for both boys and girls was organized and the center became the social center of the group.

Help was obtained from the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, and a Negro man, John B. Wade, was sent to help the woman who had started the undertaking.

This year, when it was announced that the powder plant was to be built near Childersburg and the center knew it would break it up, the leaders looked back proudly on the progress they had made.

From that inconspicuous start of a group of children at the bedside of a semi-invalid, the idea had grown until the center had a two-room cabin of its own; it had two paid parish workers; four NYA students; a boys' and a girls 4-H Club; eight departments, religion and music, health and home making, library and recreation, Lord's acre plan project and home demonstration work.

The center had become the social life of the group which formed it. Dinners were held at the clubhouse; religious services were held Sundays beneath an outdoor arbor, an exhibit was put on each year by the 4-H groups, and profits were made from the sale of the things the boys and girls had made.

Through the center, the community folk since 1935 received $2,000 worth of clothing, household articles and Christmas gifts, and a number of the boys and girls were enabled to attend Summer conferences, young people's league and a 4-H Club course at Tuskegee Institute.

Everything possible will be done to help this project reorganize in another section of the county.

Objectors Of Both Races To Be Placed In The Same Camp

MAR 12 1941

WASHINGTON—(A N P)—Unless something untoward turns up, there will be no separate Negro camps for conscientious objectors, according to Major Campbell Johnson of the Selective Service board, who said on Monday, that the camps being formed would serve all conscientious objectors, Negro as well as white.

When asked about the camps, Major Johnson explained at length that several proposals were under consideration and that the question of color had not as yet arisen in the matter.

Camps are being utilized, he said, for religious groups the two largest being the Quakers and the Menonites. In the former, there is a possibility of having Negro members of the sect, but there are none in the latter group, which adheres to customs peculiar to their forebears in the 18th century.

Both are peace-loving folk and have no wish to carry arms or to be identified with any military matters. Therefore, they will be utilized in other capacities. At present several plans are under way for caring for them—one by which the government will take charge of their activities, the other, a joint control by the government and religious groups with both sides furnishing the necessary money, and the third for the religious groups to finance the entire cost of the camps, which, however, would be under governmental supervision.

The largest number of Negro conscientious objectors will come from the Seventh Day Adventist group which has made a large number of conversions among Negroes.

To date, no problem of race has arisen, but major Johnson says that the Selective Board will attempt to meet all situations as they arise.

Man With Wooden Leg Gets Okay For Army

MAR 31 1941

CHICAGO—(ANP)—Excitement reached gale proportions last Tuesday at the Chicago draft induction station when officials learned that a draftee with a wooden leg had been accepted and passed by a local board doctor and had presented himself for induction into the military service.

MAR 31 1941

The draftee, James Brown, 25, a colored box factory worker and draftee from local board 82, appeared before the induction official and showed his artificial leg. He was immediately rejected and then, answering a volley of questions hurled at him, told what happened.

He told the physicians that he had not undressed at the local board examination, having bared his chest. He said he had mentioned the missing leg but had apparently not been heard. Most members of Board 82 are colored, but the examining physician, Dr. Henry Schorr, is white, it was learned.

Dr. Schorr's medical report on Brown showed he had reported having a "fractured leg" in 1928, but listed no defects except enlarged tonsils, said he was "qualified for general military service." At the induction examination it was disclosed that Brown's leg was amputated below the knee after an auto accident.

Induction officials declared the problem too "embarrassing" for them to solve, said they would present it and all others like it (including a previous case where a draftee with a glass eye had been accepted by a local board) to Paul G. Armstrong, state director of selective service, for decision.

Georgia Draft To Call 10,075 Before May 16

State Boards Already Have Selected 6,674, Headquarters Says.

Draft boards in Georgia have sent 6,674 men into the Army since the beginning of selective service and are now preparing to send 3,401 more before May 16 to make a total of 10,075, it was revealed yesterday at selective service headquarters.

Already inducted are 4,871 white men and 1,803 Negroes. The preponderance of white men inducted earlier in the year is beginning to be offset by a series of large Negro calls and small quotas, or none at all, for white men.

Of 7,959 registrants sent to induction stations, 1,285, or 16 per cent, have been rejected by Army physicians. Percentage of rejections of white men was 14 per cent. Of 2,265 Negroes delivered for induction, 21 per cent were rejected.

Deliveries to induction stations have been completed almost through the seventh call. Amounts of the 10 draft calls to date follow:

Call	White	Negroes	Total
1	286	126	412
2	1,624	370	1,994
3	972	360	1,332
4	375	393	768

JUN 5 1941

By Ben Davis, Jr.

On May 30, the Associated Press printed this story from Fort Bragg, North Carolina:.

"Evidence that Negroes can see better at night than white men—a discovery which may revolutionize the Negro's role in the nation's armed forces—was carried to Washington today by two scientists who have been conducting vision tests with selectees here."

Mind you, this is serious—a great and remarkable scientific discovery. Let's doff our hats to the wizardry of the capitalists who have had men of science lay this egg.

One could not pass up this 8th wonder of the world just with a snap of the finger. It requires further examination. Indeed!

Reading further in the Associated Press story, we learn how it was accomplished by Dr. W. M. Miles, "vision expert of the National Research Council."

"Dr. Miles picked at random seven white and eight Negro selectees. (Being somewhat less than citizens, naturally it takes eight Negroes to equal seven whites—B. D.) He lined up the selectees on a night-blackened field, and told them to look at a point 100 feet away, where a stick had been placed. The Negroes could see (the object) but the whites could not."

There you have it. A thoroughgoing experiment. Seven Negroes are the basis of generalization for 15 million Negroes and eight whites are the basis for the generalization of 115 million whites. One is reminded of the "thorough going inquest" just made over the lynching of A. C. Williams a young Negro in Quincy, Florida, in which none of the lynchers were "identifiable" although the town was small enough for everyone to know everyone else.

What is the meaning of this claptrap? No doubt the answer is provided in another recent world-shaking discovery that Negroes could undergo stifling heat better than whites, and so they should do all the heavy work in the blistering sun. (Is that a theory for burning Negroes alive?) In the army they should man the tanks, where a breath of cool air is a precious luxury. (They must have made another discovery since, there seems to be no Negro tank commanders.)

It is also common talk that scientists have said that the reason Negro athletes have been so successful is because—well, maybe they're constructed differently, two hearts when other people have one, special muscles that no one else has, and all that. It means nothing to these scientists, who look for decorations from the leaders of the war program, that racial superiority nonsense has been shattered by every reputable scientist of the day.

Further on down in the eyesight story, we get to the point:

"It is presumed that if the tests are found to be conclusive, Negroes may be given such jobs as driving truck convoys during blackouts and spotting ships and aircraft at night."

In other words such scientific discoveries are for the purpose of finding some new ground upon which to segregate and discriminate against the Negro people. For if anything Negroes have worse eyesight than whites, since they have to live under such horrible conditions.

If, for example, one can figure out a way in which Negro men are physiologically "called" to drive convoys in the night, then the Roosevelt Administration and the Army brass-hats don't have to worry about giving them their full rights as officers, equal rights as privates, and equality in all branches of the army and navy.

Find a scientific test to fit, and its possible to assign Negroes to all the back-breaking, most dangerous work and then answer critics by saying: "That is the way God made them."

It seems awfully peculiar that the bourgeois scientific "experts" never find any special physical twists among the Negroes which say that they ought to have their full rights as citizens, the right to equal work and equal pay in "defense" and other industries, or the opportunity to pursue their lives free of national oppression.

The research flunkeys of the ruling monopolists seem to run up against a blank wall when it comes to finding special "racial characteristics" which entitle Negroes to decent health and homes, although Negroes have the highest death rate, and live under such abnormally poor condition that it is a wonder a good many of the Negro draftees have any eyesight at all.

But when imperialist war time comes around, Negroes are suddenly paid the honor of having the best eyesight of all humans. A few more experiments like this one, and President Roosevelt will have perfect "scientific justification" for scrapping the whole social program in favor of his imperialist ventures.

All through the years, capitalism has procured its scientists, to pervert scientific endeavor, in order to justify capitalist oppression. Once it was that Negroes were inferior as a people—this has been disproved although the capitalists and the poll taxers still hang on to it for want of something better.

In Germany, Hitler has all sorts of phony theories to justify bestial persecution of the Jewish people. The lords and ladies of the British Empire can beat the world showing why the South Africans, Indians and Irish are not quite ready for their freedom — and say so with a straight face in the name of science.

Science, of course, will finally be liberated for the good of man under Socialist America. But until that day arrives we can expect Prof. Nonsense of War university, to find a theory which will say: "Ah! according to our latest experiments on three human beings, the human race could not get along without imperialist wars, capitalism and J. P. Morgan."

Richmond and Defense

THE use of a part of the Byrd Airport by the First Interceptor Command of the United States Air Force for technical maneuvers and emergency purposes, may increase the city's chances of being designated as a defense area. While it may not be possible to prove that the city is itself a defense center, it is in a critical defense area, and the services it provides are of vital importance to this area. Every city of any importance in the nation is, of course, thinking of how it can get itself designated as a defense area, and consequently enjoy priorities on essential metals, during the defense boom. Richmond desires to secure no more advantage than that to which it is fairly entitled.

The quartermaster depot which is to be built at Bellwood, on the Petersburg Pike, is not in Richmond, but it will be served by the Deep Water Terminal, the city's inland port. Since the depot will be serving approximately 200,000 troops in this area, the terminal can be described as a facility of potentially vast importance in the service of supply of the same number of soldiers. The burden of shipping on New York and other Eastern ports in the World War, was greater than could be borne, as is well remembered. Here we have an important port, not only for the receipt of supplies for camps and cantonments in this area, but also for the dispatching of supplies to our troops stationed at outposts in the hemisphere.

"Defense area" is, in the words of one defense official in Washington, at present "a very loose term that defies definition." Only a few such areas have as yet been designated, and the definition will have to develop, perhaps by application and "further study." Richmond's strategic position is the thing that recommends it most strongly for inclusion within the critical circle. Richmond has no need at the present time for defense housing, but the construction of Gilpin Court, the Negro housing project, has some relation to defense. The evacuation of nearly 300 Negro families from this area of the city, has used up almost every available vacancy for colored tenants in Richmond. There are no places left for Negroes who might seek homes here while employed as laborers during the construction of the quartermaster depot.

The Tredegar Iron Works, the du Pont plant at Ampthill, and the Reynolds Metal Company, are essential defense industries, and the city itself is an area whose defense is vital to the protection of the most important industrial region of the nation. It is the center of vital arteries of communication, which may be said to represent the jugular veins of the Eastern seaboard. Sever these veins, and industry would be paralyzed, for over them pass the raw materials that go from the agricultural South to the manufacturing North. Not every city and town on these railroads and highways can be declared a defense area, but Richmond has a strong case for at least its designation as a part of defense area.

A Student Soldier

The Army is a cross section of America and many interesting men are called to service when the country needs defense. We have met many such men at Camp Croft and among them is Corporal Robert G. Washington, member of one of the Negro outfits at the camp. He comes from Cuthbert, Ga., and was graduated from the public schools of his town. Since he was called as a selectee he has found time to study history, biography and the Constitution of the United States and recently was winner of one of the Pathfinder prizes in a contest in which thousands of persons took part.

Corporal Washington believes that the Army offers unusual opportunities for the young man who is willing to devote his leisure time to study. Speaking of the contest in which he was one of the prize winners he said that it had enabled him to learn more of his country, its history, its plan of government and the men who have made the United States the greatest country on the globe than he could have learned in any other way.

This newspaper takes great pleasure in making Corporal Washington the subject of editorial comment. He has done some of his work in this office and has impressed the writer with his earnest search for knowledge, his mastery of the English language, his remarkable command of facts, his modesty and military bearing.

Men Expected To Be Given Regular Duty

Believe Move Made To Prevent Any Possible Conflict

OCT 1 1941

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—Negro M. P.'s were notified Sunday by their commanding officers here that their services were no longer needed. The soldiers were startled and asked for an explanation but were told that the commanding officers were merely carrying out an order from the provost marshal at the post headquarters. At the time the order was given these military police were serving only in their own territories and not in the town of Fayetteville. All were working under temporary assignment but were expected to be added as regulars if Brig. Gen. B. O. Davis' recommendation was accepted.

"Maybe we are supposed to be stooges and first pose and be stool pigeons for the white military men," suggested one of the discharged men. Reference was made to several incidents that did not meet the provost marshal's approval. Last week white soldiers were found drunk in Fayetteville's dynamic district, "Little Harlem." They were ordered away by the military police.

In another instance, soldiers were in camp awaiting a bus and waited for six hours without any result. The bus company was called by Negro M. P.'s and finally a colored bus appeared.

Some believe the move was made to remove any possibility of conflict, since Negro M. P.'s unofficially vowed to not be disarmed or bulldozed by the whites as were their comrades on the night of August 5

125 NEGROES NAMED ON TEX. DRAFT BOARD

SEP 21 1941

Major Pleased By New Plans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 — (ANP)—Following the general trend of administration of selective service affairs, the governor of Texas has just named 125 Negroes, prominent in various sections of the state, to serve on the selective service draft boards in that state.

Upon the return to Washington of Major Campbell C. Johnson he was advised through Gen. Hershey, his superior officer, that Brig. Gen. J. Walter Page, state administrator of the Selective Service act, had called in Dr. Everett H. Gaines of Austin, Texas, and upon the advice of the doctor submitted the names of prominent Texans to serve on the boards in their various localities.

Major Pleased

Major Johnson was greatly pleased with this turn of events and further called attention to the state of Louisiana where a conference recently held was working toward a similar achievement.

SEP 21 1941

Among the propositions discussed at the conference were illiteracy among the Negro registrants and how best to improve their educational standards; deferment of Negro students and Negro teachers; the improving of living conditions and health standards; with particular emphasis on the unduly large percentage of venereal cases in Louisiana among the Negro population; the unemployment situation now and reemployment problems after separation from service and the promotion of better inter-racial relations.

To Have Advisory Committee

It was further agreed that an advisory committee of outstanding Negro citizens from all sections of Louisiana be made permanent, with the three already drawn from representatives of service to the army officials. It is the duty of the selective service to furnish the men called for and from there on, the responsibility of the army's.

As the major said, the selective service branch's duties ended with the turning over of the registrants to the committee being made to the committee being made throughout the state. This is the third of a rather extended group of tours that Major Johnson has made throughout the country in behalf of the Negro in the army and law.

Long, Deep, Wide! That's How Bojangles Would Cut Adolf

As everyone knows in Harlem, if you pat, kiss, hug or touch the Tree of Hope your wish comes true. The Mayor pats, Bill Robinson kisses, after they had reset the tree in cement at rededication ceremonies in Seventh Ave. at 134th St. today.

'Devil Himself Sent Hitler,' Says Mayor At Rededication of Harlem's Tree of Hope

Herr Hitler caught it bad today in Harlem under peculiar conditions that must make him quail when he hears about it.

Right spang against the Wishing Tree or Tree of Hope which stands in the center of Harlem's Seventh Ave. at 132nd St., Bill Robinson, traditional Mayor of Harlem and dancer extraordinary, said if ever Hitler comes over here and he meets him he will "cut him three ways."

"Long, deep and wide," roared Bojangles in explanation.

Nearly 2000 people, most of them Negroes, were gathered about the Tree of Hope at rededication ceremonies. Every man, woman and child within sound of Bojangle's voice knew that if you touched or rubbed or hugged or kissed the Tree of Hope and made a wish that wish was bound to come true.

Bojangles squatted and gave the Tree of Hope a mighty smack.

"Yeah-MAN," roared nearly 2000 voices.

Time was when the Tree of Hope rose high and leafy over Seventh Ave. No man knows how far back goes the superstition about its powers. But under its boughs to breathe a wish have passed many now famous in the entertainment field and in other lines.

La Guardia There, Too.

Today the Tree of Hope—to the eye, not to the imagination—is but a stump of dead wood. A hexed motorist unearthed it some months ago and today it was rededicated. Bojangles, as Mayor of Harlem, and F. H. La Guardia, in second place as the Mayor of the City of New York, patted cement about the base of the Tree of Hope and fixed it stoutly again to Seventh Ave.

Mayor La Guardia contented himself with merely patting the Tree of Hope. He said:

"This tree, with its legend, is entirely human. I hope the time will never come when all people will lose feeling and sentiment and become resigned to whatever may come, and stop wishing.

"We want to hope—if it's for a better world, for better family life or to improve the condition of the individual. Some may say its superstition. I say it is only human.

Says Devil Sent Hitler.

"I believe in bad omens. I really believe Hitler was sent on the world by the Devil himself. Hitler's just no good. He never was any good. He never will be any good.

"The wish I am going to make today—call it superstition if you like—is that people will stop killing each other.

"I am going to wish that the bad men of this world, who are responsible for this war, will soon lose control. I am going to wish they will have to answer before their Maker, before the Throne of God, for the misery they have caused."

Nationwide Campaign To Get Underway

J. Finley Wilson Among Speakers At Dusable High

CHICAGO, Ill., (ANP)—Opening of a vast national campaign to mobilize America's Negroes into the battle against Hitlerism will be signaled at a big Negro Stop Hitler rally at the DuSable High school Sunday afternoon, October 12.

Leading south side community leaders joined in the National Negro Stop Hitler committee have summoned the meeting, which will be addressed by nationally-known speakers. Invitations to speak have already been accepted by J. Finley Wilson, Elk ruler, and Belford V. Lawson, president of the New Negro alliance with offices in Washington.

INTEGRATION—THE THEME

Integration of the Negro people into President Roosevelt's national unity effort will be the key theme of the rally. Churches, unions and neighborhood groups are active in the committee, which was initiated by Ald. Earl B. Dickerson, a member of President Roosevelt's Committee on Fair Employment, an dother distinguished local notables.

Negro youth will participate in the Stop-Hitler meeting by burning an effigy of Hitler at 35th Street and South Parkway near the gravve of a Negro soldier killed in World War 1. After hearing a talk by Willa B. Brown, noted aviatrix, the assembled crowd will march to the DuSable High school meeting.

DICKERSON IS CHAIRMAN

In calling for a big turnout by the South Side, Ald. Dickerson, who was elected chairman of the committee, declared: "Lindbergh's recent speech attacking a racial minority brings home to Negroes the danger of the appeasement doctrine. When the America Firsters, who officially sponsor Lindbergh, come out into the open with Hitler's race policies of persecution of minorities, it is time for Amercai's millions of Negroes to sit up and take notice.

"Hitlerism is an open threat to all Negro attempts to win full and complete equality, participation and integration into American life. At the DuSable High School meeting, we hope to get rolling a real counter-offensive against the fascists, both foreign and native. This means full and unlimited support to national unity for national defense.

"As part of this fight we are directing our fire against all forms of anti-Negro discrimination but never for a moment losing our vigor for the greater battle which must be waged against the axis forces of the world. Victory over Hitler will be a vast step forward for the Negro people in their fight for democratic liberties."

FWA Approves $9200 Project for Negro Soldiers' Clubhouse

A federal works agency project for $9200 to remodel a building on Harrison street near Central avenue for a Negro soldiers' club was signed by President Roosevelt yesterday.

Federal approval has not yet been received on a $50,000 recreation club to be built on N. Boulevard at the fair grounds for white soldiers.

The building for Negroes was leased for 10 years by the city from the Central Life Insurance company, with option to renew for 10 years more. The property includes the former offices of the company and an adjoining cottage, which will be used for a caretaker.

All-Out Negro Drive On Hitler Mobilized

(Special to the Daily Worker)

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Initiation of a vast national campaign to mobilize the Negro people for the battle against Hitlerism and for all-out support to the democracies will be signaled at a Negro Stop-Hitler rally at DuSable High School auditorium here Sunday afternoon.

Aimed towards participation of Chicago's Negro population in "the drive for rapid extension of aid to those who are actively fighting Hitler," the newly-formed National Negro Stop - Hitler Committee called the meeting, which will be addressed by nationally known speakers. Invitations to talk have already been accepted by J. Finley Wilson, Exalted Ruler of the Colored Elks of the World, and Belford V. Lawson, president of the New Negro Alliance with offices in Washington.

Churches, union and neighborhood groups are active in the committee which was begun by Alderman Earl B. Dickerson (2nd), a member of President Roosevelt's Committee on Fair Employment, and other distinguished local Negro notables.

Negro youth will participate in the meeting by burning an effigy of Hitler at 35th Street and South Parkway, near the grave of a Negro hero killed in the world war.

"This is our opening gun in a big campaign to spread nationally the movement to rally our people behind national unity for victory over Hitlerism," declared Alderman Dickerson, who is chairman of the committee.

"The recent speech of Charles A. Lindbergh at Des Moines attacking a racial minority brings home to Negroes the danger of the appeasement doctrine. When the America First crowd, who officially sponsor Lindbergh, come out into the open with Hitler's race policies of persecution of minorities, it is time for America's millions of Negroes to sit up and take notice.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — (Special) —The relative health and strength which characterized Negroes in the first World War is there still. This is the finding of the Medical Adbisory Board No. 19, of which Dr. J. Edgar Dibble is the chairman.

Advisory boards cooperate in the draft being the authority to whom appeal is made when the draftee is not satisfied with the findings of the draft board as to health. In recent weeks Board No. 19 has been given a clerk and some office equipment.

Dr. Dibble says the scarcity of appeals to it is indicative of the scarcity of border cases. Last year when the draft was not yet a fact and only in prospect, a statement appeared in this paper that when Uncle Sam began to draft men into the army, Dr. Dibble would be one of the examining physicians. That is proven true by his chairmanship of the Medical Advisory Board.

Dr. J. Edgar Dibble is one of the few Negro physicians who has maintained his connection with the medical reserve corps of the army in peacetime and in war. Dr. Dibble is a first lieutenant in the medical corps. He has been a part of the army since the Spanish-American war. Dr. Dibble also is designated to give medical treatment in non-military federal employes.

Indians Object To Draft

Members of six Indian tribes appeared in federal court in New York protesting against the government drafting members of the Iroquois Confederacy into the army. To do so, declared counsel for the Indians, would be a flagrant violation of the treaty of 1784 between the U. S. and the Iroquois Confederacy. Counsel for the Indians argued that the Confederacy is an independent, uncon[illegible]ed nation, subject to its own lawmakers. Attorney Wilfred E. Hoffman is pictured with Harry Patterson, left, of the Tuscarora tribe and Ivan A. Burnham of the Mohawk tribe.

Segregation Takes a Holiday at Ft. Monroe Specialists' School

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

FORT MONROE, Va.—Twenty-nine colored non-commissioned officers and first-class privates are enrolled in various branches of the Coast Artillery School section for enlisted specialists here with no segregation in the classrooms and laboratories.

Although the men are quartered AUG 2 91941 colored company of the school detachment, in the school proper they are studying radio communication, electricty and automotive mechanics with white men from all over the country.

In addition to being the center of a Coast Artillery defense sector, Fort Monroe spends much of its effort in training officers and men to play leading roles in artillery outfits in other sections.

1,200 Engaged in Study

There are more than 500 officers in the school (fourteen officers of New York's 369th were here recently and more are reported due soon) and 700 elisted men attending classes.

Here going to school is no pastime, but rather an overtime occupation for some of the keenest technical minds in artillery regiments of coast, field and anti-aircraft branches.

Students are in classrooms or laboratories at 7 a.m., and remain until 4 p.m. with one hour out for lunch. After dinner they go back to school and remain for two hours.

Their schedules are so heavy that most of them have plenty of studying to do until bed time at 11 p.m.

No Hit-and-Miss Methods

The present crop of colored enlisted students is the first and the men accept their assignments here as racial as well as military responsibility. Tinkering and hit-and-miss methods are out here, for the specialists who are graduated must return to their regiments and not only see that electric plants operate efficiently, trucks roll smoothly and communications function, but also must teach others.

Perhaps half of the colored specialists are college graduates. Every man well versed in higher mathematics, physics or chemistry on occasions takes the self-imposed task of tutoring his fellow students after school hours.

This method has resulted in good grades for all of the men and has won admiration from the officers and other instructors, who boast that the three-month course is the equivalent of a four-year course in the average technical college.

Fatigue Duty Omitted

Enlisted specialists in school are not required to perform the many routine jobs assigned to soldiers generally. They keep themselves neat and tidy their own beds and lockers. Otherwise there is no fatigue duty for them.

Members of the school detachment, in addition to serving as gardeners, janitors and general utility men, perform all the functions required in running a camp section. White soldiers in the detachment not only perform all these functions for white soldiers but also handles the details incidental to school administration.

The first colored student arrived here in July, and ten more will arrive each week until the total remains at about fifty, with some graduating weekly.

AUG 2 9 1941

Meharry Graduate and Two Others Appointed By Government

CORSICANA, Texas, (Special)—Three outstanding Negroes of this Navarro County have just been named on the Advisory Board for registrants under the Selective Service Law. They passed the requirements and have taken their oath of office. This all happened last Tuesday. The announcement was made of their appointment Tuesday afternoon by Buford H. Jester, legal advisor for the County Advisory Board

The appointments were made as the result of a request by the Negro citizens filed in state headquarters of Selective Service. This partition urged that at least three outstanding and patriotic race citizens be placed on the board. The selections made for this high honor were Dr. Walter H. Davis, a practicing physician here and a graduate of Meharry Medical College at Nashville, Tenn., Prof. H. T. Wise, an educator and principal of the Jackson High School, and the Rev. A. L. Moore, a well known minister of the city; thus, an educator, a physician and a minister of the gospel made up the trio of appointees, and they are now actively rendering services and assisting in the examination of those draftees who are being inducted into the service and being sent to the various camps here in the Lone Star and other states.

Dr. Walter H. Davis was born and reared in this city, a graduate of Pearl High school and of Meharry Medical College. He is the son of Mrs. Kittie Davis, a brother of Mr. Herman Davis and Mrs. Alberta Davis Hough. He is also a brother of Dr. Wm. Davis of Chattanooga, Tenn. The Davis family is one of the best known and oldest here in the city of Nashville. Dr. Davis is being congratulated by his friends on this recognition and this high elevation.

Negro And National Defense

Text of Radio Address By Under-Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson

NEW YORK—The following is the text of an address by Robert P. Patterson, the Undersecretary of War, on "The Negro and the Army," over the National Broadcasting Company, Tuesday evening. Mr. Patterson spoke on "The Negro and National Defense."

THIS is every American's emergency. It is no more particular than a hurrican or a blizzard. There is nothing exclusive about it. There is nothing exclusive about the war that is flaming in three continents. Let me remind you that an aerial bomb draws no color line.

On June 25th President Roosevelt issued an executive order declaring (and I quote) "it is the policy of the United States to encourage full participation in the national defense program by all citizens of the United States, regardless of race, creed, color or national origin."

CITES RACE'S CONTRIBUTION

Let us look for a moment at the Negro's contribution to the defense effort. There are 70,000 Negroes in the Army including more than 400 commissioned officers. Fifty-six nurses are now being selected for the Army Nurse Corps. The Army's Chief of Staff, General Marshall, enjoys the confidence of these soldiers as he does of all our soldiers, and I can assure you that he reciprocates that confidence.

"For the first time in American history there is a Negro brigadier general, General Benjamin O. Davis. Negro officers are being assigned to the 99th Pursuit Squadron of the Air Corps. That squadron, comprising 45 officers and 390 enlisted men, now in training at Chanute Field, Ill., will have an air base near Tuskegee, Ala., which has been designed by a Negro architect and is being constructed by a Negro contractor. The Tuskegee base, 1,700 acres in extent, will be the home field of the only tactical Air Corps unit stationed in Alabama.

"We also have a Negro unit with the tanks. And we have Negro units in every branch of the service, units which are making a fine record and of which every American, white or colored, may well be proud.

CRISIS NATIONAL

This is a national crisis. America needs every element of her population, and every element of her population needs America. This is a moment when our common danger is of so much more importance than any differences among us that all of our thoughts and all of our actions must be concentrated on the national necessity.

I want to emphasize the great opportunity—yes, the duty—which the emergency affords the average citizen, white or colored, of getting acquainter with our new Army. The army itself is made up largely of average citizens. Everyone can help to make life more pleasant for the men who constitute it, particularly when they or on leave in or passing through the larger cities. The civilian population of the South and Southwest can be especially helpful in such a collaboration, since the preponderance of our military population is in that area.

EXTOLS LOYALTY

No one dare question the Negro citizen's loyalty, and none dare question his courage—such courage as in 1918 took Private John Baker, with two fingers of his right hand shot off, through three hundred yards of heavy machine-gun fire to deliver an urgent message to his commanding officer; such courage as impelled Private Arthur Johnson, struck by a shell fragment, to carry a more grievously founded comrade a mile on his back to a first-aid station: such courage as led Private Bruce Stoney, two hundred yards out into No Man's Land under heavy fire to rescue a wounded officer lying there; such courage as drew Corporal Sandy Jones, company clerk, up to the front line when he learned that all his officers had become casualties, where he took command of the scattered elements of his unit and reorganized them.

Each of these is an authentic instance of officially recorded valor by a Negro soldier. They have been chosen at random from the list of awards of the Distinguished Service Cross during the World War, and there are many more.

BRAVERY TODAY, ALSO

There are less spectacular, but just as genuine, examples of courage today. Sergenat Samuel F. Baker, stationed at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., kept a fire hose playing on drums bulging with hot oil and ready to explode, during a recent fire at that post. He approached within fifteen feet of the death-laden containers and stood his ground despite the danger and the raging heat until he brought the fire under control.

For this gallant exploit he received the Soldier's Medal. Private Robert Mobley, stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., swam out into the deep water of Big Piney River to rescue a comrade from drowning, and for this feat his commanding officer has recommended him for the Soldier's Medal. Negro soldiers are making a fine record in efficiency and safety in the handling of live shells in ordnance depots.

It is my privilege this evening to bring you a message from General Perishing, who will celebrate his 81st birthday next month, but who still puts the safety and security of his country before everything else and who may be well called the father of national defense.

AEF LEADER WRITES

"I am pleased to state that my own experience with Negro troops has left with me a favorable impression of their soldierly qualities and efficiency. The old 10th Cavalry, a colored regiment with which I served in Cuba, acquitted itself with distinction, and our colored troops in France during the World War gave a good account of themselves and contributed to the success of the A. E. F. The following extract from a cablegram I sent the War Department in June, 1918, testifies to the splendid spirit found prevalent among them:

"'Exploit of two colored infantrymen some weeks ago in repelling much larger German patrol, killing and wounding several Germans and winning Croix de Guerre by their gallantry, has roused fine spirit of emulation among the colored troops, all of whom are looking forward to more active service. Only regret expressed by colored troops is that they are not given more dangerous work to do'."

There speaks an American soldier who knows American soldiers. And tonight all America salutes the colored American, and the part which he is so effectively and so loyally playing to protect our common country.

STOP HITLER YOUTH WIRE PRESIDENT

The Youth section of the newly organized National Negro Stop Hitler and Hitlerism committee sent this special wire to President Roosevelt last week congratulating him on his action to remove Colonel C. B. Elliot of Fort Bragg N. C., and assured him of their support in the drive for a National Unity to defeat Hitler and Hitlerism. The wire read as follows:

"President Roosevelt:

"Congratulations to you and your staff for the removal of Colonel C. B. Elliot of Fort Bragg, N. C. This action strikes vigorously at Jim Crowism of Negroes in the armed forces. We support your action as necessary to the unity which is needed to defeat Hitlerism at home and abroad. Negro And National Defense

NEW YORK—The following is the text of an address by Robert P. Patterson, the Undersecretary of War, on "The Negro and the Army," over the National Broadcasting Company, Tuesday evening. Mr. Patterson spoke on "The Negro and National Defense."

THIS is every American's emergency. It is no more particular than a hurrican or a blizzard. There is nothing exclusive about it. There is nothing exclusive about the war that is flaming in three continents. Let me remind you that an aerial bomb draws no color line.

On June 25th President Roosevelt issued an executive order declaring (and I quote) "it is the policy of the United States to encourage full participation in the national defense program by all citizens of the United States, regardless of race, creed, color or national origin."

Let us look for a moment at the Negro's contribution to the defense effort. There are 70,000 Negroes in the Army including more than 400 commissioned officers. Fifty-six nurses are now being selected for the Army Nurse Corps. The Army's Chief of Staff, General Marshall, enjoys the confidence of these soldiers as he does of all our soldiers, and I can assure you that he reciprocates that confidence.

"For the first time in American history there is a Negro brigadier general, General Benjamin O. Davis. Negro officers are being assigned to the 99th Pursuit Squadron of the Air Corps. That squadron, comprising 45 officers and 390 enlisted men, now in training at Chanute Field, Ill., will have an air base near Tuskegee, Ala., which has been designed by a Negro architect and is being constructed by a Negro contractor. The Tuskegee base, 1,700 acres in extent, will be the home field of the only tactical Air Corps unit stationed in Alabama.

"We also have a Negro unit with the tanks. And we have Negro units in every branch of the service, units which are making a fine record and of which every American, white or colored, may well be proud.

CRISIS NATIONAL

This is a national crisis. America needs every element of her population, and every element of her population needs America. This is a moment when our common danger is of so much more importance than any differences among us that all of our thoughts and all of our actions must be concentrated on the national necessity.

I want to emphasize the great opportunity—yes, the duty—which the emergency affords the average citizen, white or colored, of getting acquainter with our new Army. The army itself is made up largely of average citizens. Everyone can help to make life more pleasant for the men who constitute it, particularly when they or on leave in or passing through the larger cities. The civilian population of the South and Southwest can be especially helpful in such a collaboration, since the preponderance of our military population is in that area.

EXTOLS LOYALTY

No one dare question the Negro citizen's loyalty, and none dare question his courage—such courage as in 1918 took Private John Baker, with two fingers of his right hand shot off, through three hundred yards of heavy machine-gun fire to deliver an urgent message to his commanding officer; such courage as impelled Private Arthur Johnson, struck by a shell fragment, to carry a more grievously founded comrade a mile on his back to a first-aid station: such courage as led Private Bruce Stoney, two hundred yards out into No Man's Land under heavy fire to rescue a wounded officer lying there; such courage as drew Corporal Sandy Jones, company clerk, up to the front line when he learned that all his officers had become casualties, where he took command of the scattered elements of his unit and reorganized them.

Each of these is an authentic instance of officially recorded valor by a Negro soldier. They have been chosen at random from the list of awards of the Distinguished Service Cross during the World War, and there are many more.

There are less spectacular, but just as genuine, examples of courage today. Sergenat Samuel F. Baker, stationed at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., kept a fire hose playing on drums bulging with hot oil and ready to explode, during a recent fire at that post. He approached within fifteen feet of the death-laden containers and stood his ground despite the danger and the raging heat until he brought the fire under control.

For this gallant exploit he received the Soldier's Medal. Private Robert Mobley, stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., swam out into the deep water of Big Piney River to rescue a comrade from drowning, and for this feat his commanding officer has recommended him for the Soldier's Medal. Negro soldiers are making a fine record in efficiency and safety in the handling of live shells in ordnance depots.

It is my privilege this evening to bring you a message from General Perishing, who will celebrate his 81st birthday next month, but who still puts the safety and security of his country before everything else and who may be well called the father of national defense.

AEF LEADER WRITES

"I am pleased to state that my own experience with Negro troops has left with me a favorable impression of their soldierly qualities and efficiency. The old 10th Cavalry, a colored regiment with which I served in Cuba, acquitted itself with distinction, and our colored troops in France during the World War gave a good account of themselves and contributed to the success of the A. E. F. The following extract from a cablegram I sent the War Department in June, 1918, testifies to the splendid spirit found prevalent among them:

"'Exploit of two colored infantrymen some weeks ago in repelling much larger German patrol, killing and wounding several Germans and winning Croix de Guerre by their gallantry, has roused fine spirit of emulation among the colored troops, all of whom are looking forward to more active service. Only regret expressed by colored troops is that they are not given more dangerous work to do'."

There speaks an American soldier who knows American soldiers. And tonight all America salutes the colored American, and the part which he is so effectively and so loyally playing to protect our common country.

Atlanta Battalion Receives Orders to Mobilize Feb. 10

The Army Saturday called for 1,332 more Georgians for military service, to be delivered to Fort McPherson and Fort Benning for induction during the period between February 17 and March 11.

At the same time, the 101st Coast Artillery, Antiaircraft Battalion, which includes the former governor's Horse Guards of Atlanta, was ordered mobilized February 10 for assignment to Camp Stewart.

Only Friday this state's first full quota of 1,995 men had been delivered "on schedule and in tip-top form" during January, bringing high praise from State Selective Service officials for the efficient manner in which the call was filled by the 188 local boards.

Usual Ratio Followed

Of the 1,332 men in the February call, 972 will be white and 360 will be Negroes. It had been expected that a larger percentage of Negroes would be included in the February quota, but the figure announced Saturday by the Fourth Corps Area headquarters follows the regular population ratio of approximately 35 per cent.

The 101st Coast Artillery Battalion comprises two Atlanta units, the old Governor's Horse Guards and a newly formed headquarters battery. Other units involved when the battalion was organized a few months ago are former cavalry units in Savanah and Hinesville and a new battery in Bainbridge. The battalion will train at the antiaircraft firing center near Savannah with units from New York and South Carolina.

Eight Southern states in the Fourth Corps Area will supply 14,771 trainees during the February-March period. Eventually about half the men will be assigned to Camp Blanding near Starke, Fla., to bring the 31st Division up to war strength. Fort Bragg, N. C., will get 3,862 men, including the 2,771 Negroes from the eight states.

All Georgian white draftees will be sent to Fort McPherson for induction. The Negroes will go to Fort Benning.

Policy on Loans

A check-up by state selective service Public Relations Officer J. T. (Pat) Gillen Saturday revealed that many loan institutions in the state have adopted a policy to grant all men inducted into service postponement on payment of loans until three months after the payee has returned from his year of service.

Major Gillen pointed out that the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act does not grant an automatic moratorium as to civil obligations during military service, the power to grant a stay of civil proceedings lying within discretion of the court.

He also revealed that his survey showed that most loan companies have arbitrarily taken the number 1,200 in the national master list and will make loans to registrants who hold numbers below this on the master list. Statisticians figure that No. 1,200 being on page 29 of the list will not, under existing conditions, be reached for at least 36 months.

Guard Air Unit

Meanwhile, plans for the 128th Observation Squadron's hangar and administrative building to be constructed at Camp Gordon, upon approval of local and federal funds, were being enlarged nearly 50 per cent at suggestion of Army officials, and it is believed the squadron, when activated, will be equipped with the latest type huge bombers. Major George Finch, commanding officer, announced that many of the South's leading pilots have applied for commissions in the squadron.

Adjt. General Sion B. Hawkins, assured of local funds by city and Fulton County appropriations, has notified the War Department that ample local financial and airport facilities are available for immediate training of the organization.

State.	White.	Negro.	Combined
Alabama	1,940	385	2,325
Florida	2,061	282	2,343
Georgia	972	360	1,332
Louisiana	1,582	446	2,028
Mississippi	2,417	524	2,941
North Carolina .	1,300	355	1,655
South Carolina .	416	197	613

21 Colored Volunteers Are At Camp

Twenty-one Negro volunteers from Montgomery County were at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., today, awaiting to be assigned various camps where they will receive a year's military training.

In an impressive ceremony at the Montgomery County draft board headquarters Monday morning, the volunteers heard patriotic messages from Prof. H. L. Allison and Dr. W. E. Pannell, representing the colored Legion. A musical program was also given. Mrs. A. L. Burnet, president of the D. A. R. Chapter, presented each of the volunteers with a card to be returned to the D.A.R.'s after the recipient has been stationed at camp. Kits will be sent them by the chapter.

After the group departed by special bus to Fort Oglethorpe, a half dozen or more colored men volunteered for military service, to be called as needed.

Negro Volunteers Enter Army From County

Four negro men—all volunteers—were inducted into military service from Lexington county Tuesday morning. This completes the county's quota for the second call.

Going from Dist. 1 were Ernest and Sim Isreal, brothers, from Lexington, Rt. 1. They hold Nos. 97 and 461 in the draft assignment.

Local selective service boards furnished 23 white trainees in this second call on Jan. 17, and the four negroes accepter Tuesday completes the county's quota. All will receive their year's training at Fort Jackson.

It is expected that another call will be issued in early February.

More Negro Students Needed For Training

Negro students are needed for two defense training courses now being offered if they are to continue, it was announced yesterday.

Seventeen students are enrolled in a typing and stenography class which meets at Austin High School. Any Negro between the ages of 17 and 24 who is on the National Youth Administration rolls is eligible.

Automobile mechanics and automobile servicing courses are given eight hours a day, five days a week, at the car barn on Magnolia Avenue. Negro men between the ages of 17 and 24 who are on the rolls of either the WPA or NYA are eligible.

Musicians Between Ages 18 And 25 Army Wants

Sergeant John M. Perme in a letter to the editor of The WEEKLY REVIEW states that the United States Army is calling for the enlistment of 15 Negro musicians for the Army band at Camp Wheeler, Ga.: 1 C Flute, 1 D Flat Piccolo, 1 B Flat Trombone, 1 B Flat Bass, 1 B Flat Baritone, 2 Mellophones 4 B Flat Clarinets and 4 B Flat Trumpet players are needed. Men experienced with any of the above instruments, desiring enlistment in the Army band at Camp Wheeler Ga., are urged to apply at the U. S. Army Recruiting Office, basement Federal Bldg. Only applicants between ages of 18 and 35, single, without dependents, of good character and in good physical condition are urged to apply for these vacancies.

Governor Urges War Veterans To Register On February 22

Legion Posts Will Conduct Program At Schoolhouses

Governor Burnet R. Maybank has issued a proclamation urging all World War veterans to register February 22.

On that date the American Legion will conduct registration centers at schoolhouses throughout the state. The purpose will be the indexing and classifying of veterans as a means of listing individual qualifications for voluntary national defense work.

Governor Maybank's proclamation follows:

"Whereas, the American Legion is seeking the complete indexing and classifying of all World War veterans as a means of listing individual qualifications for voluntary national, state and local defense service, in the event of the onset of a national emergency; and,

"Whereas, no more appropriate day for the undertaking of such patriotic enterprise on the part of the American Legion can be conceived than that of the 209th anniversary of the birthday of the Father of Our Country, George Washington, on February 22, 1941:

"Now, therefore, I, Burnet R. Maybank, governor of the state of South Carolina, do hereby urge all World War veterans residing within the bounds of this state, to assist in this patriotic undertaking by freely and willingly presenting themselves for registration at the various places designated by the American Legion posts as places of registration; and I further urge all patriotic-minded citizens of South Carolina to lend their aid in this worthy undertaking."

Whites and Negroes

World War veterans will be requested to register, regardless of whether they are members of the Legion, regardless of race and regardless of what branches of the service they were connected with in 1917-18.

Army Obtains 35 Additional Land Permits

Thirty-five more maneuver area training permits were signed Thursday night by Richland county landowners at meetings at the Texas Negro school and Brown's Chapel school, army officials said yesterday.

"Both meetings were highly successful in that the owners realized the army is going to protect them against damages and they thoroughly understand the necessity of hte maneuver area in training soldiers in the art of national defense," Maj. A. R. Wellwood, rents and claims officer for Fort Jackson, said.

Senator James H. Hammond, chairman of the Richland county central committee, presided over the Brown's Chapel meeting and was assisted by J. B. Cobb, school principal; Trustees W. D. Turner, W. R. W. Davis and Jesse Chapel and Major Wellwood and part of his staff.

Albert Patterson of the Richland central committee presided at the Texas school meeting and was assisted by J. R. Scarborough and Corine A. Corley.

Last night meetings were held at Good Hope church for landowners in school district No. 11 and at Bellwood schoolhouse for owners living in school district No. 8a.

Landowners who signed at the Brown's Chapel meeting include H. W. DesPortes, Jr., 108 1-2 acres; Mrs. Virgil P. Coleman, 227; Mrs. Louise G. Six Men Go To Fort Jackson Feb. 24 From Co.

Columbia, S. C. Feb. 4—Quotas for South Carolina's 83 local boards and dates of induction for the 416 white selectees during February under the Selective Service system were announced today by Major George C. Warren, delivery and induction officer at state Selective Service headquarters.

According to the aunounced quotas Abbeville, Charleston Local Board No. 5. Walterboro, Georgetown, Camden Local Board No. 1 and Union will not be required to furnish any men.

Major Warren explained that the quotas and schedules of induction for the 197 Negroes to be inducted in February and March were not yet decided upon, and revealed that white selectees under the present call were drawn from local boards which have a preponderance of white registrants. Negro selectees will be drawn from boards with a preponderance of Negro registrants.

The quotas assigned South Carolina for February and March was considerably lower than that assigned other states in the Fourth Corps area in proportion to the state's registrants. The estimated quota for the state through June 30, 1941. was 5,957. Through the present call, the state through June 30, 1941 was 5,957. Through the present call, the state will have supplied 2,401 men, leaving a total of 3,556 to be inducted between March 4, when the last of the Negro selectees are due to arrive, and June 30.

So far, the state has been called on to furnish 1,933 white selectees and 468 Negroes. The first call was for 126 whites and 69 Negroes in December; the second 1,391 whites and 202 Negroes in January; and the third, 416 whites and 197 Negroes in February and March.

Officials at state Headquarters for Selective Service said that they had not yet been advised as to the date for future calls.

PETERSBURG, Va.—Complaints from parents concerning ill-treatment of colored selectees at Camp Lee, received by the Kansas City branch of the NAACP and forwarded to the New York office, brought about an investigation of conditions here. There are approximately 2100 Negro selectees at the Camp in the 9th Quartermaster Regiment.

The investigation showed conditions to be good and the morale of the soldiers high. There have been no apparent instances of friction between white officers and colored soldiers in the camp, although there seems to be some difficulty between Negro soldiers and Southern white soldiers and civilians in the Petersburg-Hopewell-Richmond area.

Before March 31 the quantity of food served was insufficient, quality was poor and food was often served cold. Since March 31, however, conditions have greatly improved, according to the report and trainees are now getting hot food in sufficient quantity.

Some of the difficulty with regard to poor service at mess is accounted for by the fact that colored selectees were moved out of white areas into their own segregated areas before all the mess halls in their areas were completed. This made conditions crowded and cut down the efficiency of the cooks and mess attendants.

"SUBJECTED TO BAD MORAL INFLUENCE," SEC'Y OF WAR SAYS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. (ANP)—Declaring that soldiers had been exploited financially and subjected to a bad moral influence in communities adjacent to Fort Benning, Ga., Secretary of War Stimson announced that immediately he would start an organization to deal with such conditions throughout the country.

He told his listeners there would be a committee to work with an effort toward improvements of health and sanitary conditions in towns near army posts and cooperate with law enforcement and other official agencies in the communities. The aim would be to control "undesirable persons and places", increase proper recreational facilities in the towns and protect soldiers "so far as we can from being exploited."

Speaking of Fort Benning, where there is a large concentration of Negro troops, the Secretary said there was great room for improvement in one of the neighboring town—"in all sorts of ways."

Just as soon as the post at Benning was increased, he said, and a lot of young officers came in looking for quarters nearby, all the rents in the town jumped three times their ordinary price.

Discussing the moral situation, he further said "Conditions of a moral character in one of these towns are an even worse influence."

It had been reported that this area, wherein vice was prevalent had been considered as being "out of bounds" for military forces and that the military authorities also considered extending their police activities into the town itself.

Stories of the conditions existing in the town had been vividly presented to the Secretary so he made a personal trip there to inspect and verify reports concerning the actual conditions.

Long regarded as the legitimate prey of camp followers, soldiers are victimized and exploited not only in this particular area, but in other sections where there are large army cantonments, it is reported.

Bibb Negroes Given Exams At Benning

JAN 21 1941

At Fort Benning's reception center yesterday afternoon 15 Macon Negro draftees were undergoing physical examinations before induction into the Army for a year's service

They left here by train at 12:55 p.m. after elaborate ceremonies at the Macon auditorium, a parade on Cherry street, and a chicken dinner at the Steward Chapel AME church on Cotton avenue.

The crowd at the auditorium was estimated at about twice as large as the crowd who attended ceremonies for the 54 white draftees several days ago.

Taking part in the program were Prof. James A. Colston of Ballard Normal school; the Rev D. L. T. Robinson, the Rev. E. J. Calhoun, Dr. Neale Frayser, Mattie Hubbard Jones, the Rev. G. H. Dunn, Prof. S. H. Lee, the Rev. W. M. Hall and the Rev. R. W. Stennett.

The Ballard school band led the parade on Cherry street at 11 a.m. Afterwards the Missionary society of the church gave the dinner and presented each draftee with a Bible.

Negro Injured In Camp Row

A man listed as Bert M. Chastain, 720 College street, was out under $500 last night after he had been held earlier by Bibb officers in connection with an affray at Camp Wheeler.

He was transferred to the Bibb jail late yesterday afternoon after being held in the camp guardhouse most of the day. In Macon hospital was a Negro listed as Will Brown, 315 Hammond street, who suffered a head injury when he was struck by a claw hammer yesterday morning.

Officers said Chastain hit the Negro while the latter was arguing with another laborer. Chastain said he did not intend to injure the Negro.

He was held by the county on an open charge pending further developments and has been discharged from the camp, unofficial sources indicated.

Brown was in fair condition.

Illiteracy Is Found High Among Draft Registrants

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

VIDALIA, Ga., Jan. 2.—A survey to indicate the educational qualifications of the 2,150 registrants in the Toombs county selective service list has developed the fact that 266 men signed by mark. This means that more than 12 per cent of the men between 21 and 36 were neither readers or writers. Of them, 134 were whites and 132 Negroes.

JAN 3 1941

A breakdown by age groups indicated 22 of the 21-year-old class were included, while only two of those who were 36 signed by mark. At 27, there were 30 markers and at 31 only 11 who could not sign their names.

1st Negro Conscript From Macon County Alabama, Is Honored

JAN 4 1941

TUSKEGEE INST., Ala.—James Green, the first Negro on the Macon County draft list, but not subject to call for an indefinite period, became impatient and urged his immediate induction into the service of the United States Army. He was accepted and left Tuskegee Institute Wednesday for Pensacola Fla., where it is understood he will do his preliminary training.

Green, who is a native of Macon County, was employed on a farm. His employer said he was one of the most useful men on the place and that he had learned to do all kinds of farm work, including cooking in which he had attained a high degree of proficiency. He was assured of an assignment in the service where his talents will be of use to the unit to which he will be connected.

Green was accorded many courtesies by the Britton G. McKenzie Post No. 150 of the American Legion, Roger McDonald, Commander, prior to his departure. He was presented with a leather traveling kit and several other useful articles by members of the Post who also furnished him, his mother and sister transportation to Chehaw where he entrained for Pensacola. A large group of Legionaires accompanied him to the station.

Eight-Week Course Set To Open At Schools During Week

Plans are complete for the opening of five national defense training classes at Greenville county schools this week under the supervision of vocational agriculture teachers.

The schools are Berea, Fork Shoals, Mauldin and Fountain Inn. The negro school at Chapman Grove will also offer the courses.

The courses, financed by the federal government, are open without cost to out-of-school youths between the ages of 17 and 25 years. The classes will run for at least eight weeks and will cover 120 hours of work.

Negro Rejects Exceed White

JAN 23 1941

More than twice as many local Negro selectees as whites were rejected at induction centers last month for physical reasons according to a report yesterday by Lieut. Col. A. C. Gray, District Selective Service medical officer. In percentages rejection's were nearly six times greater for Negroes.

During September 1004 draft registrants were sent to induction centers at Richmond and Baltimore, and 150, or nearly 15 per cent, were turned down.

Of these men, 286 were Negroes sent to Baltimer, of whom 105 were rejected, or nearly 37 per cent. At Richmond, 45 of 718 whites were not passed by the doctors. This is a percentage of 6 per cent.

Gonorrhea disqualified 22 of the Negroes. Next was mental deficiency, for which 21 were not passed. Thirteen were turned down for syphilis. Dr. Gray stated that the cases of gonorrhea and syphilis were probably acquired in most cases between the time of physical examination and induction.

Psycho-neurosis topped the list of disqualifications for the whites with seven men not passing for this reason. Other reasons were: Dental defects, 2; visual defects, 5; ear defects, 5; hernia, 6; pilonidal cyst, 2; musculo skeletal, 3; heart disease, 3; lungs, 3; chronic alcoholism, 1; illiteracy, 1; epilepsy, 1; endocrine, 2; over or under weight, 3, and gonorrhea, 3.

Other defects listed for Negro registrants were: dental defects, 3; visual defects, 3; skin, 1; hernia, 3; hemorrhoids, 1; musculo skeletal, 6; hypertension, 4; lungs, 3; chronic alcoholism, 1; illiteracy, 8; psychoneurosis, 6; epilepsy, 2; albuminuria and pyuria, 8.

Masons, City Provide Hall For Pleasure Of Soldiers

With a soldiers' recreation center at Main and Laurel streets assured, Mayor L. B. Owens said yesterday that Columbia would try to have at least three such places for the comfort and pleasure of the soldiers at Fort Jackson.

These would be in addition to one for Negro soldiers if provisions can be made, he said. He added that the procuring of the building formerly used for the city's bus terminal was "just a starter." It will be known as the Masonic Service center and will be operated by the Masonic Service association.

It was understood that an additional fund would be sought for recreational facilities for Negro troops at the fort. A center for the use of Negro troops is now under consideration, the initiative in the matter having been taken by a citizens' committee, including Andrew W. Simkins, Seymour Carroll and Dr. Samuel R. Higgins, president of Allen university.

Of approximately 22,000 soldiers at Fort Jackson, approximately 300 are Negroes. That number is expected to be extended to 1,000 in a few months.

Emory Ozabel, a retired master gunner of the Marine corps, will come to Columbia to take charge of plans for the Masons' recreation center, it was announced last night by O. Frank Hart, grand secretary of Masons of South Carolina.

Mr. Ozabel will arrive to take charge of the plans Monday morning. He has an appointment with Maj. Philip B. Peyton, commander of the First corps, for that day. Mr. Ozabel will have charge of repairs to the building and setting up the recreation center after the lease on the building goes into effect January 15.

Life pointed out that while cities near other army encampments were successful in making soldiers' leisure time pleasant, Columbia was doing little to relieve the boredom of troops on leave from Fort Jackson.

However, plans for recreational facilities for the soldiers have been under way for some time. One of the projects now under consideration is that of the American Legion and the committee on the Hampton museum to establish an enlisted men's social center at old Chicora college in quarters formerly occupied by the state department of public welfare.

Mayor Owens said that procuring satisfactory buildings had been a major obstacle in establishing recreational centers.

Rent on the building for the Masonic Service center will be paid by the city of Columbia and other expenses will be handled by the Masonic Service association, an organization through which Masons of lodges throughout the country pool their service funds where they can give more service. The recreation center will be made a terminus for Columbia-Fort Jackson buses.

G. A. Buchanan, Jr., chairman of the Columbia-Fort Jackson committee, said that some public agencies would be required to assist in renovation of the old bus terminal.

"We wish to express appreciation to Mayor Owens and other members of city council without whose assistance the establishment of this center now would have been impossible," he added.

Mr. Buchanan said the city and the Fort Jackson-Columbia committee were investigating the possibility of establishing an army and navy Y. M. C. A. in Columbia.

The Columbia Masonic service center will be the first of several in the United States, for which the Masons have established a fund of $249,800.

More Volunteers Told to Report

The draft board announced yesterday that two negro volunteers had been ordered to report for a year of service at Camp Blanding on Jan. 21. The negroes are Rosco Salters, unemployed cook, and Oscar Sing Jefferson, yardman. One of them will replace Ollie Williams, first Lee county negro to report and who was turned down when he reached camp last month by army physicians.

Four white men ordered out to fill this month's quota have already been notified to report on Jan. 13. They are Dempsey Ballard, Roland Brooks, Wilbur Vernon Gee and Jeff David Powers. Last month Lee county's quota was lone white man with Kemp Wood getting the assignment. All these first draftees are volunteers.

Negro Soldier Recreation Center Opens

Columbia's first recreation center for Negro soldiers will be opened at 1125 1-2 Washington street Saturday, February 15, civilian and military officials announced late yesterday.

The center will be sponsored by the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity. Officers for the center are: C. A. Flipper, president; Herbert E. Dickson, secretary; and J. E. Dickson, treasurer and director of activities.

The program for the new center and plans for its opening ceremony are being worked out by civilian and military authorities. Co-operating with the officers of the center are Lieut. Col. Lewis A. Page, provost marshal at Fort Jackson and First Sgt. Benny Perry, Company G, Twenty-eighth Quartermaster company, and others.

Colonel Page will speak on the opening program as will several other military and civilian leaders.

Activities made available for Negro soldiers at the new center will be extensive. When the center is completed and running under full draft, soldiers will have facilities for reading books, reading periodicals, playing cards, playing pool and ping pong and many other recreation center games.

Also arrangements are being made for the Negro soldiers to use the Allen university gymnasium.

The WPA national defense recreation unit is co-operating with the program. The program will be directed and planned by J. E. Dickson.

The center has the support and endorsement of Mayor L. B. Owens and the city council.

NEGRO IN NAT'L DEFENSE IS DISCUSSED BY WPA EDUCATOR

MAY 4 - 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In a timely message which is creating wide discussion, James A. Atkins, Specialist in Negro Education, Federal Work Projects Administration, shows what roles both teacher and student must take in aiding the National Defense Program, and indicates the steps leading to national unity through interracial understanding and cooperation.

Mr. Atkins' statement appears in the April 7-12, 1941, issue of the Teachers' edition of "Our Weekly News," published by the American Education Press at Columbus, Ohio. Three members of the Public Activities Program staff of the Federal WPA have had messages in this publication. Home and family living, workers' service, and the general field of adult education are the subjects covered by those staff members whose articles appear in earlier editions of "Our Weekly News."

"Increasingly, during the past year, has the problem of national defense occupied the minds of all Americans," the WPA Specialist in Negro Education says. "And because of the many difficulties of adjusting civilian thinking and practices to military and industrial defense, this problem looms larger upon the Negro's horizon than upon that of many other groups. In some sections the problem of national defense has raised these difficult questions: What has the Negro to defend? Is there not an exceedingly large amount of unemployment among Negroes? Do they not live in slums where there are many lacks, such as good housing, sanitation, adequate fire and police protection, education, hospital service and so on?

"An affirmative answer to such questions as these would not relieve the Negro population of the obligation to put its shoulder to the wheel to defend democracy."

The work to be done by adult teachers, continues Mr. Atkins, centers on a speed up in national defense and the preparation for cushioning of the shock of that even more critical period which is bound to follow the present world struggle. At the same time the education specialist sees the need for expanding and intensifying the drive to eliminate practical illiteracy; to improve health conditions among Negro citizens; to raise the living standards in Negro homes; to develop an adequate program of social and vocational guidance for Negro adults, and to assist wherever possible in efforts to promote national unity by removing barriers to interracial understanding and cooperation.

Turning to the question of national unity, the WPA Specialist in Negro Education claimed: "The nation as a whole may not be well enough acquainted with the achievements of the Negro ... to appreciate his possible contribution to a finer social order. Likewise, a large part of the Negro population possibly does not grasp the full significance of the Anglo-American contribution to the growth and development of the democratic way of life in the modern world. This situation presents a challenge to the teacher who is willing to work to develop a better understanding of the principles upon which our Government is built and of the manifold advantages and opportunities which it affords to its many and diverse peoples to perfect democracy in our America."

In the earlier part of his message, Mr. Atkins traces the growth of the Emergency Education Program and calls attention to the marked benefits received by Negro students from the WPA Adult Education and Nursery School Programs. He also pointed to the growth in home and community pride and cleanliness. "There is still an enormous task ahead," the education specialist says. "In areas where most of the Negro population lives, one in every three or four Negro adults lacks a knowledge of the modern world. The average school attainment of the adult Negro is probably less than six grades of the common school. About ten of every one hundred Negro adults still sign their name by making their mark."

ILLITERACY AND STRAIGHT SHOOTING

Drafting of illiterates into the armed forces will cease after May 15, according to announcement from Washington. After that date, it is announced, men otherwise eligible will be rejected unless they can read and write up to the fourth grade level.

Offhand, to a layman, this looks like a fool regulation. Freely conceding that, all other things being equal, an educated soldier is better than one who is not, it still seems that some form of military service should be open to the illiterate even in this day and time.

MAY 9 - 1941

David Crockett, the celebrated frontiersman, could not read, yet was thrice elected to Congress and did as well there as some of the pussyfooters now in Washington. He died in the Alamo with Mexican dead piled up before him as deep as any college professor could have piled 'em, perhaps more so. Among the frontiersmen who followed Old Hickory at New Orleans there was no doubt an appalling degree of illiteracy. But, they handled the long rifle in a fashion that made hash of British veterans who had fought under Wellington on the battlefields of Europe.

MAY 9 - 1941

Of course, war may ultimately get so scientific that participation will be restricted to college graduates who understand higher mathematical theory.

Here is the 10-cent postal savings stamp which went on sale throughout the U. S., May 1, in connection with the sale of national defense savings bonds.

Commissions In Army Given 300 Race Medics

Two Officers Of NMA Have Gone Into Service

NORFOLK, Va.—.SNS)—The Negro in America is really doing his share in America's great emergency. Additional evidence that the nation's colored brothers have not failed in the crisis was shown this week when the files of the National Medical Association revealed that over 300 colored doctors had volunteered for the United States Army Medical Corps since the beginning of the vast Selective Service Program.

This item of evidence was added to the rapidly growing list of patriotic contributions of the rae by Dr. John T. Givens, general secretary of the National Medial Association in an announcement issued from his office here this week. Dr. Givens, who is in the midst of preparations for the 47th annual convention of the NMA in Chicago, August 18-22, has received many letters from physicians who have been assigned to the medical corps to serve units of the Army

The general secretary pointed at stations all over the country. out that through recommendations from its president, Dr. Vaughn of St. Louis, several Negro physicians have been granted commissions in the United States Army.

The Association itself must handle some of the important phases of its annual convention this year without the services of some of its officeholders who have gone into the service of the country. Among them are Dr. A. C. Terrence, of Opelousas, La. assistant secretary, and Dr. William E. Allen, of St. Louis director of exhibits.

Dr. Givens gave a brief outline of the highly interesting program for the annual meeting which will be held at DuSable H'gh School and at Provident Hospital in Chicago during August.

Dig To The Bottom

MAY 4 1941

HARDLY HAD THE INK dried on the Selective Service Act and the draftees quartered when there were widespread rumors and counter complaints of discrimination raised by some of the very men drafted for the National Defense Program. In many of the plants for the manufacture of defense material were complaints of injustices meted out to colored workers.

Abroad in the land is the unsolved incident of a lynching near Fort Benning. This ugly incident has never been explained to the satisfaction of the millions who are lining up as a solid unit behind the defense program.

Whether on civil or military premises, lynching is but lynching and regardless of the offense alleged, the lynchee is entitled to his day in court. In most all cases of this nature we hear only one side of the issue.

This is no time for pilfering and maltreating. We are all one country now and we move toward a common end. We are in this struggle for the triumph of democracy and have thrown our lot with those fighting for human freedom and common justice.

Men cannot be enthused to fight for something they have not known themselves—security in person, social justice and free manhood rights

The authorities of the land should leave no stone unturned in an effort to go to the bottom of these injustices emitting oft times in whispers—and the ryanton beating and lynching of men in the custody of their country in process of training.

MRS. BETHUNE'S SLOGAN

In an address before some four hundred women who went to Washington recently and participated in a "conditioning" clinic, in which she and Mrs. Roosevelt did notable service for their party, as far as preaching its gospel was concerned, Mrs. Mary Bethune is quoted as saying, "Negroes must get ready to fight Hitler and it must be all out" or it is all over." NOV 28 1941

Whether Mrs. Bethune thought up that slogan or not we don't know. We do know it is a "honey." It would have stirred the colored communities like a prairie fire if put in circulation some 24 years ago when we were getting ready to fight the war to end all wars, and to make the world safe for democracy. It is not so very potent now, even when uttered by a good Chsistian like Mrs. Bethune.

The greatest issue before the Negroes of the United States at present is the question of Peace or War. Negroes should be opposed to an unnecessary war because of its barbarism and because it is not destined to settle any of the problems of this nation or of the Negro race. NOV 28 1941

If Mrs. Bethune takes the sane view that Negroes should be united in an all-out effort to build America so strong that no foreign dictator will dare attack this country, she need have no worry about the loyalty of the men and women of her race to an enterprise like that.

But, if, as is very likely, Mrs. Bethune, like so many other starry-eyed New Dealers is trying to convince her race that America can best be defended by sending American boys to fight and die in Europe for the preservation of the British Empire, she has undertaken too big a load for her shoulders.

It is well known that more than 80 per cent of Americans are opposed to sending an expeditionary force to fight in Europe, Africa or Asia over the issues which have produced the present war in Europe. Just about every twenty years, unless Godliness, instead of paganism takes over in Europe, they are going to resume wars between the Highwaymen and Hijackers of that continent.

America should be engaged in an effort to establish a reign of genuine Christianity in Europe. This can not be done by this country descending to the level of paganism on which European rulers persist in living.

Mrs. Bethune is a noted leader of the Methodist Church. Most of the great women of her church, we are gratified to note, are militant opponents to this nation becoming unnecessarily involved in Europe's war. They do not believe that shouting for war is "the way of the Cross." And they will have nothing to regret if they are able to preserve their country from the horrors of war.

Mrs. Bethune knows that SHE is not going to do any fighting and dying in Europe, and probably has no children of her own whom she will be sending to Europe's slaughter pen.

Mrs. Bethune should be able to find a more worthwhile project to bring before her people than a "ghost story" designed to frighten them into believing that Hitler will come over here if we do not hurry over there and attack him. The reaction of American Negroes to British propaganda, designed to arouse them into a willingness to go to Europe to fight another of Europe's wars should be:

"THE YANKS AIN'T COMING OVER THERE AND HITLER BETTER NOT COME OVER HERE."

Mrs. Bethune would be surprised to find out how much enthusiasm she could arouse if she went about the country speaking to her people from the text above mentioned.

She is going to get very few "AMENS" from her sermon on "It is all out or it is all over," we are very proud to believe, knowing as we do, the amount of sound, common sense Mrs. Bethune's people have.

Black Dispatch
Oklahoma City, Okla

But It Happened In Georgia

DEC 27 1941

Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia has tackled a problem in brotherhood which to date Governor Phillips of Oklahoma, has refused to face. Last week, Governor Talmadge appointed four Negroes to the Georgia State Defense Council.

In Georgia, 4,000 whites and blacks met together in Macon and agreed upon a joint plan of action in facing the enforced problems of war. In Oklahoma we follow old precedents and stupid notions that ignore the important part Negro leaders should play in helping to think through methods and devices by which the almond-eyed monsters lurking at the door of our national life may be brought to their knees.

With the thought that Governor Phillips could be aroused to see the necessity of such an effort, the Negro Democrats of the state assembled last week, passed resolutions requesting the governor to give Negro leaders an opportunity to serve, and this writer in addition addressed a special delivery letter to the governor's office last Wednesday, discussing the same subject.

There follows the letter written to Governor Phillips by this writer: DEC 27 1941

December 17, 1941.

Governor Leon C. Phllips
Capitol Building
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma
Esteemed Sir:

I desire in this letter to make an appeal to your sense of fair play, justice and patriotism. It is my information that Thursday you are making final preparations with the State Council of Defense for an all-out unification of war effort in the State of Oklahoma.

The 200,000 Negroes of this state are anxious to join with their white brothers in preparation to offset the savage, cowardly attack launched upon this nation by foreign foes. We feel that this responsibility rests on the shoulders of all American citizens, and as in the past Negroes want to do their part at home and on the battle field.

But, Governor Phillips, the fathers and mothers of Oklahoma's black boys who soon must become cannon fodder, while forming a breastwork for civilization, should be given the right by you to sympathetically shape and pattern their defense programs in the state. To date nothing has been done to make this possible.

Let me give you some concrete examples of what happens under such conditions. Twenty years ago, when Negro boys were being sent overseas, Negroes were denied representation on the Oklahoma County Council of Defense, and this was the general practice all over the state.

At that time Negroes had three fine cafes on California street, just west of the Santa Fe depot, but despite this fact, government agencies contracted with a Greek food handler in the same block, who, when Negroes learned of it, was feeding these Negro boys on the ground in the rear of his restaurant. During the present world strife many Negro draftees have had to go to the rear of a white cafe on North Broadway, Oklahoma City, to eat. In my judgment, this is utterly unfair, and such conditions are not calculated to improve or sustain the morale of the Negro soldier. Surely Negro boys leaving their homes and firesides should eat like men with their own folk while preparing to defend their country. DEC 27 1941 picture I wish to draw. I recall at one time the citizens of Chickasha telegraphed me to come to their city.

I found when I arrived at Chickasha that two Negro soldiers, coming up from Camp Travis, having become ill, were detrained at this point for hospitalization. Instead of placing them in the hospital, these helpless black boys had been placed in an out-house, in the rear of the Chickasha hospital. The nasty, dirty condition of the room is almost unbelievable.

I telegraphed the War Department and in a few hours the boys were transferred to Fort Sill and given proper treatment.

I might go on and on to recite other incidents too numerous to mention, resulting from failure to allow adult Negroes opportunity to assist in civilian defense programs.

Following these disclosures the Oklahoma County Council of Defense admitted Negroes to membership and in several isolated instances the same policy was adopted over the state. Draft boards were at first composed of all-white personnel, but in the second draft Negroes were given permission in Oklahoma City to handle the registrations, and following their work they were commended as having done the best job in the city.

I feel in this all-out effort to consolidate the latent power and strength of the state, Negro leaders should be counted in. Drastic military rules are going to be visited upon the populace, and I am sure patriotic black men and women should be kept in closest touch with what is going on and understand the reason why certain things are done.

To accomplish what I have in mind, I think you would be wise, Governor Phillips, to designate Negroes on state, county and local defense councils. I feel they should be named on draft boards and designated as air-raid wardens. Such an arrangement would work for effectiveness in the general program, and would cause thousands of black men and women to swell with patriotism far above their normal inclinations.

I want you to know that the Black Dispatch is one hundred per cent behind any effort or program you may devise. Our columns are open to any and all proclamations or announcements having to do with state papers issuing from your office, but I believe that by acceptance of the view I have expressed here you will assume a position meeting the approval of thousands of white as well as black citizens of the State of Oklahoma.

(By AMPA)
WASHINGTON.

Charged with making false statements concerning his ability to read and write when filling out his draft questionnaire, Dallas Thompson, 21, was sentenced to from one to three years' imprisonment by Federal Judge J. Leroy Adair here recently.

"The army doesn't need fellow like you. The service wants only the best boys in America," the judge said in passing sentence.

District Director of Selective Service William E. Leahy expressed satisfaction when notified of the sentence, saying it would serve as a warning to young men attempting to evade their duty in the war emergency.

Wants Leaders Named Who Sanctioned Training Of Negro Troops In South

DEC 21 1941

SAN ANTONIO (Dec. 11 — (ANP)—Commendation was given the war department last Saturday by the Texas CME conference here, when it reported that the war department had acted favorably in the matter of investigating thoroughly the purported "gross mistreatment of Negro draftees in training at southern camps," especially at Camp Bowie, Brownwood, Tex., which was depicted as a "sore spot loaded with dynamite" and likely to "explode any minute." However, the public relations secretary the Rev. C. E. Chapman, was asked to seek specific information relating to "Negro leaders" who "either sanctioned or approved" sending Negro enlistees into southern camps for training where a "known policy on the part of the southern whites is to 'keep the Negro in his place'."

DEC 21 1941

The action of the war department came after five annual conference had made strong appeals for the alleviating of conditions at camps in Texas. In response to one of the telegrams sent to the war department deploring treatment of Negro soldiers, President Bishop Randall A. Carter, of Texas CME churches, received a reply that "any reports of incidents of intolerance against Negro soldiers are fully investigated by the war department and action taken in each case consistent with the facts adduced." Assurance was given that no efforts would be spared to avoid discrimination to soldiers because of their color.

Who Were They?

However, the conference took exception to that part of the telegram which read "policies relating to the employment of Negroes in the army have been arrived at after a great deal of consideration in which Negro leaders have participated, and are considered sound."

Rev. Chapman was designated to contact army officials in Washington to ascertain the names of the alleged "Negro leaders" who are said to have "participated." The conference holds that no real "Negro leader" would sanction the treatment accorded to colored troops, and called attention to the fact that white officers of the south took "special pride" and "go out of the way to embarrass, browbeat, intimidate, threaten and mistreat Negro enlistees from northern states."

Pending word from the war department, the public relations secretary said he would look after the matter just as soon as the final annual conference in the series of five had been held. The final in the series closed last Sunday night.

Fort Huachuca Is Cluttered with Morale Missionaries

NOV 22 1941

Ollie Stewart Finds Host of People Busy Trying to Keep Soldiers Happy at Desert Camp; First Army Bowling Alleys Unearthed on Post Where 125 Children Attend School 9 Months

By OLLIE STEWART

FORT HUACHUCA, Ariz.—Isolation or no isolation, the morale (that poor, over-worked word that covers a multitude of wasted effort—and money) of the soldiers out here in the desert has got to be elevated and kept high. Gosh, they work hard enough to jack it up!

Until I got here and saw a host of people working like beavers to keep the soldiers from having a moment to sit down and quietly ponder the whys and wherefores of what's happening to them, I hadn't realized what an important item this morale thing really is.

Soldiers Never Mention It

Recently I've heard more about it than I have about guns and bullets. And I wonder whether I am crazy for wondering why I never hear a soldier mention morale!

Maybe the poor guys would rather go out and get rip-roaring drunk—something the morale-lifters don't advocate—and forget, in their own low-brow but extremely human way, that they're in something that's shot through with prejudice and meanness, and the only end for them is a bitter one.

Post Has Full Quota

Anyway, this place is full up to here with morale-boosters. The USO, the YW and YM and a Catholic organization have all sent representatives. Add these to two chaplains, three hostesses and a librarian—and the poor soldier too stubborn to want a dose of morale is plumb out of luck. They pour it down him.

And just as if all these let's-have-fun missionaries weren't enough, Howard University has lent one of its best drama coaches to Huachuca, to help the boys brush up on their cues and exit lines—when they exhibit camp talent from behind the footlights. His name is James A. Butcher—and in one month he has made the post drama conscious.

Female Dramatic Coach

With a different sponsor, but boosting the same product, is Miss Shirley Graham—writer of operas and plays, no less. You remember Miss Graham. She comes from Cleveland, and some years ago her opera "Tom-Tom" ushered her name into headlines from coast to coast.

Since then she has studied playwriting at Yale and has written a lot of dramatic works. The Theatre Guild is now considering her latest for possible Broadway production.

Sneak Act on the USO

Well, Miss Graham is working right here at Huachuca, and doing right well in behalf of the USO. I attended a party she gave for a bunch of new soldiers—and except for the fact that the girls she promised the boys never did show up, it was one swell party.

The boys sang, ate some ice cream, sang some more—then found out the girls weren't coming and slipped out to the PX to tank up on beer. They took me along out of sympathy.

With Miss Graham is a hard worker from Texas—and Prairie View College. Her name is Miss Loraine Sprott — who the boys say doesn't have to sing, dance or otherwise provide recreation activities.

A Dream Walking

The boys say all she has to do is just walk across a stage, across the camp area—across anything, so long as they can look at her. In school, physical education was her major, which will give you some idea of why the boys like to watch her walk.

Then there is Mr. Palmer and Mr. Johnson, whom I didn't see, because they were in Los Angeles showing 200 soldiers the glories of lower California. They took the boys first to the Ohio State-Southern California football game—then turned them loose.

One of the boys wound up in Chicago with me the next week, but if his company commander reads this, the lad was on his first furlough in seven months.

Mrs. Carter Hostess

Mrs. Mary M. Carter is senior hostess. The widow of the late Col. Louis A. Carter, who retired here in 1940, as post chaplain, after thirty years of army service. Mrs. Carter comes from Winston-Salem, N.C., and has seen a lot of the army while her husband was serving with the 9th and 10th Cavalry, the 24th Infantry and the 25th Infantry.

She has been in the Philippines, in Vermont and on the Mexican border. She still likes the army. And to prove it, has publicly invited all the soldiers to cry on her shoulder when they feel blue and have problems. The only stipulation she made was that they come one at the time.

A Poetess on the Post

Mrs. Beatrice Gildersleeve of Houston, Tex., is junior hostess in charge of the guest house. A former teacher in Burrus Junior High, Houston, she writes poetry when no guests are in sight—and recently had some of her work accepted for publication in "Poets of America," an anthology.

However, she is just as proud of the fact that her guest house has had a part in two camp weddings—and that the names of Ella Fitzgerald and Jack Teagarden are scrawled in her guest register.

The lady with the constant headache in camp is Miss Mary M. Brooks, junior hostess in charge of the cafeteria. She is a native of Waco, Tex. A graduate of Paul Quinn and former student at Bishop College, she was teaching cooking at a CCC reservation near Waco prior to accepting her present job.

Cause for a Brainstorm

The cafeteria employs eight persons, and they're good workers, but preparing and serving food—and showing a profit—is always a problem—and especially in this camp where the PX serves sandwiches and light lunches, the mess halls are going full blast and the bowling alley has a lunch counter.

All these workers manage to keep the soldiers in a rather cheerful frame of mind. There is a first-rate band, under the direction of Warrant Officer Wade H. Hammond. Mr. Hammond (I think that's the correct way to refer to a warrant officer) has put up enough time in the army for retirement, but he likes his work better than leisure time on his hands.

Most Respected Man

The swing band is good, too, but it is more or less a private enterprise among the men. Mr. Hammond stresses light classics and good old military marches, and is perhaps the most respected man on the post.

There is a nature club, art group, camera club, tap dancing group, acting, writing and journalism activities. There is a baseball field and a basketball court for every company. There's bowling, the only time I have encountered bowling alleys in any camp. And, of course, the men have movies and recreational halls—and both regiments have chapels.

The service club is the center of interest. It had been closed for a week when I arrived and was closed (I learned) for several days after I left. The floors were being scraped and waxed. Dances are held in the service club at least once a week.

125 Kids in School

One amazing thing here is the distance between the guest house and the service club. The guest house is in one corner of the area occupied by the 25th, and the service club is located at the other end of camp in the 368th area.

The enrollment of children of non-commissioned officers in the post school is approximately 125. The school runs for nine months. The six teachers are as follows: I. C. Snowden, principal; Juanita L. Sheppard, Bernice McDonald, Katherine G. Wells, Beatrice H. Grevenberg and Mignon Bevis.

National Defense Classes Organized In County

The Superintendent of Education has announced the organization of Out of School Youth National Defense Classes for Sumter County for the School year 1941-42 as follows:

Livingston: Operation, care and repair of Automobiles, trucks and tractors.

Cuba: Metal Work.

County Training School for negroes: Woodworking and Elementary Electricity.

Kinterbish Negro School: Metal Work and Woodwork.

The Vocational Agriculture teachers of the County will have general supervision over the classes held at their respective schools. Mr. Harvey, Vocational Agriculture teacher at Cuba will supervise the class at York sincc there is no Vocational Agriculture Department at that center.

The work done in the OSY program is of a general nature and is not intended to train for specific jobs. It is planned to organize later courses for training in specific jobs for outstanding pupils in the OSY program. The course for specific jobs when organized will be under the supervision of Mr. J. O. Stewart, Diversified Occupation teacher at York.

Mr. T. A. Markham, Vocational Agriculture Teacher at Livingston has been appointed Liaison Teacher for the County and Miss Evelyn Hyatt Secretary.

These classes begun on October 20. Out of School Youth between the ages of 17 and 25 are invited to enroll.

Baptists Vote To Back U. S. Defense Policy

Approval of a disputed committee report calling for indorsement of the national defense policy and selection of Savannah as the 1942 meeting place marked the closing session of the Georgia Baptist convention here yesterday.

Controversy over the defense expression and of a section devoted to race relationships came to speedy conclusion after the social service commission stated its unanimous decision to stand by its original report.

The convention Wednesday ordered the report back to the commission when the Rev. J. G. Jackson, of Clayton, and several others objected to what was termed "blanket indorsement of the administration's defense policies."

Opposed "War Policy."

The Rev. Jackson yesterday disclaimed being a pacifist, but said he did not consider it the function of the church to support "a war policy." His motion that the section devoted to national defense be stricken entirely from the report was defeated by a voice vote.

The Rev. John Clark, of Acworth, and A. T. Persons, of McDonough, urged adoption of Rev. Jackson's motion, while Carlton W. Binns, Atlanta lawyer; the Rev. W. M. Marshall Jr., of LaGrange, former Congressman W. D. Upshaw, the Rev. Ryland Knight, of Atlanta, and A. B. Dorrough, of Atlanta, opposed.

A motion by the Rev. Willis E. Howard, of LaGrange, that the report be received as information without a vote was defeated.

Wording Changed.

The social service commission changed the wording of a section devoted to race relationships, however. The original asked, in part, that state educational facilities and opportunities for Negroes be improved "to equal the advantages of other racial groups."

This was made to read:

The report in another section urged election of prohibition advocates to the next legislature.

Another convention action sent back to the foundation committee a report on efforts thus far to raise $5,000,000 over a five-year period for Baptist schools in Georgia.

Asks New Study.

The motion to recommit asked the endowment foundation committee, five members at large, heads of the five Baptist institutions, the convention president and its secretary and treasurer to restudy and revise the report and submit it to a meeting of the executive committee of the convention meeting here in December.

Chief discussion centered on the suggestion that $12,000 be provided for promoting the endowment campaign the coming year.

Schools delegated to benefit from the endowment fund are Mercer University, Shorter College, Bessie Tift College, Norman Park Junior College and Brewton-Parker Junior College.

Approximately $35,000 has been raised since the endowment campaign was formally launched last April 19, the report said.

English Flying Cadets March With American Forces In Montgomery

MONTGOMERY, Ala.— (AP)—The growing might of America's Air Force and the close relationship with Britain was demonstrated dramatically here Tuesday as thousands of United States and British Flying Cadets marched together in an Armistice Day parade.

It was believed by Montgomery officials to have been the first time Britons have participated officially in an armistice parade in this country, at least on such a large scale. Some 3,000 American cadets and several hundred Britishers were in the line of march, bayonets bared to the sun, while airplanes zoomed overhead.

In between the companies strode color bearers with the Stars and Stripes, the Union Jack and the blue banner of the air corps rippling in the chilling breeze. The grey-clad trainees from across the ocean were accorded waves of applause.

Gray ladies and white-clad Red Cross volunteers, R. O. T. C. boys and military school students, American Legionnaires, enlisted men from nearby army posts, including a company of Negroes, marched down Dexter Avenue from the capitol past a reviewing stand occupied by high army, state and city officials.

The Maxwell Field Band, others from Sidney Lanier High School and the Negro Reform School at Mt. Meigs, played "Over There" and other martial tunes at intervals. At 11 a.m. the marchers paused and thousands of onlookers who lined the streets stood with bared heads as bugles sounded "Taps" in memory of those who died in the first World War.

At the first Baptist Church, where hundreds of Baptist messengers were attending their annual convention, there was a brief pause for prayer for restoration of peace to the world.

NEGRO TRAINING PLANS OPPOSED

NOV 28 1941

Alabama Labor Leaders Reported Against Vocational Idea

Strong resistance by Alabama labor unions and state vocational leaders to development of vocational training schools for Negroes in the vicinity of shipbuilding yards along the Atlantic and Gulf seaboard was reported from Washington Thursday by Carroll Kilpatrick, special Washington correspondent of The Birmingham Age-Herald and News.

Kilpatrick said the project is receiving the attention of the Committee on Fair Employment Practice, and that in some of the shipyard areas, particularly in the Carolinas, progress is being made.

The training proposal is based on the record made by Negro workmen employed in great numbers at Hog Island shipbuilding yards during the First World War, Kilpatrick reported. The past record is being upheld at yards where Negro workmen are now being utilized, such as Pascagoula, Miss., and Charleston, S. C., he added.

Negroes Are Barred

In one Mobile shipyard Negro workmen are barred under an AFL Metal Trades Council contract, and at another the number of Negroes employed is only about 20 per cent of the total skilled and unskilled laborers required, Kilpatrick said.

In both yards, Kilpatrick said the committee reported, there is a dearth of workmen and advertisements have been inserted in out-of-town newspapers seeking additional white employes. Meanwhile, a white housing shortage was reported being aggravated by the new influx of workmen, and the city is asking for funds to build between 4,000 and 5,000 defense houses at a cost of approximately $3,200 each.

Spread of existing jobs among Negro workmen capable of holding them, already residing in Mobile, would ease this situation, the committee believes. A few weeks of training would be given to prepare them for the specialized work.

Discrimination Law Cited

Members of the Washington committee, named by the president, last week called to the attention of Alabama officials provisions of defense contracts which specify there shall be no discrimination against any workman because of "race, creed, color or national origin," and asked for cooperation in the Negro training program.

Officials in Mobile argued, Kilpatrick said, that Negro workmen should not be trained for skills they are not accustomed to practice, and that in some of the shipyard areas, particularly in the Carolinas, progress is being made.

Committee members said no progress was made in the Alabama discussions, but let it be known that they expect the Alabama State Board for Vocational Education to work out a satisfactory solution to the problem.

Money for the training schools, first of which are expected to be organized in Wilmington, N. C., and Charleston, is furnished by the federal government but administered by the state.

NEGRO TRAINING PLANS OPPOSED

NOV 28 1941

Alabama Labor Leaders Reported Against Vocational Idea

Strong resistance by Alabama labor unions and state vocational leaders to development of vocational training schools for Negroes in the vicinity of shipbuilding yards along the Atlantic and Gulf seaboard was reported from Washington Thursday by Carroll Kilpatrick, special Washington correspondent of The Birmingham Age-Herald and News.

Kilpatrick said the project is receiving the attention of the Committee on Fair Employment Practice, and that in some of the shipyard areas, particularly in the Carolinas, progress is being made.

The training proposal is based on the record made by Negro workmen employed in great numbers at Hog Island shipbuilding yards during the First World War, Kilpatrick reported. The past record is being upheld at yards where Negro workmen are now being utilized, such as Pascagoula, Miss., and Charleston, S. C., he added.

Negroes Are Barred

In one Mobile shipyard Negro workmen are barred under an AFL Metal Trades Council contract, and at another the number of Negroes employed is only about 20 per cent of the total skilled and unskilled laborers required, Kilpatrick said.

In both yards, Kilpatrick said the committee reported, there is a dearth of workmen and advertisements have been inserted in out-of-town newspapers seeking additional white employes. Meanwhile, a white housing shortage was reported being aggravated by the new influx of workmen, and the city is asking for funds to build between 4,000 and 5,000 defense houses at a cost of approximately $3,200 each.

Spread of existing jobs among Negro workmen capable of holding them, already residing in Mobile, would ease this situation, the committee believes. A few weeks of training would be given to prepare them for the specialized work.

Discrimination Law Cited

Members of the Washington committee, named by the president, last week called to the attention of Alabama officials provisions of defense contracts which specify there shall be no discrimination against any workman because of "race, creed, color or national origin," and asked for cooperation in the Negro training program.

Officials in Mobile argued, Kilpatrick said, that Negro workmen should not be trained for skills they are not accustomed to practice.

Committee members said no progress was made in the Alabama discussions, but let it be known that they expect the Alabama State Board for Vocational Education to work out a satisfactory solution to the problem.

Money for the training schools, first of which are expected to be organized in Wilmington, N. C., and Charleston, is furnished by the federal government but administered by the state.

LET US FACE THE TRUTH

I

In New York Harbor, on an island close to the steamship lanes, stands the most famous statue in the world. It is not the most beautiful statue, but to many millions of passengers coming up the bay it has seemed to be. It stands for one of the dearest dreams in human history—Liberty.

The millions who pursued that dream began to come before there was a statue to greet them. They came first when the shores were lined with solemn woods. They came in sailing ships when the voyage required two months or more. They came in crowded steamship steerage under hardships not much less. They came to Plymouth Rock and to Ellis Island.

They came for one reason, escape: escape from religious or political persecution, from caste systems, from overcrowding and from lack of opportunity. But the hope of leaving all of the Old World behind could not be realized. Their hearts and heads forbade it. Their roots in its culture ran too deep. And the sea itself grew ever narrower. Express steamers began to cross it long ago in less than a week. Airplanes can span it now in less than a day. The wireless leaps it in less than a second. Emotion, ideas, even physical force can now move around the world more effectively than they could cross the tiniest country a century and a half ago.

There is no isolation. There are only lines of defense. Distance is vanishing. Strategy is everything. And strategy in this year of grace has become the art and science of survival: survival in the personal sense, survival of ideas, survival of culture and tradition, survival of a way of life.

II

Those who tell us now that the sea is still our certain bulwark, and that the tremendous forces sweeping the Old World threaten no danger to the New, give the lie to their own words in the precautions they would have us take.

To a man they favor an enormous strengthening of our defenses. Why? Against what danger would they have us arm if none exists? To what purpose would they have us spend these almost incredible billions upon billions for ships and planes, for tanks and guns, if there is no immediate threat to the security of the United States? Why are we training the youth of the country to bear arms? Under pressure of what fear are we racing against time to double and quadruple our industrial production?

No man in his senses will say that we are arming against Canada or our Latin-American neighbors to the south, against Britain or the captive states of Europe. We are arming solely for one reason. We are arming against Hitler's Germany—a great predatory Power in alliance with Japan.

It has been said, times without number, that if Hitler cannot cross the English Channel he cannot cross three thousand miles of sea. But there is only one reason why he has not crossed the English Channel. That is because forty-five million determined Britons in a heroic resistance have converted their island into an armed base from which proceeds a steady stream of sea and air power. As Secretary Hull has said: "It is not the water that bars the way. It is the resolute determination of British arms. Were the control of the seas by Britain lost, the Atlantic would no longer be an obstacle—rather, it would become a broad highway for a conqueror moving westward."

That conqueror does not need to attempt at once an invasion of continental United States in order to place this country in deadly danger. We shall be in deadly danger the moment British sea power fails; the moment the eastern gates of the Atlantic are open to the aggressor; the moment we are compelled to divide our one-ocean Navy between two oceans simultaneously.

The combined Axis fleets outmatch our own: they are superior in numbers to our fleet in every category of vessel, from warships and aircraft-carriers to destroyers and submarines. The combined Axis air strength will be much greater than our own if Hitler strikes in time—and when has he failed to strike in time? The master of Europe will have at his command shipways that can outbuild us, the resources of twenty conquered nations to furnish his materials, the oil of the Middle East to stoke his engines, the slave labor of a continent—bound by no union rules, and not working on a forty-hour week—to turn out his production.

Grant Hitler the gigantic prestige of a victory over Britain, and who can doubt that the first result, on our side of the ocean, would be the prompt appearance of imitation Nazi regimes in a half-dozen Latin-American nations, forced to be on the winning side, begging favors, clamoring for admission to the Axis? What shall we do then? Make war upon these neighbors; send armies to fight in the jungles of Central or South America; run the risk of outraging native sentiment and turning the whole continent against us? Or shall we sit tight while the area of Nazi influence draws ever closer to the Panama Canal and a spreading checkerboard of Nazi airfields provides ports of call for German planes that may choose to bomb our cities?

III

But even if Hitler gave us time, what kind of "time" would we have at our disposal?

There are moral and spiritual dangers for this country as well as physical dangers in a Hitler victory. There are dangers to the mind and heart as well as to the body and the land.

Victorious in Europe, dominating Africa and Asia through his Axis partners, Hitler could not afford to permit the United States to live an untroubled and successful life, even if he wished to. We are the arch-enemy of all he stands for: the very citadel of that "pluto-democracy" which he hates and scorns. As long as liberty and freedom prevailed in the United States there would be a constant risk for Hitler that our ideas and our example might infect the conquered countries which he was bending to his will. In his own interest he would be forced to harry us at every turn.

Who can doubt that our lives would be poisoned every day by challenges and insults from Nazi politicians; that Nazi agents would stir up anti-American feeling in every country they controlled; that Nazi spies would overrun us here; that Hitler would produce a continual series of lightning diplomatic strokes—alliances and "non-aggression pacts" to break our will; in short, that a continuous war of nerves, if nothing worse, would be waged against us?

And who can doubt that, in response, we should have to turn our own nation into an armed camp, with all our traditional values of culture, education, social reform, democracy and liberty subordinated to the single, all-embracing aim of self-preservation? In this case we should indeed experience "regimentation." Every item of foreign trade, every transaction in domestic commerce, every present prerogative of labor, every civil liberty we cherish, would necessarily be regulated in the interest of defense.

But the most tragic aspect of this attempt to survive, alone on our continent, is that it would amount at best merely to sustaining life in a charnel-house. With Britain gone, with the bright lamp of English liberty extinguished, with all hope of resurrection denied to the little democracies that have contributed so generously to our civilization and our culture, with the hobnailed boots of an ignorant and obscene barbarism echoing in every capital from London to Athens, we should live in a new world, changed beyond all recognition.

In this downfall of democracy outside the United States there would come, for many of our own people, a loss of faith in our own democratic system. Our confidence would be undermined, our vision dimmed, our ranks divided. In a dark, uncertain world we should stand alone, deriving from no other country the sustaining strength of a common faith in our democratic institutions.

What would it profit us to achieve, at last, this perfect isolation?

APR 30 1941

IV

The Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor has looked down across the bay at many men who have crossed the ocean to find freedom. It stands now as a silent witness to the fact that we are already locked in mortal combat with the German system.

American courage and American idealism, together with the sound common sense of the American people, summon us to the defense both of our physical security and of those moral and spiritual values which alone make life worth living. This defense means many things. It means, in the first instance, a clear recognition that the most dangerous of all courses we could follow in this hour of decision is a policy of drift: of do-nothing while there is still time to act effectively; of letting hesitancy ripen into disagreement, and disagreement curdle into factions which will split the country.

It means strong leadership in Washington: a willingness to forego the methods of indirection and surprise and veiled hints and innuendo, and to state the plain facts of the situation boldly. It means leadership which is as generous as it is strong: leadership which is willing to forget old quarrels, ready to bring into positions of high power and into the innermost confidence of the Government the accredited spokesmen of the opposition party; leadership which is at last prepared to delegate all necessary authority to the engineers of American production.

It means a genuinely firm insistence that strikes or lockouts in defense industries will no longer be tolerated by public opinion. It means more immediate aid to the brave people who are now fighting in the front line of our defense. It means encouragement to American aviators who are ready to fly our own planes in the battle over Britain. It means a determination to see that our vital supplies reach England, under the protection of our own guns. Above all else it means a decision to avoid the same mistake that the democracies have made over and over again—the mistake of "too little and too late."

There is no escape in isolation. We have only two alternatives. We can surrender or we can do our part in holding the line. We can defend, with all the means in our power, the rights that are morally and legally ours. If we decide for the American tradition, for the preservation of all that we hold dear in the years that lie ahead, we shall take our place in the line and play our part in the defense of freedom.

Negro Service Center Opened

Macon's Defense Recreation committee officially opened a service recreation center for Negro trainees of Camp Wheeler last night, with talks by Army men and white and Negro leaders.

Hamilton Holt, chairman of the recreation committee presented the center's keys to H. R. Harris, chairman of the service center committee. The keys were then presented to the Rev. D. L. T. Robinson, Negro minister, and committee chairman.

Those making two-minute talks were Mr. Holt, Calder Clay, chairman of the board of county commissioners; Major J. D. Blair, representing the city council; Dr. C. W. Dyer of the Negro Business and Professional Men's club; Alma E. Williams, president of the Progressive Federated club for Negro women; Brig. Gen. John H. Hester, commanding general of Camp Wheeler; Major Williams, welfare officer at Camp Wheeler; Major Miner W. Barnwell, executive officer of the 16th Training Battalion, and Chaplain M. L. Faulkner of the 16th Training Battalion.

Colored Soldiers Need Recreation Room Equipment

By MRS. R. L. SUGGS

Recreation centers were not erected at Camp Forrest for colored soldiers until the past few weeks. On my visit there Sunday in the interest of the soldiers, I found two centers, and there was only one chair in one of the centers and the other without anything. The government does not furnish equipment for these centers, but rather the various communities.

On my return, I immediately contacted the seven ladies of Royal Lily Bridge Club, since I knew they had a few dollars in the bank. Without hesitating these ladies agreed that the entire account plus an addition be used to the best advantage in the purchase of equipment for these day rooms.

We purchased, new, eight well-built chairs, two good quality card tables, games such as table tennis, checkers, Chinese checkers sets, several decks of cards. This will be taken to Service Detachment, D. E. M. L. 4th C. A. S. C., Commanding Officer Captain McMurry, First Sgt. Bill Clover, Camp Forrest.

This is only a start but will be greatly appreciated by these soldiers. Groups from Nashville are going to help. I am making an appeal to any person or group who would like to aid in helping to add comfort to these centers with new or used equipment. If you wish, you may send contributions to my residence, or phone 321 and I will be glad to pick up same and see that it is properly sent in. Or if you desire any information along this line I will be glad to help. Visit this area some time. Most of this group are from lower parts of Mississippi and they are lonely; they need contacts; help them

NEGROES SEE BETTER THAN WHITES

According to a news report, two white scientists who claimed to be vision experts, have discovered that Negroes can see twice as well as whites at night. The test, we are informed, was made among the draft selectees, using so many whites picked at random and so many colored selected in the same way.

Of course no statement has been made as to why Negroes can see better than whites at night. At first we were inclined to think that it might be that the selectees came from a certain section of the country where their diet might have had some effect on their vision, but the report indicates that some four thousand men were examined from many sections of the country. Thus we are left in the dark as to the cause and we may only speculate that it is the intelligence and superior mind that enable the Negro selectees to see better than the whites at night. If we take the word of the Christian Scientists we might conclude that we see with the mind rather than with the optics.

But be that as it may, we would suggest that a further and a more scientific study be made because by so doing other superior qualities in the Negro youths may be discovered. We have always contended that Negroes would make better aviators than whites. We base that belief upon the fact that the Negro youth, when given the opportunity, has proved conclusively his superiority in many tests, not only in scientific research, but also in practical application. Surely this discovery by two white vision experts should be a lesson to those who would deny the Negro the chance to show his worth in many lines, particularly in our National Defense Program. Surely this expose' is a mighty challenge to Uncle Sam to look to the Negroes of this country for new things in the developing of the defense program. Given the opportunity the young Negro may be able to revolutionize many of the outmoded methods of the present day in the army, navy, etc., because he, the Negro youth, will be able to SEE, "twice as well".

Private Saves Officer's Child, but Is No Hero

FORT MONROE, Va.—Private Oliver Walden of the Coast Artillery School detachment here has received a commendation from General Clark, commandant of the school, for his rescue of Shirley Anne Woodland, white, daughter of a non-commissioned officer, in the bay here.

Lieut. Calvin Cook, commander of Walden's company, and other officers investigated the case in which the little girl swam beyond her depth and was being carried out by the tide on July 26.

General Clark said in an official order that Walden missed getting a hero's citation only because he is a good swimmer and was in no personal danger.

Third row—Privates Booker T. Watson, Atlanta; Leon Leake, Savannah; Sergeant Abner Jackson, director, Tallahasse, Fla.; Privates Henry G. Morris, Vero Beach, Fla.; Henry Shandison, Columbia, Tenn.; Mose Lamar, Albany, Ga.; Royal Flagg, Brownsville, Tenn., and J. Van Malone, Cleveland, Tenn.

cient young men—the cream of the selectee crop—for the speedy examination and classification of the recruits. Most of the staff are college men, lawyers and newspaper men, with a sprinkling of ex-school teachers thrown in.

Wherever possible, according to information received at the center, men with special training and talents are placed in units and given work in the army that will give them opportunity to develop these special aptitudes.

Center Has Chaplain

As many as 500 men have been examined, classified and assigned to camps in one day. The average day is 150. There are many days, however, when not a single man is received for induction into the army.

The center has its own chaplain, First Lieut. Luther M. Fuller of Chelsea, Mass., and former pastor of the People's Baptist Church, there.

Chaplain Fuller's three assistants are: the Rev. Van J. Malone, former pastor of Pleasant Grove Baptist Church, Cleveland, Tenn.; Booker T. Watson, Morehouse College graduate; and George B. Booker, of Mobile, Ala.

OPM URGED THE EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN IN NAT'L DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Employment and training of women in defense jobs without lowering wage, hours and other working standards was urged today by Sidney Hillman, associate director general of the Office of Production Managment, in letters to nearly 200 airplane companies and other defense contractors

To avoid unnecessary importation of "out-of-town" labor and the resultant housing difficulties and uprooting of families, Hillman urged these manufacturers to seek qualified women workers to fill a long list of operations which they can satisfactorily perform. It was noted that shortages in available and qualified male workers are occurring already in defense industries in some sections.

"Defense employers should indicate to the State Employment Service those occupations in which women will be used, and training agencies will establish defense training courses for women in those occupations requiring training," the letter said.

Surveys of the aircraft industry show women are competent in such work as machine shop, press and forming, metal fabrication, bench and stainless steel assemblies, fuselage assembly, wings, control surfaces, cowling, welding, fairing, tank, final assembly, painting, covering, heat treating, anodizing, welding, and many other operations.

Radio electrical manufacturing, small parts producers, and other defense industries have successfully employed women in many occupations, Mr. Hillman's letter noted that the ability of adequately trained women to do such jobs was demonstrated during the World War, and since that time in industry itself.

"It is necessary," he said, "that the hours of work, rates of pay, and conditions of work conform with established standards for the industry, in order that there may be no disturbance due to a lowering of these standards."

The letter was addressed to about 75 airplane and airplane parts companies in southern California, about 12 companies in Wichita, Kansas and 90 defense manufacturers covering a wide variety of products, in Connecticut.

Negro Soldiers

The attitude of civilians and civil authorities, as well as Military Police, toward Negro soldiers in a number of communities presents a problem, which is already serious and freighted with grave consequences, but which threatens to flare at any moment into incidents which may result in great loss of life and very serious embarrassment to the government and the Negro people.

Any kind of soldiers is always a problem. Civilians and local law enforcement officials find it difficult to cope with the situations and often serious trouble arises from the presence of soldiers in a given community. But that difficulty is always heightened, when for any reason the element of race prejudice enters the equation which is almost always the case when there are Negro soldiers.

The recent trouble at Fort Bragg in North Carolina and in Arkansas gives evidence that the Military Police in one instance and the civil authorities in the other were actuated by race prejudice in their handling of situations which otherwise might have been adjusted with a minimum of friction and far less unfortunate results.

We want to be absolutely fair in the matter, and we do not deny that there are frequent problems of discipline, which tax the powers of the authorities, but what the law enforcement officials will have to learn, both in the army and out of it, is that they only aggravate the situation when for any reason they give the impression that they are prejudiced in their action, because the soldiers involved are Negroes.

Negro soldiers who are being trained to fight for the preservation of democracy are not going to stand for discrimination and mistreatment by narrow-minded and prejudiced white men, who, because of their ignorance, are bent upon trying to keep Negroes in what they arrogantly call "his place." Black men who fought in every war of this republic have come to the conclusion that they know what their place is and are determined to make this nation a "land of the free and the home of the brave." To them it will mean just as much to die for the cause of freedom at home as in some foreign war and for some vague and meaningless crusade which has no fruitage in their native clime.

It is the testimony of white military officers and civilians that Negro soldiers are usually orderly and behave themselves on par and frequently above that of white soldiers under similar circumstances, and it is, therefore, very difficult for us to believe that there is sufficient provocation for some of the things which have recently happened.

AN INVESTIGATOR REPORTS

Close upon the heels of The Pittsburgh Courier's investigators, Attorney Curtis Todd, NAACP lawyer visited Ft. Bragg and investigated the recent tragic events for the Association.

Attorney Todd's report confirms the findings of Pittsburgh Courier reporters and underscores the demand of this newspaper that Negro troops be moved to posts outside the South.

Dwelling on the almost total lack of decent recreational facilities for these young men in Fayetteville and environs, he says, "They can go into none of the theaters or better eating places."

Imagine a soldier in the uniform of his country and engaged in training to defend democracy and the Four Freedoms being treated in such a manner? Imagine him beaten and bullied by his so-called white comrades.

Is it any wonder that Attorney Todd can report of their morale that, "Most of them take a fatalistic attitude. They know they have their backs to the wall, but they also know there is nothing they can do about it!"

Contrary to the recent statement of one of the colored chaplains at Fort Bragg that all the Negro soldiers are satisfied with the South, Attorney Todd reports that after talking with young Negroes from Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi and Michigan, he found that "all of them want desperately to be moved."

We agree with the Negro soldiers that they ought to be moved.

We see no merit whatever in the argument of some Negroes that the government should permit these soldiers to "defend themselves" against insult and persecution.

If the government will not insist upon their proper treatment and protection, it will certainly never invite them to shoot down white people who mistreat them, and it is astonishing that any responsible Negro anywhere would even dream of the government doing this.

POLICIES REMAIN UNCHANGED; BUS- MP's SORE SPOTS

FORT BRAGG, N.C., Sept. 11 (ANP)—After the tragic killings involving white M.P.'s and Negro soldiers encamped at Fort Bragg, the Public Relations Bureau is launching a huge propaganda program there. This program is without doubt attempting to cover up unfavorable publicity uncovered by various news comments of eastern newspapers.

In the Fort Bragg propaganda setup there is a coast-to-coast radio broadcast from the Fort every Thursday night from 6 until 7 o'clock. The officials in charge always include an act from one of the Fort's Negro Units to have civilian listeners believe that Fort Bragg's Negro soldiers are having a wonderful time.

POLICIES UNCHANGED

In another instance an announcement was made that white soldiers would be offered tickets to college football games at half price. Also they announced that they were contacting officials of A. and T. college, Shaw university and Fayetteville State Teacher's college to make similar arrangements for Negro soldiers of Fort Bragg.

It was further stated that Military Police would be assigned to all games. Negro soldiers are protesting such a move unless the Military Police used are Negroes.

In its usual manner policies remain the same at Fort Bragg according to reports of men stationed there.

BUSES REMAIN A SORE SPOT

One soldier stated that bus transportation for Negro troops is worse than ever. Instead of one bus every hour, buses are now running on the average of one bus for Negro troops every two hours. Also troops having overnight passes are sure to be late for the 6 o'clock morning reveille by depending on the bus. The first Negro bus from Fayetteville, nine miles away, arrives at 8 a.m. There is a "reveille bus" for white troops arriving at the Fort at 5:30 a.m., allowing them ample time to make this formation.

In the 16th Battalion of the Field Artillery Replacement Center the Post Exchange formerly employed five Negro civilian clerks with a white manager. Two days after the bus tragedy five white clerks replaced them and three Negroes were demoted to porters.

Also noted were instructions to all mess sergeants to lock up all meat cleavers and butcher knives in mess halls to make sure Negro troops would be unarmed in case of any racial outbreak.

CITIZENS INDIFFERENT

In a recent interview with several Negro citizens of Fayetteville, where heroic Private Ned Turman met his death, this writer found many of them not interested and indifferent about the affair.

One Fayetteville cab driver said, "It don't matter a d——m to me. I am only interested in getting more cab runs myself."

A cafe operator when asked what did he think about the affair, answered, "To be honest, I'll tell you I don't care much about northern Negroes myself."

Prices in Fayeteville's Negro enterprises wre found to be parallel to prices in New York. A 10-cent bottle of beer costs 15 cents, hotdogs and hamburgers are 10 cents and the most-talked about extreme prices were cab fares.

The writer climbed into one of the brightly painted cab and the driver asked, "Are you a civilian or soldier?" Not waiting for an answer he stated, "I just wanted to know because we always charge more for soldiers because soldeirs are not permanent as civilians and we soak 'em whenever we get a chance."

MP's CRACK DOWN ON CIVILIAN DRESS

After questioning soldiers concerning prices a soldier stated he missed the last bus to the Fort the night before and attempted to find lodging at one of the better lodging houses and was forced to pay $3 for a single bed, or if he was found on Fayetteville streets after 1 a.m. he would have been jailed by white Military Police.

Following the recent bus tragedy many Negro troops dressed in civilian clothing to avoid the constant dogging of white Military Policemen. This was soon noticed by the ofay M. P.'s and thereafter all buses carrying Negro troops were stopped and all passengers were questioned whether they were civilians or soldiers. They were askd to show their socks or underclothing. Most of them were wearing G. I. (Government Issue) socks and underclothing. Reports were that these that were found were made to dismount from the bus and walk back to their units.

NOT TALK BUT ACTION

Draftees in one Southern army camp refused a furlough unless they were provided with colored military policemen and colored truck drivers for their trip.

A good deal of racial discrimination in army camps will cease when large numbers of men refuse to be jim crowed.

When solid groups of men are willing to do without rather than accept half a loaf, they will be well on their way to solving their own problems.

AN INVESTIGATOR REPORTS

Close upon the heels of The Pittsburgh Courier's investigators, Attorney Curtis Todd, NAACP lawyer visited Ft. Bragg and investigated the recent tragic events for the Association.

Attorney Todd's report confirms the findings of Pittsburgh Courier reporters and underscores the demand of this newspaper that Negro troops be moved to posts outside the South.

Dwelling on the almost total lack of decent recreational facilities for these young men in Fayetteville and environs, he says, "They can go into none of the theaters or better eating places."

Imagine a soldier in the uniform of his country and engaged in training to defend democracy and the Four Freedoms being treated in such a manner? Imagine him beaten and bullied by his so-called white comrades.

Is it any wonder that Attorney Todd can report of their morale that, "Most of them take a fatalistic attitude. They know they have their backs to the wall, but they also know there is nothing they can do about it!"

Contrary to the recent statement of one of the colored chaplains at Fort Bragg that all the Negro soldiers are satisfied with the South, Attorney Todd reports that after talking with young Negroes from Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi and Michigan, he found that "all of them want desperately to be moved."

We agree with the Negro soldiers that they ought to be moved.

We see no merit whatever in the argument of some Negroes that the government should permit these soldiers to "defend themselves" against insult and persecution.

If the government will not insist upon their proper treatment and protection, it will certainly never invite them to shoot down white people who mistreat them, and it is astonishing that any responsible Negro anywhere would even dream of the government doing this.

POLICIES REMAIN UNCHANGED; BUS- MP's SORE SPOTS

FORT BRAGG, N.C., Sept. 11 (ANP)—After the tragic killings involving white M.P.'s and Negro soldiers encamped at Fort Bragg, the Public Relations Bureau is launching a huge propaganda program there. This program is without doubt attempting to cover up unfavorable publicity uncovered by various news comments of eastern newspapers.

In the Fort Bragg propaganda setup there is a coast-to-coast radio broadcast from the Fort every Thursday night from 6 until 7 o'clock. The officials in charge always include an act from one of the Fort's Negro Units to have civilian listeners believe that Fort Bragg's Negro soldiers are having a wonderful time.

POLICIES UNCHANGED

In another instance an announcement was made that white soldiers would be offered tickets to college football games at half price. Also they announced that they were contacting officials of A. and T. college, Shaw university and Fayetteville State Teacher's college to make similar arrangements for Negro soldiers of Fort Bragg.

It was further stated that Military Police would be assigned to all games. Negro soldiers are protesting such a move unless the Military Police used are Negroes.

In its usual manner policies remain the same at Fort Bragg according to reports of men stationed there.

BUSES REMAIN A SORE SPOT

One soldier stated that bus transportation for Negro troops is worse than ever. Instead of one bus every hour, buses are now running on the average of one bus for Negro troops every two hours. Also troops having overnight passes are sure to be late for the 6 o'clock morning reveille by depending on the bus. The first Negro bus from Fayetteville, nine miles away, arrives at 8 a.m. There is a "reveille bus" for white troops arriving at the Fort at 5:30 a.m., allowing them ample time to make this formation.

In the 16th Battalion of the Field Artillery Replacement Center the Post Exchange formerly employed five Negro civilian clerks with a white manager. Two days after the bus tragedy five white clerks replaced them and three Negroes were demoted to porters.

Also noted were instructions to all mess sergeants to lock up all meat cleavers and butcher knives in mess halls to make sure Negro troops would be unarmed in case of any racial outbreak.

CITIZENS INDIFFERENT

In a recent interview with several Negro citizens of Fayetteville, where heroic Private Ned Turman met his death, this writer found many of them not interested and indifferent about the affair.

One Fayetteville cab driver said, "It don't matter a d——m to me, I am only interested in getting more cab runs myself."

A cafe operator when asked what did he think about the affair, answered, "To be honest, I'll tell you I don't care much about northern Negroes myself."

Prices in Fayeteville's Negro enterprises wre found to be parallel to prices in New York. A 10-cent bottle of beer costs 15 cents, hotdogs and hamburgers are 10 cents and the most-talked about extreme prices were cab fares.

The writer climbed into one of the brightly painted cab and the driver asked, "Are you a civilian or soldier?" Not waiting for an answer he stated, "I just wanted to know because we always charge more for soldiers because soldeirs are not permanent as civilians and we soak 'em whenever we get a chance."

MP's CRACK DOWN ON CIVILIAN DRESS

After questioning soldiers concerning prices a soldier stated he missed the last bus to the Fort the night before and attempted to find lodging at one of the better lodging houses and was forced to pay $3 for a single bed, or if he was found on Fayetteville streets after 1 a.m. he would have been jailed by white Military Police.

Following the recent bus tragedy many Negro troops dressed in civilian clothing to avoid the constant dogging of white Military Policemen. This was soon noticed by the ofay M. P.'s and thereafter all buses carrying Negro troops were stopped and all passengers were questioned whether they were civilians or soldiers. They were askd to show their socks or underclothing. Most of them were wearing G. I. (Government Issue) socks and underclothing. Reports were that these that were found were made to dismount from the bus and walk back to their units.

Travelers all over the United States who have been filled with a summer wanderlust, will soon settle down to a saner, more quiet life as Old Man Winter approaches Eastern United States. Rounding out a gay and colorful season at Atlantic City, vacationers made the best of Labor Day by taking a final fling at this popular resort. Ruth Samuel of Philadelphia, shown in Photo 1, carries that "look of satisfaction" because of the fine surroundings. Headed in the same mental direction are Minnie Cooper and Louise Harris, in Photo 2. Grace Clifford, in No. 3 photo, of New York seemingly looks into the future and sees biting winds that will be her lot in the Big City up North! TROOPS IN MORE CLASHES IN SOUTH

DETROIT, Mich. — Sworn statements of four members of the 84th Engineers division told a story of vile treatment to which the troops were subjected at Camp Robinson, Ark. The four men had made their way back to Michigan by hitch-hiking and riding freight cars. They had gone AWOL rather than submit to intimidation by state patrolmen and civilians at Camp Robinson.

The men testified that not only were colored troops forced off the highway at machine gun-point by bands of whites, but their commanding officers were insulted and one white lieutenant, Donald Curry, was slapped by a patrolman. Protesting against the imperious demands of the southerners to "get those damn niggers off the highway," the white officers were called "niggr-lovers" and "damn Yankees."

The NAACP placed the responsibility for race clashes in and around military camps on the government's policy of segregation. It stated that the episodes in Arkansas and North Carolina are the direct outgrowth of the philosophy of the War Department which caters to southern segregation tradition. The NAACP emphasized the imperativ eneed for a change in this philosophy.

Terror Breeds New Outbreaks In Dixie Camps

Negro Soldiers Fight Back Against Injustices Of Army and Civilians

Four hundred colored selectees from the North, boiling with resentment from typical Southern Negro-baiting, are dangerously near to open revolt. And some 500 Northern whites from New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia, are openly supporting the Negroes in defiance of "cracker tactics."

It is a story of hard work backed by rank, harsh, unjust treatment in a setup where the ofifcers, only source of protection for the men, turn their backs and refuse to raise a single voice or hand in protest.

The 400 Negroes are members of the 393d Quartermaster Battalion. Drafted from the north, mainly in the metropolitan area of New York City itself, they were sent down to Texas for preliminary training, achieved the highest marks in the entire Selective Service program and were then shipped to New Orleans where they are performing the work of longshoremen and stevedores.

The barracks where the Negroes are housed, face one side of a highway and men on sentry duty face a continual barrage of insulting epithets from natives who are always passing by.

When the soldiers go off duty and are forced to ride the New Orleans street cars—jim crow, of course—they are subjected to all sorts of indignities, more often forced to give up their seats on little or no pretext and jailed promptly if they offer the slightest protest.

Colored soldiers are locked up every night for such incidents.

And, the Negroes are getting very tired of the whole thing.

Already one New Orleans policeman, attempting to demonstrate his authority over a small group of colored soldiers, has been "sapped up" in approved fashion. The cop, later swearing he could identify his assailants, was taken out to the barracks to face the entire lineup.

He couldn't pick out his man or men.

Right across from the Negroes' barracks are housed the 500 or more whites from the north. They're bakers, engaged in producing bread for the Army. The Negroes have no trouble with them—in fact, they're quite friendly.

So much so that they have made it clear to the Negroes that any time the latter want to "start something" they can count on the bakers' full support—physical as well as morally.

But behind the bakers' barracks are the southern whites and they are the source of much the trouble. They and, of course, the civilians, all of whom openly show their intense resentment at even seeing a Negro in uniform.

The 393d is the first Negro outfit ever to be detailed to New Orleans and apparently the Crescent City natives can't accept the situation with equanimity.

The Negro soldiers didn't come looking for trouble, they insist, and they have even tried to avoid it. Right now the entire outfit is trying to organize a fund through voluntary subscriptions to purchase two buses so that they can stay off the trolley cars altogether. They feel that the 400 of them can raise the down payment and by charging regular fares the operation costs and monthly payments can be carried.

But even the most optimistic of them are prone to admit that the solution of the siuation is hardly that simple.

The next step will be——?

N. C. Mayor Asks MPs To Handle Negro Soldiers

KINSTON, N. C., Sept. 10.—(AP)—After a week-end of disorders, Kinston city officials have asked authorities at Camp Davis to provide adequate military police for Negro soldiers on leave here.

Mayor W. F. Stanley disclosed today that he had conferred yesterday with officers at the camp, and had been assured that the military policemen would be provided.

A local Negro teacher was stabbed, allegedly by a Negro soldier, and several persons were assaulted during the week-end, the mayor said. The injured teacher was in a critical condition.

Mayor Stanley said he had also received reports that several white women were insulted by Negro soldiers.

"We are glad to have soldiers—white or colored—come to Kinston on leave," he continued. "However, our police force of only 18 officers is unable to handle a large group of Negroes, and we have asked for military police for that reason."

NEGRO TROOPS.

To the Editor: Press reports, Kinston, September 9, of disorders occasioned there by large numbers of visiting Negro troops from Camp Davis, following other clashes near Camp Bragg, raise ominous fears of more serious racial clashes in the South.

This suggestion is offered: Would it not be better for Negro troops to be stationed and trained in Northern and Western camps? In such locations Northern and Western white troops in close proximity with Negro troops would learn to know the Negro better and possibly, instead of abusing the South for its alleged treatment of the Negro, would learn to sympathize with the South's racial problems.

Something must be done with this menacing problem. Bishop Cannon recently spoke here after visiting certain camps. His picture of conditions is black. Young men of both races in the same camp inflamed by A.B.C. whiskey and "soiled doves" following the camps in trailers may at any time cause a racial explosion.

Federal authorities should know these things and transfer Negro troops to Northern and Western camps where, it is alleged, racial antipathy does not prevail. Such association in Western and Northern camps might help the members of both races.

B'HAM FORMS ARMY WELFARE COMMITTEE

Organizations Pool Ideas To Plan War-Time Protection

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — A Citizens Committee for Army Welfare became a permanent organization to aid in national defense as particularly concerns Negro soldiers and citizens here recently. Interest ran high Monday when the committee decided that its scope should be widened to meet adequately whatever situations Birmingham citizens will be called on to handle in case of local emergency.

Several phases of war-time community and home protection were discussed as well as ways and means of having Birmingham citizens become conscious of the need for a city-wide effort of this sort so that they can be easily organized and trained to take whatever precautionary measures might become necessary for the preservation of our city.

Official representation on the Citizens Committee for Army Welfare includes Britain McKenzie Post No. 150, American Legion; Birmingham Council of Parents and Teachers; Southern Negro Youth Congress; City Federation of Colored Women's Clubs; the branch Y.W.C.A.; Y.M.C.A.; Acipco Y.M.C.A.; Executive committee, Boy Scouts of America; the Committee for Industrial Organization; Inter-Denominational Council; Semper Fidelis club; L'Etude D'Art club; Bethlehem House; the Methodist church; Birmingham Housing Authority.

Officers of the Citizens Committee for Army Welfare are Rev. J. Clyde Perry, chairman; Mrs. A. H. Parker, vice chairman; Miss Sallye Bell, secretary; Mrs. Grace Brown Knox, secretary-reporter; Rev. L. B. Bascombe, treasurer.

Marked "X" On Payrolls When Drafted

NOV 1 1941

College Dean, Now Chaplain, Began Education Plan

CAMP LEE, Va.—Just able to sign the payroll with an "x" when they first arrived at the Quartermaster Replacement Center here, hundreds of colored selectees proudly go forth to permanent posts with a sound knowledge of the three R's, trained mentally as well as physically by the army to be not only soldiers but citizens.

In the 13 weeks spent here, the trainees learn to read, write and do arithmetic problems in addition to mastering basic military maneuvers and special jobs essential to the 1941 Quartermaster soldier.

Founder and developer of this program is First Lt. Samuel H. Giles, former dean of Morris Brown College, Atlanta, Ga., and now chaplain of the 9th colored Quartermaster Training Regiment.

Soon after arriving at Camp Lee last spring, Chaplain Giles decided the selectees' term in the army probably offered the men best chance they would ever have of learning to read and write, and began to organize classes. By the middle of April the school was in full swing.

STUDY AFTER WORK

Over 300 from all sections of the eastern half of the United States willingly attended school four nights a week after they had completed their day's work.

At the completion of the first training period of the camp in June, the success of the school was so firmly established it was made permanent. A similar project was established in the center for white selectees.

Now under official sanction, the school was able to obtain supplies from the Federal Works Agency. Instead of holding classes at night, the sessions were held in place of the technical instruction given all trainees at the center.

VISUAL METHOD

The method of teaching is by visual education. Pictures of things seen everyday in camp were shown with the words symbolizing the objects. Rapidly, the students learned to associate the written words with the objects and gradually were able to read and write sentences.

Under the present plan of half-day classes, two selectees, teachers in civilian life, conduct the all-day sessions. Several times during the school term, Chaplain Giles conducts the class and sits in to check on the progress of the pupils.

Three R's Added to Military Instruction Of Camp Lee Trainees

Virginia Chaplain Founded Program To Reduce Illiteracy Among Many Selectees in Eastern Half of U. S.

CAMP LEE, Va. — Just able to sign the payroll with an "x" when they first arrived at the Quartermaster Replacement Center here, hundreds of colored selectees proudly go forth to permanent posts with a sound knowledge of the three R's, trained mentally as well as physically by the army to be not only soldiers but citizens.

In the 18 weeks spent here, the trainees learn to read, write and do arithmetic problems in addition to mastering basic military maneuvers and special jobs essential to 1941 Quartermaster soldier.

Founder and developer of this program to reduce illiteracy among men of his race is First Lieutenant Samuel H. Giles, former dean at Morris Brown college, Atlanta, Ga., and now chaplain of the 9th colored Quartermaster Training regiment.

Soon after arriving at Camp Lee last spring, Chaplain Giles discovered that many members of the regiment were signing the payroll with an "x" because they had never been taught to write.

Deciding their term in the army probably offered the men the best chance they would ever have of learning to read and write, he began to organize classes.

Every available space in five barracks, two regular classrooms and a recreation hall were commandeered and by the middle of April, the school was in full swing.

Over 300 men from all sections of the eastern half of the United States willingly attended school four nights a week after they had completed their day's work.

At the completion of the first training period of the camp in June, the success of the school was so firmly established it was suggested it be made a permanent part of the plans and training program of the Replacement center. Following methods developed in the 9th Regiment School, a similar project was established in the center for white students of the four other regiments.

Now under official sanction, the school was able to obtain supplies from the Federal Works Agency. Instead of holding classes at night, the sessions were held in place of the technical instruction given all trainees at the center.

One week the students attended classes in the morning and the following week went in the afternoon. When they were not at school they were being given basic military training that would fit them to be soldiers in the fighting Quartermaster Corps of 1941.

The method of teaching was by visual education. Pictures of things seen everyday in camp were shown with the words symbolizing the objects. Rapidly, the students learned to associate the written words with the objects and gradually were able to read and write sentences.

Under the present plan of half-day classes, two selectees, teachers in civilian life, conduct the sessions. Each teaches all day with the classes divided into two parts.

Several times during the school term, Chaplain Giles conducts the class and sits in to check on the progress of the pupils. From these visits, sandwiched in with his other duties, he has come to the conclusion that the majority of the students are 'very apt" and only need the opportunity to learn to be literate citizens.

Chaplain Giles, who now lives with his wife and baby girl at 1022 Rome Street, Petersburg, holds degrees of A. B., D. D., M. A., and TH. M. When not on active duty, he resides at 415 Calhoun Street, Baltimore.

The instructors are Private Mark Ford and Corporal Clarence Jones. Ford, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ford of 1106 North Carey Street, Baltimore, was inducted June 20. He formerly taught in the school system of his home city.

Jones, a graduate of Howard University, is the son of Campbell Jones of 1804 Ashland Avenue, Baltimore. When he was inducted July 12, he was living at 1232 Fairmont Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Supervising the elementary program of the Center is Lt. Col. E. D. Ellis. Plans and Training Officer, aided by Captain Robert W. Revelev.

Texas Daily Urges Training Of Negro Soldiers In North

NOV 9 1941

DALLAS—(ANP)—An editorial in in the Dallas Morning News, local white daily of Nov. 4, backs up the contention of Negro newspapers the country over, in that it advocates northern Negro troops should not be sent to southern posts where discrimination, and mistreatment is rampant.

The editorial surrounds the incident at Brownwood, Tex., where a disturbance by troops in the colored section of that town was quelled by military police with only one slight casualty. This local daily, one of the largest in the south, has been known to be liberal on questions on public welfare.

Says Northern Negroes Should Not Be Sent South

Says the editorial:

"Fortunately no casualties occurred in the near-riot conditions repressed by prompt action of the 36th division's military police at Brownwood. Regrettably, there can be no assurance that similar occurrences may not disturb the defense program at Brownwood or at points in the south where Negro troops are stationed. No amount of theory can refute the hard facts that the race questions makes the use of Negro troops in southern areas an extremely delicate question.

"Primarily, the lack of any facile solution is based on the fact that both tradition and determination are against admixture of races in the south. Miscegenation and jim crow laws are not the cause but the effect of deep-rooted feeling in the matter that cannot be waved aside. The concentration of any considerable number of Negro troops in communities where Negro population is insufficient to absorb their need for social contacts creates a condition provocative of disorder. In the south, too, Negro troops will, of course, resent contact with civil laws resigned to accentuate segregation, statutes existing in few places in the North. Exclusion from or segregation in restaurants, theaters and transportation facilities brings the situation to a head. A quarter of a century ago, bloody tragedies at Brownsville and Houston in Texas and elsewhere in the south were directly traceable to these conditions peculiar to and familiar in the south.

"No principle of democracy suggests forcing on anyone an association distasteful to him. Individual prejudice is not a privilege, but a right, in private lives. The south doubtless errs in trying to force its prejudices into public concerns also, but the condition is a fact, not a theory.

"The federal government apparently has never learned that it cannot without unfortunate consequences billet northern-trained Negro troops in the south. Until it does learn that axiomatic fact, there will continue to be trouble."

General Lear Blames Negro Troops For Recent Clashes In Prescott, Arkansas

SEP 1 3 1941

Negro Woman Complains to M. P.'s That She Dislikes Presence of Negro Troops

Fifth Column May Be At Work

WITH THE 94TH ENGINEER BATTALION SOMEWHERE IN ARKANSAS.—(ANP)—Noncommissioned officers of the 9th Engineer Battalion heard Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the 2nd army, last Thursday charge in a talk that the recent clashes between civilians of Prescott and Durmott, Ark., and the troops of the 94th, were brought about by the soldiers themselves, and "were to be expected." Gen. Lear held that the road incident was a direct result of the clashes between the soldiers, state troopers and southern M. P.'s, and that the 94th is a discredit to their race.

The incidents surrounding the brief outbreak started when, on one hand, a group of Negro soldiers resented the insults hurled at them by several M. P.'s; while on the other, a group of soldiers was fired upon and one beaten by state troopers within the camp area. Since the road incident, in which the entire battalion was forced off the highway at the point of machine and riot guns and a white officer was assaulted by state troopers, there have been two new outbreaks. One was precipitated by an unidentified Negro woman in Hope, Ark., who complained to M. P.'s that she disliked the presence of colored troops in the neighborhood. SEP 1 3 1941

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that the battalion is good enough to wear the uniform of the U. S. Army; it is good enough to be among the best corps of combat engineers in the service, but not good enough to train in Arkansas, or to protect itself from the insults and assaults of southern white citizens. Colored civilians are somewhat frightful of the stand taken by the Fort Custer men, fearing that dire deeds will result from it. Also, the rumor is going the round that subversive activities precipitated the near riot, since it would seem easy for fifth column activities to strike a telling blow to the morale of the army through attacks at Negro troops by prejudiced southerners.

4,000 Negro Soldiers Moved To Prevent Racial Clashes

Fort Bragg, N. C., Aug. 7.—Approximately 4000 Negro soldiers were segregated today and their leaves were canceled to prevent race riots resulting from the slaying of a military policeman and a Negro private.

The shooting occurred yesterday on a bus containing 30 Negro soldiers when Sergeant Elwyn L. Hargraves, of Corsicana, Tex., attempted to arrest Ned Turman, 27, Negro selectee from Ashton, S. C.

Gets Sergeant's Gun

Army officials said Turman seized Sergeant Hargraves' gun and shot him. When other military police attempted to subdue Turman, he fired at them. Technical Sergt. Russell Owens, of Hartley, Ky., killed him. Private Allen Katzaman, of Sheridan, Pa., was shot in the chest and is in critical condition. Six other soldiers suffered minor wounds.

At Camp Davis, the military police force was doubled and all Negroes were confined to quarters. There had been "racial disturbances," it was said.

Police Doubled

Private J. C. Monts, of the military police, was stabbed at a Wilmington bus depot by a Negro private identified as J. Davenport, while an unidentified person pinned Private Monts' arms.

Tuesday, military police used clubs and a water hose on Negro soldiers who refused to comply with "Jim Crow" laws and move to the rear of a bus.

LETTER TO N.A.A.C.P. SAYS NEGRO PRESS HAS EXAGGERATED

SEP 5 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 4.—Rapping Brigadier General J. A. Ulio, acting adjutant general, for claiming resentment over conditions in army camps had been "aroused by inflammatory and distorted statements" in the colored press, the NAACP called his attitude singular and impertinent.

THESE ARE THE THINGS THE COURIER HAS DONE THAT GEN. ULIO DISLIKES

1 Expose military police at all Army camps and urged the inclusion of colored soldiers as part of the M. P. force.

2. Sent P. L. Prattis and James M. Reid, with staff photographer, to investigate at first hand the trouble at Fort Bragg and Camp Davis.

3. Held two conferences with War Department officials in Washington to make personal report on conditions found at Army camps.

4. Aided in exposing conditions in Arkansas involving 94th Engineers.

In reply to the NAACP's telegram to the War Department asking that immediate action be taken to clear up the Fort Bragg incident, General Ulio wrote that the affair was being investigated and that "the press, notably the Negro press, has gone far afield in distorting events which proved to be unsubstantiated."

"Such distorted publicity," the General continued, "has not only contributed to the lowering of the morale of the soldiers, Negro and white, but the morale of their people at home." He complained the War Department could not be continuously diverted from its task of training an army by "ill-considered acts."

In a letter to General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, the NAACP requested that General Ulio be rebuked, saying "there is little wonder that civilian and army morale is at such a low ebb when a responsible official of the War Department attempts to say that resentment against such attacks is wholly without foundation."

This attitude, the Association pointed out, opens to question whether or not the War Department will honestly and uncompromisingly act, or will attempt to evade its responsibility on this issue.

Davis Report On Fort Bragg Filed At War Offices

SEP 27 1941

WASHINGTON—(ANP)—General Benjamin Davis' report on the situation at Fort Bragg, N. C., in its preliminary form, covers 600 pages and is in the hands of officials of the War Department, it was reported last week.

The three made a thorough investigation of the conditions bringing about the recent disturbances in the camp and among the recommendations are the following:

The dispatching of an experienced officer, trained in police work, to be provost marshal at the camp and to train and organize a police force of white and colored military police;

The establishment of a military police headquarters in the city of Fayetteville, separate and distince from the civilian police;

A unified force of military police to be established with Negro and white personnel, with the men having equal equipment and equal authority.

Soldiers Say Southern Replacement Center At Rustin, Once Lynching Scene

SEP 27 1941

RUSTIN, La. — (ANP)— Southern army replacement centers are as much hell as southern M. P.'s, according to Pvts. Harold Markhume and John Ford, and Corp. David Laughlin, of the 94th Engineer battalion.

It is reported that the new brick school building here being used by the second army as a replacement center during the maneuvers is used exclusively by white troops. Negro soldiers are examined and processed in a tent some 200 yards from the building. Too, colored soldiers are not allowed to come near the school.

Sleeping and eating quarters for Negro troops are about three miles from the replacement center. There, they are forced to sleep on the floor with only two blankets. White soldiers, however, are issued a cot and two blankets. Meals are leftovers from what white troops have eaten, according to colored soldiers stationed here. In some instances, they must prepare their own meals or have them prepared by young women of the USO. The USO branch here is reputed to be the only such station for colored troops in the south.

One soldier, Pvt Markhume of Detroit, protested the discriminatory treatment being accorded him, and alleges that the commanding officer of the replacement center told him the school building had been donated for the use of the army, only on condition that no Negro troops be permitted to receive service there. This town was the scene of a sensational lynching a few years ago.

However, the USO for colored troops, housed in Rustin's Negro high school, is doing a good job of administering to soldiers' need for recreation. Employing 30 attractive young women as hostesses, the branch furnishes refreshments and dancing for the soldiers. This is, however, far inadquate for the number of soldiers in the vicinity. On the other hand, white soldiers in the same area have dozens of USO units, in addition to parishes of Sabine, Winn, Natchitoches, and DeSoto, access to the facilities of WPA state library, and numerous other forms of entertainment.

No discrimination in the Camp Robinson hospital has been reported.

No Recreation Available to Ft. Jackson Men

NOV 1 1941

FORT JACKSON, S.C.—One big problem facing the men here at Fort Jackson is that of transportation to and from camp.

During the day, when most of them are working, colored and white use the same bus to and from Columbia. At night, however, there are separate buses for colored and white soldiers.

Those for whites run from a convenient spot in front of the capitol building, and there is a bus every few minutes. The colored soldiers have to get a bus over behind the capitol—but these buses run every hour, at 9, 10, 11, and 12.

After 12, any colored soldier or civilian caught on the streets of Columbia—without an air-tight excuse—will either be beaten up or locked up—or both.

Most of the men in camp are from the deep South, and most of them do not know how to go about meeting the better class of people who live in Columbia.

Amusements Lacking

Since there are no night clubs in the city, and very few bars and restaurants that may be classed any higher than "joints," the soldiers have little to do when they come to town but stand on street corners.

NOV 15 1941

Ministers and club leaders have taken practically no interest in the soldiers. Girls don't go out to camp and stage dances and give the men some form of entertainment. Columbia's attitute, in a soldier's own words, is that "all men in uniform are roughnecks."

No Guns, No Drilling for Men at Jackson

FORT JACKSON, S.C.—The colored men here are all laborers. You don't see any drilling and you don't see any guns unless you look in the supply rooms.

One hour a day is given to military tactics—but so many of the men work at night, they seldom get in on these morning limbering up exercises.

28th QM Only Soldiers

The 28th Quartermasters are the closest unit to real soldiers in the area. Everybody in this outfit is an enlisted man. Coming mostly from the Midwest, these men are in E, F, and G companies, and were slated to move out of camp the last week in September. They were to go first to North Carolina for maneuvers, and then to bivouac until November at Fort Dix. in New Jersey.

The 28th is a trucking unit, with fifty-two 2½-ton trucks, three ½-ton trucks and one command car assigned to them. Their main job, in camp and on maneuvers, is to transport troops and supplies.

Two Types of Training

Many of them have had several years in the army, but their training here is in two brackets. In the first eschelon, they get instruction in truck maintenance and driving; and the second eschelon is devoted to heavier repairs. At one time or another, they are taught first aid, gas mask drill, convoy operations, guard duty and camouflage.

The Quartermaster Detachment is a station complement. The unit lost twenty-one men on September 20, who were 28 years old or over—and a happier group of men was never seen.

Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee have supplied this outfit with about 95 per cent of its manpower. Until early September, most of the group drove trucks for the hospital, supply and utilities details on the post, but this work is now being done by white civilians.

Railhead Detail

The 91st Quartermasters do railhead work. All the supplies—food, clothing, coal, etc.—are handled by this hard-working group of men. They furnish three shifts a day, 24 hours to the day, for the unloading of cars bringing whole sides of beef, barrels of paint, crates of eggs and bales of clothing.

The station warehouses are their drill grounds and when they aren't working, they're usually in their barracks sleeping, in the mess hall eating, or recuperating.

The morale of this unit, according to some of the non-commissioned officers, used to very high. But after months of few and slow promotions, after a diet of the same work—which is non-military and requires more strength than skill, the morale is at a very low ebb. Those who can't get transferred are trying to get out of the army for various reasons.

The Service Detachment furnishes clean-up squads for any and all jobs around camp not assigned to the quartermasters. Some of the men in this outfit walk guard in white areas, others fire boilers, lay out walks, plant grass and flowers, take care of officers' quarters and handle mail.

Pack Troop with Mules

The 67th, supposed to be a pack troop unit, had not received its complement of pack animals late in September, and was therefore doing work similar to that assigned to the Service Detachment.

When and if they finally get some mules and horses, they will be trained in the handling of the animals for army uses. They will also train the animals. This new unit, activated in June, has the unenviable task of delivering supplies right up to the front, on their pack animals, during a battle engagement.

The 90th Quartermasters, Company D, presented nothing but empty barracks. Nobody was home—they were away on maneuvers.

Morale Is High Among Trainees At Army Camp

Ranking Officer In Conference With Soldiers

CAMP LEE, Va.—(SNS)—Praise of the morale of the colored soldiers in Camp Lee's Quartermaster Replacement Center and satisfaction with their area in the post and with the training program given colored Quartermaster trainees was voiced Thursday by Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis, attached to the Office of the Inspector General of the War Department, and the only Colored General in the Army, after a tour of inspection of the 9th Colored Training Regiment in the Quartermaster Replacement Center.

"The morale of the men of the 9th Regiment seems high. I talked with many of the officers who have expressed enthusiasm about the spirit of the men and the progress they have made in their training here. The commissioned officers are glad to have their assignments in the 9th Regiment," said General Davis. He observed the truck drivers' school, and was impressed with the quality of the training and instruction.

ON GENERAL TOUR

Beginning his Army career in the 8th U. S. Volunteer Infantry in the Spanish-American War, General Davis received his commission as 2nd Lieutenant in 1901. After steady promotions, he rose to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in 1918, was promoted to Colonel in 1930, and received his rank of Brigadier General October 25, 1940. His son, a graduate of West Point in 1936, is now in the Basic Flying School at Tuskegee, Alabama.

General Davis stopped at Camp Lee on a general tour of inspection of Army posts, on which he is visiting Colored units. While in the Quartermaster Replacement Center here, he observed the area of the 9th Regiment. He was enthusiastic about the new Service Club for Colored soldiers of Camp Lee and about the recreation program provided. While on his inspection, he held many conversations with trainees of the 9th Regiment.

White Faces Making Lee Soldiers Sick

By OLLIE STEWART

CAMP LEE, Va. — "This business of a white man making a better officer for colored soldiers is pure bunk," the soldier said. "That's old stuff. That's the white man's propaganda — his excuse for sticking himself into every available spot to boss a colored man!"

You can hear a lot of talk like this in the barracks at Camp Lee. Resentment over the fact that every time a group of colored soldiers line up, take a hike or pass in review, a white face is always in front and a white man gives the orders, stands out like two sore thumbs.

Deep-seated Resentment

This resentment is natural, and deep-seated. It conditions the men's thinking when they're awake — and adds a lily-white tinge to their dreams when they lie down to sleep.

But what is pathetic is the fact that the white officers, most of them fair-minded men with the best intentions in the world, will earnestly assure you that they understand the men under their command. They will take great pride in enumerating the different ways in which the men have fun — "a world of fun," a colonel told me. They boast of the high morale — and of the fact that the men are treated exactly the same way as the white soldiers in other units.

An Awful Mix-up

The truth of the matter is, these white officers at Camp Lee do not understand their men at all. They mean well — but they just don't know. They live in a different world, and it is my honest opinion that they will never get as fine response and results from their units as colored officers would.

What is happening to the thousands of well-bred, clean-cut and intelligent young colored men here at Camp Lee made me want to weep. They're soldiering and learning things in spite of themselves. They go through their paces and "have a world of fun" in the evening because they're too proud to bellyache — and they're too decent to run amuck.

Sad Stories Heard

They came to me and told me things with tears in their eyes, some of them from the best homes in the country, the best schools and colleges and with interrupted careers left dangling. They thought maybe I could plead their cause — but as good soldiers they didn't ask me to. They just told me the facts.

They resented so very much what was happening to them — and they couldn't do a thing about it.

Having swallowed so much that is grossly and obviously unfair, and still being subjected daily to discriminatory practices, it is a wonder they have enough spirit to resent anything.

Let's Reverse the Order

White officers here could learn why their men work so hard to "have a world of fun" by taking the same treatment their men take — just for one week. It is extremely doubtful that they could be so convincing afterward in telling a visitor how well the colored "boys" are being treated!

White officers should be chased back to the rear of the coach every time they paid their fare and entered a bus. They should have to abide by the orders that forbid colored soldiers to even walk through certain streets in Petersburg, and to walk but so far on other streets.

They should have to climb the dangerous stairs to the second-floor dump assigned colored men as a prophylactic station in Petersburg — instead of being allowed to go to the armory where the whites go.

NOV 29 1941

Let Colored Command

They should know by experience how it feels to be forbidden entrance to hotels, bars, theatres and clubs in Petersburg — and even segregated on the U.S. Army post. Outside their area, colored soldiers cannot enter theatres, post exchanges, service clubs or barracks.

Right on this post, white soldiers passing through the colored areas may stop in the barracks and use the latrines — but colored soldiers in a white area have had orders not to enter the white barracks to relieve themselves!

"Above All — Your Country"

No amount of paternalism on the part of anybody. no exhortations to support the slogan of the 9th Quartermasters — which is, "Above All, Your Country," no effort to make men hate Hitler, no incentive to be good soldiers — none of these things can be very important to men who are browbeaten every day of their lives.

I say this because the men told me so. And they told me on the same day that the white officer told me the men were "having a world of fun."

There are no hostesses for colored here. They dare not even speak to the white hostesses. There is no library. A small edition of a service club is still being worked on in the 9th QM area. A chapel is being built. There is a post exchange, a recreation hall and a theatre that will not begin to take care of the 2,400 men in the 9th QM.

No Place for Visitors

And if anybody's mother or sister or wife should pay a visit, there is absolutely no place on the post for her to sleep, eat or sit down inside. The post exchange and barracks are forbidden civilians.

The Eighth Medical Battalion has much less than the 9th QM — which, in the words of one soldier, "is nothing." The men sing and put on musical entertainment among themselves. That's all.

NOV 29 1941

No one knows of any USO money being spent here. There is no planned recreation and entertainment — no theatre, library, hostess house or even a day room.

Jim Crow Flies High

In short, the colored men in this camp are strictly on their own when it comes to spending their leisure hours. Jim crowed in neighboring towns, jim crowed on the post, they retreat to their areas and make a splendid effort to find happiness among themselves. Anything to keep from going nuts.

U.S. ARMY LAYS AN EGG AT FORT HUACHUCA

NOV 29 1941

Ollie Stewart, writing in last week's AFRO, told of Fort Huachuca, in Arizona, where 6,000 colored soldiers are in training.

All of the men are colored; all of the officers, except two chaplains, are white.

All of the hospital patients are colored; all of the doctors and nurses are white.

All the customers at the camp stores are colored; all the clerks are Chinese or Mexican.

Here is one camp where every enlisted man is colored. The Twenty-fifth Infantry has been stationed there for seventy-five years, but the best it can boast of today is two colored pastors serving as commissioned officers, that is, chaplains.

Nowhere in the country is a camp better located to give the drafted men what belongs to them in promotion and democratic training, and what does the army do with this opportunity? It lays an egg!

Avert Clash When Police Insult Negro Troops

Fight Narrowly Avoided in Arkansas as State Police Try to Force Crack Negro Battalion Into Ditch; Cops Organize White Mob

AUG 26 1941

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PRESCOTT, Ark., Aug. 25.—The 94th Engineers Battalion, Michigan's crack Negro troops, were pursuaded by their officers to refrain from clashing with members of the Arkansas State police and a large number of military police near here last week when the Negro soldiers, moving on foot along highway 67, were ordered by Sergeant Frank McGibbony of the state police to get off the road and into a ditch filled with water and slime.

The 94th Engineer Battalion, here for the war games, was marching to a new bivouac when they were overtaken on highway 67 by the state police under the command of Sergeant McGibbony and six truckloads of military police. The trouble started, the Pittsburgh Courier reported when a state trooper passing the mile-long procession of Negro soldiers, yelled at Lieuts. Ray I. Brassmle and Donald A. Curry, white, to "keep those damn n——s off the road."

MOB THREAT

The soldiers, resenting the remark, broke rank and began closing in on the police car, which drove rapidly away. Later a mob assembled at Gurdon.

Sharp words passed between the police and the officer commanding the Negro troops. The army officers were told that their "tin bars" did not mean a thing in the South and that nobody from the North could do anything about it.

A serious incident was averted when the troops turned off the highway before the state trooper arrived with five automobiles of civilians armed with squirrel rifles, pistols and shot guns.

PROTESTS MADE TO ROOSEVELT

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Leaders of three Negro organizations here joined today in protests to President Roosevelt against open attacks on Negro soldiers last week by Arkansas state police in an "incident" near Gurdon, Ark. Those who wrote to the President were Ira W. Williams, head of the Chicago National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Euclid Louis Taylor, president of the National Bar Association, and Howard Gould, chairman of the Chicago Urban League.

About 50 Negro soldiers were almost without leave after Arkansas state police invaded their army psto late at night and beat several unarmed men with blackjacks. Mr Gould said in his letter to the President that a white army officer who protested the assault of the Negro soldiers was also beaten.

All three of the Negro spokesmen declared that treatment accorded Negro soldiers in the South was undermining morale. They pointed to discrimination in camp where recreational facilities are provided for white troops but denied to the Negroes.

Selectees Tell Argus Reporter of Outrages In Arkansas

BULLETIN

O. O. Morris, executive secretary of the Pine St. Y., informed the Argus late Thursday that arrangements had been made for the release of the four A.W.O.L. soldiers at Jefferson Barracks. They will be guest of the Y Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

AUG 22 1941

Four selectees told an Argus reporter a dramatic story Monday at Jefferson Barracks of the racial friction which caused 43 members of the 94th Engineer Batallion, to quit their ranks in Arkansas last week. The quartette had been taken from a freight car at DeSoto, Missouri, enroute to Camp Custer, Michigan, the original camp of the batallion.

Six Reached Vicinity

The men were in the guard house when seen by the reporter but it was learned that they were removed to the reception hall of the Barracks Tuesday. Two of the other AWOL service men who fled spent a brief stay at the Pine Street Y.M.C.A .Saturday night. They were Private Clarency Finley of Miles, Michigan and Harold Keene of Benton Harbor, Michigan. The four men at Jefferson Barracks are Sergt. James H. Green, 22, Core maker at the Cadillac plant, Detroit; James Humphrey, 28, bushman (tailor), Detroit, Private Frank Christian, 26, porter on the Greyhound Bus Line, Flint Mich, and Private Edward D. White, 26, garage hand.

Met Abuses

AUG 22 1941

The stories of all six men were a tale of abuse and insults heaped upon them and their detachment from the time they reached Arkansas August 9 until August 14. When the prejudice became so menacing the men feared for their lives, they fled. The group of 1000 colored soldiers began to experience their worst difficulties when they reached Gurdon, 104 miles South of Little Rock, Arkansas August 10. White town officials and state highway policemen began from the time of their arrival to make them feel that their presence was not wanted The camp was set up outside of Gurdon and on their leave men went into town of 2,200 population. They ran into various and sundry difficulties when they came in contact with the white townspeople. The highway patrolmen were reported to have ordered several men to take their caps off when they spoke to them. Several were reported refused service at public places in the town.

Colored Soldier Did No Wrong

AUG 22 1941

Contrary to the various reports of white town officials concerning the trouble which appeared in the daily press, the four soldiers at the Barracks told an Argus reporter that at no time had the Negro service men committed any act of violence or outlawry. As the racial feelings among the southerners began to run high, the batallion ran into more difficulty. Officers were ordered to keep the Negro soldiers out of town. Wednesday a group of about 250 soldiers were met on the highway by about a hundred white civilians, highway patrolmen and military policemen. The highway was blocked with stones, logs and various obstacles. The leader of the crowd, according to the men, used vile language and called them "nigger", ordering them to walk off the highway into a ditch and told them if they did not get out they would be laid out. At the same time many of the individuals carried guns and sticks and other weapons and threatened to use them.

Threatened Lives

One of the white officials, who stood up for the Negro soldiers, was reported slapped down. A shot was fired over the head of another one. Two sentries, who were not allowed to carry loaded guns, were reported beaten up by state police and carried away, presumably to a hospital and were not seen any more by soldiers.

Thursday a crowd of belligerant whites are alleged to have swooped down upon the Negro camp and told them to get the H——out of there or they would all be found burned up. It was then that many of the men fled from the camp.

The four soldiers seemed puzzled and bewildered by the experiences which they had gone through in the southern states. They wanted the reporter to understand that army officers treated them fairly, but were somewhat at a loss to understand the hatred and lack of patriotism displayed by the Arkansas white people and the failure of the military police to show more interest in their defense.

Colonel Brown, Commanding officer at Jefferson Barracks, stated he did not know what action would be taken against the soldiers who fled. He stated that he had received orders to hold them as AWOL (absent without leave) to be returned to their detachment. At the time of the incident in Arkansas, the 94th Engineers were enroute to Louisiana to participate in war games. They were due to move into Louisiana early this week.

Atty Sidney R. Redmond, president of the St. Louis Branch of the N.A.A.C.P. who was contacted by the two soldiers who passed thru St. Louis, sent a report of their experiences as related to him to the National headquarters. Lieut. Lawrence Oxley, of Washington, government representative, also took account of their story.

Soldiers Don't Salute Ft. Bragg Chaplains

Colored, Yes; Whites, No, Says Ollie Stewart, Who Writes of Chaplains and How Army Jim Crow Works

By OLLIE STEWART

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — There are three colored chaplains — commissioned officers in the U. S. Army—stationed at this post, but white soldiers seldom, if ever, accord them their rightful honor of a salute.

During my visit here I saw no exceptions to this practice; their only salutes coming from colored soldiers.

All Five Leaders

These chaplains are Lieutenant Arthur D. Williams, Seventy-sixth Coast Artillery; Lieutenant Hughes A. Robinson, Seventy-seventh Coast Artillery; and Captain James C. Pinn, Forty-first Engineers. I met two of them—but there is evidence that all three are fine leaders of men and doing a very fine job of boosting the morale of 8,000 men.

Captain Pinn was away, but the men of the Forty-first told me any number of things to prove how well he is liked by his regiment, and how much respect both officers and men have for him.

Chaplain Williams of the Seventy-sixth is the kind of man you could pick for your father—and get the best of the bargain. He is realistic, scholarly, understanding and a fighter.

Stood Abuse for Men

During the recent melee in Fayetteville, it was he who went out around midnight in his area and, though handled none too gently by white MP's himself, nevertheless stood his ground and kept more of the soldiers from being beaten and mauled.

Before coming into the army April 23, Lieutenant Williams was pastor of Centenary Methodist Church, Columbus, Ohio—which was built during his pastorship. He is a graduate of Lincoln University, Oxford, Pa., and did post-graduate work at the Yale Divinity School.

Son in Air Squadron

His son, Arthur F. Williams, is attached to the Ninety-ninth Pursuit Squadron at Chanute Field, Ill., and his oldest daughter received her M.A. degree from Ohio State in June. His wife, the former Miss Cleo Dix, of Philadelphia, was a music student of Carl Diton. The Williamses have six children and live in Columbus.

Lieutenant Williams has written and produced several plays, the best known of which is "Snow and Ice Service"—put on in several cities. He is the only chaplain on the post who sleeps and eats in the regiment with his men. And he has the honor of having fired the first gun during target practice in South Carolina.

Robinson Well Liked

Lieutenant Robinson is a masculine version of Pollyanna. He is well-known through his writings to readers of the AFRO—but daily contact with him gave me an insight into his character I had never suspected. Everybody likes him, everybody respects him—but not everybody agrees with his grim determination to see no evil.

One of the most sincere men I have ever met, he believes that goodness will triumph—even in the face of flagrant discrimination practiced upon him and his men and the other colored units here at Fort Bragg. Here are some of the views he expressed to me:

"Everything Is Fine"

"Instead of being encouraged to start some kind of trouble by the radical writers of newspaper columns, these men here should be encouraged to be more patriotic.

"The northern boys are satisfied and happy here—or at least they would be if you writers would quit inflaming them with all this talk about discrimination. Intelligent colored soldiers who mind their business never get into any trouble here. Everybody gets along fine.

"There's nothing to this stuff about it being a mistake to place colored boys near small towns in the South. Our only trouble is with bootleggers selling the men bad liquor, and the wrong type of women being picked up by the men when they go to town on pay day."

Sees Good in Evils

If you remind him that colored soldiers have no service club, he says that the whites have service clubs—but have the problem of too many men crowding into them. So "we're no worse off than they are."

If you mention the fact that MP's push the soldiers around, he assures you that the men must have been drunk and rowdy.

If you say there are no facilities for entertaining men in Fayetteville, he tells you of the young women who are brought out to camp for dances, the convoys he has taken to church services or to beaches.

Treatment OK to Him

"This is a fine camp," he told me more than once. "Things are moving along fine. White and colored get along fine. The men are well-treated and everybody treats me fine."

Now, Chaplain Robinson is a first leutenant, an officer, and should be treated as such. Most of the colored soldiers salute him, according to army regulations. But during the many times I rode in his car about the post, I did not see a single white soldier salute him.

Jim Crow with a Gun

RECENTLY four Negro soldiers hitch-hiked from Camp Robinson, Ark., back to their homes in Detroit. They had had all they could stand—all any human being could stand—of humiliation and brutality. Bands of white men had forced them off the Arkansas road with machine guns after ordering the white officers to "get those niggers off the highway." A member of the same army division, the 94th Engineers (composed of Negro soldiers), was slapped and cursed for brushing against a white policeman in Little Rock. The next night a Negro guard was beaten up by a state cop. So threatening was the attitude of white "officers of the law" in this southern area, that one night the soldiers slept in their clothes, with flashlights and machetes handy in case of trouble.

Of course this isn't the first report of savage discrimination against Negroes in the armed services. Two weeks ago NEW MASSES dealt editorially with a number of similar instances. There have been several since. From Fort Sill, near Oklahoma City, comes a story of inhuman treatment visited by white officers and soldiers on the Negroes, who are forced to do the heaviest camp drudgery while the whites taunt them about their race. The CIO Council of Cook County, Ill., has revealed shocking facts about continued discrimination against both Negroes and Jews in defense industries—in spite of the President's executive order against such discrimination and the existence of an administrative board to end this practice. In arranging for an Army Welfare Week (September 7-13) the CIO Council also made plans for an anti-discrimination conference to include several Negro and Jewish organizations. The Negroes of America have demonstrated their desire to participate in the anti-Nazi struggle. But how much more ardently, more forcefully, they will be able to do this if Hitlerism is first abolished in this country. Army segregation is by no means the chief feature of that Hitlerism. It is, however, the chief cause of the intolerable episodes at Fort Robinson, Fort Bragg, and other army posts. Its disruptive effect on army morale is incalculable. In civilian life its repercussions are evident in current violent attacks on individual Negroes. In safeguarding our country, we must put a swift end to practices that tear a democracy apart.

LEAR SAYS SOLDIERS TO BLAME

"Yoo Hoo" General Tells 94th their "Bad Acting" Caused Arkansas Trouble.

CAMP ROBINSON, Ark., Sept. 4—All those stories you have been reading about Southern white civilians and highway policemen beating up soldiers of the 94th Engineer Battalion must be wrong, gentle readers. They must be wrong because Lieutenant General Ben Lear, commanding general of the Second Army, who won notoriety as the "Yoo Hoo" general when he forced soldiers to march 15 miles for waving at girls, says they are wrong.

If "Yoo Hoo" Lear is to be believed, white policemen in the South are throwing away their guns and blackjacks at the approach of Negro soldiers and white civilians are meeting them with trays loaded with beefsteaks and hot biscuits.

General Lear believes that the entire misunderstanding (and the brutal assaults on colored soldiers) was due to "bad acting" on the part of the Negro soldiers.

"The 94th Engineers have disgusted me," he is reported to have said. "You are the ones who started all of this trouble and have disgraced the army and your race. I have watched you since you first started, and I want it all stopped now, not tomorrow, but today."

Major Harmon, in command of the 94th Battalion when it went South, has been relieved of duty because "he was too easy with his men."

Incidentally, General Lear, who apparently believes it was all right for southern whites to attack American soldiers, is a native of Tennessee.

Negro Soldiers Crack Troops, Praised by Southern Paper

(Special to the Daily Worker)

FORT BRAGG, N. C., Aug. 18.—Early this month, Major General J. C. Breckinridge, commanding officer of the U. S. Marine corps station at Parris Island, South Carolina, drove through Fayetteville and noticed a great many Fort Bragg men on liberty in the town. Shortly thereafter he directed a letter to the commanding officer at Fort Bragg praising the Fort Bragg men and declaring:

"Every soldier I saw was a credit to his uniform, and to the Army. Every one was neat and well dressed, and comported himself with dignity."

We agree with the general. His description fits both the white and Negro troops of historic Fort Bragg. To us they appeared snappy, trim, and alert. This morning, a detachment off to the maneuvers rolled down Hay St. in Fayetteville, under our hotel window, in a smooth, evenly-paced flow of trucks, field artillery and observation cars. Yes, America has the stuff for a people's army, an army that could stop Mr. Hitler's "wave of the past" in its tracks.

Of Fort Bragg's 60,000 men, 6,500 are Negro troops. Two of the Negro regiments, the 76th Coast Artillery and the 41st Engineers are admittedly famous and have provided training cadres for many new regiments throughout the country.

CRACK NEGRO TROOPS

A writer for the Greensboro Daily News says:

"Negro troops in training at Fort Bragg have a snap and dash in all they do that bids fair to making them the finest trained soldiers in the United States Army today."

Describing the 76th C. A. on the firing range at Windy Hill, S. C., working with three-inch anti-aircraft guns, the same writer says:

"To watch the Negro gun batteries swing into action on one of the anti-aircraft guns is to watch something that nears perfection."

AUG 25 1941

The 41st Engineers will be off in a few days for maneuvers around Wadesboro, N. C. No one here doubts that this regiment will distinguish itself as it has in the past, in road-building, bridge building, and similar work so essential to a modern army. No regiment is better drilled or better trained. One of the inspiring sights recommended to visitors to the post is to see the 41st Engineers double-time march, with rifles at ready, trotting in perfect synchronization with the band music.

Yes, America has the stuff for a first class people's army. Why, then, the savage attack on Negro troops here on Aug. 6, when one Negro was killed, one white MP killed, five soldiers wounded? Why the complaint about Negro troops "going over the hill"—absent without leave?

CAUSES OF PROBLEM

This last question is so serious, we have been told, that officers hesitate to apply serious penalties if the soldier returns within ten days. This problem exists despite the excellent picture of morale given by the Marine officer above, and by the splendid performance of the Negro regiments. It exists despite the fact that when the issue of extending the time for draftees in the army arose, an overwhelming number volunteered for longer time, even before the bill was enacted by Congress.

The problem is grave enough to require an answer. In general, the answer lies in increasing the pay of the soldiers and non-commissioned officers, in improving recreational facilities for the men, in abolishing the present despised military police system, and in advancing to leading positions in the army officers whose love for the democratc traditions of our country is stronger than their tie-up with the brass-hat, anti-democratic system. There must be a policy of education in the ranks which will reveal to the men, on the basis of facts, the danger in which our national security stands and the necessity of a united people's army determined to deal a final blow at Hitler and Hitlerism. The brass hats must discard their outworn concept of the army as an aggregation of "strong backs and weak minds" or make room for those closer to the common people who make up the army.

We have here only indicated the answers briefly and as they answer the question in general. The answer as it applies to the Negro soldiers includes the above steps but must go farther.

NORTHERN CAMPS FOR NORTHERN BOYS.

It is to be hoped that the morale of the army will be improved by the promise not to keep the men in camp for as long as the 2½ years which the recently amended law allows. The war department says that some men will be released after 14 months' service and the average term will be 18 months.

Much will depend, of course, upon how the new regulation is carried out. The administration, by insisting on the 2½ year provision, has made trouble for itself. If the inefficient are discharged first, the more competent and trustworthy who remain behind will have reason to feel they have been punished for their virtues. That won't improve their state of mind. If the competent are rewarded by being discharged first, the quality of the army will deteriorate. This dilemma would never have arisen if the sound proposal of Senator Taft to extend the term to 18 months for all had been adopted in law as it is being adopted now in administrative regulation.

How the problem will be solved remains to be seen. Meanwhile another war department blunder is crying for correction. The northern soldiers have been concentrated for the most part in southern camps to satisfy the greed of pork-barrel congressmen. They wanted the soldiers' pay spent in their districts. The result has been that hundreds of thousands of northern boys have been obliged to spend a summer in the hottest part of the United States. The lucky ones drew sand and dust. The unlucky drew swamp-land. What made matters worse was the remoteness of many of these camps from civilization. When a man did get an evening or a week-end to himself, there was no place within easy reach where he could find a good show, or a decent meal.

All this was and is unnecessary. As soon as possible, the northern troops should be transferred to camps in the areas from which the young men were recruited. Much of the prevailing discontent would disappear if the men could take advantage of their free time to see their families and their friends.

It has been apparent for some time that everything is not as it should be in the army. Congress and the people generally suspected that something was wrong when the yoo-hoo incident occurred, indicating as it did that the training being given in the camps had not made disciplined soldiers. That affair was laughed off but nobody is laughing at the more recent incidents which have been occurring in Arkansas. Men have been killed. A white officer commanding Negro soldiers was beaten by local police and his soldiers in the uniform of the United States were ordered off the highway by an armed posse. More than fifty of the Negroes have fled northward.

There is little evidence to suggest that the duct of the constabulary. troops in question were unruly but if they were, So far as Negro troops are concerned, it is Negro, had been trained in the north. It is not they and their officers should have been punished obvious they never should have been sent south too late to correct the mistake.

both white and colored stand in the same line for their "chow" they are thereupon segregated to separate tables. The segregation and discrimination is so complete that white boys from Northern states are shocked into expressions of indignation.

Negro soldiers who go into Fayetteville, six miles from the post, ride in busses marked "Colored Troops." In every way, the customs of the most backward black belt communities are applied here.

Negro troops are officered by white officers. There are a few Negro officers here, but insofar as we could learn, were serving in some technical or special capacity, as nurses, chaplains or doctors with the rank of lieutenant. The highest ranking Negro officer is Major Hinkson, a doctor.

ATTITUDE OF OFFICERS

Personnel officers proudly point to the fact that on the post, recreational and athletic facilities for colored are equal to those for the white soldiers. But the proper utilization of those facilities depends upon the white officers of the various regiments. Where the white officers are uninterested, there is no one to procure these facilities for the men.

The personnel officer in charge of Negro work is Captain Dennis Holliday, a Southerner. Captain Holliday is, by all accounts, a likable man. But his attitude towards young Negro women applying as hostesses is significant of the captain's lack of understanding of the problem. These young women are well educated, some of them having degrees from several colleges. They are quiet, dignified and highly recommended by prominent people. Yet Captain Holliday insists on addressing them on first acquantance only by their first name. A man whose code is so rigid that he cannot respect the best representatives of a splendid people certainly does not fit as head of personnel work among those people.

Off the post, recreational facilities for Negro soldiers are practically non-existent.

At Fayetteville, there are five movie theatres. Only three of these have reserved a section of high gallery seats for Negroes. For the rest of it, there is one block of dilapidated restaurants on Hillsboro Street, along the railroad, where Negro soldiers can find some social life.

The nearest large towns, with colored communities, are at some distance. Greensboro, with 65,000 population is 100 miles away and Raleigh, with a population of 45,000, is 60 miles distant. Recently, army officers proposed to establish a recreational center for Negro troops at Greensboro, but the city council refused.

Raleigh is the scene of the brutal beating of a Negro soldier by a city policeman, about three months ago, which will be recalled by Daily Worker readers. A similar incident took place in Charlotte, 140 miles from here, just last week. In the Raleigh case, white citizens joined with Negroes in protesting this savagery; but as the Charlotte case shows, such practices continue.

In Columbia, S. C., recently, the treatment of Negro soldiers by military police was so offensive that a delegation representing the Negro organizations of that city went before the city council to lodge a protest. They reported that the military police used violence even against Negro civilians.

These facts, added up, present a situation that must be changed. Only if America will recognize the contribution the Negro people are making, and potentially the contribution they will make, in the struggle against Hitlerism, and climinate all segregation, discrimination and injustice, can there be a really united army of the American people, Negro and white.

White Daily Questions Safety Of Race Soldiers In Section

AUG 24 1941

ST. LOUIS—(A N P)—An editorial appeared in Monday's St. Louis Post Dispatch, white daily, discussing the rifts between Negro soldiers and white citizenry in the south. The first white daily to expose the true facts in the situation in Arkansas, the paper asks the question "Are Negro Soldiers Safe in the South?"

Commenting upon the situation in and around Gurdon, Arkansas, the editorial stated:

"Four Negro soldiers are at Jefferson barracks today from among 40-odd who left their battalion near Gurdon, Arkansas, because they were convinced that their lives were in danger. The choice, as they saw it, was between the risk of bodily harm at the hands of hostile white residents of the region, and the risk of punishment for absenting themselves without leave in order to return to their base, Camp Custer, Mich. They chose to risk discipline rather than injury.

"It will take an investigation to determine all the facts of the situation. Mayor Dick Jackson of Gurdon, where troops bound for Louisiana war games, had gone on leaves, says there has been no trouble between the citizens of his small town and the soldiers. But he does say that some residents of Gurdon decided to form a 'home guard' after an Arkansas State policemen 'arrested' a Negro soldier one night last week.

"But whatever the situation in Gurdon and the region roundabout, the fact remains that these American soldiers decided their lives menanced by the attitude of local residents and so deserted their battalion. No exstenuating circumstances will alter that.

"Our unprecedented defense program is to guarantee the individual his rights as a human being. We have undertaken to supply Great Britain with its war needs in order to protest the four freedoms. Is it too much to ask that they first be guarded here at home?"

Arkansas Police Clash With Race Troops

AUG 25 1941

GURDON, Ark. — Colored troops of the 94th Engineer Battalion from Fort Custer, Mich. and civilians were involved in several "incidents", according to a report from Second Army headquarters. These incidents are said to have climaxed in a "dispute" on the Prescott-Gurdon highway last week.

Witnesses at the scene said a state police car waved down a column of colored troops marching on the highway and an argument followed.

The report reached Second Army at Prescott that a race riot was in progress and scores of military police rushsed to the scene. Several citizens heard the same report and armed themselves to enter the argument.

Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr., in command of the Seventh Army Corps, called a conference with A. G. Allbright, superintendent of Arkansas state police, who came from Little Rock.

All points of difference between military authorities and state police were settled and an agreement made that will prevent further difficulties due to the presence of colored troops, according to an announcement from Second Army headquarters.

DEFENDERS OF DEMOCRACY GET IT IN NECK

AUG 30 1941

Here are four of the members of the 94th Engineers, draftees from Michigan, who sought safety in flight when it appeared that their white officers would not be able to protect them against the uncivil and undemocratic actions of Dixie demagogues in Arkansas, and hitchhiked their way to the comparative safety of Jefferson Barracks in St. Louis.

In the group are, left to right: Sergeant J. Gray, Detroit; Private Frank Christian, Detroit; Private Edward White, Flint, Mich. and Sergeant James Humphries, Detroit.

Still later, word was passed out that the men were to remain at Jefferson Barracks, with the status of other soldiers, awaiting orders as to where to rejoin their own outfit.

Finally, through the good work of O. O. Morris, executive secretary of the Pine Street 'Y,' the men were given permission to spend the week-end, Saturday and Sunday, August 23 and 24, as th guests of the U.S.O. at the Pine Street 'Y.' Such is the path of democracy. — (Jackson photo).

It was raining Monday, August 18, when these men were marched out by armed guards (white) from their place of detention clad in almost wornout overalls and flop caps. Just note the prison bars behind them.

AUG 30 1941

Later, word came that the men were to be treated more as prisoners absent without leave and that they would be subjected to only minor punishment.

Jim-Crow Cracking Morale at Fort Sill

Another Ft. Bragg Incident Brewing As Bitterness Grows Among Negroes; Tell of Humiliations

AUG 26 1941

By Daniel Bowie
(Special to the Daily Worker)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 25.—Extreme Jim-Crowism and outright abuse of the Negro selectees at Fort Sill, Oklahoma's big training encampment, has led to a situation containing the seeds of such an outbreak as occurred at Fort Bragg, N. C.

In one recent instance a young Negro soldier rebelled against submission to further humiliation and refused to carry out an order from a white officer. He was placed in the guardhouse, but released when it appeared to an older and higher officer that the tension created might lead to disorder.

Sympathetic white selectees agreed that while it was not justified for a soldier to refuse an officer's order under most circumstances, the Jim-Crow situation at Fort Sill has become so serious that they did not blame the colored private for bringing, in some way, attention to this fact. During the hot weather of this month all the heavy work in the camp had been assigned to Negro selectees.

Only when there was too much work for the number of Negroes in the camp to accomplish was a white soldier asked to help.

SUFFER HUMILIATION

AUG 26 1941

The white soldiers lolled in their tents, or in the shade of the barracks, and a number of them had what they called "fun" by sneering, jeering at, and mocking the Negro boys at work in the hot sun. They tormented the Negroes with all sorts of epithets.

"Ride that shovel harder, you G——D——MN black nigger," was given by a white private disgusted with the ugly chauvinism practiced at the camp, as an example of the things shouted at the Negro soldiers. "Any colored boy who in some way showed resentment, usually only by grim silence, instantly was taunted with a barrage of the slur 'nigger,' the white soldier said.

The situation came to a head when last week a white officer gave an order to a Negro private, and the latter, without a word, turne and walked away. The officer fol lowed the Negro soldier into hi tent and demanded to know if h intended to carry out the com mand given him.

"No," the colored private an swered flatly. "I don't mind hav ing to do all the white boys' work in this hot sun, I don't mind that at all, but I ain't going out there and be insulted while I'm working myself sick."

INDIGNATION GROWS

The officer then took him to the guardhouse. Later, a colonel had him released, and sent word to the white soldiers to quit riding the Negroes so harshly. This, when muttering in the camp reached a high pitch.

However, no effort was made to relax the extremely strict Jim-Crow regulations employed at Fort Sill. The camp draws a great number of selectees from Texas and southern Oklahoma, boys from the poverty-ridden poll-tax cotton sections, where lack of decent education has kept them largely ignorant. Officers cater to their racial prejudices, instead of trying to re-educate them.

This is resented by the white selectees from other sections, of whom there are a considerable number. "It gets my goat," one of them told this writer, "to see us trying to build an army to defend democracy in an atmosphere of stupid, degrading anti-democracy. Hitler's treatment of the Jews couldn't have been much rottener, in most instances, than the treatment given the Negro boys at Fort Sill.

He said the Negro selectees were always the last to be issued clothing, and some of the drafted colored men were months at the camp in the clothing they wore upon arrival.

MORALE—PRO AND CON

He gave an example of how quickly the Negro selectees reacted to decent treatment. He told of a non-commissioned officer who one Sunday gave the colored boys permission to go to Lawton. This officer received a note from one of the Negroes that evening, thanking him. Six other Negro selectees had affixed their signatures to the simple note.

Contributing further to the morale-damaging effect of the racial injustice practiced at Fort Sill is the system of advancement for selectees. Democratic methods have no place. Some rookies get ahead by toadying to and fawning before officers who can advance them. The more intelligent, self-respecting rookies refuse to humiliate themselves, and consequently remain privates.

They arrive at Fort Sill anxious to work hard and diligently and rise in rank. After discovering what they must do, they become discouraged, their enthusiasm wanes, and they wait ony for their time to be up.

The result can hardly be considered as contributing toward strengthening the morale of th soldiers at Fort Sill.

NORTHERN CAMPS FOR NORTHERN BOYS.

It is to be hoped that the morale of the army will be improved by the promise not to keep the men in camp for as long as the 2½ years which the recently amended law allows. The war department says that some men will be released after 14 months' service and the average term will be 18 months.

Much will depend, of course, upon how the new regulation is carried out. The administration, by insisting on the 2½ year provision, has made trouble for itself. If the inefficient are discharged first, the more competent and trustworthy who remain behind will have reason to feel they have been punished for their virtues. That won't improve their state of mind. If the competent are rewarded by being discharged first, the quality of the army will deteriorate. This dilemma would never have arisen if the sound proposal of Senator Taft to extend the term to 18 months for all had been adopted in law as it is being adopted now in administrative regulation.

How the problem will be solved remains to be seen. Meanwhile another war department blunder is crying for correction. The northern soldiers have been concentrated for the most part in southern camps to satisfy the greed of pork-barrel congressmen. They wanted the soldiers' pay spent in their districts. The result has been that hundreds of thousands of northern boys have been obliged to spend a summer in the hottest part of the United States. The lucky ones drew sand and dust. The unlucky drew swampland. What made matters worse was the remoteness of many of these camps from civilization. When a man did get an evening or a week-end to himself, there was no place within easy reach

AS TO NEGRO SOLDIERS.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The Greater Union Baptist church and its pastor express disapproval of the brutal manner in which Negro soldiers are treated in the south by civilians and officers of the law whose sworn duty it is to uphold the law.

We wish to join the millions of American citizens of color in asking that our great President in his desire to save the world for democracy will also speak for a race that is and has been always loyal to our country.

God forbid that we should preach disloyalty, but we feel that we should have the same protection under the constitution of the United States of America that other citizens enjoy. A. HUBBARD.

All this was and is unnecessary. As soon as possible, the northern troops should be transferred to camps in the areas from which the young men were recruited. Much of the prevailing discontent would disappear if the men could take advantage of their free time to see their families and their friends.

It has been apparent for some time that everything is not as it should be in the army. Congress and the people generally suspected that something was wrong when the yoo-hoo incident occurred, indicating as it did that the training being given in the camps had not made disciplined soldiers. That affair was laughed off but nobody is laughing at the more recent incidents which have been occurring in Arkansas. Men have been killed. A white officer commanding Negro soldiers was beaten by local police and his soldiers in the uniform of the United States were ordered off the highway by an armed posse. More than fifty of the Negroes have fled northward.

There is little evidence to suggest that the troops in question were unruly but if they were, they and their officers should have been punished by a military court. If the troops were conducting themselves properly, it is remarkable that their officers did not resist the high-handed conduct of the constabulary.

So far as Negro troops are concerned, it is obvious they never should have been sent south, to make their acquaintance with Jim Crow while they were wearing the uniform of the United States. That was a blunder which would have been avoided if the northern troops, white and Negro, had been trained in the north. It is not too late to correct the mistake.

Uniforms Insulted

WE should like to know what, if anything, our Federal government intends to do about the despicable acts of Arkansas state troopers and private citizens who are assaulting and intimidating colored troops in that state. Will those Negro soldiers who are sacrificing so much for this democracy have to continue to tolerate being ambushed by state police, beaten by city police and driven out of towns by southerners?

Will anything be done to discourage the cause of A. W. O. L.'s by colored soldiers who would rather be court-martialed than to stay in camp threatened with unwarranted and brutal attacks by the very people for whom they are preparing to fight?

Armies are pretty important these days. As a matter of fact people throughout the world many months ago have considered soldiers as their protectors. Sacrifices have been made that soldiers may train under the best of conditions.

It appears that the people in Arkansas do not regard the soldier as of any importance. They should be taught better. They should be told in the language which they can understand that the Civil war is over. They should be told by the Federal government that insults against the army will not be tolerated.

The Negro soldier is training in order that he may fight to preserve the American way of life. There is little encouragement for him to fight if the American way is the right of southern white persons to commit acts of brutality against colored soldiers. He should like to think that he is fighting to make conditions better for himself and all mankind. He should not like to think that he is fighting to preserve to southern whites the right to abuse members of his race.

The brutality of the people in Arkansas against colored troops is not singular. It is being repeated throughout the South. The victims of this savage brutality do not have a chance to defend themselves for they are invariably unarmed. Let them have arms and we will have occasion to write a different editorial.

We submit that the morale of the soldiers can not be very high if they are to continue to be subjected to such inhuman treatment. It must be stopped.

UNABLE TO PROTECT SELF, 94th ENGINEERS GO AWOL

AUG 30 1941

AUG 30 1941

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 28—Brutal beatings, intimidation and abuse at the hands of white Southerners and policemen, forced nearly 60 colored soldiers last week to flee from their outfit, the 94th Engineer Battalion, at Camp Robinson, Ark., and to seek safety outside Arkansas

Four of these soldiers, Sgt. J. Gray of Detroit, Sgt. James Humphries of Detroit; Pvt. Frank Christian of Detroit and Pvt. Edward White of Flint, Mich., hitchhiked their way from Camp Robinson to Jefferson Barracks, this city, to escape the blackjacks and bullets of race-hating southerners who, they said, had vowed to "clean out" the colored soldiers.

They regarded their position as serious as a result of having gone AWOL, but they insisted that they had to choose between their lives and a possible prison sentence.

"We were unarmed and unable to protect ourselves," they informed friends.

American Refugees

After the nation-wide pogroms against Jews in Germany, President Roosevelt stated that he could scarcely believe such things could happen in a supposedly civilized country.

SEP 6 1941

The President has been understandably silent about the persecution of Negro soldiers in Arkansas, which resulted in some of them fleeing in terror, but he must have been as shocked by this pogrom at home as he was by the earlier pogrom abroad.

These Negro soldiers were American refugees, cowering in fields outside of towns, bulldozed by toy Hitlers, fearful for their very lives, with even the United States government unwilling to protect them and refusing to give them arms to protect themselves.

The only difference between this picture and that of European refugees skulking across fields pursued by Storm Troopers, is that these American refugees were in the uniform of their country and in training to fight to make the world safe for democracy.

They had sworn to uphold the Constitution about which the rural Arkansas white folks have never heard and certainly never obeyed.

Is it not clear to even the most incurable optimist by this time that Negro troops should be moved out of the South at once and sent where they will be treated as citizens and soldiers of a great democracy should be treated?

If President Roosevelt is as moved by the persecution of Negro soldiers as he was by the persecution of German Jews, he does not have to violate the Administration's tradition of "not offending the South" by speaking out, as he did against the bloody revels of Hitler's Storm Troopers. All he has to do it to order Negro soldiers moved out of the South, and we urge that this be done immediately.

Since the Administration lacks the courage to end racial segregation in the Army, the only sensible alternative is to move Negro soldiers to stations where segregation will be less distasteful and destructive of morale.

White Soldier Writes Courier

Raps Southern Whites for Attitude Toward Race Soldiers — Supports Courier Drive to Relieve Oppression.

Northern whites, as well as all Negroes, are the objects of the wrath of hatred-filled white Southerners as America prepares for defense. In Army camps in the South, the "d—n Yankees" are being abused and threatened just like the black American.

This attack on the rest of the country has reached such proportions that one can but wonder if Hitler's agents have not already begun to work in the South.

Added proof of the mistreatment of Negroes and Northern whites in Southern camps came to The Courier this week in a letter from a Northern white soldier. He tells of how he was threatened with a knife because he allowed a colored soldier to sit beside him. Written to Ira F. Lewis, this white soldier states:

EX-BRAGG SOLDIER

"By a mere chance, I read one of your Couriers. It happened that it was the issue containing the stories about the trouble at Fort Bragg. I wish to congratulate you on the Open Letter to the President.

"It just so happens, Mr. Lewis, that I am a draftee from Oakland (Pittsburgh) but previous to that my father was a businessman on the Hill (Negro section in Pittsburgh). He had a few restaurants a few years back and I have associated with quite a few Negro boys in school and at work.

"Before I forget myself, I would like to introduce myself. I am (name not printed for obvious reasons), a member of the 107th F. A., who, as many other boys, got my training at Fort Bragg.

"As to the incident which occurred, a very cowardly one on the part of the Southern, so-called white people, I wish to tell you that trouble had been brewing previous to that. As a matter of fact, I would like to say that it happened one night to me.

THREATENED WITH KNIFE

"I was seated in the front seat of a bus when a colored boy entered and sat beside me. I at once struck up a mere friendship with him because, to me, he was another true American wearing the uniform of Uncle Sam, but, before I knew it, a few Southern boys of the white race immediately started to howl for him to get up and seat himself in the rear of the bus.

"I, for one, told him to stay seated with me.

"Immediately, they wanted to beat the daylights out of me.

"As a matter of fact, one went so far as to pull a knife out to threaten me and said the following (please excuse me for writing it): 'Get that g—d d—d n—r in the back or I'll let you have it in the back.'

"And to think that we are to be true Americans under one flag. Such discrimination should never take place, whether colored, white, or whatever you may be.

CALLED 'D——D YANKEE'

"The Southern hospitality is certainly going to the dogs, or rather, it has been bad for sometime, and the treatment of Northern colored soldiers and even the Northern white soldier is very bad. They even call us 'd——d Yankees.'

"Therefore, I wish to say to you as one true American to another: 'Do all you can, do all within your power, because it will mean a great deal to US Americans.'

"At present I'm confined to the hospital and with me are quite a few colored boys. We get along as all AMERICANS should."

Fort Bragg Launches Propaganda Program to Show All is Well

FORT BRAGG, N. C., Sept. 10 —(ANP)—Afer the tragic killings involving white M. P.'s and Negro soldiers encamped at Fort Bragg, the Public Relations Bureau launched a huge propaganda program there. This program is without doubt attempting to cover up unfavorable publicity uncovered by various news comments of eastern white magazines and newspapers.

In the Fort Bragg propaganda setup there is a coast to coast radio broadcasts from the Fort every Thursday night from six until seven o'clock. The officials in charge alays include an act from one of the Fort's Negro units to have civilian listeners believe that Fort Bragg's Negro soldiers are having a wonderful time.

In another instance an announcement was made that white soldiers would be offered tickets to college football games at half price. Also they announced that they were contacting officials of A. and T. college, Shaw university and Fayettesville State Teachers' college to make similar arrangements for Negro soldiers of Fort Bragg.

It was further stated that Military Police would be assigned to all games. Negro soldiers are protesting such a move unless the Military Police used are Negroes.

In its unusual manner policies remain the same at Fort Bragg according to reports of men stationed there.

Bad Transportation

One soldier stated that bus transportation for Negro troops is worse than ever. Instead of one bus every hour, buses are now running on the average of one bus for Negro troops every two hours. Also troops having overnight passes are sure to be late for the 6 o'clock morning reveille by depending on the bus. The first Negro bus from Fayetteville, 9 miles away, arrives at 8 a. m. There is a "reveille bus" for white troops arriving at the fort at 5:30 a. m. allowing them ample time to make this formation.

In the 16th Battalion of the Field Artillery Replacement Center the Post Exchange formerly employed five Negro civilian clerks with a white manager. Two days after the bus tragedy five white clerks replaced them and three Negroes were demoted to porters.

Also noted were instructions to mess sergeants to lock up all meat cleavers and butcher knives in mess halls and make sure Negro troops would be unarmed in case of any racial outbreak.

Citizens Indifferent

In a recent interview with several Negro citizens of Fayetteville, where heroic Pvt. Ned Turman met his death, this writer found many of them not interested and indifferent about the affair.

One Fayetteville cab driver said, "It don't matter a d—n to me, I am only interested in getting more cab runs myself."

A cafe operator when asked what did he think about the affair, answered, "To be honest, I'll tell you I don't care much about northern Negroes myself."

Prices in Fayetteville's Negro enterprise were found to be parallel to prices in New York. A 10c bottle of beer costs 15c, hot dogs and hamburgers are 10c and the most talked about extreme prices were cab fares.

The writer climbed into one of the brightly painted cabs and the driver asked, "Are you a civilian or soldier?' Not waiting for an answer he stated, "I just wanted to know because we always charge more for soldiers because soldiers are not permanent as civilians and we soak 'em whenever we get a chance."

After questioning soldiers concerning prices a soldier stated he missed the last bus to the Fort the night before and attempted to find lodging at one of the better lodging houses and was forced to pay $3 for a single bed or if he was found on Fayetteville streets after 1 a. m. he would have been jailed by white Military Police.

Following the recent bus tragedy many Negro troops dressed in civilian clothes to avoid the constant dogging of white Military Policemen. This was noticed by the ofay M. P.'s and thereafter all buses carrying Negro troops were stopped and passengers were questioned whether they were civilians or soldiers. They were asked to show their socks or underclothing. Most of them were wearing G. I. (Government Issue) socks and underclothing. Reports were that those that were found were made to dismount from the bus and all and walk back to their units.

MEN GO AWOL RATHER THAN SUFFER CIVILIAN INSULTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The latest series of flare-ups against colored soldiers in a small town near Camp Robinson, Ark., started when a member of the 94th Engineers division, in Little Rock for the evening, brushed against a white policeman on the street, according to a member of the division.

The letter from a member of the 94th to a close relative, was released by the NAACP this week and pictures more vividly than any other report the terrorism rife around the Arkansas cantonment from which a number of soldiers have gone AWOL. The soldier's name and the name of his relative who brought the letter to the NAACP cannot, for obvious reasons, be made public.

"This time we are in a very bad situation," the letter stated. "We are in Arkansas, deep in the South. We have been subjected to some very bad treatment.

WHITE POLICEMAN SLAPPED SOLDIER

"In Little Rock, Ark., all the trouble started. One of the men in our company went to town and coming out of a place happened to brush up against a cop. Inci-dentally there was a young lady with him. The officer immediately made a scene and slapped me man, whereupon the man from our company beat the officer up. I write this, as it did last night."

"Nothing more was said until we reached our comp near Gurdon, Ark., about 120 miles from Little Rock. The fellows went to town and were immediately insulted and one of our guards the next night was beaten up. The guard was on duty, guarding our camp area, when a State cop drove up and beat him up.

"This caused quite on uproar and all the fellows were in favor of going to town and tearing it to pieces. Unfortunately, we did not have any ammunition and it would be almost suicide to try without ammunition. The captain talked the men out of doing anything at that time.

WHITE LIEUT. CALLED N——R LOVING YANKEE

"Meanwhile, the situation was getting worse. An ultimatum was given to the major of our battalion to move all the 'niggers' out of that part of the woods by a certain time or else something drastic would happen."

The letter goes on to recount the stopping of the troops on the road by State highway patrolmen, the impertinent demand that the officer "get those niggers' off the highway," the slapping of the white lieutenant, Donald Curry, by one of the patrolmen, who called the army man a "nigger-loving Yankee."

The writer also reveals that the men begged to be issued ammunition, but were refused as before. Some asked to be sent back to Michigan, but the major commanding the battalion said he didn't have the authority to do that.

Continuing, the soldier wrote: "He (the major) said that by last night (August 14) the area comprising the maneuver area would be under martial law. However, if Southern units of the army act as enforcing agents for martial law, we won't be any better off, as they seem to be working with the city and State cops against us in every way.

"Last night there was open talk of every man in the battalion walking out and going back to Fort Custer. Last night some of our sergeants went AWOL and are trying to get through to Fort Custer hoboing a freight. We were ready to leave at the first sign of trouble. We slept with our clothes on and with flashlights and ma-chetes, which are big knives, near us. No trouble developed and we didn't leave, so this morning as it did last night."

OSWEGO, N. Y.—Terror reigned here last week when a mob of white soldiers, members of a Delaware contingent, threatened colored citizens and in the absence of all but a few members of Harlem's 369th away on maneuvers, created a series of anti-Negro incidents which are keeping the town on the verge of an inter-racial outbreak.

Running Town

A barber who was working on the post also was chased off his job in the area and Whitey, well-known for the Whitey Lindy Hoppers of Harlem's Savoy Ballroom, here with a troupe of entertainers, was reported threatened with harm unless the group left within two weeks.

So bitter is the feeling of the southern white soldiers at the post here that it is said friendly white New Yorkers also have been threatened and thrown in guardhouses by the more numerous southerners and their fellow southern officers.

Several or more clashes have already occurred, it is reported, and it is felt in the town that unless high military authorities intervene a serious riot might take place at any time.

COLORED TROOPS AT EMBARKATION PORT IN NEW BARRACKS

FORT MASON, Cal., Sept. 18—After several months of living in tents, the nearly 575 Negro soldiers of the 349th Quartermaster Battalion at the Army's new Oakland Port of Embarkation, Oakland, Calif., were moving into their 12 new barracks buildings as announced by the commanding general of the San Francisco and Oakland Port of Embarkation.

In addition to the barracks, the troops have three new mess halls, a recreation hall, and a post exchange.

"So far as I know," Major Walters said, "this is the first time in Oakland history that there has been any regular housing for the permanent occupancy of an Army unit."

TO MAN SUPPLY BASE

Completion of living quarters for the troops was only a small step toward completion of the Oakland port of Embarkation and General Depot, which ultimately will cost approximately $32,000,000. Facilities eventually will provide sufficient piers, buildings, and other necessary administrative and marine facilities to handle 12 transports simultaneously.

The 394th Battalion is being trained in Port operation "for duty of vital importance to our overseas bases," according to the port commander, who adds, "No army is any stronger than its supply system."

By EMMETT J. SCOTT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25—Unhappily, the American Press, black and white, at this time of all times, is filled with the most acrid, irritating, stinging comments and arguments with respect to national affairs, particularly national defense and national morale.

All of this is definitely calculated to arouse violent animosities and repercussions calculated to upset and destroy national civilian morale.

There is general recognition of the fact we are in the war. As far back as last February, Henry R. Luce, editor and publisher of Time, Life and Fortune magazines wrote:

WE ARE IN THE WAR

"* * We are in the war. All of this talk about whether this or that might or might not get us into the war is wasted effort. We are, for a fact, IN the war . . .

"We start into this war with huge government debt, a vast bureaucracy and a whole generation of young people trained to look to the government as the source of all life. * * The Party in power is the one which for long years has been most sympathetic to all manner of socialist doctrines and collectivist trends. * * The President of the United States has continually reached for more and more power, and he owes his continuation in office today largely to the coming of the war. " * * Thus, the fear that the United States will be driven to a national socailism as a result of cataclysmic circumstances and contrary to the free will of the American people, is an entirely justifiable fear * *"

Columnists of the national reputation of Mark Sullivan, Ernest Lindley, Frank Kent, Stanley High, Walter Lippman, Erwin Canham have all sought the reasons for the present confusion and bewilderment. Even William S. Knudsen, Co-Director of the Office of Production Management, has been compelled to admit—"I don't think we've got the spirit yet to do this job" upon which we have embarked.

A STATE OF APATHY

Closer and closer we are to "a shooting war," but American morale is in a state of apathy.

In seeking the reasons for the depressed condition of civilian morale, the writers above referred to, undoubtedly are keeping in mind the ancient tradition of free speech and are expressing themselves with candor and the utmost frankness. Some of them have gone so far as to refer to the conditions responsible for present-day lags in preparedness as having been brought about by a series of "follies, blunders, futilities, absurdities and impracticalities" which have contributed to the woeful inadequacies in defense efforts.

WHY NEGROES ARE DEPRESSED

Insofar as the Negro group in America is concerned, the reasons for inadequate civilian morale among them are not far to seek. On the very day that the National Defense Program became a vital neecssity, and for months after, every technique of obstruction was emploeyd, not only to relegate it to minor participation in the defense effort, but, in many instances, to deny Negro men and women any part whatsoever—in industry, in labor organization recognition, and in Federal Government employment.

Every step-by-step recognition so far grudgingly given has been at the cost of much superheated effort on the part of the Negro Press, a powerful element of the white press, Negro organizations, and the individual and combined efforts of influential white and colored men and women in almost every part of the country.

This writer has only recently called attention to the War Department program as it relates to Negroes. Its denial of our percentage representation in the Army set-up, including denial of officer and selectee personnel proportioned to the Negro population of the United States, and other inequities not at all defensible.

THE BATTLE CONTINUES

The battle still continues for larger inclusion in the industrial effort despite rosy promises and glowing anticipatory reports.

But, worse than all, the civilian morale of the Negro group has been seriously impaired by the continuous reports from Army Camps, reported week by week in the Negro Press, of humiliating experiences outside of and inside of Army service—segregaitons, mistreatment in Southern towns and cities, killings, beatings, hangings—every effort to kill the manly spirit of men being trained supposedly, as they are informed, to defend democracy in the United States, to preserve it in Great Britain, and to extend Mr. Roosevelt's Four Freedoms to the uttermost parts of the world.

In the very nature of things, unified national morale is not to be secured until a better spirit prevails; until a deepening sense of justice and fair-play becomes evident; and until those highly placed officials whose duty it is to change these conditions manifest some decisive sense of intention to cure the evils which now vex and discourage and dishearten the Negro public generally.

COLLEGE GIRLS TO SWEETEN LIFE FOR FT. BRAGG SOLDIERS

GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. —Sweet solace for the doldrums of military camp life is to be offered the trainees at Fort Bragg by the students at Bennett College this year. The Home Economics club there is already making plans to provide them with cookies and candies prepared by students in the Home Economics laboratory of the college.

Contributions from the student body and faculty are expected to pay for the ingredients needed for the sweets, and the culinary labor will be supplied by volunteers. The Bennett girls hope to make their project a year-long activity, and to send the dainties to as many soldier lads as possible.

Joining in the world-wide movement of prayer for those affected by the horrors of war, the students at Bennett also devoted their mid-week vesper service on Wednesday to prayer and meditation for the soldiers and families of the soldiers engaged in the present world conflict.

Conducted by Miss Mary Frances Harvey, '42, of Greensboro, the vesper program consisted of the reading of original poems and prayers by Miss Grace Jones, '42, Burlington, North Carolina, and Miss Ethel Evans, '42 of Greensboro, with piano music by Miss Dorothy Jackson, '42, of Greensboro. Miss Lottie McCoy, '42, Columbus, Ohio, president of the student senate, also rendered a solo, "Goin' To Make Heaven My Home", accompanied by Miss Edwin Graham of Dayton Beach, Florida.

Little Soldiering at Fort Meade

OCT 4 1941

By OLLIE STEWART

FORT MEADE, Md.—If you're hoping or expecting to see colored men really soldiering soldiering. To begin with, there's only a handful of colored men in this camp. Of the units stationed here normally, Company L of the Forty-seventh Quartermaster Regiment, is at present in Richmond, Va., and will be there until December. The Eighty-seventh Quartermaster Company (rail-head) is at present in Wilmington, N.C.

So—the only colored troops now on the post are in the 1322nd Service Unit (Quartermaster Colored Detachment), which includes 277 men; and in the reception center, which has 49 men, mostly non-commissioned officers, to handle the new recruits who are constantly passing through.

Post Housekeepers

With Major George C. Whitting, white, commanding officer, the 1322nd Quartermasters may truthfully and accurately be called the "housekeepers of the post."

Drawn largely from Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Kentucky, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia, where many of them attended first-rate colleges and a few even taught school, this outfit is divided into details.

A Coppin graduate and former teacher at P. S. 125, Baltimore, is the sergeant in charge of the group that receives meat at the warehouse and issues it to the various companies.

No Guns in Evidence

Another group of intelligent young men handle supplies; others clean and take care of the officers' quarters. Some drive trucks, clean up the grounds, work in the hospital and service post utilities.

This reporter didn't see a single man with a gun. But he did hear that they were "good colored boys who are doing a fine job of post maintenance work."

They get $40 a month (which is $10 more than the Government pays them) for doing housekeeping chores; and as one white officer put it, "though some of them do a little gambling, a number of them have either made allotments or send part of their money home themselves, every month."

Church Attendance Encouraged

They are also encouraged to attend church regularly, get as much religion as possible and stay out of trouble.

You don't hear much about the strictly military side of their army career.

The 1322nd Service Unit was activated near the end of June, with the arrival of 190 men from Fort Bragg. To these were added 80 men from Fort Meade's own reception center, and from time to time other smaller groups have been assigned here.

Basic Training Finished

The men from Fort Bragg have all completed their 13-week period of basic training, and the others are just about half through learning army regulations, personal hygiene, close order drills and basic military tactics.

The unit has had some rifle work, it was reported; and two men have completed the gas school. The cooks are attending the cooks' school and the mess sergeants have completed the cooks and mess sergeants' school.

Colored non-commissioned officers include: 1 master sergeant, 1 first sergeant, 1 technical sergeant, 3 staff sergeants, 6 sergeants and 3 corporals.

There is a post exchange, with white civilian help, which is open from 4:00 p.m. until 9:00. There are two day rooms, with magazines, music and tables for games.

There is no recreation hall, a chapel is now being built and when the men want to see a show they go across to the white side of the reservation.

US Removes Fort Bragg Commander

OCT 11 1941

(Special to the AFRO)

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — Col. Charles B. Elliott, commander at Fort Bragg during the recent bloody rioting in which a soldier and a military policeman were killed and a half a dozen others injured; has been relieved of his command.

The action follows closely upon the heels of the War Department's investigation of the affair and its recommendation that the military police system at the post be thoroughly reorganized.

Succeeding Col. Elliott is Col. Edwin P. Parker who took over command of the post on Saturday. One of the first official acts of the new commander was to assemble the entire military police force in the post theatre where he talked to them plainly about his plans.

OCT 11 1941

Warns Against Abuses

Col. Parker cautioned the troopers against the over-use of their authority and laid special emphasis upon the necessity of dealing courteously with the civilians with whom their duties bring them in contact.

Plan Police Corps

Plans are already under way for the formation of a corps of military police under the command of Major General Allen W. Gullion, judge advocate general and provost marshal general of the army.

This means that the military police force here and on every other military reservation will be organized with a picked battalion of enlisted men and specially trained officers.

Whether there will be a training center established here for military police is not known but there is a definite probability that there will be such a school established here as plans for the corps are developed.

Court martial proceedings following the Bragg riot vindicated the military police and Brigadier General B. O. Davis who was called in during the investigation, turned in a 600-page report. Nevertheless, considerable unfavorable comment has persisted.

EASING INTER-RACIAL FRICTION AT ARMY TRAINING CAMPS

FORMER JUDGE WILLIAM H. HASTIE, civilian aide to the Secretary of War, in a recent speech gave assurance that changes are being worked out in the Army training camps to ease the friction between the races. The former jurist enumerated the following corrective measures which had resulted from the recent Ft. Bragg affray:

A veteran officer, experienced in Military Police work is being detailed to Fort Bragg as Provost Marshall to command the Military Police Force and to assume responsibility for its effective training and organization.

Arrangements are being made for increased officer supervision of Military Policemen while on duty in the civilian community and for the establishment of a military Police Station and headquarters in the City of Fayetteville, separate from the civilian police station.

The unified force will consist of selected permanent personnel, colored as well as white, without any racial distinction as to the authority or equipment of the individual military policeman.

The suggestions were made in a report submitted by General Benjamin O. Davis, sr.

The inference is that a similar program will be worked out at other camps with Negro trainees, and this new program should serve to lighten the tension between the races. Trainees and their relatives will welcome this partial solution of the problem but they will continue to feel uneasy where such camps are located in sections of the country where the civilian population is hostile to Negroes.

OCT 4 1941

The only real solution of the problem is a square deal to Negroes and all minority groups, whether they be in the Army, Navy or in the civilian branches of the government. If the President's recent order against discrimination in the various branches of the government is observed to the letter there will be less skepticism and more confidence in administration policies.

Gen. Davis Lauds Camp Lee Trainees

NOV 29 1941

CAMP LEE, Va.—Praise of the morale of colored soldiers in Camp Lee's Quartermaster Replacement Center, and satisfaction with their area in the post and with the training program given colored Quartermaster trainees was voiced last by Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis, attached to the Office of the Inspector General of the War Department, and the only colored general in the army, after a tour of inspection of the 9th Colored Training Regiment in the Quartermaster Replacement Center.

"The morale of the men in the 9th Regiment seems high. I talked with many of the officers, who have expressed enthusiasm about the spirit of the men and the progress they have made in their training here," said General Davis. He observed the truck drivers' school and was impressed with the quality of the training and instruction.

NSPECTS 8TH MEDICAL BATTALION

NOV 29 1941

Accompanied by Major Maxwell, 8th Battalion Commander, General Davis made a thorough inspection of the mess halls and the barracks. No special ceremonies were made for the general's appearance and the training of the soldiers went on as usual even as the inspection tour was made..

Said General Davis of the trainees and officers whom he saw, "I am very agreeably surprised at the spirit shown by the men here. The morale is evidently very high."

The mess halls merited General Davis' closest scrutiny and brought words of praise from him for the officers and men in charge.

"The mess halls and the housekeeping arrangements are entirely satisfactorily," said the General, "and so far I can say that I have no complaint."

TALKS WITH TRAINEES

A sort of informal session was held after the inspection with the General inviting the trainees to bring out any of their problems for discussion with him.

NOV 29 1941

General Davis left Camp Lee for Fort Eustis where he was scheduled for another inspection tour.

Beginning his Army career in the 8th U. S. Volunteer Infantry in the Spanish-American War, General Davis received his commission as 2nd Lieutenant in 1901. After steady promotions, he rose to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in 1918, was promoter to Colonel in 1930, and received his rank of Brigadier General, October 25 1940. His son, Captain Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., a graduate of West Point, in 1936, is now in the basic flying school at Tuskegee, Alabama.

Dixie Daily Says Train Colored Troops in North

DALLAS, Texas—(ANP)—An editorial in the Dallas Morning News, local white daily, on November 4, backs colored newspapers the country over in advocating that Northern colored troops not be sent to Southern posts where discrimination, segregation and mistreatment are rampant.

The editorial refers to an indident at Brownwood, Texas, where a disturbance by troops in the colored section of town was quelled by military police with only one slight casualty.

The editorial reads:

"Fortunately no casualties occurred in the near-riot conditions repressed by prompt action of the Thirty-sixth Division's military police at Brownwood. Regrettably, there can be no assurance that similar occurrences may not disturb the defense program at Brownwood or at other points in the South where colored troops are stationed.

Hard Facts Stand Out

"No amount of theory can refute the hard facts that the race question makes the use of colored troops in Southern areas an extremely delicate question.

"Primarily, the lack of any facile solution is based on the fact that both tradition and determination are against admixture of races in the South. Miscegenation and jim crow laws are not the cause but the effect of deep-rooted feeling in the matter that cannot be waved aside. The concentration of any considerable number of colored troops in communities where the colored population is insufficient to absorb their need for social contacts creates a condition provocative of disorder.

"In the South, too, colored troops will, of course, resent contact with civil laws designed to accentuate segregation, statutes existent in few places in the North. Exclusion from or segregation in restaurants, theatres and transportation facilities brings the situation to a head.

"A quarter of a century ago, bloody tragedies at Brownsville and Houston in Texas and elsewhere in the South were directly traceable to these conditions peculiar to and familiar in the South.

Prejudice a Private Privilege

"No principle of democracy suggests forcing on anyone an association distasteful to him. Individual prejudice is not a privilege, but a right, in private lives. The South doubtless errs in trying to force its prejudices into public concerns also, but the condition is a fact, not a theory.

"The Federal Government apparently has never learned that it cannot without unfortunate consequences billet Northern-trained colored troops in the South. Until it does learn that axiomatic fact, there will continue to be trouble."

U. S. Trailer Camps Started For Negro Defense Workers

WASHINGTON,—(ANP)—Through the cooperation of three separate governmental departments, trailer camps are being furnished Negro workers in and around defense industries.

The first of these camps is the one established at Wilmington, N. C., where the Wilmington Ship yards, a subsidiary of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, has sent a number of Negroes from its Newport News plant to take over certain phases of the industry there.

128 FAMILIES HOMELESS

Some 128 men with families were sent to the North Carolina plant since there were no workers available at Wilmington. They were faced with a lack of proper housing facilities, so the FWA, through the defense housing coordinator, had FSA furnish and take over the management of the trailer camp for Negro workers.

At first, there were accommodations for 125 Negro families, but the workers didn't take to the trailer life as it was thought they would, so 75 of the trailers were removed, leaving 50 available. To date, only 25 Negro families reside in these trailers, for which they pay from $6 to $6.50 per week rent. The trailers are new and thoroughly modern. Most of the workers are believed to have been housed in the permanent locations already existing in Wilmington.

REFUSED SPECIAL HOUSES

OCT 11 1941

Another attempt will be made to house Negro workers in trailers at the Pascagoula shipyards if they don't accept the houses planned for them. The defense coordinator built houses there for Negroes originally, but when the Negroes refused to utilize them on account of the "high" rents, they were turnedover to white families to prevent loss inasmu ch as the whites were faced with a similarhousing shortage.

This combination and cooperation of governmental agencies is generally unknown to the layman, but it shows in a manner, how these agencies work together to put over programs.

FIRST OF DEFENSE HOUSING UNITS TO BE READY NOV. 1

120 Dwellings Being Built in City to House Defense Workers

Two weeks ago workers of the Claussen Lawrence Construction company were busy building the first four dwellings at Camp Croft courts, Spartanburg's defense housing project; today they have 49 buildings under construction, 16 of them under roof.

Two weeks ago shortages in vital building materials were threatening to hold up progress of the project—designed to provide 110 inexpensive apartment units for non-commissioned officers and certain civilian employes of the Spartanburg infantry replacement center—and yesterday, in a great part, shortages continue.

Nevertheless, F. P. Graham, general superintendent of the important Federal Works agency development, said yesterday that Claussen Lawrence had promised the government that the development would be ready by November 15 and the contractors stand not only ready to complete the projects on time but that a number of the units will be finished for occupancy by November 1.

110 Dwellings for Whites

Built on a hill off from Collins avenue, between the American Legion home and Tobe Hartwell courts, negro rehousing development of the Spartanburg Housing authority, the white project includes 110 units, some of them three, others four rooms in size. The layout is attractive and pleasant. The location is within close proximity of Camp Croft as well as within easy access of mid-town Spartanburg. The contract cost of the units is $322,000.

Nearby are the 10 units being made ready for negro tenants at a cost of $37,000. At the negro development, work is being pushed on the setting of foundations. Walls should go up on the buildings within the next 10 days or two weeks.

Difficulty after difficulty has faced the contractors, Mr. Graham said, only to be met and overcome through the loyalty and complete cooperation of all the workers. Labor shortages have been acute, contractors had to seek bricklayers from points as far distant as Jacksonville Fla., Nashville, Tenn., and Washington, D. C., and to get them here it was necessary to pay them at the rate of $1.40 an hour, well beyond the local union scale.

Materials Scarce

With an A-2 rating, high on the priority list, the defense project nonetheless faced material shortages that approached the critical stage. Tile was nowhere to be found, and it was necessary for the contractors to go to a great added expense in buying jumbo brick in its place. Nails, steel, copper and other building metals were hard to get. But they were obtained. In almost all phases of the work, new barriers were found in the path of progress. They were jumped in stride, said Mr. Graham.

The cooperation of local unions in supplying skilled labor that really was skilled, made up of men who knew how to do the job at hand and were anxious to do it well, was heralded by Mr. Graham as being the best spirit of unity he had seen since he was engaged on defense building back in World war No. 1. This will to do, he said, gave him the assurance that the contract with the government would be brought to a close with satisfaction and success.

Of course, added to the cooperation of the workers, Mr. Graham pointed out, was the realization on the part of the contractors that they were on a defense job and therefore could let nothing stop them from giving the government a needed order on time. No expense has been spared in living up to the agreement Claussen Lawrence holds with the federal government.

High Wages Paid

Just what this means, he said, may well be illustrated by the fact that payday this week will find bricklayers drawing a salary of $97.50 for their week's labor. Other tradesmen will also draw pay well above local standards.

Discussing the city's request that Claussen Lawrence, being an Augusta, Ga., firm, pay a city license of over $1,600, double that which would have been asked of a local concern, Mr. Graham continued to praise the community for the cooperation it was showing the project, although standing by his early statement that the request was high.

"City officials have shown us many courtesies," he said, "and for all of them we extend our thanks. As concerns the building license, we bring out the statement that the government contract has a clause in it which mentions the fact that we are not subject to municipal license rulings because of the defense nature of this work."

"Nevertheless, since we use the city streets and other municipal facilities, we are willing to go along and pay the license which would have been asked of a local firm," he added.

No Competition Seen

The city ruling, passed in 1939, before defense building was started, was drawn up to protect local contractors from serious out-of-town competition. In this instance, Mr. Graham said, no Spartanburg firm entered the bid contest, so competition was non-existant. Spartanburg, however, was benefitted in many ways by the contractors since all but a handful of the laborers working on the project are men of this area and a vast store of materials was secured locally.

At city hall, building permits still have not been issued and action is being withheld until the license is secured. However, Mayor Jennings L. Thompson said that no effort will be made to interfere with this important work on the license question.

On the white project, an example of just how far progress has been completed was shown yesterday by Mr. Graham with the statement that 32 of the apartment units are now being plastered. Hardware and plumbing fixtures are being installed on several more. All phases of the work will be substantially completed by November 15, he felt assured.

LISTS 4,844 HOMES FOR RACE WORKERS IN DEFENSE PLANTS

SEP 6 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6—Recent Presidential approval of 100 defense homes in Coatesville, Pa., brought to 4,844 the total of defense homes for Negro occupancy, Charles F. Palmer, Coordinator of Defense Housing, announced this week. Families of Negro defense workers and enlisted personnel in 36 defense areas will be housed in public-financed projects.

SEP 8 1941

Data prepared by Robert R. Taylor, consultant to the Coordinator, shows growing Negro participation in the national defense program as evidenced by the list of key industries whose workers are being provided for in this manner. Steel workers in Pennsylvania, aviation workers in Ohio, shipbuilders in Newport News, Virginia, foundry workers in Illinois — the essential types of defense employment are represented in the composition of tenancy of the projects. Of the 4,844 total, the families of enlisted and civilian personnel of military establishments account for 562 homes to be provided.

STUDY BEING MADE ON ADDITIONAL SITES

Mr. Taylor stated that more than $20,000,000 is now being spent for defense housing to accommodate Negro workers. The projects under construction in various cities range in size from 35 to 500 homes. These homes are attractive, modern and efficiently planned.

An important factor in determining the need for defense housing is the extent to which new workers have, or will come into a locality to perform defense work. One of the objectives of the Division of Defense Housing Coordination is to provide housing in defense communities where the influx of defense workers constitutes an undue burden on the existing supply of dwellings.

Studies of housing conditions are now being made in some 20 additional defense localities throughout the United States. This Division is charged with the responsibility of preventing an impediment to the defense program by reason of the inability of defense workers to secure adequate housing. Mr. Palmer stated that the defense worker must himself be defended against being forced to endure housing conditions injurious to his health, happiness, and efficiency.

Defense Council To Use U. S. Housing As Emergency Hospitals

The Hillsborough County Defense council yesterday accepted an offer from the Tampa housing authority for the use of space and facilities at three housing projects in the city for emergency hospitals to be used in event of air raids.

Auditoriums of Ponce De Leon Courts in Ybor City, Riverview Terrace in North Tampa and North Boulevard Homes, West Tampa Negro project, were turned over to Dr. John R. Boling, chairman of health and housing, with the promise of additional facilities, if needed.

Solid and Fireproof

M. J. Mackler, director of the authority, pointed out that the buildings are among the most solidly constructed in the city and are fireproof with modern facilities that would be needed in hospitals.

Mackler told the council that residents in the projects are willing to "double up" with neighbors to make more hospital room, if necessary, and have offered their services in any way they can be helpful.

E. W. Spencer, chairman of the authority, said the entire projects are at the disposal of the council if they become essential for defense.

Dr. Boling reported that the city and county had agreed to appropriate $15,000 to equip first aid stations, and that 750 additional blankets and quilts would be needed for the hospital. Blankets are to be collected, beginning Saturday, in the courthouse square.

Will List Equipment Needed

A joint city, county and council committee was named to itemize equipment needed to establish the first aid stations and hospitals. It includes County Commissioner Hixon and H. D. Pelhank, secretary of the county budget board, representing the county; City Comptroller Booker and Superintendent McKay of the Tampa hospital, representing the city; and R. Ambler Liggett and Dr. Boling representing the council.

Dr. Boling told the council that a real estate committee headed by J. L. Hearin had submitted a list of 28 buildings that might be suitable for emergency hospitals, and these were being checked by architects. He added, however, that hospitals at the housing projects probably would be sufficient for the immediate future.

Units May Be Built In East Birmingham Area At Cost Of $300,000

Representatives of the national defense housing division were in Birmingham Thursday looking over sites for a housing project for defense workers in the Birmingham district.

Several sites have already been examined and one of the men left by plane Wednesday night for Washington to meet with contractors and go over plans for the project.

Other representatives remained here to look at other sites and arrange for acquisition of the one finally selected.

While nothing definite would be given out relative to the probable site, it is intimated the project would be developed in the East Birmingham area, probably west of Thirty-Ninth Street.

Three hundred units are to be built at an estimated cost of $3,500 each, or an aggregate of approximately $300,000.

This project is to be developed for workers in industrial plants making defense materials, and has no connection with the Housing Authority of Birmingham, which developed and manages the four low-cost housing projects completed or under construction.

Information came from Washington also that progress is being made toward the start of work on housing projects to cost approximately $550,000, announced recently for Fairfield and Tarrant.

It is learned further that the USHA has authorized the Birmingham Housing Authority to develop a third low-cost housing project for Negroes with 100 units to cost $500,000. It is understood the project is to be financed with $500,000 left over after completion of low-cost housing developments now under way.

Nothing definite as to the site is available from officials, but it is rumored it will be near Seventh Avenue, South, west of Twentieth Street.

BULLETIN

RADFORD, Va.—Apparently accustomed to seeing only white newspaper men, the Norfolk and Western ticket agent at Christiansburg refused to sell a ticket for an AFRO-AMERICAN writer to ride the special train to the powder plant dedication on Friday until an army officer informed him that he should do so.

Admission to the army ordnance plant has been restricted almost entirely to army experts, officials and employees of the construction companies. The special train on Friday bore Government, State and local officials and newspaper representatives.

RADFORD Va.— Every local family that has sought a boarde from the working force of th army powder plant under con struction here has been able t get one and at least 200 worker have been taken in by the families that permanently reside here.

While the housing situation here is acute, whites are principally affected and reports that many workmen and persons seeking jobs have been sleeping in barns and chicken houses, to all evidences are incorrect so far as colored people are concerned.

$308 a Week from Boarders

Perhaps the most enterprising resident here in cashing in on the boom is Mrs. Josephine Houston, a widow, who has converted a two-story brick fraternal ha" into a combination boarding house, restaurant and dormitory.

Mrs. Houston gives board and lodging to thirty-three workers who pay $7 each per week. More than half have two to a bed in the converted building, while she has others quartered in her home and in another house she owns.

In addition, Mrs. Houston sells 35-cent meals, soft drinks, and other foods. She has two coin-operated phonographs, and bigger crowds than she can handle most evenings.

Other residents here have varying numbers of roomers, ranging from one to eight.

Rents for Whites Zoom

Rents at hotels, for rooms in private homes, and for houses have zoomed for white people, but the standard rate here for colored construction workers seems to be $7 for lodging and board, or $2.50 for bunking with another worker.

FIRST DEFENSE HOUSING PROJECT OPENS IN VA

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 15—The first defense housing project for Negro industrial workers in the nation opens this week in Newport News, Va., site of vast construction for the Navy, Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, announced.

The project, Orcutt Homes, will provide homes for the families of 148 shipyard workers. It was built by the housing authority of Newport News with a 100 percent USHA loan.

Construction of the project started in December, 1940, and first tenants will move in almost six months to the day from the time ground was broken.

Situated southeast of the center of the city, the project consists of two-story row houses and flats built with brick interior walls, concrete floors and roofs. There will be one, two and three-bedroom dwellings, each having a living room, kitchen, dining space, bathroom and storage space and equipped with modern plumbing and electrical conveniences.

Rents for these homes will range from $25 to $35 per month, including the cost of utilities, the average being $29.73 for the 148 dwellings.

Tenants in the project will have the benefit of facilities afforded by a new Negro high school and a new recreation community building and playgrounds directly across the street, the latter developed by the Newport News Shipyards organization.

Thirty-four families are scheduled to move into the project this week and all dwellings are expected to be tenanted by the latter part of this month. Occupancy will relieve an acute housing shortage occasioned by the expansion of defense activities in the Shipyards.

Jackson Defense Homes Site Chosen

U. S. Office Says 200 Units To Be Built

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP)—Selection of defense housing sites at Wilmington, N. C., Jackson, Tenn., and Gadsden, Ala., was announced today by John M. Carmody, federal works administrator.

Two sites, one for white families and one for Negroes, were selected at Wilmington, where 384 defense homes now are under construction. The new homes were made necessary, the FWA said, by the activities at Camp Davis and the construction of 10 new ship ways at the North Carolina shipbuilding company.

At Jackson, a 24-acre site fronting on Westwood Drive was chosen for 200 homes for workers at the shell loading plant north of the city. The homes will be of demountable type.

At Gadsden, 100 additional defense homes will be located in a 20-acre site in the northeast section of East Gadsden, adjacent to the city limits and about one mile from the shell plant.

Defense Training Offered Free To 45 Negro Boys

Thanks to the National Defense Training Program, forty-five Macon County Negro boys between the age of 17 and 25 will be able to attend school free of cost from June 2 to August 9, 1941, to learn aero-mechanics according to an announcement made by President F. D. Patterson today.

This training unit in aero-mechanics was made possible by an allocation of $6,665 from funds for National Defense Training programs. Thirty-four hundred dollars is being spent for equipment. All supplies for the course, including text books, etc., will be purchased from the fund and furnished free of cost to the boys enrolled.

Three licensed mechanics will be employed on the teaching staff. W. S. Allen, State Itinerant Vocational Teacher-Trainer has been appointed Supervisor of the Project and has outlined the course of study which has been approved by the state board.

G. L. Washington, director of Mechanical Industries, Tuskegee Institute, has assigned one building of the William G. Wilcox Trades School to be headquarters for the Defense Training Program operations.

No fees will be charged for the training, textbooks and supplies will be furnished, but the enrollees must pay for their board room and transportation. While any youth between 17 and 25 years of age is eligible, preference will be given to those especially interested in mathematics and science.

Application blanks may be obtained from the office of Supervisor W. S. Allen in Trades Building A at the Institute.

Twelve Millions Allocated For Negro Defense Housing

Units to Be Erected in Eleven Communities, Taylor Announces

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(S N S)—Indications that Negro workers are becoming an increasing factor in defense production were seen this week in an announcement by Robert R. Taylor, Consultant to the Division of Defense Housing Coordination, that allocations exceeding $12,000,000 have been approved for the provision of shelter for families of Negro defense workers and enlisted personnel.

The allocations, recommended by C. F. Palmer, Defense Housing Coordinator, and approved by President Roosevelt, will provide homes for 2,633 Negro families in eleven urban centers, and similar housing for 435 families of Negro enlisted personnel at eight army camps.

STUDYING OTHER NEEDS

At the same time, Mr. Taylor revealed that the Division of Defense Housing Coordination is now studying the needs of Negro defense workers in 22 additional defense areas with a view to providing shelter for the families of Negro workers who may be brought into those areas.

The present allocations were made under the Lanham Act which provided $290,000,000 for shelter construction for imported defense workers in industrial areas.

"Many of these defense housing projects for Negroes are already under construction." Mr. Taylor said, "The 350-unit project in Cincinnati, Ohio, for instance, is now more than 25 per cent complete. The 200-unit project at Pascagoula, Mississippi, is ready for occupancy. Sites have been approved and property is being purchased for others so that construction may be started at the

SHELTERS WILL BE BUILT

"As defense industries avail themselves of the services of skilled and unskilled Negro labor which must be imported from other communities, the Division of Defense Housing Coordination immediately studies the housing needs of such labor. And if the needs fall within the scope of the Lanham Act, proper shelter provisions are recommended.

Allegheny County in Pennsylvania leads the list of approved projects made public by Mr. Taylor. Five hundred units are scheduled to be erected for the families of Negro defense workers there.

Other communities include Baltimore, Maryland, 250; Lackawanna, New York, 200; Detroit, Michigan, 200; Cincinnati, Ohio, 350; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 250; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, 250 (estimated); Wilmington, North Carolina, 125; Norfolk, Virginia, 300; Newport News, Virginia, 158; and Pascagoula, Mississippi, 100.

Units approved for the families of Negro personnel at Army camps include Portsmouth, Virginia, 20; Camp Livingston, Louisiana, 80; Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, 50; Camp Jackson, South Carolina, 25; Holly Ridge, North Carolina, 90; Fort Sill, Oklahoma, 30; Fort Riley, Kansas, 40; and Fort Bragg, North Carolina, 100.

In addition to the 22 other cities now being studied, Mr. Taylor revealed that the defense housing facilities for Negroes at the present sites may be increased as more Negro workers are introduced into defense industries in these communities.

ADVISORY DUTY To Tell Body Of Medical Needs

Dr. Paul B. Cornely, associate professor of Preventive Medicine and Public Health at Howard university Medical school, has been appointed to the Medical Advisory Council of the Selective Service System, National Selective Service Headquarters announced today.

DR. PAUL B. CORNELY

Commenting upon the appointment, Major Campbell C. Johnson, executive assistant to the Director of Selective Service, said:

"The Council is composed of men who are outstanding in American medicine and who for years have worked for improvement in national health. Dr. Cornely's selection helps to round out the membership of the Council in such a way as to provide expert acquaintance with the health problems of all registrants."

The duties of the Council are to provide liaison between National Headquarters, Selective Service System, the American Medical association, National Medical association, the medical profession at large, and to acquaint these organizations with the medical needs for the most effective administration of Selective Service.

At the present time the Council among other things, is considering plans for prehabilitation and rehabilitation with regard to the minor physical defects of young men.

Dr. Cornely received his preliminary education in Detroit. He was awarded an A.B. degree from the University of Michigan in 1928, an M.D. in 1931, and a degree of Doctor of Public Health in 1934. He studied public health Education and Administration at Harvard university.

Dr. Cornely is author of a number of articles on the medical problems of Negroes. Among Dr. Cornely's published articles may be mentioned the following:

Begin Oak Leaf Park Defense Homes Project In 2 Weeks

NORFOLK—With only official approval necessary in Washington, Lawrence M. Cox, executive director of the Norfolk Housing Authority said Tuesday there is every reason to believe that work will begin within two weeks on the 300-unit Oak Laef Park defense housing project for colored at Campostella Road and Steambot Creek.

The contract has been awarded to the William Muirhead Construction Company, Inc., of Durham, N. C., which submitted the lowest of three bids on the project. The Muirhead firm bid $4,000 below the estimate set by USHA experts.

FINISH IN 120 DAYS

The contractors have signed an agreement to complete construction within 120 calendar days. The contract provides a penalty of $500 for every day over this period which the company requires to finish the work. Cost of the homes was estimated by the USHA at $1,088,000; the Muirhead figure was $1,084,000.

The price includes all necessary elements of construction, including water piping, heating equipment and landscaping of grounds, Mr. Cox said. Bids for the installation of gas ranges will be sought in the near future, he added, every other matter being provided for in the opening bid.

FIFTY-FOUR UNITS

The project will have 54 building units for 300 families and is on a 40-acre site recently purchased by the government. In addition there will be a large recreation hall and playground.

Plans are already under way for development of a business section in the area of the project.

The homes are being built for colored defense workers through the Federal works Agency, for which the Norfolk Housing Authority is acting as agent.

Defense Homes Number 125,000

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Homes for approximately 125,000 people were opened for occupancy in United States Housing Authority projects, including those for defense workers, during the first half of 1941, Nathan Straus, USHA administrator, announced last week.

Out of a total of 35,568 homes opened for occupancy 29,875 were in regular low-rent slum clearance projects, 4,020 were in defense projects financed with USHA funds, and 1,673 were in defense projects assigned to USHA by Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody under the Lanham Act. This does not include homes opened for occupancy in defense projects built by the Army and Navy and financed with USHA funds.

In the same period, Administrator Straus said 103 projects of all types were placed under construction. These projects will contain 28,888 homes, and the estimated deevlopment cost of these projects is $123,381,000.

Of the projects placed under construction 54 with 14,944 homes aer part of the USHA's regular program. These projects have an estimated development cost of $72,508,000.

Three defense projects financed with USHA loans were also placed under construction during the period. These projects contain 1,234 homes and will cost an estimated $5,502,000. These, like other defense projects financed by USHA itself, will become a part of the regular housing program for low-income families when the present emergency is over.

Of the Lanham Act defense projects assigned to USHA, 45 were placed under construction in the six-month period. These projects include 12,385 homes and the cost is estimated at $43,746,000.

The elimination of slum dwellings, Mr. Straus said, proceeded satisfactorily during the period with 18,773 such dwellings eliminated. There is no slum clearance involved in connection with Lanham Act projects, he pointed out, and because of acute shortages in cities in which USHA defense projects are being built slum clearance in these localities is being deferred until the emergency has passed.

FIGHTING HIGH RENTS

With the announcement that Fair Rent Committees have been established in twenty-one cities, the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply urges the creation of others wherever abuses have appeared.

Suggesting publicity for offending landlords, OPACS stated that the Division of Defense Housing Coordination would refuse to register any dwelling unit or room, the rent for which had been declared unfair by a Fair Rent Committee.

Rapid rises in rent are said to be under way in 100 defense areas and the OPACS Rent Section demands "Quick action to head off this trend."

The suggested procedure is the appointment by mayors of Fair Rent Committees which would invite tenants, roomers and lodgers to file complaints against increases, whereupon landlords and complainants would be asked to appear.

While we know very well that this move was not designed to help us, the worst sufferers from rent gouging, it offers a golden opportunity for Negroes.

Since almost every community where there is any appreciable number of Negroes is in a so-called defense area, we should take advantage of this movement at once and organize our committees.

Once organized, these Fair Rent Committees should ask mayors of cities to authorize their efforts and affiliate them with city-wide committees.

While Negroes as a group receive less income than whites as a group, we are almost everywhere forced to pay heavy tribute for the dubious advantage of living in subnormal houses in restricted areas, known in Europe as ghettoes.

It must be admitted, too, that among the worst rent gougers are Negroes themselves who, taking advantage of the artificial room shortage caused by residential segregation, soak Negro roomers for all they can possibly pay, knowing they are helpless.

The Fair Rent Committee plan offers these long sufferers an opportunity to loosen the clutches of rent gougers even if they cannot escape from them.

F.D.R. Approves Defense Homes For Race Workers

Increased Job Opportunities in Buffalo Creates Housing Shortage—Population Jumps 4,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31—Construction of 200 homes for families of Negro workers in defense industries in Buffalo, New York, has been approved by President Roosevelt, upon the recommendation of C. F. Palmer, co-ordinator of Defense Housing.

A report submitted to the Co-ordinator by Robert C. Taylor, Racial Relations Consultant to the Division of Defense Housing, Co-ordination, described in detail the housing situation in Buffalo as it relates to the Negro population of the city and the facts concerning extensive hiring of Negro workers in defense plants. Information contained in this report plus data secured from other federal and local sources formed the basis for the co-ordinator's recommendation of the housing.

JOBS JUMP POPULATION RATIO

Although the population of the city of Buffalo decreased slightly during the decade between 1930 and 1940, the Negro population, on the contrary, increased approximately 5,000, or about 40 per cent. Negroes have been moving into Buffalo to work in the steel mills, foundries and other industrial plants in the vicinity. During the last 12 months dustry in the area has caused increased in-migration from other communities.

According to a report from Dr. Robert C. Weaver, of the Office of Production Management, direct recruiting for Buffalo of several hundred Negro moulders has been carried on in Chattanooga and Nashville, Tennessee.

AIR PLANTS NEED WORKERS

The chief defense demand for labor in the Buffalo area is expected to come from the Curtiss-Wright Company, which will add about 12,000 workers to its plant at Cheektowaga. Estimates made in January and February indicate a need for about 25,000 to 30,000 workers for Buffalo during 1941. This is thought to be a conservative estimate.

The Curtiss-Wright Corporation and the [illegible] Aircraft Corporation have recently revised their employment policies to include Negro workers in their plants and training courses. Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, the American Brass Company, American Radiator Corporation, Buffalo Foundry and Machine Company, Chevrolet Motor and Axle Plant, Ford Motor Company, Socony Vacuum Company, and others are important employers of Negro defense workers in Buffalo.

According to Mr. Howard A. Kelly, director of the Buffalo Housing Authority, a housing survey recently shows that there are no vacant dwellings available for Negro occupancy in the Buffalo area. Private real estate dealers, civic leaders, and representatives of corporations carrying on defense work in the area confirm this statement. Expansion of the Semet Solvay Company because of defense business has displaced a considerable number of Negro families who have been unable to find other accommodations. A demolition program for removing sub-standard homes has further intensified the shortage of housing facilities for Negroes.

Robinson To Design New Housing Unit

47c

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—The appointment of Hilyar R. Robinson ,noted architect of this city, as consultant architect to design the 250-unit defense housing project to be built at Sparrows Point, Md., was announced this week by Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody.

AUG 10 1941

Mr. Robinson will render complete architectural service up to the point of construction, it is reported, including development of site plan and the design of dwellings and utilties. This.. project will house the families of workers employed at the Bethlemem-Fairfield shipyard.

With widd experience in designing housing project, Mr. Robinson was the architect for the Langston Terrace Housing project in Washington. He also designed the Frederick Douglass dwellings, a 313-unit project of the Alley Dwelling authority of the District of Columbia.

AUG 10 1941

Other developments designed by Mr. Robinson include the new Tuskegee Airport and Cook hall, men's dormitory of Howard university.

30 New Homes For Tuskegee Air Personnel

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 18—Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody this week approved a site for the construction of 30 dwellings to provide housing facilities for the families of enlisted and civilian personnel attached to the air base which the Army is building near Tuskegee, Ala., to train Negro officers and enlisted men.

SEP 20 1941

The project site is a five-acre tract which the Federal Works Agency will lease from Tuskegee Institute. It is adjacent to Tuskegee Institute and Greenwood Village, with frontage on Franklin Road. The site is about three miles from the city of Tuskegee and six miles from the air base.

The project will be built under the supervision of the Defense Housing Division of the Federal Works Agency. It is proposed to employ a Negro architect to prepare the plans and specifications.

A recent survey of housing facilities in Macon County indicated that few houses are available for occupancy. The Defense Housing Coordinator has recommended the construction of 55 dwellings by private building agencies for the families of non-commissioned officers, in addition to the Government defense housing project of 30 dwellings.

ASKS FEDERAL PROBE OF OUSTED FAMILIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—(ANP)—Department of agriculture officials have been asked to look into the status of the Negro families forced to give up their home upon the army's demand at Panama City, Fla.

The army aviation on gunnery school located at this place found it necessary to acquire the homes of several Negro families who had homesteaded the land some 40 years ago. Fishermen by trade, the Negroes needed the water front for their boats, nets, reels and other equipment.

Although they were forced to move, they could not buy land anywhere nearby because whites owned all the waterfront and refused to sell to the Negroes.

Influential whites are interested in the welfare of these Negroes and are trying to get the department of agriculture, espically Farm Security, which has had a great deal of experience in this matter, to do something for their benefit.

1,189 Men Enrolled In Classes

Submit Plans And Proposals For Expansion

HAMPTON — Since July, 1940, there has been an accumulative enrollment of 1,189 men in defense training courses at Hampton Institute, it was revealed Saturday.

The enrollees in the evening defense classes numbered 804, including 98 CCC boys; there were 225 in the enlisted men's classes; 115 in the NYA classes; and 45 in the WPA trainees classes.

18 CLASSES

Eighteen classes are now being conducted under the national defense training program, 13 of which are supplementary or evening classes; five are pre-employment or day classes. Evening classes are composed chiefly of industrial workers in the Peninsula area. The NYA group is selected from all parts of the State and sent to this resident project for training. The WPA group is transferred to this project through selection from WPA rolls in this area. The CCC boys are from Yorktown camps.

The defense classes are being conducted under the supervision of the State Board of Vocational Education; all expenses incurred by the Institute are paid by the federal government through the state treasurer; thus making it possible to offer this special training free to all trainees.

Plans for expanding the program to meet the demands are limited by lack of space and available equipment. There are now 50 applications on file for various courses.

U. S. INQUIRY

Inquiry has been made by Army officials as to what extent Hampton Institute could expand the training of enlisted personnel. The school has responded with plans and proposals including the building of a barracks and an instructional building; and steps have been taken to obtain the necessary equipment to carry out the proposed expansion.

Almost 12,000 Defense Homes Completed In U. S

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Nearly 12,000 homes for defense workers, built under United States Housing Authority supervision, have now been completed, Nathan Straus, USHA administrator announced last week.

Completions scheduled this month and next will add 6,152 to the total of 11,259 defense homes already finished in the agency's program, Mr. Straus said.

USHA started the present defense housing program last year when it supplied funds for 20 projects for defense workers and transferred sufficient funds to army and navy to build four additional projects.

Of the 20 original defense housing projects, 17 with 5,110 homes are now complete and construction is far advanced on the remaining three projects which include 1,234 homes. The largest of these uncompleted projects is in Hartford, Conn. This 1,000 home community will be occupied shortly.

Under the Lanham Act, the Federal Works Administrator has assigned 24,777 homes to be built under USHA supervision. Consought to keep the architectural standards of these homes as high as possible under the circumstances and to achieve attractive and livable communities.

"The experience of local housing authorities in the construction of low-rent slum clearance projects has been of the greatest value in the defense housing program," Mr. Straus said. "An incredible amount of pltnning is essential to the proper construction and operation of a large group of homes.

"The fact that local housing authorities have had so much experience in not only what to do but what not to do in the planning of housing projects has been a major factor in the speed which they have been able to achieve in completing this part of our program on tmie."

NEGROES HERE GET DEFENSE TRAINING

NYA and School Board Give Variety of Opportunities to Men, Is Survey Finding

WOMEN'S CHANCES FEWER

Theirs Are Chiefly in Garment Trade—Workers Referred to Jobs Held Qualified

The National Youth Administration and the Board of Education offer training opportunities for Negro men in a variety of occupations, and accept Negroes in all categories of training, while Negro women find their greatest opportunity for getting jobs in the garment trades.

These were among the conclusions in the semi-annual report of the Brooklyn Coordinating Committee on Defense Employment, made public yesterday. The committee's survey was sponsored by the three Brooklyn agencies working among the Negro population—the Brooklyn Urban League, the Carlton Avenue Y. M. C. A. and the Ashland Place Y. M. C. A.—with the cooperation of the National Urban League.

From April 1 to Oct. 1, the report says, more than 600 Negroes received help from the committee, 199 being referred directly to jobs and 122 of them being placed. Defense training was obtained for 183 through the NYA and the Board of Education.

Conclusions of Committee

The committee made public the following conclusions, besides those mentioned before:

"A wide distribution of skills is to be found among Negro workers—some sixty-four different occupational classes were established.

"Negro women are seeking industrial opportunities, as 41 per cent of persons to register for defense jobs were women.

"Brooklyn Coordinating Committee served not only Brooklyn citizens but resident of Manhattan, Queens and areas outside New York State; 6 per cent of persons served lived in Manhattan, 2 per cent Queens and 1 per cent outside the City of New York.

"Negro workers referred were qualified to fill job opportunities; 64 per cent of those referred are known to have been employed in the category specified by the employer.

"As defense program moves forward non-defense employers are anxious to use Negro labor.

Women's Opportunities Limited

"Defense training opportunities are limited for women to garment trades in the Board of Education training and to radio and garment trades in National Youth Administration project.

"The weekly cost of the project was $70.37, giving 122 jobs to Negro defense industries, bringing in weekly wages an aggregate income greater than $2,900 to Negro workers.

"The problems facing the Negro workers as well as those facing other minority groups must be faced squarely by all of us active in the defense program if our democracy is to live and thrive in a world threatened by hostile, aggressive undemocratic forces."

The committee announced that its work would be carried on by the Brooklyn Urban League through its department of industrial relations.

Near Solution of Housing Problem for Defense Cities and Negro Workers

By ALVIN E. WHITE.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—The problem of housing for Negro workers in the far-flung defense industries is well on the way to solution, says Robert W. Taylor, consultant to the Division of Defense Housing. Citing instants to prove his statement, Mr. Taylor's latest figures show that allocations for and houses already built total 4,657.

These houses are being built chiefly in the north, east and middle West where large Negro populations are working in the defense industries, and the total building is aobut five per cent of the whole allocation for defense housing. It is believed that buildings for the workers have outstripped the percentage of Negro workers in the defense industries.

Little construction is being carried on in southern areas because the defense industries have done little for that section, what with army camps occupying most of the territory there.

In one spot in the deep south, however, the organization attempted to construct homes for Negro workers. This was in Passacougla, Miss. Fifty houses were built, costing from $1,000 to $4,000 each.

They were built specifically for Negro occupancy, but when the colored workers found that the rents for these five-room modern houses would be about $20 per month, they balked at paying more than $4 or $5 they were already paying for accommodation in shacks. Some of these latter had no uoors and were nothing more than sheds.

Finally these houses had to be turned over to the white workers who are flooding the little city, which prior to the coming of the defense contracts was nothing more than a town.

Mr. Taylor then sought the assistance of the Farm Security Agency, which undertook to supply the demand for homes for the Negro workers—adding a little plot of land to the original size of the lot so the workers could raise garden vegetables and have chickens and pigs. This proposal met wit ha better reception and homes for 50 families of Negroes have again been allotted to this sleepy little southern town. Here Negroes are earning as much as $135 per month because the unions have stepped in and forced the payment of standard wages to these workers.

Although the condition is sad throughout the country where Negroes are concerned in housing, it is difficult to educate the Negroes to the point where they will accept these new homes as they should.

In another section of the country, not far from Washington, government officials themselves said they didn't feel that Negroes wanted better housing and that it would be almost a waste of money to put up projects for them.

Poorly-housed and not seeking any change, the workers were content to live in the shacks they had occupied for years. When a questionnaire was sent out among the 475 workers at one spot, 300 replied that they were interested in the housing but the same officials recommended that no houses be built in that area for Neggroes.

Thus the education of the Negroes and the officials is going ahead at the same time, with plenty of effort needed on both sides. Throughout the New England states, the general policy has been that Negroes should be in housing projects along with the whites.

Of particular interest is the new planned community being worked out for the employes of the industrial areas in and around Baltimore. On a splendid site of some 100 acres. there is being planned a community, the only one of its kind in the country, where modern and scientific principles are being put to work to erect the little village of 350 private homes.

Privately-financed, this is the first project of its kind to be insured by the RFC and the FHA. Situated between Sparrows Point and Baltimore, about six miles from the latter on the main highway between the two spots, the site has been approved and now all that remains is for the private corporation engaged in the work to go ahead with the original plans.

Before a lick has been hit on the project, some 200 persons have indicated their willingness to buy and have sufficient funds to make the required payment of 10 percent on the cost of the house as the initial payment on their future homes. The houses are to cost between $3,500 and $4,000. The community will have a business section and a recreation center as well.

Most of the workers occupying these houses are from steel mills, ship yards and airplane plants in the nearby towns where defense contracts have been awarded.

At first, there was a bitter fight against the proposed community for Baltimore, but after the matter was thoroughly investigated and the soundness of the idea explained, senators, congressmen and others fell in line and endorsed the project.

As of August 29, the following allocations had been made:

Suburban gardens	204
Mayfair Gardens	590
Rockford, Ill.	35
Detroit	200
Sparrows Point, Md.	250
Pascagoula, Miss.	50
Buffalo, N. Y.	550

Philadelphia	250
Pittsburgh	250
Newsport News, Va.	498
Norfolk. Va.	300
Coatesville, Pa.	250
Total	4,657

For the non-commissioned officers and naval workers another group of houses is being erected as follows:

Tuskegee	82
Fort Ord	10
Fort Riley, Kas.	40
Camp Claiborne, La.	115
Camp Livingston, La.	30
Fort Devens, Mass.	30
Fort Custer, Mirh.	30

Fort Lewis, Wash.	10
Total	522

Navy homes:

Portsmouth, Va.	20
Cabin John, Md.	20
Total	40

The distribution snows that the areas in the South have not been touched and although the greater proportion of the United States' Negro population lies in that area, so little defense work is being carried on there, this housing is being left to the agragrian agencies, which have their own program.

However, where there are houses being constructed in the south, Mr. Taylor is working out a plan where they are demountable and can be moved from congested areas after the emergency has passed out into the rural areas and then be rebuilt in the same manner as when originally set up.

Despite the many obstacles to be overcome, the defense projects are going ahead at full speed and in the short time since the consultant was added to the staff (February) much has been accomplished and an even more expansive program is under way.

TAYLOR HEADS SURVEY FOR HOMES FOR DEFENSE WORKERS

NOV 23 1941

A study of the need for housing to accommodate Negro defense workers in 22 additional localities throughout the United States is now being made under the direction of Robert R. Taylor, Consultant to the Division of Defense Housing Coordination, and Vice Chairman of the Chicago Housing Authority.

In a recent memorandum from the Office for Emergency Management, the statement is made that there has been Presidential approval of 100 defense homes in Coatesville, Pennsylvania. This has brought the total to 4,844 defense homes for Negro occupancy, according to Charles F. Palmer, Coordinator of Defense Housing. The latter also stated that families of Negro defense workers and enlisted personnel in 36 defense areas will be housed in public-financed projects.

As a result of the data prepared by Commissioner Taylor, there is indicated a growing Negro participation in the national defense program, as evidenced by the list of key industries. According to Mr. Taylor, more than $20,000,000 is now being spent for defense housing to accommodate Negro workers. The projects under construction in various cities range in size from 35 to 500 homes. These homes are attractive, modern and efficiently planned.

In his work, Mr. Taylor, as a housing expert is developing data and securing information for the 22 additional defense localities with respect to housing needs. The Division for which Mr. Taylor as acting consultant is charged with the responsibility of preventing an impediment to the defense program by reason of the inability of defense workers to secure adequate housing. It is the contention of the Chicago housing official and Mr. Palmer that the defense worker must himself be defended against being forced to endure housing conditions injurious to his health, happiness and efficiency.

NEGROES PLAN DRIVE TO SELL MORE BONDS

Committee Is Organized To Direct The Work

Shelby County negroes will shortly begin a campaign within their race to increase purchase of Defense Savings Bonds, M. K. Revill, county chairman of the defense savings drive, announced yesterday.

Mr. Revill said George W. Lee, head of the Negro Division, has organized a committee composed of Rev. T. O. Fuller, Prof. Blair T. Hunt, Dr. A. N. Kittrell and Dr. W. O. Speight to direct the work.

The committee has adopted a four-point program which includes sponsorship of a canvass of firms alloted to the Negro Division, sponsorship of "Buy a Bond Sunday" in which five-minute talks will be made by every pastor from his pulpit, sponsorship of a "Buy a Bond Day" in negro schools and the placing of placards in windows of every negro business house

Negroes Are Buying Defense Bonds

By WILLIAM PICKENS
(ANP Feature Writer)

For both business reasons and patriotic reasons many Negro organizations with money in their treasuries are depositing that money in the treasury of the United States The Great Lakes Insurance company, of Detroit, has bought defense savings bonds that will mature at $10,000. The president of that company is Atty. Charles H. Mahoney, counsel in the famous "Sweet Case" of the mid-twenties The Knights of Peter Claver, whose national secretary is Archie W. Arnold, of New Orleans, has made a like investment, and sends us the photostatic copy of the check made payable to the First National bank of Mobile, Ala., and of the bank's receipt.

The Most Worshipful Grand lodge of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons (Prince Hall Affiliation), of Virginia, has sent us a set of patriotic resolutions and the statement that they are buying $1,500 worth of defense bonds. C. V. Wilson, of Lynchburg, is the R. W. G. secretary of that organization.

And listen: the Afro-American Life Insurance company, of Jacksonville, Fla., of which the hard-headed J. H. Lewis is president, has invested $10,000, plans to invest more And President Lewis sends a word which shows that he has not only business foresight, but also much horse-sense and a warm American heart:

"We are trying to do everything we can to give our financial, as well as moral, support to the defense program of the President of our United States."

Some day Americans of all races are going to catch up with such colored Americans as these in civilization and this is going to be a grand place for our black and white children to grow up in. If Adolph Hitler is counting on American race prejudice to move colored Americans to support his hellish program, he is counting chickens that never will hatch. We have a few people in America, some white, some black, whom we could most joyfully give to Hitler, if he would send for them and pay their fares,—but there is absolutely nothing else here for him and his cohorts.

We are still making our America It is not half made yet. It will be yet in the making for generations

Thomas Named Aide To William Pickens

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(A N P)—Jesse O. Thomas, field secretary of the National Urban league, has been named as staff assistant in the U. S. Treasury department devoted to the promotion of defense bond sales. He will have headquarters in Washington and serve as an assistant in the office headed by William Pickens.

In explaining the appointment the following statement was issued:

"The treasury department felt the need of adding an additional person to the staff who had had experience and success in promoting and establishing various types of community organizaton, also a person whose interracial integrity, moral courage and intellectual honestly was known to and respected by white and colored citizens in all parts of the nation.

"Mr. Thomas has had marked success in organizing both intra- and inter-racial groups. In addi- of the National Urban League, he tio to organizing some ten branches is also the founder of the Atlanta University School of Social Work.

"For a number of years he was employed as field secretary of Tuskegee Institute with headquarters in Rochester, N. Y. He resigned this position to become the principal of Voorhees Industrial Institute at Denmark, S. C., which had a faculty and administrative staff of 31 persons, representing many of the leading educational institutions in America. He resigned this position to accept the position as state supervisor of Negro economics in the state of New York. At the same time he served as examiner in charge of U. S. Employment Service, New York City.

In 1919 he resigned from the position with the federal government to accept the position as field secretary of the National Urban league and established headquarters in Atlanta.

"During 1939, when the executive secretary of the National Urban league became seriously ill, the appointee's basis of operation was transferred to New York, where he became the acting executive secretary of the National Urban league. It is reported that more new sources of financial income were discovered during the year he was in charge than the organization had found during a single year since 1931."

Negroes To Buy Defense Bonds With T. B. Fund

A special committee of the Anderson County Tuberculosis Association met with members of the Negro Auxiliary of the Association and approved a plan to purchase ary of the Association during which defense bonds with a $1,200 hospital fund raised by the Negroes of this section.

The Negro contribution will be earmarked, along with the Association's fund of more than $5,000, for use in building a tuberculosis hospital when such a project materializes. Meanwhile, the money will be invested in United States defense bonds.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. Carrie McC. Patrick, R. E. Cochran and Dr. Joe H. Carter.

Alice Webb Anderson, Negro worker, presided.

ABOUT DEAN PICKENS U.S. DEFENSE BONDS

OCT 11 1941

Into the office the other day walked an elderly man who requested that the AFRO cash his fifty-dollar U.S. bond. Inquiry developed that necessity compelled him to dig into his lifetime savings.

A year ago we passed over to a young man just become of age another U.S. bond his grandfather entrusted to us some twenty years ago.

These two instances of what became of bonds sold during the First World War are as good an argument as we know for the purchase of U.S. Defense Bonds today. They can be saved for a rainy day. They can be put aside for the children.

* * * * *

We received a letter, Saturday, from William Pickens of the U.S. Treasury Department, in which he chided the AFRO gently for its failure to use its news columns to further the sales of U.S. Defense Bonds.

In World War I the AFRO sold Liberty Bonds. We know that government bonds are the soundest investment in the country and we have put all the dollars we can afford into government securities.

But candor compels us to admit that the Treasury hasn't made the public purchase of Defense Bonds as interesting and attractive as it was in 1917. Perhaps the reason is the opposition.

* * * * *

There are Wheeler, Lindbergh and Nye blatantly advising us we are suckers if we go to war.

There is Honest Harold Ickes telling us there is a gas shortage and a Senate committee telling us there isn't.

There is the navy advertising for recruits in every two-by-four newspaper, except the colored papers, because it wants no colored seamen.

There is the President asking for billions for aid to Britain. But the British Embassy says it wants no colored fliers as ferry pilots and that it will hire no colored persons among its personnel.

There is mouthy Claude Pepper, leading New Deal Senator, choosing this time to shoot off his head about the four freedoms for Europe but avowing there will never be a vote for colored people in the southern part of the United States of America.

There is President Roosevelt doing his best, but having a heck of a time, whipping the A.F. of L. unions and the big industrialists to take colored workers.

There is the War Department, which insists on shipping most of the drafted boys into Southern camps, where race prejudice is as bitter against them as anything meted out to the Jews in Germany by Hitler.

Then there is the tug-of-war between the President and Congress as to whether we shall get into a shooting war or mind our own business.

OCT 11 1941

Finally there is the constant criticism of the experts that Communists are running the government, that labor is running the government, that waste is everywhere and that the planes, guns and tanks we are making are obsolete and would be ineffective in war.

* * * * *

Our defense program is like a football team of eleven quarterbacks. Each player is calling his own signals. There is a good deal of running up and down the field at cross purposes (except on Saturday and Sunday) and each player is carrying his own football.

Ten quarterbacks with ten footballs must be called in and their places taken by linemen, ends and backs who are willing to take orders from THE quarterback.

Once we get rid of the confusion in Washington we can settle down to real defense work on a unified scale and put Dean Pickens's Defense Bonds into every home as a matter of course.

THE G.O.P. WANTS IN

Representative Joseph Martin (R., Mass.), chairman of the GOP National Committee in a speech out in California recently called for an end to racial discrimination against colored people.

But the GOP is not in power today. When it held political control for 16 years, from the administration of President Wilson until the inauguration of President Roosevelt, Republicans only talked about abolishing race barriers in the Civil Service; Roosevelt issued an order to that effect.

The GOP had many golden opportunities and muffed them. For that reason people rejected the party and its candidates.

The party needs revitalizing if it is to come back in the fall Congressional elections, but it can appeal to voters with performances not with promises.

WHO GETS HURT MOST?

Baltimore papers are howling because the car of an unlicensed and uninsured auto renter killed a child.

Human life is precious. Any fool can take it. No wizard can restore it once the light goes out.

There are reasons, however, why some colored people do not carry auto insurance.

Race prejudice so affects judges and juries that damages may be assessed against colored defendants in auto cases whether innocent or guilty. Therefore, insurance companies sometimes refuse to sell protection to colored autoists.

That makes a vicious circle.

1. Prejudice in courts.
2. Color line in insurance companies.
3. White persons run down.
4. White relatives cannot recover damages against uninsured colored car owner.

The truth with intolerance and racial bias is that it never harms only the persons at whom it is directed. Always other innocent parties suffer.

We received a letter, Saturday, from William Pickens of the U.S. Treasury Department, in which he chided the AFRO gently for its failure to use its news columns to further the sales of U.S. Defense Bonds.

In World War I the AFRO sold Liberty Bonds. We know that government bonds are the soundest investment in the country and we have put all the dollars we can afford into government securities.

But candor compels us to admit that the Treasury hasn't made the public purchase of Defense Bonds as interesting and attractive as it was in 1917. Perhaps the reason is the opposition.

There are Wheeler, Lindbergh and Nye blatantly advising us we are suckers if we go to war.

There is Honest Harold Ickes telling us there is a gas shortage and a Senate committee telling us there isn't.

There is the navy advertising for recruits in every two-by-four newspaper, except the colored papers, because it wants no colored seamen.

There is the President asking for billions for aid to Britain. But the British Embassy says it wants no colored fliers as ferry pilots and that it will hire no colored persons among its personnel.

There is mouthy Claude Pepper, leading New Deal Senator, choosing this time to shoot off his head about the four freedoms for Europe but avowing there will never be a vote for colored people in the southern part of the United States of America.

There is President Roosevelt doing his best, but having a heck of a time, whipping the A.F. of L. unions and the big industrialists to take colored workers.

There is the War Department, which insists on shipping most of the drafted boys into Southern camps, where race prejudice is as bitter against them as anything meted out to the Jews in Germany by Hitler.

Then there is the tug-of-war between the President and Congress as to whether we shall get into a shooting war or mind our own business.

Finally there is the constant criticism of the experts that Communists are running the government, that labor is running the government, that waste is everywhere and that the planes, guns and tanks we are making are obsolete and would be ineffective in war.

Our defense program is like a football team of eleven quarterbacks. Each player is calling his own signals. There is a good deal of running up and down the field at cross purposes (except on Saturday and Sunday) and each player is carrying his own football.

Ten quarterbacks with ten footballs must be called in and their places taken by linemen, ends and backs who are willing to take orders from THE quarterback.

Once we get rid of the confusion in Washington we can settle down to real defense work on a unified scale and put Dean Pickens's Defense Bonds into every home as a matter of course.

THE G.O.P. WANTS IN

Representative Joseph Martin (R., Mass.), chairman of the GOP National Committee in a speech out in California recently called for an end to racial discrimination against colored people.

But the GOP is not in power today. When it held political control for 16 years, from the administration of President Wilson until the inauguration of President Roosevelt, Republicans only talked about abolishing race barriers in the Civil Service; Roosevelt issued an order to that effect.

The GOP had many golden opportunities and muffed them. For that reason people rejected the party and its candidates.

The party needs revitalizing if it is to come back in the fall Congressional elections, but it can appeal to voters with performances not with promises.

WHO GETS HURT MOST?

Baltimore papers are howling because the car of an unlicensed and uninsured auto renter killed a child.

Human life is precious. Any fool can take it. No wizard can restore it once the light goes out.

There are reasons, however, why some colored people do not carry auto insurance.

Race prejudice so affects judges and juries that damages may be assessed against colored defendants in auto cases whether innocent or guilty. Therefore, insurance companies sometimes refuse to sell protection to colored autoists.

That makes a vicious circle.

1. Prejudice in courts.
2. Color line in insurance companies.
3. White persons run down.
4. White relatives cannot recover damages against uninsured colored car owner.

The truth with intolerance and racial bias is that it never harms only the persons at whom it is directed. Always other innocent parties suffer.

Urban League Urges Inclusion Of Race In Defense Training

Federal Vocational Training Program Selectees Come from WPA, NYA and State Employment Services. Drive Will Feature Opportunity Campaign.

MAR 15 1941

NEW YORK, March 13.—An intensive drive is being made this month by Urban League branches all over the country to assure the inclusion of Negroes in vocational training programs made possible through a Congressional appropriation of $70,000,000 to be administered by the U.S. Office of Education. The drive will be conducted in connection with the League's ninth annual Vocational Opportunity campaign, which will be held during the week of March 16-23.

The nation-wide training program is sponsored by the National Defense Advisory Commission. State and local vocational education authorities are in charge of it. Urban League secretaries are conferring this week with State Employment Service officials all over the country to urge the admission of Negroes to such courses and their later referral for placement in defense industries.

OBTAIN INFORMATION FROM LOCAL OFFICES

The regulations adopted for the training courses by the U.S. Office of Education require that not less than 5 per cent of the trainees be chosen from WPA rolls. Selections are made on the basis of previous training and experience in the occupations for which training is offered or in related occupations. The WPA may choose not only from persons assigned to projects but also from unassigned workers certified by local welfare agencies. During training, persons selected from WPA rolls are paid their security wage.

Whatever percentage of trainees cannot be furnished by the WPA is requisitioned from public employment registers. These persons receive no pay during training.

In the case of NYA workers, the training will be supplementary to their NYA employment for which they receive wages.

The league urged that all colored persons obtain further information about the types of courses offered, and their location, from their local WPA headquarters. Other persons should consult the nearest public employment office.

Defense Classes Set For Negroes

Training In Woodwork And In Electricity Will Be Offered At Plateau

Two defense training classes for negro men are scheduled to open Monday, May 5, at the Mobile County Training School at Plateau.

The classes offered are in electricity and woodwork, and are open to negroes between the ages of 18 and 25. The electrical class will be conducted by Esau Smith, while Andrew Houze will conduct the woodwork class. Both are graduates of Tuskegee Institute.

Prof. Benjamin F. Baker, principal of the training school, said the classes will be conducted under the supervision of the state department of vocational education, of which H. B. Hobdy is director. There will be no fees required for either class, and free transportation from Mobile to Plateau will be offered 10 of the registrants.

35 Camp Croft Negroes Win School Diplomas

Thirty-five negro soldiers last night were presented with certificates of graduation from the 50th battalion "school of opportunity" at a formal ceremony held in the battalion recreation center.

Lieut. Col. John C. Newton, battalion, commander, congratulated Lieut. Harvey E. Johnson, battalion chaplain, for his efforts in founding the school and directing its policy. Twelve-week courses were conducted in elementary, high school and college subjects.

Brief talks, lauding the faculty and student body for the initial success of the school, were given by Chaplain Johnson, Chaplain A. L. Thomas of the ngero division of the 27th battalion; Captain William Hatten of Company A, 50th battalion; Private Julius Sidoine, acting principal; Private Clifton Brockton, a teacher; Dr. S. D. Brown of the Spartanburg housing authority and Mrs. Brown, and Sergt. Fr[illegible] son. The "Swingsters", 50[illegible] talion dance band, the Compar[illegible] quartet and Private Robert Small rendered musical selections. The third platoon of Company A, under the leadership of Corporal Bernard Wheaton, gave a "silent manual of arms." Chaplain Thomas presented the certificates.

NAACP Wins Campaign On Job Training

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—As a result of repeated and strong protests from the local br[illegible] of the N.A.A.C.P., the iron-clad policy of discrimination against Negroes in federally supported defense training courses here was broken last week.

JUN 9 1941

After the appearance of a story in the weekly press in which the N.A.A.C.P. charged the board of education and Superintendent of Schools William A. Bass with sabotaging the defense program by refusing to remove race bars, the board and the superintendent called a conference with a representative of the Social Security administration, urging that immediate approval of five basic courses for Nashville Negro apprentices be approved by the United States Office of Education.

JUN 19 1941

The N.A.A.C.P. learned that the approval has been given and that the courses will begin in the fall.

Negroes Urged To Enroll In Defense Classes

Weaver Reminds That Call Is For Trained Workers

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(S N S)—Pointing out that new skilled and semi-skilled jobs are being made available daily for Negro workers in many defense industries, Dr. Robert C. Weaver, chief of the Negro Employment and Training Branch of OPM, this week strongly urged Negroes throughout the country to take advantage of defense classes now open to all trainees.

"Through the activities of the Office of Production Management and the Executive action of the President," Dr. Weaver declared, "employment bans against Negro workers have been and are being lifted in many defense industries now expanding this staffs through defense training courses.

"In many of these industries, however, Negro workers have been unable to take advantage of these new employment opportunities because they have failed to complete defense training courses established in their own communities.

MUST BECOME SKILLED

"It is imperative that this condition be rectified at the earliest possible moment. Since 75 percent of the new jobs opened by the defense program will be in skilled and semi-skilled capacities, Negro workers cannot hope to be fully integrated into the employment phase of the program unless they enter defense training classes."

Dr. Weaver also pointed out that President Roosevelt's recent Executive Order on defense employment took cognizance of the training problems of minority groups. Section One of the order stated:

"All departments and agencies of the Government of the United States concerned with vocational and training program for defense production shall take special measured appropriate to assure that such programs are administered without discrimination because of race, creed, color, or national origin."

SHOULD ENROLL IN CLASSES

Declaring that this section will assure wider training opportunities for Negro workers, Dr. Weaver urged colored trainees to utilize fully facilities already available in many localities.

"Field investigations by members of my staff indicate that this has not been done in many communities," he stated. "Civic, social and labor leaders in these communities should combine their efforts to see that available Negro workers are enrolled in these classes."

The Chief of the Negro Employment and Training Branch cited recent developments in the aviation industry in support of his statement of increased employment opportunities for Negroes. Aircraft manufacturers now training and employing Negro production workers include Curtiss-Wright factories and affiliates in Buffalo, New York, Columbus and Cincinnati, Ohio; Bell Aircraft in Buffalo, N. Y.; Brewster Aeronautical Corporation in Long Island City, N. Y.; Grumman Aeronautical Engineering Company and Republic Aviation Company in Farmingdale, L. I.

PLACED IN DETROIT

"The aircraft industry is not alone in expanding opportunities for Negroes," Dr. Weaver said. "In Detroit, for instance, Negroes are now being placed as screw machine operators, latne operators, electricians, gear hobblers, welders and in other occupations in which they were once denied employment.

"The Journal of Negro Education foresaw this situation as early as October of last year. At that time this periodical declared:

"'It behooves as many Negroes as possible to take advantage of this training so that they can supply this labor demand as it arises. It is obviously better policy for Negroes to get such training and face the possibility of having to fight to get employment afterward than it is to have opportunities open up which they can not enter because they are not trained.

"The opportunities are beginning to open up daily. And the President's Executive Order may prove ineffective in many areas unless Negroes prepare themselves for these opportunities by taking advantage of defense training courses."

Preparation For Opportunity

THE President's recent executive order prohibiting racial discrimination in all defense industries may prove ineffective in many areas unless Negroes prepare themselves for these opportunities, now opening up daily, by taking advantage of defense training courses, is the opinion of Dr. Robert C. Weaver of the Office of Production Management.

Almost concurrent with this opinion, the National Urban League, through its special field representative, Franklin O. Nichols, finds a discouraging note of defeatism in the failure of colored workers to enroll in defense and vocational training courses in key industrial centers of the nation. In his report on a six weeks' investigation, Mr. Nichols found:

Only 21 colored out of 700 enrolled in federal defense courses in Cincinnati; 200 youths out of 4,000 in vocational high school courses in the same city; Pittsburgh had 25 out of 825 training for defense and 135 colored youths out of a total 5,234 enrolled in vocational schools. In New York City only 268 Negroes are to be found out of about 10,000 workers training for defense.

We must face this fact: civilization will not pause because of the indolence of any race. Either we must measure up to the need of the hour or be counted out.

NEGRO YOUTH SHOULD HAVE EQUAL TRAINING FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

It seems that negroes in Houston are kept running in a vicious circle trying to get in on the National Defense Training program. Ever so often either John W. Rice or Tom Holley, representing the National Youth Administration in the state, are here appointing committees to make surveys and studies as to the kind of training Negro youths need and who will hire them when they are trained. After these high sounding committees have been named and published in the papers, we hardly hear any more of the findings and when inquiries are made as to why defense training set-ups are not provided for Negro youths, that the committees failed to function, suitable locations could not be found, an insufficient number of youths expressed interest, employers won't hire them after they are trained or the unions block them.

It appears that this section is not yet ready and does not feel it necessary to train the Negro to defend his country as other citizens.

We take the position that there should be no discrimination in defense training. No defense or private industry can tell today the number nor type of workers it will use in the future. This will all depend largely upon national and internal conditions. No one would have thought a few years back that there would have been established by the government, a training school for Negro flyers at Tuskegee. Every day there are growing demands for skilled labor of every type. America can no longer rely upon foreign labor to do its skilled work. The war is going to stop that. This country must train its own citizens.

Houston is rapidly becoming one of the greatest industrial centers of this nation. About 27 per cent of the industrial workers here are Negroes. The Negro population is keeping pace with the growth of the city. Who can tell that a labor shortage for skilled workers will not occur in Houston and cause great financial losses for lack of such. If Negroes were trained, they could relieve a situation like this.

Negroes should not have to wait until an opening or some employer agrees to hire them before training is provided. If we continue to proceed along this line, it would be almost useless to train our youth for any phase of work. Nearly every job the Negro holds now is being contested for by skilled workers. Houston should take the lead in providing industrial schools and set-up for its Negro citizens. Parents, school boards and civic organizations should launch a vigorous campaign to encourage the youths to attend such schools just as is done toward college education. It is obvious now that we are drifting toward a worker's world and those who are trained will best fit in the new social order.

Negroes Urged To Train Selves For Defense Jobs

WASHINGTON—Negro workers are urged Saturday to increase their employment in defense training classes in a statement by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, Chief, Negro and Employment Training Branch of the Office of Production Management which noted several recent placements of Negro training course graduates in skilled jobs in defense industries.

"Thirteen graduates of training classes in the Vashon High School in St. Louis have recently been employed by the Emerson Electric Co., in that city," Dr. Weaver stated, "and the local Missouri State Employment Office estimates that approximately 100 more Negro trainees may be taken by that company alone.

"Similar placements are taking place in other parts of the country where Negroes have availed themselves of the training which is open to all persons, regardless of race, creed or color. Recent developments in Connecticut indicate the importance of this training.

"In Norwalk, for instance, the eight Negro youths who recently finished defense courses there have all been placed with the U. S. Aluminum Co., at Fairfield. The one Negro graduate of the machine shop course at Torrington, Conn., is now working as a turret lathe operator at the Union Hardware Co.

"In New Haven, only one of the six Negro defense training graduates has failed to find employment. Three are now working as machine operators at the Winchester Arms Co., and two preferred to complete the WPA project work on which they are engaged.

"None of these boys would have received their jobs in defense industries if they had failed to prepare themselves through these training classes. In several of the instances cited above, additional Negroes would have been employed if they had been qualified.

"It is true that there are instances where trainees have been unable to get employment after finishing defense courses, but these men are better prepared to take advantage of the openings which are appearing in various communities daily.

"Since 75 per cent of all the new workers in defense industries will be trained in some category, we cannot expect to obtain full Negro integration into the defense program unless we take full advantage of available defense training courses."

Both Races In Defense Study At Howard U.

Courses Attract 573; New Semester Opens October 10

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Anxious to take advantage of the growing demand by defense industries for technically trained men, 573 colored and white students have registered for training in defense courses at Howard University snice the school was authorized to offer the courses by the United States Office of Education.

All the courses are of college grade, according to L. K. Downing, dean of the school of architecture and engineering and director of all defense courses at the university.

The courses include: architectural drafting, basic principles of organic chemistry, chemistry of powder and explosives, part b; elementary electrical circuits and machine design, engineering drawing, geodetic computer, surveying and mapping, and tool engineering. Registration begins October 7.

REQUIREMENTS

High scchool graduates who have had a minimum of two years of mathematics are eligible for the majority of the courses.

Students who have completed a course in trigonometry may qualify for the course in surveying, while students who have had the equivalent of two years of college work in enginering or mathematics may qualify for geodetic computer. Those who have had a minimum of three years of college chemistry may be eligible for the course in chemistry of powder and explosives.

CERTIFICATE GIVEN

Although engineering defense courses do not yield academic credit, all students who successfully complete one of the courses will be awarded a certificate.

The course in engineering drawing includes 408 classroom hours of work and is recognized by the U. S. Civil Service Commission as the equivalent of two years experience in drafting.

Prospective enrollees for the courses are urged to contact the Dean, School of Engineering and Architecture, Howard University, Washington, D. C., immediately for further information.

NEGROES AT WHEELER ARE ATTENDING SCHOOL

Military tactics and combat methods aren't all a soldier learns at Camp Wheeler. In fact, classes in subjects that might be taught in any school or college can be found on Wheeler's curricula, too.

Newest of the "schools" has been organized for trainees in the 16th battalion, Negro unit consisting of approximately 1,500 men. Selectees in Company F are the students.

On the average, men in that battalion have had less schooling than other soldiers and that is one of the reasons for formation of the classes. Attendance will be voluntary, however.

* * *

FIVE SUBJECTS to be taught are English, arithmetic, reading, spelling and writing. Later, when the students have mastered these fundamentals. more advanced subjects such as physics and general science will be taught.

The faculty is comprised of trainees themselves, all Negroes, and includes:

Pvt. George W. Franklin, who is a graduate of Miner Teachers College and Howard University and who holds a bachelor of science degree; Pvt. Theodore Goggs, A.B., graduate of Howard and a student at Wisconsin law school when drafted; Pvt. Cyrus Marshall, A. B., graduate of Coppin Teachers College, Baltimore, Md.; Pvt. Robert Richardson, B. S., Talledega College; Pvt. Aldie Miller, A. B., Florida A.M. College, and student at University of Chicago when inducted, and Pvt. Charles Collins, B. S., Xavier College.

TRAINING FOR DEFENSE

Governor Price has issued an urgent appeal to Virginians between the ages of 18 and 50 to enroll in vocational training schools operated by State Department of Education. Free training offered by these night schools for a period of ten weeks, says the governor, will equip an enrollee to operate one or more machines used in shipbuilding, airplane and machine tool industries.

A shortage of thousands of skilled workers is impeding essential defense production, the governor points out. His appeal for men to avail themselves of the free training schools was prompted by reports that 25,000 skilled workers would be needed in the Tidewater area within the next few months. He has learned one machine shop is behind its schedule 21,000 man-days and is holding up production in other departments of the industry.

Vocational training schools operated with federal funds have been opened in various cities of the state, one being at the State College for Negroes in Petersburg. If requested, it is likely a school for white men would be made available here on the same basis at no cost to the locality. Since free transportation for enrollees is provided such a school might be operated jointly for residents of Petersburg and Hopewell.

These schools also offer pre-employment training to persons employed in non-defense industries. Those who want jobs at good pay in the defense industries can retain their present ones and prepare for future defense work by attending these schools at night. When the defense program has been completed, the training acquired will fit young Petersburg men for better paying jobs in local industries. — Petersburg Progress-Index.

Negroes Being Trained Now To Take Place In Industry

Vocational Defense System Is Preparing Them for Jobs—Farmers Are Being Better Equipped for the Long Pull Ahead—People Are Optimistic and Hopeful.

BY BENJAMIN F. HUBERT
President of the Georgia State College

During the past year, President Franklin D. Roosevelt has enunciated the four freedoms for which the democracies of the world are contending—"freedom of speech and expression, freedom of every person to worship God in his own way, freedom from want, and freedom from terror."

Negroes, forming as they do, more than one-tenth of the total national population, and from forty to fifty per cent of the population here in the southeast, are vitally interested in any kind of program or movement that promises freedom of economic opportunity.

Thinking negroes are grateful for the increasing number of expressions that have come from national and local leaders, evidencing their understanding that in the fight to sustain democratic ideals, there must be clear recognition of the fact that all men must be provided an equal chance to achieve.

One of the difficulties confronting negroes who seek employment in industry is the lack of training for the particular job requirements.

An attempt is being made by the vocational national defense fund and by the National Youth Administration, to train negroes for industry. In Georgia, a total of 944 negroes have been training under the vocational defense program. These training centers are located in Atlanta, Augusta, Columbus, Dalton, Macon, Marietta, Newnan and Savannah. Much of the training is in woodwork, including cabinet-making, bricklaying and cement work, auto mechanics, blue-print reading and some sheet metal work and trade cooking.

The field of agriculture offers employment to the largest number of negroes. According to the United States census report for 1930, of the 10,472,000 persons employed on the farms 1,980,000 or 19 per cent are negroes.

This means that out of every five persons farming in this country, one is a negro. When it is realized that negro farmers are located largely in the Southern states, it will be readily apparent that in states like Georgia, where there are approximately 70,000 negro farm operators, farming is dependent largely upon negro labor.

But farming today is not as it has been in the past. Successful cotton farming in Georgia and the Southeast offers, at best, a doubtful future. The negro finds himself confronted with the keenest kind of competition. The one-horse plow is forced to compete with the tractor, and the scythe with the mowing machine and the reaper and binder.

In Georgia, the negro extension service, vocational schools of agriculture, and other agencies, are at work seeking to better equip the negro farmer for the long pull that lies ahead.

In spite of handicaps that have tended to discourage negroes in their outlook in both urban and rural life everywhere, we find them still optimistic and hopeful.

A defense training program will be established at old Clark University campus by the Fulton County Board of Education. Georgia State College is expanding its program with over $10,000 worth of technical equipment to provide training in the technical arts for negro youth. The National Youth Administration and many of the public vocational schools are providing opportunity for out of school youth to improve themselves for jobs that are just around the corner.

On the stage, in athletics, in business, in professional life, and in farming, 1942 can only mean more enlightened progress for an underprivileged group in a gradually enlightening world.

Some of them drive as much as fifty miles three nights a week to attend these classes in automobile mechanics, bricklaying, drafting and blueprint reading, electrical maintenance, forging, machine shop operation, pipefitting, sheet metal, paint spraying, woodworking and carpentry.

451 Others Trained

Hampton had already graduated 451 students in previous classes, and applications are being accepted for new classes opening immediately, in all trades previously taught except welding.

Next week, the institute will begin a program of training 100 soldiers every eight weeks in a general mechanical course. A similar course will be given fifty CCC enrollees.

These Hampton defense training graduates finished the course in electrical work. They are, left to right: APR 12 1941

Howard To Get Million To Train Technical Men

All Land Grant Schools to Share Under Measure

JUN 5 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(SNS)—Howard University is in line for $1,000,000 in additional funds under the National Defense Training appropriations for engineers, technical experts and supervisors, according to Edgar G. Brown, director of the Government Employees and the Natonal Negro Council Organizations.

Mr. Brown said 17 Negro land grant colleges and schools stand to get $100,000 each under the same setup.

The funds would come from the proposed $125,000,000 appropriation measure for the education and training program of defense workers now before the House of Representatives.

Should the measure pass the House and Senate and get the President's signature, it would mark another victory for Mr. Brown.

TARVER APPROVES MEASURE

The committee which studied the measure passed on it Monday after Congressman Malcolm C. Tarver, Democrat, Georgia, gave his approval. It was pointed out that the congressman has opposed appropriations to Howard University for nearly two decades.

Through the efforts of Mr. Brown, the committee wrote into the measure several lines which give equal rights to Negroes.

The proposed law includes professional and skilled American workers "without regard to race and color" and would be controled by the United States office of Education, Federal Security Agency, headed by Commissioner John Studebaker.

Congressman Tarver it is understood, gave approval to the clause which calls for equal rights and equal educational training opportunity law for Negroes in the all out total preparedness campaign of President Roosevelt.

JUN 5 1941

CALLS FOR EQUALITY

Appropriation bills are invariably passed as recommended by this committee and its chairman, who in this case is Congressman Tarver. The $125,000,000 appropriation for National Defense training specifically calls for equal buildings, equipment and instruction in states and cities with separate public school systems both on a college and non-college level.

"This is the greatest step forward in the equalization of school funds," Mr. Brown declared. It was understood that some quiet but insistent back-of-scenes wire pulling went on from the offices of the National Negro Council and the U.G.E.

Negro editors, educators and other leaders from all over the country gave strong support, too.

"The engineering school at Howard will become one of the leading institutions of the country by sharing in the million dollar appropriation," was the statement of Mr. Brown. He further said, "For the first time in history, our Negro land grant colleges and schools in the South will get their full quota."

WORDS OF MEASURE

Written into the proposed measure are these words:

"No trainee under the appropriations provided for in the foregoing paragraphs shall be discriminated against because of sex, race, or color, and, where separate schools are required by law for separate population groups to the extent needed for trainees of each such groups, equitable provisions shall be made for facilities and training of like equality.

"Selection of trainees under the foregoing programs of training shall be based upon the existing and anticipated need for defense workers in occupations essentials to the national defense."

The members of the Sub-committee on Labor Department and Federal Security Appropriations were: Congressman Malcolm C. Tarver, (Georgia), chairman; Congressman Butler B. Hare (South Carolina); Congressman Albert Thomas, (Texas); Congressman Vincent Harrington, (Iowa); Congressman Albert J. Engel, (Michigan); Congressman Frank B. Keefe, (Wisconsin).

2,416 RACE YOUTHS ARE LEARNING TO "WORK WITH HANDS" IN NEW JERSEY

APR 26 1941

Second in Series of 12 Articles Reveals Efforts of William A. Smith Jr., to Prepare Younger Generation.

NEWARK, N. J., April 24.—As the National Youth Administration expands in connection with the National Defense effort, Negro youth in New Jersey are being integrated into all phases of this national program. More than 2,416 young men and women are receiving work experiences in line with America's industrial needs.

Work of integrating these youths into the national defense industrial scheme rests on the shoulders of others, but the crying need for skilled youths who know how to "work with their hands" is being met in 12 different states.

According to State Administrator Bernard S. Milles, reports from over the state of New Jersey reveal that Negro youths are taking every advantage of the opportunities afforded. Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, national director of the NYA office of Negro Affairs, is making a general appeal to all citizens to become interested in the work of helping American youth.

"Today," said Mrs. Bethune in an interview with a Pittsburgh Coirer reporter, "all Americans must be prepared for the job ahead. The NYA is doing its part in helping to get young people ready for full participation in the American life."

A Breakdown of New Jersey's program reveals that 561 youths are employed throughout the state in mechanical production shops, with 637 girls working in industrial and domestic type sewing shops.

In resident work center employment 152 youths are receiving work experience in electric and acetylene welding, building construction, machine shops, sheet metal, printing, cooking and baking, radio, electrical work and woodwork.

Public Health projects are employing 95 youths, while 270 are employed on construction projects remodeling and repairing facilities for public agencies.

The following is a composite word picture of Negro youth participation in the NYA of New Jersey:

APR 26 1941

1—Administration:

4 State Staff members: State Supervisor, Secretary, Resident Center Director and Assistant Supervisor of Publicity.

2—Area, Resident Center and Project Supervisory Level:

15 full-time workers employed in the following capacities: Youth Personnel Counselors, Operation Supervisor, Stenographer-Clerks, Clerical Assistants, County Supervisor, Branch Office Supervisors, Women's Activities Supervisor, Finance Supervisor, Janitors, Cooks, Physicians, Work Experience Supervisor.

50 full-time workers employed in all capacities.

3—In-School Student Work Program:

1,091 Negro youth, 16 to 25 years of age receiving High School Aid averaging $6 per month.

APR 26 1941

66 Negro youth, 16 to 25 years of age receiving College Aid averaging from $10 to $20 per month.

22 Negro youth, 16 to 25 years of age receiving an average of $15 per month from Special Negro College Aid Fund.

4—Out-of-School Work Program as of February 19, 1941:

2,416 Negro youth employed on projects throughout the state. Youth earned from $18 to $24 for 50 hours work.

Commander of 24th Infantry Extends Greetings to Graduates

MAY 1 - 1941

FORT BENNING, Ga.—(SNS)—A class of 101 enlisted men became bona fide bakers and cooks, recognizable as such anywhere in the Army, when they received their diplomas this week at Fort Benning at the graduation exercises of the first class to complete courses at the 24th Infantry's newly organized branch of the Bakers and Cooks School.

Composing the class were enlisted men of organizations as follows: from Fort Benning, twenty-seven, from the 24tht Infantry, eleven from the 48th Quartermaster Regiment and three from the Quartermaster Corps Detachment; from Barksdale Field, La., four from the 31st Quartermaster Regiment; at McDill Field, Fla., six from the 77th Coast Artillery (A.A.), two from the Service Detachment DEML and one from the Quartermaster Corps Detachment, at Fort Bragg, N. C., three from the Quartermaster Corps Detachment and two from the Service Detachment, at Camp Jackson, S. C.

MAY 1 - 1941

Greetings were extended to the class by Col. James M. Lockett, commanding officer of the 24th Infantry, with which organization the students have been closely associted, also by Lieut. Col. Truman. C. Thorson, Assistant Post Executive Officer, in charge of Plans and Training, while diplomas were presented by 1st Lt. Volney W. Nease, assistant commandant, School for Makers and Cooks. An address was delivered by Chaplain Louis J. Beasley, of the 24th Infantry. Private Oscar L. Allen presented the offertory class will.

MAY 1 - 1941

Music was furnished by the 24th Infantry Band, under the direction of Warrant Officer R. B. Tresville, and the Bakers and Cooks School Male Chorus, which sang several spirituals. Private Charles T. Miller presented an accordian solo. A graduation tea followed the exercises.

MAY 1 - 1941

Mayor John M. Rooks is commandant of the Bakers and Cooks School at Fort Benning. Lieutenant Nease, who directed the course of the graduating class was assisted by Technical Sergeant Kenneth L. Gibson, senior instructor; Technical Sergeants Frank R. Sharon and George J. Daniel, mess instructor; Staff Sergeants, A. P. Schanil and John W. Sperry class room instructors; Staff Sergeant Dennis Newsome, mass instructor; and Sergeant A. Arnold, clerk.

NEGROES RECEIVING FOUNDRY JOB TRAINING

Preliminary training of preparing molds and other elementary foundry work has been going on for several weeks. After working in the foundry for eight weeks, these men will be sufficiently trained to enter a defense industry.

Funds for the training are provided through the state department of education, vocational training division. The plant where the men are being trained is at 1301 Elm street.

NO AIRCRAFT CLASSES FOR NEGROES NOW

Failure to Get Birth Certificates Delays Training

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Negroes did not begin aircraft sheet metal training when classes started at the Manual Training high school on Monday, May 26, because ONLY SEVEN have secured their birth certificates which are necessary for enrollment.

O. H. Day, principal of Manual and director of defense training classes, said yesterday that he has received only two additional applications from Negroes since last week when five had fulfilled all the requirements, including birth certificates.

Fred Brokaw, who is in charge of the testing section for defense training classes at the Missouri State Employment Service, 1312 Grand Ave., has sent two notices by mail to each of the 50 or 60 Negroes who have passed the aptitude tests asking them to bring in their birth certificates. Up to yesterday, only two had responded.

It requires at least 20 men to form a class in aircraft sheet metal. The first seven to complete their applications are being delayed training until the remaining 13 obtain their birth certificates.

In the meantime, the training classes for whites will get a head-start and Negroes' delay now may cost them jobs later.

Defense Training Offered Free To 45 Negro Boys

Thanks to the National Defense Training Program, forty-five Macon County Negro boys between the age of 17 and 25 will be able to attend school free of cost from June 2 to August 9, 1941, to learn aero-mechanics according to an announcement made by President F. D. Patterson today.

This training unit in aero-mechanics was made possible by an allocation of $6,665 from funds for National Defense Training programs. Thirty-four hundred dollars is being spent for equipment. All supplies for the course, including text books, etc., will be purchased from the fund and furnished free of cost to the boys enrolled.

MAY 29 1941

Three licensed mechanics will be employed on the teaching staff. W. S. Allen, State Itinerant Vocational Teacher-Trainer has been appointed Supervisor of the Project and has outlined the course of study which has been approved by the state board.

G. L. Washington, director of Mechanical Industries, Tuskegee Institute, has assigned one building of the William G. Wilcox Trades School to be headquarters for the Defense Training Program operations.

No fees will be charged for the training, textbooks and supplies will be furnished, but the enrollees must pay for their board room and transportation. While any youth between 17 and 25 years of age is eligible, preference will be given to those especially interested in mathematics and science.

Associated Negro Press Gives Figures To Show Cost Of U. S. Armament

Almost Two Billion Dollars Is Being Expended To Finance 331 Plants

Cost $900 To Fire One Gun

WASHINGTON.—(ANP)—The costs of armament are terrific and in order that the readers of the Associated Negro Press releases may be informed, the following figures show where the money goes that is used for national defense.

A battleship like the new USS North Carolina, 35,000 tons, cost $70,000,000. An aircraft carrier like the Lexington and Ranger, costs $50,000,000; a new cruiser costs from 20 to 30 million dollars. A destroyer, $8,000,000 and a submarine $6,000,000.

To fire a 14-inch gun costs $900 per shot; a 16-inch gun, $1,600 to fire. There are 124 such guns in our navy and more building.

Airplanes, four-motored kind, with spare parts, cost a half million dollars each. This is the heavy bomber type.

Tanks are not so expensive but the prices are pretty steep at that. The Army pays $27,000 for a light tank; $67,000 for a medium tank, and for the heaviest tanks, $114,000, not including the costs of the guns they mount.

When the war started in September, 1939, the total United States daily production of smokeless powder would enable one of our battleship to fire a single broadside from its guns. However, today the daily output of one of our new plants would furnish powder for 15 United States battleships to fire three broadsides from their main guns and six rounds from their secondary guns.

Almost two billion dollars is being expended by the government to finance 331 plants. About half of this is for 99 army and navy plants which will be government owned when completed. Fifty-four, costing 625 million, will serve the war department. Forty-five, costing 400 million, will serve the navy.

The war costs are terrific and this means that for every person in the United State the sum of $310 is being spent for this work.

Negroes Learn Defense Work At CCC Camp

AMERICUS, Ga., June 5.—(AP)—Young Georgia Negroes not long out of the cotton fields are mastering the technique of such national defense skills as radio and motor operation in a banner-winning Civilian Conservation Corps camp here.

The enrollees are delving into five defense courses in all at Camp Sheffield on Americus' outskirts, a CCC unit which has won top rating for Negro outfits in this division of the Fourth Corps Area for the past five months.

JUN 6 1941

Operate Station.

Using old copies of official army messages and radio, students who also are mastering typing are rapidly learning to send and receive code messages through high-speed "bugs." Two of the youths operate the camp's short-wave broadcasting and sending station.

Instructor in radio is Roy N. Danbury. He said the aptitude of his radio students plus their determined application and intense interest had produced unusual progress. One 19-year-old enrollee with a ninth grade education was sending easily readable messages two months after he first saw the dot-dash alphabet.

The camp commander of this 26-building, shiny-neat unit is Captain W. R. Meyer, a firm believer in emphasizing sports as a morale builder and sustainer. The program recently produced results when Camp Sheffield won the district basketball and boxing tournaments. A new bowling alley is going up, a swimming pool is planned, and the present game room is always full during rest hours.

The defense theme caught on quickly at the camp and enrollees erected at the entrance Captain Meyer's slogan: "Our only regret is that there are only 24 hours in each day we can give our country."

Steady Worker.

"And don't think these boys aren't giving it," he said, pointing to a husky, thick-armed worker in the woodwork shop. "That boy is a boxing champion. You can find him here every night until 9 or 10 o'clock working out woodwork defense proj..."

JUN 6 1941

Another key defense class is learning to tear down and repair army trucks, working on an old job given by Fort Benning. The students said they wanted a shot at reconstructing a tank, and hoped the fort would send them one. Their instructor is J. T. McBride, former Buena Vista garage mechanic.

Other defense courses are in electricity other than radio, and welding.

Training For Defense

SEVERAL organizations have taken up the task of interesting young Negroes to take advantage of the recent order of President Roosevelt regarding removing discrimination from defense industries. In Chicago the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Urban League and several other organizations are making plans to launch a program designed to (1) to inform the public generally and prospective defense workers in particular of places to acquire learning needed in the defense works, (2) to ascertain the number of workers needed by factories and (3) to give employment-character training in an effort to abolish any friction that may result when colored workers enter a place of employment for the first time.

Had it not been for the National Youth Administration colored workers would have been wholly unprepared to take advantage fo the skilled work now open to them. But because the NYA had a program to teach American boys, not just white American boys, how to use their hands many colored workers are now prepared to go into factories producing for defense and operate the various types of machines. The number, however, is limited. There must be made immediately available many thousands of such workers.

With the large number of new jobs opening up which offer a degree of security with moderate pay it is likely that colored employees will be given back their traditional porter jobs and others that have been taken from them since pre-depression days. If Negro workers could be stimulated to obtain training in defense classes that are being conducted throughout the nation before they get back their traditional jobs they will better themselves considerably. On the other hand, if they do not take advantage of such training soon they may be frozen into their old jobs and there remain during the "duration."

These organizations are working in the interest of obtaining training and defense work for employees should be given every bit of support by the churches and civic organizations for such a program will not only benefit the workers but will lift the members of the entire race a degree higher—spiritually and economically.

DEFENSE COURSES BEING OFFERED AT STATE COLLEGE

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas—With five separate and distinct defense courses going at full blast, Prairie View has the distinction of having the largest defense program in the engineering field for Negroes to be found in the Southwest.

Director J. A. Attaway and Assistant Director C. J. Wilson are working on plans for an even larger program for the next period, beginning the middle of September. This step is being taken to assist in meeting the need for the expanding opportunities being opened to Negroes as is indicated by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, chief of the Negro employment and training branch of OPM, when he stated that "Through the activities of the Office of Production Management and the executive action of the president, employment bans against Negro workers have been and are being lifted in many defense industries.

Untrained Men Handicapped

In many of these industries, however, Negro workers have been unable to take advantage of these new employment opportunities, because they have failed to complete defense training courses established in their own communities."

Several of the students who took defense courses in drawing at Prairie View, took a civil service examination last week, and others will take another examination late in July.

H. H. Armsby, field representative for the Washington office of the U. S. Office of Education, spent several hours at Prairie View, inspecting the defense courses. He was accompanied by J. T. L. [illegible] New of A. and M. College, who is Institutional Representative, Engineering Defense Training. The inspectors were pleased with the work being done.

All five courses are closed now. Announcements will be made when the fall courses will start.

"Imperative That Negroes Enter Defense Training Classes"--Weaver

JUL 12 1941

WASHINGTON, July 10—Pointing out that new skilled and semi-skilled jobs are being made available daily for Negro workers in many defense industries, Dr. Robert C. Weaver, chief of the Negro Employment and Training Branch of OPM, this week strongly urged Negroes throughout the country to take advantage of defense classes now open to all trainees.

"Through the activities of the Office of Production Management and the executive action of the President," Dr. Weaver declared, "employment bans against Negro workers have been and are being lifted in many defense industries now expanding their staffs through defense training courses.

MUST ENTER TRAINING CLASSES

"In many of these industries, however, Negro workers have been unable to take advantage of these new employment opportunities because they have failed to complete defense training courses established in their own communities.

"It is imperative that this condition be rectified at the earliest possible moment. Since 75 per cent of the new jobs opened by the defense program will be in skilled and semi-skilled capacities, Negro workers cannot hope to be fully integrated into the employment phases of the program unless they enter defense training classes."

Dr. Weaver also pointed out that President Roosevelt's recent executive order on defense employment took cognizance of the training problems of minority groups. Section One of the order read:

"All departments and agencies of the Government of the United States concerned with vocational and training programs for defense production shall take special measures appropriate to assure that such programs are administered without discrimination because of race, creed, color, or national origin."

SOME COMMUNITIES LAG

Declaring that this section will assure wider training opportunities for Negro workers, Dr. Weaver urged colored trainees to utilize fully facilities already available in many localities.

"Field investigations by members of my staff indicate that this has not been done in many communities," he stated. "Civic, social and labor leaders in these communities should combine their efforts to see that available Negro workers are enrolled in these classes."

The chief of the Negro Employment and Training Branch cited recent developments in the aviation industry in support of his statement of increased employment opporunities for Negroes. Aircraft manufacturers now training and employing Negro production workers include Curtiss-Wright factories and affiliates in Buffalo, N. Y., Columbus and Cincinnati, O.; Bell Aircraft in Buffalo; Brewster Aeronautical Corporation in Long Island City, N. Y.; Grumman Aeronautical Engineering Company and Republic Aviation Company in Farmingdale, L. I.

MANY GETTING SKILLED JOBS

"The aircraft industry is not alone in expanding opportunities for Negroes," Dr. Weaver said. "In Detroit, for instance, Negroes are now being placed as screw machine operators, lathe operators, electricians, gear hobblers, welders and in other occupations in which they were once denied employment.

"The Journal of Negro Education foresaw this situation as early as October of last year. At that time this periodical declared:

"'It behooves as many Negroes as possible to take advantage of this training so that they can supply this labor demand as it arises. It is obviously better policy for Negroes to get such training and face the possibility of having to fight to get employment afterward than it is to have opportunities open up which they cannot enter because they are not trained.

"The opportunities are beginning to open up daily. And the President's executive order may prove ineffective in many areas unless Negroes prepare themselves for these opportunities by taking advantage of the defense training courses."

Defense Training For Negroes Is Stepped Up

AUG 5 1941

BY JAMES H. PURDY, PR.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (SNS)— Memphis is the only city in Tennessee offering National Defense Training courses to Negro students, C. C. Sutton, director of National Defense Schools in Memphis, told this corespondent in a special interview for World readers.

Courses offered include blacksmithing, Prof. C. H. Ross; Auto Mechanics, Prof. Israel Berry, instructor; Cement finishing, Prof. Oscar Armstrong and Prof George Tate, instructors. Operation plans are being supervised by the Memphis Board of Education, Ernest C. Ball, superintendent.

A commodious brick building providing space for other courses to be made available to Negro students in the near future, and auto mechanic workshops are being erected on the Booker T. Washington high school campus at a cost of $75,000.

M. Washington and James Evans the latter identified with the Office of Production Management, Washington, D. C., have aided officials in Memphis in making it possible for courses to be offered here. They have cooperated wholeheartedly in putting defense training over in this city, Mr. Sutton commented Interest shown by students has been encouraging, school officials said. Rate of attendance for members of both ses has is approximately 41.4 percent of the total Negro population which is slightly higher than the Negro population to the city, 33.1 percent.

Mr. Sutton asserted that all students of the National Defense are from selected groups.

"They have shown fine cooperation and are acquiring information offered through these courses rapidly," he declared.

LIMITATIONS TO YOUTHS

Employment opportunities have not been commensurate with their training, it was pointed out; especially among skilled Negro workers.

Some employers are not hiring Negroes at all, even though they are specially trained for skilled work. Tacit evasion of skilled Negro workers on part of many employers is still a problem officials of National Defense Training find themselves faced up against. Negro cement finishers seem to be the only outstanding exception in the skilled workers' class. Their opportunities are much greater, many Negro cement finishers being employed on jobs paying as much as $10.00 a day.

Dr. G. Lake Imes Named to Head Defense Center

BALTIMORE

Dr. G. Lake Imes of 1940 Druid Hill Avenue, noted lecturer and writer, who retired in 1935 after serving as assistant to the principal at Tuskegee Institute for twenty-five years, was appointed on Monday as principal of the Vocational Defense Training Center No. 453 at Waesche Street.

AUG 30 1941

Charles W. Sylvester, director of vocational education in the city's public schools, made the appointment.

Dr. Imes began his educational career at Tuskegee Institute in 1910, serving for five years under the late Dr. Booker T. Washington, through the entire administration of Robert R. Moton and retiring in 1935. During this time, he also served as secretary of the institute.

However, in 1937 he joined the staff at Lincoln University as director of public relations and remained there until 1940 when he again retired to devote his time to writing and lecturing.

Vacancies Still Exist

Vacancies still exist in the four of five courses now being offered at the new center, according to Dr. Imes. These courses are: radio servicing, electric wiring, and airplane metal and aircraft riveting. No vacancies exist in the fifth course, small parts assembly for women.

Five teachers are engaged in instruction and seventy persons are already enrolled. The classes, other than the one in small parts assembly which is only from 8 shifts, one from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. a.m. to 4 p.m., operate in two and the other from 4 to 12 p.m.

Plan 300 Enrollment

When full equipment is installed in this center, courses will also be offered in acetylene and electric welding, drill press operation and lathe operation and provisions will be made for the accommodation of a possible enrollment of 300 persons.

The courses now offered extend for a period of eight weeks and are offered without charge for either tuition or equipment. Interested persons may either register at the center, at the Urban League, 1431 McCulloh Street, or at 3 E. Twenty-fifth Street.

Meanwhile, classes in auto assembly are being taught at the Vocational School Annex and others in sheet metal and woodwork are being offered at Douglass High School. Power machine operation for women is also offered at Vocational School.

Shop at Cave Spring School Trains Workers for Defense

New Plant at School for Deaf Already Declared Success.

By CAROLYN McKENZIE,
Constitution Staff Writer.

CAVE SPRING, Ga., Dec. 6.—A new factory, one which turns out fodder for defense in the shape of skilled automobile workers, is climbing to success at the Georgia School for the Deaf here. Almost every state institution of its kind offers vocational training in auto shop work. But it's a new idea here and it's cutting its niche.

A person does not necessarily need complete control of his audio senses to be a successful upholstery, paint, metal or motor man. In fact, three of the southeast's leaders in those particular fields are deaf men. So the school decided on these branches of the work, and 10 senior boys look toward a brighter future as the result.

The tomorrow of the boys taking this course is better, first, because they can command and expect higher wages upon their completion of the study. Salaries should range from $1.25 to $1.50 per hour, which is almost twice as much as any other skilled shop position would afford, unless it is woodworking, and that hits about 25 cents an hour lower in the wage scale.

Then, the boys are almost assured of a position as soon as they are trained because of the increasing demands for skilled automobile repairmen. The Ford Motor Company has virtually promised each man a position.

Whole credit for this new course, begun only this fall, goes to Clayton H. Hollingsworth, superintendent of the school. He knew such work was offered in other schools, but he had a long chain of events to unwind before he could bring the training to Georgia's underprivileged deaf. He talked the idea around automobile places in neighboring Rome.

Then one day H. D. Morgan, of the Milner Motor Company, chimed in on the thought. He saw prospects and helped develop them.

First of all, Hollingsworth requested an appropriation from the Georgia Department of Public Welfare for money to construct an annex to the vocational shops at the school. From a special fund he got $20,000 for the structure.

Then he conducted a survey to determine just what work deaf men could do in the automobile business. That's where Morgan came in. H. L. Morrison, from Chattanooga, next came to the school, met the boys, looked over the shops, both the old and the new, and thought the atmosphere created a "natural" for the new type training.

So he contacted another Ford executive, E. C. Sloane, used-car man for the southeastern states, and Sloane told of three leading men in his nine states. One is an outstanding upholstery man in Knoxville. He is deaf. Another is a successful Chickamagua metal man. He's deaf, too. The third, also deaf, is one of Atlanta's best paint men.

So these seemed to be the courses to prescribe.

Milner, Morgan and Sloane pried into the school's needs and worked out the phases of automobile repairing to be taught.

Sloane was detailed by the Ford Motor Company to teach instructors and organize the course during July and August of last summer. He wrote a resume of the course and summarized the tools needed for teaching it. Then he worked through the Detroit office to get materials already becoming scarce because of defense efforts.

The school took $583 for tools—one master set of body tools and one painting outfit—and with the new building started the course.

On the institution's faculty are three men who are now equipped to teach the courses. One is Principal R. G. Parks, who took all three branches of the course. Steve Pettis, electrician and mechanic at the school, teaches auto upholstering. Olaf Tollefson, a graduate of the North Dakota school and of Gallaudet College, a poet, and preparatory school teacher, is in charge of the body repair and metal work instruction. Pettis and Tollefson teach painting together. Parks and Pettis are not deaf. Tollefson is.

Taught Vocation.

Each of the 317 students at the Georgia School for the Deaf is required to learn some vocation. (Two hundred fifty of these students are white; 67, Negro.) The boys can choose between auto or shoe repairing, cabinet making, printing, machine shop practices or vocational agriculture, which includes dairying, chicken raising and gentleman farming. Girls are required to study home economics. Some choose beauty culture, which develops them into licensed operators at the conclusion of the course.

In order to take the auto shop work, boys must be senior students with definite adaptability for that particular work. Most spend one and one-half hours per day during the entire senior year. Some special shop majors complete the course in three months by studying two and one-half hours a day.

To date, four orders are on file for boys as soon as they complete the course—orders to report for employment at leading automobile repair shops.

One Negro boy was trained in the art of "scumming" a car—degreasing it from top to bottom—motor and body cleaning alike. He studied the course only two months and last week went to a position in East Point. In his place, the school is training one other Negro student.

Negroes Praise U. S. Program Of Training

HAMPTON—The national defense program of vocational education training for Negroes was praised yesterday in a resolution passed at the closing of the fifteenth biennial Hampton Institute Builders' Conference.

The three-day meeting, keyed to the theme of "Defense Construction and the Negro," closed with a panel discussion led by representatives of Virginia Ctate College, Tuskegee Institute, South Carolina State College, Arkansas A. M. & N. College and Hampton Institute, on the subject of "Tra[illegible] and Industrial Training and the National Defense."

Studying the results of the first eight months of the Nnited States Iffice of Education's vocational educatio nprogram in defense trades, the 200 delegates to the conference and National Builders' Association convention, voted that:

Specific Action Sought

"The conference commends the recent actions of the Government as they relate to national defense training in our schools.

"The enrollment in Negro schools will not rise to the desired level until Negro youth sees that the Government is taking specific action to give them equal opportunities for employment upon receiving their training as skilled mechanics.

"The schools are in a position, with respect to equipment and personnel, to co-operate further in any expansion of the program which the Government might see fit to inaugurate.

Stimulates Interest

"The program has succeeded in stimulating an interest in practical education upon both Negro and white and has been a positive factor in the development of sound national morale."

The conference also heard talks on the practical side of building, listened to the assistant co-ordinator of defense housing, Carl H. Monsees, and make an inspection tour of defense housing projects in the Hampton Roads area.

William H. Aiken, Atlanta, Ga., contractor, was elected president of the National Builders' Association and the body voted to hold the 1942 convention at the municipal auditorium in Atlanta.

BUILDERS END 3-DAY MEETING

Hampton Institute Conference Closes

An assurance from Carl H. Monsees, assistant co-ordinator of the division of national defense of "fair play" in national defense housing projects, and praise for the national defense vocational training program for Negroes yesterday featured the closing day of the three-day session of Hampton Institute Builders' conference, which ended last night.

In answer to direct questions by conference members he agreed the recent "discriminatory clause" released by FWA Administrator Carmody was a statement of policy without enforcement provisions, but he was emphatic that "you can have faith in Mr. Carmody, for there isn't a fairer administrator in Washington."

Monsees flew from Washington this morning carrying a special letter from Charles F. Palmer, defense housing coordinator, to Dr. Malcolm S MacLean, president of Hampton institute.

Palmer stated that "we all know the valuable contributions which the colored race is making toward our national defense effort. We all know that like other American workers they must be adequately housed."

Monsees quoted Sidney Hillman, in the statement that "more than three and one-half million man-years of skilled worker time will be required to meet the needs of the defense program thus far authorized by congress. While the total labor needs, skilled and unskilled, will be in excess of eight and one-half million man years."

The three-day meeting keyed to the theme of "Defense Construction and the Negro," closed with a panel discussion led by representatives of Virginia State College, Tuskegee Institute, South Carolina State College, Arkansas A. M. & N. college and Hampton institute, on the subject of "Trade and Industrial Training and the National Defense."

Commend Defense Training

Studying the results of the first eight months of the U. S. Office of Education's vocational education program in defense trades, the 200 delegates to the conference and National Builders' association convention, voted that:

1. The conference commends the recent actions of the government as they relate to National Defense training in our schools.

2. The enrollment in Negro schools will not swell to the desired level until Negro youth sees that the government is taking specific action to give them equal opportunities for employment upon receiving their training as skilled mechanics.

3. The schools are in a position, with respect to equipment and personnel, to co-operate further in any expansion of the program which the government might see fit to inaugurate.

4. The program has succeeded in stimulating an interest in practical education upon both Negro and white and has been a positive force in the development of sound national morale.

The conference also heard talks on the practical side of building, and took an inspection tour of defense housing projects in the Hampton Roads area.

William H. Aiken, Atlanta, contractor was elected president of the National Builders' association and the body voted to hold the 1942 convention at the Municipal Auditorium in Atlanta.

Negro Builders' Conference Will Open Annual Three-Day Session Today At Institute

Will Discuss Participation in Defense Set-up

Government attention is focused on the three-day Hampton Builders' conference, which opens this morning at Hampton institute, according to recent dispatches received from Washington by William H. Moses Jr., director of the building construction deportment of the Hampton institute trade school.

The office of production management of the national defense commission, the department of commerce, and the Federal Works agency are anxious, says Moses, to gauge the reactions of some 200 Negro builders, contractors, architects, engineers, carpenters, and other men in the allied construction fields to the present situation in national defense housing.

Meeting for the 15th time since 1923, the Hampton builders' conference is recognized as an official voice of the thousands of Negroes in the building construction fields in the United States.

This year the conference will focus on the participation of the Negro builder in defense. Carl H. Monsees, assistant coordinator of all government defense housing projects, will state the government's case at the Wednesday morning meeting.

Among the keynote speakers and discussion leaders will be W. J. Trent of the federal works agency, Dr. Ambrose Caliver of the office of education, and Archibald A. Alexander, Negro engineering contractor of Des Moines, Iowa.

Other scheduled speakers are: W. E. Lee, director of mechanical arts department, A. M. & N. college, Pine Bluff, Ark.; L. K. Downing, deans of school of engineering at Howard university, Washington; C. T. Russell, Richmond architect; P. V. Jewel, dean of mechanical industries at State A. & M. college, Orangeburg, S. C.; E. S. Lewis, executive secretary of Baltimore Urban college; F. Massiah, engineering contractor of Philadelphia; Dr. J. A. Jackson, southern district representative of the Congress of Industrial Organization; A. E. Richmond, assistant professor of civil engineering at Howard university; H. V. Brown, Concord, Mass., contractor; W. H. Aiken, Atlanta, Ga. contractor; C. L. McKissack, Nashville, Tenn., architect; Dr. F. Theodare Struck, head of department of industrial education, Pennsylvania State college; Frank Cushman, consultant in vocational education, Washington, and M. F. Whitaker, president of South Carolina State college, Orangeburg, S. C.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean, president of Hampton institutes, will address the building delegates from 20 states at a banquet at 7 tonight, and Dean R. O'Hara Lanier will deliver an address of welcome this morning.

Army Is Calling 3,005 Race Men From Eight States

APR 26 1941

The ninth selective service quota for the Fourth Corps Area calls for induction of 3,005 Negroes from eight Southern states in the army for a year's military service, it was announced at corps area headquarters Wednesday. Georgia will furnish 479 of the total. Georgia's enlistees will be sent to Fort Benning during the period between May 1 and May 10.

APR 26 1941

The all-Negro quota by states is as follows: Alabama, 347; Florida, 297; Georgia, 479; Louisiana, 302; Mississippi, 638; North Carolina, 265; South Carolina, 454; Tennessee, 223.

Builders Cite Discrimination In Telegram Sent President

Contend Vicious Circle Exists in Work

(HAMPTON BUREAU)

Delegates to the 15th bi-annual Builders' conference at Hampton institute charged in a telegram to President Roosevelt and 19 other key government officials last night that "evidence has been presented at this conference that a vicious circle exists to exclude the skilled Negro worker from defense work."

The resolution, 580 words in length and denouncing alleged discriminatory practices against Negroes on national defense housing projects, was passed at the closing sessions of the three-day conference which began Monday. The message was signed by William H. Moses Jr., chairman of the Hampton institute builders' conference and William E. Lee, president of the National Builders' association, which is attending the conference.

Denouncing the action of numerous firms holding government contracts and certain organized labor groups, the resolution charged subtle and illegal collusion for the purpose of evading government "racial discriminatory" clauses in order to exclude skilled Negro workers from a full participation in national defense construction work.

The Fort Eustis project was specifically mentioned as an example of discriminatory attitude against skilled Negroes, according to conferees. Though approximately 2,000 white carpenters are employed at this project, the resolution stated, not a single Negro carpenter has been allowed to work on the job.

The 200 delegates from 20 states convened at the 15th bi-annual Hampton Builders conference, emphatically denied that any sacrifice of democratic principles was necessary in the interest of efficiency. They charged that in certain sections of the country there is conspiracy between government employment agencies, contractors' hiring agents and certain labor unions aiming to restrict skilled employment to white workers—a vicious circle to exclude the skilled Negro worker from defense work.

Ask Immediate Action

Asking for immediate action, Moses and Lee, stated that "defense of democracy in this troubled world becomes an empty phrase unless all of the defenders can live and work according to democratic principles."

Some of the others to whom the telegram was sent are: John M. Carmody, administrator, federal works agency; Brig. Gen. Behron Somerville, office of the quartermaster war department; Nathan Straus administrator, U. S. housing authority; Sidney Hillman, office of production management; C. F. Palmer, coordinator, defense housing; Secretary of Navy Knox; Secretary of War Stimson; Senator Robert Wagner and chairmen of the senate and house military affairs committees.

The full text of the telegram follows:

"We, the membership of the National Builders' association and other delegates to the Fifteenth Bi-Annual Builders' conference, a conference of 200 builders, contractors, architects, engineers, and artisans, representing organizations, contractors associations, companies and unions in 20 different states, meeting at Hampton institute on Feb. 10, 11, and 12, 1941, pledge our united and emphatic support of the findings of the conference on the participation of the Negro in national defense, as adopted by the conference in its meeting at Hampton institute on Nov. 25-26, 1940.

"We wish to go on record as denouncing the action of numerous firms holding government contracts and certain organized labor groups in their subtle and illegal collusion for the purpose of evading government 'racial discriminatory clauses in order to exclude skilled Negro workers from a full participation in national defense construction work. Evidence has been presented to this body, proving without question that skilled Negro workers are barred from skilled labor in the construction of barracks that the same workers may be called upon to occupy in the service of their country.

Cite Eustis Project

"We point out specifically the Fort Eustis project, with 2,300 Negroes out of 5,800 workmen, yet with not a single Negro carpenter employed—though approximately 2,000 white ones have been given employment. It is clearly evident on this project, as on others, that skilled Negro workmen are shunted into unskilled occupations while skilled labor, by collusion of contractors and labor unions, is restricted to white workers. We state as our conviction that, in these crucial days, Negroes must be allowed to work on a democratic basis if they are to be expected to fight for democracy.

"We deny that a sacrifice of democratic principles in defense construction must be made in the interest of efficiency. We consider that the exclusion of Negro workmen from certain skilled defense occupations for which they possess full qualifications constitutes a flagrant violation of the spirit of democracy. We point out that the employment of skilled Negroes as helpers to skilled white mechanics, but with wages approximating those of laborers, amounts to racial discrimination—in direct violation of government ruling. We state that in certain sections there is a conspiracy between government employment agencies, contractors' hiring agents and certain labor unions, aiming to restrict skilled employment to white workers.

"We wish to point out that in this defense emergency the federal government has gone on record against racial discrimination yet racial discrimination continues. Since various government agencies are the first party to contracts between and with defense contractors, since the taxpayers' money is paying for national defense—we insist that the democratic participation of the Negro in the defense program can be insured only if the government implements the existing racial discrimination clause with specific percentage and enforcement provisions that contractors cannot evade. It is our sober conviction that the violation of the spirit of democracy during a period when we are told that democracy must be preserved is undermining the morale of a large segment of the American population, some of whom have been called for military training, and others of whom expect to be called shortly.

'Must Have Union Cards'

"Evidence has been presented at this conference that a vicious circle exists to exclude the skilled Negro worker from defense work. Government employment agents say that if contractors 'ask for potatoes they can't give them onions.' Contractors tell skilled Negro workers that they must have union cards. Union officials triple their membership fee and then refuse cards to skilled Negro workers when they produce the money.

"Finally, we call to your attention the fact that defense of democracy in this troubled world becomes an empty phrase unless all of the defenders can live and work according to democratic principles."

(Signed)

WILLIAM H. MOSES JR.,
Chairman, Hampton Institute Builders' Conference.

WILLIAM E. LEE,
President, National Builders' Association.

"The future of Negroes in the building construction field is tied up with the future of organized labor," Edward S. Lewis, secretary of the Baltimore Urban league, said at the morning session of the conference yesterday.

While the entire slate of speakers at the session yesterday agreed that the Negro must thoroughly integrate himself into the union movement, a sharp clash of opinion arose on the relative merits of the American Federation of Labor and the CIO.

Lewis asserted that immediate interests of Negro craftsmen made affiliation with the A. F. of L. an imperative move and his statement was challenged by Archibald A. Alexander, engineering contractor of Des Moines, Iowa. Alexander asked the delegates "not to pin your faith on the entrenched trade unions of the A. F. of L., but to get in on the ground floor of the CIO.

Statements in a local paper survey on discrimination in defense was criticized by the leaders. They declared that the conference is concerning itself with the lot of skilled labor and has no brief for discrimination against common labor.

Practical problems of breaking into union ranks were discussed by Dean P. V. Jewell, of the State A. and M. college at Orangeburg, S. C.; Howard Woodson, of Washington, and speakers from the floor.

"Defense housing presents for the first time in our history an opportunity to become integrated," said Lewis as he highly condemned Negro craftsmen who refuse to actively participate in union activities.

HOLD SESSION FOR BUILDERS

Define Negro in Defense Housing

The government will officially state its attitude on the participation of the Negro in defense housing, at the 3-day celebration of the 15th Hampton builders' conference at Hampton institute opening tomorrow, according to an announcement by William F. Moses Jr., director of the building construction department of the Hampton institute trade school.

C. F. Palmer, President Roosevelt's newly appointed coordinator of defense housing, will send a statement to the meeting of over 200 Negro builders, architects, mechanics and contractors, said Moses and Claude Munsey, administrative assistant to the U. S. defense housing coordinator has been added to the list of speakers for Wednesday.

Other speakers who have just announced their acceptance of Hampton's invitation are Dr. Ambrose Caliver of the federal security administration; Dr. F. Theodore Struck, head of the department of industrial education at Pennsylvania State college; F. Cushman, U. S. office of education, and President M. F. Whittaker of South Carolina State college.

HAMPTON BUILDERS CONFERENCE APPEALS TO ROOSEVELT AS IMMEDIATE INQUIRY PROMISES TO BEGININ WORK DISCRIMINATION COMES REPORT FROM INSTITUTE

THREE DAY MEETING PROVES NATIONALLY SIGNIFICANT

Hampton Institute, Va.—The 15th biennial Hampton Builders' Conference, meeting in conjunction with the National Builders' Association on February 10, 11, and 12 at Hampton Institute, was packed with nationally significant events concerning Defense construction and the Negro.

In a personal letter to the assembled delegates, John M. Carmody, administrator of the Federal Works Agency announced for the first time the opening of an immediate inquiry into discrimination against Negroes on Natonal Defense housing projects in the Hampton Roads area.

With this hurdle passed, the 200 delegates from 20 states listened to George Zuidema, sole hiring agent for all contractors engaged in construction work at Forst Eustis, Virginia, as he attempted to answer the personal charges made on his discriminatory practices against skilled Negroes.

Unsatisfied with Zuidema's explanation that you "can't change a custom overnight," the Conference dispatched a 580-word telegram to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and 19 other key government officials, denouncing discriminatory practices, submitting specific proof, and asking for immediate action.

With these three lightning thrusts into the national consciousness, achieved on the first day of the meeting, wire services hummed with the story of the momentous Builders' Conference and editorials sprang up the next day throughout the nation.

The Office of Production Management, through Elmer Lnacaster of the Department of Commerce, next told the delegates of its sympathetic attitude toward Negro contractors and its intention to "farm out" defense contracts to small business men and subcontractors

Charles F. Palmer, coordinator of all National Defense housing, dispatched his executive assistant, Carl H. Monsees, to the Conference by plane Wednesday morning to explain to the assembled builders, architects, contractors, and labor unionists the Coordinators Office's stand. Mr. Monsees agreed that the "discriminatory clause" released by Carmody was a statement of policy without enforcement provision, but was emphatic that "you can have faith in Mr. Carmody, for there isn't a fairer administrator in Washington."

Builders Charge Discriminations

(HAMPTON BUREAU)

Representatives of organized Negro building trades from 20 states, independent Negro builders, contractors and architects, and State and national government officials yesterday opened a three-day conference to find a solution to alleged discrimination against Negroes in national defense housing.

The 15th Hampton Builders' conference and the National Builders' association were urged to formally notify government agencies that there are Negro contractors available for urgent defense projects from "the man who does the alterations and small repair work to Negroes who have contracts that run into more than millions of dollars."

Dean L. K. Downing of Howard university school of engineering, in summing up the activities of the opening session of the meeting, said that "information should be compiled and put on the desks of representatives in Washington and in other areas, showing that we have men capable of participating in all fields—men who have shown by the type of service they can render that there is no such thing as color when it comes to a building."

In opening the conference Dean R. O'Hara Lanier of Hampton institute announced that the federal works agency will launch an inquiry into discrimination charges against Negroes on national defense housing projects in the Tidewater area of Virginia. This news was disclosed in a letter to the delegates from John M. Carmody, administrator of the federal works agency.

The office of production management of the national defense commission, it was announced, has agreed to "farm out" defense contracts to small business men and subcontractors—and is anxious to have skilled Negro mechanics in every field of building construction register at once with that office.

The United States housing authority was lauded by Lester B. Granger, assistant evecutive secretary of the National Urban league, as having the best record of any government housing agency as far as discrimination is concerned, but Granger said: "The U. S. H. A. is being pushed aside by Mr. Palmer, newly appointed coordinator of nation defense housing, the federal housing administration, and General Sommerville, head of defense housing for the war department, who, though efficient, are completely unconcerned with the rights of Negro citizens."

A surprise of the opening session of the meeting was the appearance of George Zuidima, sole hiring agent for all contractors engaged in construction at Fort Eustis, who stirred the audience by his unexpected appearance to personally answer charges being made on his discriminatory practices against skilled Negro carpenters.

He stated "you can't change a custom overnight" as his defense against the charges hurled against the Fort Eustis project and said that 2,300 of the 5,800 employes there are skilled and unskilled Negro workmen.

He did, however, refuse to answer the pointed question to explain why "he felt that skilled Negro carpenters cannot work side by side with white carpenters at Fort Eustis when it is now being done at Fort Monroe a few miles away."

This year the conference will focus on the participation of the Negro builder in defense. Carl H. Monsees, assistant coordinator of all government defense housing projects, will state the government's case at the Wednesday morning meeting.

Among the keynote speakers and discussion leaders will be W. J. Trent of the federal works agency, Dr. Ambrose Caliver of the office of education, and Archibald A. Alexander, Negro engineering contractor of Des Moines, Iowa.

At a banquet last night Dr. Malcolm McLean, president of Hampton institute, addressed the delegates.

"But one USA in America—that's AMERICANISM"

Deplorable . . . But! . . .

That a deplorable situation with regard to the public health of our people exists in this country is seen from the reports of the various Selective Service boards.

For example, the following account of the situation in South Carolina is taken from the monthly publication of the State Selective Service headquarters in Columbia. Under the caption, "43 Per Cent Registrants Rejected By Physicians," and the sub-caption, "Doctors Turn Down Big Percentage In Local Board Examinations," the deplorable tale is told:

"Physicians attached to South Carolina's 83 local Selective Service boards turned down approximately 43 per cent of those registrants examined because of physical defects, Lieut. Col. E. Harry Barnwell, medical officer, announced this week.

"White rejections amounted to 41 per cent and the Negro rejections approximated the same percentage.

"According to Col. Barnwell, of a total of 3,762 registrants examined, 793 white men were rejected for service for various causes, while 872 Negroes were also rejected.

"Leading the causes for white rejections was hernia, while syphilis was far in the lead in the causes for Negro rejections.

"Also of interest, and to contradict the old theory that Negroes were poor prospects because of the prevalence of flat feet, only nine Negroes were rejected because of varying degrees of pes planus, while 18 white men were rejected because of the same cause.

"In th case of venereal diseases, 52 cases of syphilis and 73 cases of gonorreah listed reported as causes of rejection among the white registrants while there were 273 cases of syphilis and 73 cases of gonorreah listed as causes of rejections among the Negroes.

"The figures announced include the period between July 3 and July 24 . . . "

Now that the condition has been proven deplorable, we get to the "But" in our caption. This implies two pertinent points, i. e.. what can we do about it? . . . what will we do about it?

Negro Soldiers Get Their Share Of Entertainment

CAMP STEWART, Ga., July 24 — (AP) — This antiaircraft post's Negro troops are getting their share of entertainment with week-end convoys to Brunswick and semi-monthly dances in Savannah.

Every Sunday a group of at least 50 are piled onto convoy trucks and taken to the Glynn county colored recreation center at Brunswick for the day. Baseball, swimming, ping pong and other games offered by the center entertain the soldiers.

Every other Friday night the Negro troops are given a special dance in Savannah by the St. Mary Catholic school, with the several colored organizations of the city furnishing dates for the soldiers and the orchestra being furnished by the St. Mary Catholic Church.

Other dances are given from time to time by the Dorchester Academy, Negro Trade School at McIntosh, a few miles from camp.

A reecnt dance was presented the colored soldiers by the Savannah Journal, Savannah's Negro newspaper; and another was given by the Manhattan Club of Savannah.

Plans are now being formed for the Negro troops to use a recreation center in Savannah in addition to the one being used in Brunswick.

PICK RECREATION SITES FOR TROOPS

Atlanta Will Send Applications for Two Buildings to Capital

Applications for the construction of two recreation buildings for use of service men in the Atlanta area will be forwarded within the next few days to officials in Washington, Dr. Herman L. Turner, chairman of the Atlanta Defense Committee on Recreation, announced Friday.

Dr. Turner said the committee's executive board has recommended that the white recreation center, to cost an estimated $75,000, be located on Courtland Street adjoining the City Auditorium.

The Negro recreation center, to cost an estimated $50,000, will be located at Sunset and Hunter Avenues, he said.

The city owns the lot adjoining the Auditorium and Mayor LeCraw has assured Dr. Turner that it can be used for the building.

Officers of the committee's executive board are Dr. Turner, chairman; Frank Carter and Trammell Scott, vice chairmen; Mrs. Murdock Equen, secretary, and John Parks, treasurer.

Negro Not Ignored

Editor The Telegraph:

With reference to your editorial entitled Recreation for Negroes, in The Macon Telegraph, of Oct. 10, the impression is given that heretofore no provision for the entertainment of colored troops has been provided in Macon.

Evidently, The Telegraph is not aware of the fact that the Col. Charles A. Young Service Center for colored has been operated under the sponsorship of the Macon Defense Recreation Committee, Inc., since early June. This center is located at 454 1-2 Cotton avenue in the Hurley building. I have in hand an attendance report from the colored center showing that 4,596 soldiers and their girls attended the center during the month of September.

For your further information, there has been set up since May, a colored committee of the Macon Defense Recreation Committee, Inc., which parallels in every way the white committee. The Rev. D. L. T. Robinson is chairman. This committee operates under a budget of $2,070 per year which funds are provided from those raised by the Macon Defense Recreation Committee, Incorporated. Personnel, other than voluntary, is furnished by the WPA.

I trust that you will see fit to inform the people of Macon that the colored soldiers of Camp Wheeler have not been left out of our program.

Chaplain Says Civilians, Not Soldiers, Are Worried About Recreation at Camps

By H. A. ROBINSON
Chaplain, 77th Coast Artillery

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — Our civilian population must come to realize that our young men are in camp for a definite purpose. The soldiers seem to appreciate the value of the training being offered them and they worry less about their social life than the people outside. It is surprising to observe the excellent spirit which prevails among the men at all times.

Lieut. Robinson

If our civilians would only go about their daily duties and not worry about the soldiers and the camps, the United States would soon have an army equal to that of any nation in the world.

Training Counts Most

When a youth, I attended the Manual Training School of Bordentown, N.J. The military training offered at the school did more, perhaps, to improve my physical condition and to train my mind than anything else.

While the examples set by the faculty made possible a strong moral character, the military training made possible a strong body and mind.

The same kind of training offered at Bordentown is offered in the army, only on a much broader scale. There are all kinds of projects in the camp which develop special skills. Those men who seek to improve themselves will find it convenient to do so in almost any line of work.

No man who desires to get ahead in the army and is making the proper approach to the problems involved will remain in camp without a future.

The army also develop initiative, honesty, respect for fellowmen, punctuality, and a higher degree of patriotism — all of which go toward making a better citizen. I know of no other institution or organization which can or has developed all of these traits to such a high degree in the army.

Recreation Offered

Those men who have been in the army for a period of one year never complain about recreation or entertainments.

The kind of recreation that is encouraged by many of our newspaper writers is usually of the detrimental type. A wholesome program within the camp area seems to reduce the rate of venereal disease and these are the types now being offered.

Instead of encouraging our soldiers to seek entertainment away from the camps, our writers should urge them to improve themselves and then help their fellowmen.

Many men could aid with the elimination of illiteracy in the camps and other unnecessary evils which always find an outlet for expression.

SEP 13 1941

Agitation Harmful

It is my observation that agitation by newspaper reporters always makes matters worse for the soldiers rather than better. With proper leadership, any difficulties which may arise can and will be adjusted in all camps without the aid of civilians.

It appears that many persons still feel that the army is training babies who need the daily attention of nurses. With such an attitude on the part of the civilian population, the morale of the men will be affected adversely. The army is in business and it is serious about the problems which face the nation.

Many writers have given out false information about the conditions at camps. During my entire time in the army, I have received the same high regard and repect for both colored and white officers and enlisted men.

I appeal to all persons, whatever may be their motives, to report those things favorable to our soldiers and discontinue their agitation which is detrimental to the morale of our men.

If this is done, we shall not need to fight; we shall be so strong that no nation will dare attack us.

RECREATION CAMP EXTENSION GIVEN

Army Centers are to Serve More Than Double the Present Number

Authority has been granted for immediate extension of army recreaitnonal camp facilities in the South Atlantic coast area to provide for 6,500 men weekly instead of the 3,000 now accommodated, Colonel Dwight M. Green, commanding officer of the areas, announced yesterday. An eventual capacity of 11,500 has been set.

The Carolina Beach recreational area near Wilmington, will have the greatest immediate expansion with accommodations being increased to house 1,500 men. The area now has facilities for 500. Eventually, Colonel Green said, the Carolina Beach area will have facilities for 5,000 men.

The Charleston, Savannah and Jacksonville areas will be increased from 500 capacity to 1,000. The Raleigh area, for negroes, now under construction, also will accommodate 1,000. The St. Augustine area, the only original 1,000-man camp in the district, will remain as it is for the present, but extension plans are being formed.

Work will begin today on most of these camps so they will be able to house their full quota by October 10.

Colonel Green said construction of the new facilities will be hasty and that at first no tent floors will be provided. The ground will be packed hard, as in some of the camps now.

The new tents also will not be provided with electric lights, receiving their lighting from huge arc lights placed at either end of the company streets. Wooden or cement floors and lighting will be placed later.

"The most important thing now is to provide shelter for the men," Colonel Green said.

All drainage, water, toilet and other facilities will be extended along with work. At the same time, tents now standing at the various camps, will have wooden sidewalls constructed around them preparing them for winter. Sidewalls also will be placed on the new tents later.

First Rest Camp For Race Soldiers To Be Dedicated

Judge William Hastie To Be Chief Speaker In Broadcast

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP) — The first rest camp established in the U. S. for Negro troops will be formally dedicated here Saturday afternoon when William Hastie, civilian aid to the secretary of war, Gen. Frederick Osborne, chief of the morale division, introducing Hastie. Mrs. Julia West Hamilton also will be one of the speakers on the program which will be nationally broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting system from 3 to 3:30 o'clock p. m. This is Hastie's first public utterance since assuming his post and at the time he will discuss the status of the Negro in the armed forces.

The camp, beautifully located on the flats across the Anacostia river in Southeast Washington, at present will accommodate over 500 soldiers on leave. Squad tents accmodating from six to seven men each cover a large area right beside the river.

Full sanitary facilities, including an infirmary for sick soldiers, two latrines and bath houses, a huge recreation tent and an ever larger commissary tent, with separate quarters for officers comprise the encampment.

Two officers are in charge of the camp, Major Alston Burleigh, son of the famous Harry T. Burleigh and Lieut. Harry Davis, a young Washingtonian.

Designed for accommodating troops on leave in this city, there will be no military formations, no rules and restrictions on the men in camp —just for these rest and recreation.

In front of the headquarters tent is the flag pole facing directly across the river to the navy yard and the Washington Marine barracks.

The problem of placing this camp raised several objections from various sections, but the army finally decided upon the Anacostia site, convenient to bus and street car lines and a very beautiful spot.

Residents of the district protested against the bringing in of the soldiers in this area, but their protests have turned to praise since seeing the efficient manner in which the camp is being conducted.

A permanent cadre of 12 men including non-commissioned officers assist the two officers in maintaining the camp.

Constructed a demountable sections, the camp is a combination wood-tent city. It can be torn down entirely within a half day, says Lieut. Davis. The work was done by the boys of the CCC camp located nearby under the supervision of the officers of the construction division of the quartermaster's corps.

All food and drinks sold in the concessionaire's tent will be priced within the reach of the boys on leave and the contract for this has been let to a colored restauranter.

Recreation for Negroes

It is gratifying to learn from Congressman Carl Vinson that an appropriation of 50 thousand dollars has been made for the construction of a recreation center for the Negro troops stationed at Camp Wheeler.

A 40-acre tract of land on the Clinton road has been selected as well adapted to the purpose in view and work is expected to begin as soon as the project has been given the last official touch.

It goes without saying that while there are not as many Negroes as whites at the training center, the former are quite as much entitled to the recreation and diversion necessary to good morale as the latter and the provision for their entertainment does not come any too soon.

Speaking generally, it should be said that the Negro is quite as patriotic as any other group of our citizens. He rendered good service in the World War and stands ready to do it again.

Speaking specifically, the Negroes at Camp Wheeler, so far as our information extends, have been well behaved and have cheerfully made whatever sacrifices were necessary to serve their country.

They are fully entitled to this recognition and to the entertainment facilities which will take some of the monotony from Army life.

The entire community will co-operate in providing programs as soon as the recreation center gets under way.

Service Men Benefitted by Local Program

Nearly 25,000 service men have been offered hospitality and entertainment in Nashville by the various divisions of the Soldiers Committee of the local Defense Council, it was revealed today in a report by the committee.

The local program has been highly successful, it was pointed out. Proof of this statement was offered in three factors: that requests for passes to Nashville by soldiers at Camp Forrest are two to one over any other city; that a 500 bed recreation-leave camp has been established in Centennial Park, and that many letters of appreciation have been received from officers and men who have participated in Nashville hospitality.

A sum of $6,000 has been provided in the budget of the Community Chest-USO campaign to be used in 1942 through the Soldiers Recration Committee of the Local Defense Council, of which the Rev. Pickens Johnson is chairman.

This committee has provided a lounge and information center at the Union Station which is open at all times with a hostess in charge. Other lounges, open only on week ends, have been set up at the YMCA, YM and YWHA, Knights of Columbus and McKendree Methodist Church. Mrs. Wendell Levine is chairman of the lounge committee.

A subcommittee on dances, with Mrs. Clark Akers as chairman, has arranged and obtained sponsors for dances. This committee hopes to entertain 500 boys at weekly Saturday night dances.

Some 350 homes have been made available where soldiers may be entertained over the week end or for Sunday dinner by the subcommittee on home hospitality, of which Mrs. T. N. Carruthers is chairman. Other committees have made available recreation, lodging, church contacts, and dances at the camps. A similar program is being carried out for Negro soldiers by another subcommittee.

Fight Looms In D. C. Over Soldiers' Recreation Units

NOV 17 1941

Ball Being Passed As Many Ask Of Race Facilities

WASHINGTON —(ANP)— Fence-straddling job seekers and job holders are preventing the carryout provisions of the law, says a well-known local man who has been fighting for Negro participation in all defense programs, in discussing the recent agitation for "separate" recreation facilities for Negro soldiers in the District of Columbia.

A recent appropriation of $92,000 for the remodeling of the Gunton building into a recreation center brought up the question. "What of the Negro Soldiers?" And promptly, the ball passing began.

NEEDED $15,000 FOR HEATING PLANT

NOV 17 1941

All that was needed was an expenditure of $15,000 to put in a heating plant.

In favor of the move were James C. Arnold of the YMCA, Dorothy Height of the YWCA, J. T. Anderson, Howard University Prof recently returned from an extended leave where he headed the WPA recreation program in the district for Negroes; and several others equally as well-known.

Opponents of the jim-crow units included Dr. Herbert C. Marshall of Rock Creek parck Civic Association, NAACP, UGE and the Methodist and Baptist ministers, all of whom pointed out that the setting up of a separate building would be a violation of the law, which specifically stated that "new facilities should be acquired" and that "need would be the basis upon which these facilities should be given."

Declaring that this is an opportunity for the army and its affiliated organizations to show that they are determined to do something for the Negro and to establish a more democratic system in the entire country as far as that department is concerned, proponents of the integration of Negroes into the general establishment say no substitute should be accepted, even if it does cost an ambitious aspirant "who loves recreation" a chance at a job.

CITY DIVIDED INTO TWO CAMPS

NOV 17 1941

The city is ultimately dividing itself into two camps and the Marian Anderson affair apparently is going to play into insignificance.

On the spot will be Paul V. McNutt, John M. Carmody and all of the other administration officials who have been going about making speeches about the "democracy in which we live and how it works" for they will have an opportunity to show some of it right here in the capital.

Each of the projects planned has to be approved by the President before actual work can begin. A committee of five ministers has been named to wait on the President in this instance to find out just what is going to be done.

Banneker school itself has protested against the sending of hundreds of soldiers into an area where there are teen-age girls and prior to this move, had to fight to keep soldiers from taking over the gymnasium.

How the officials feel they have to provide special places for the whites and that anything will do for the Negroes is one of the things the battling grounds want to find out, and they are going ahead in spite of agencies, coordinating committees, etc., to get something decent and respectable and worthwhile for the Negro troops, many of whom are in the army against their own free will.

Leaders Approve Banneker Fieldhouse as Recreation, Service Center for Colored Soldiers

Decision of the recreation division of the District Defense Council to turn Banneker fieldhouse into a service center for colored soldiers was approved yesterday by leaders there should be a "mixed personnel" at both Banneker and the center being opened in the Gunton Building for white soldiers and that neither center should be closed to service men from the other race.

At the same time, however, the leaders stressed their viewpoint that

Also, it was declared, they will continue to work for equal or better facilities in "a more centrally located downtown area."

Resolutions voicing these sentiments were adopted at a meeting called by Hugo Wolter, director of defense recreation, and held at the Council of Social Agencies.

Dr. Thomas J. Anderson, of the Howard University faculty, presided and explained why Banneker had been selected. "For years," he declared, "it has been a white elephant on our hands. It is not used to full capacity over the week end, even when its pool is open in summer, and its upper floor—where we were able to put 50 double decker cots for soldiers until the Anacostia area was opened—has been out of use most of the year.

"We will get it heated now. As to the complaints that soldiers will lower the tone of the neighborhood, I think we are getting onto very slippery ground when we assume that. . .Banneker is logically located in a Negro populated area, among the people who will have to be responsible for entertainment of our Negro soldiers."

James W. Geater, special representative from the Federal Security Agency, said the Federal Government is ready to insure funds for furnishing and heating the fieldhouse and that his survey showed it to be a facility that could be profitably utilized in a crowded area of approximately 80,000 colored persons.

He said that in passing the Lanham Act, through which funds for recreation are made available, the Government had no intention of going into the "morals of a community."

"My idea is that soldiers should not be used as a lever with which to open community questions of long standing. They are part of the emergency problem facing the community," he declared.

US Condemns Allen Property

The war department yesterday condemned property of Allen university on which a USO recreation building for Negro soldiers is being erected, and deposited $4,300 in the bank as payment for the property.

Yancey A. McLeod, special attorney for the department of justice here, filed the papers in federal court. He explained that it was a declaration of taking by the secretary of war and that it immediately vested the title of the property in the United States.

Last week in Richland county court, Judge A. W. Holman issued an order restraining the executive board of the university from conveying the property to the government.

A member of the university board of trustees had asked that action be brought on to enjoin the executive board from conveying the property, explaining that the charter that created the university vested title of the property in the hands of trustees.

The government's action indicated that the President of the United States had determined that there was an acute need here for recreational facilities, and that it was necessary for the building to be carried through to completion with out interruption, Mr. McLeod said.

SERVICE MEN GET HARLEM CENTER

La Guardia, as Civilian Defense Head, Dedicates Building as Thousands See Exercises

NOV 30 1941

PRESENT CRISIS STRESSED

Mayor Warns of War in Far East—Phillipson Expresses Appreciation of Army

Mayor La Guardia opened the Harlem Center for Active Service Men yesterday afternoon at 2,348 Seventh Avenue, between 137th and 138th Streets, and dedicated it to the service men of the country. The exercises were conducted in the open in front of the building, before an audience of several thousand persons.

Those present included representatives, white and Negro, of the armed forces and civic organizations, particularly those interested in providing recreational facilities for service men.

Explaining that he was present in his capacity of Federal Director of Civilian Defense, the Mayor called on the citizens of Harlem to get 100 per cent behind the New York City Defense Recreation Committee, which he warmly commended for this Harlem project. He asked that everything possible be done for the comfort of service men when they come home from camp, saying they are engaged in hard, grinding work that soon may become dangerous work.

Far East Danger Stressed

"Our country is faced with real danger at this very moment," he warned. "There is no telling what may happen in a few days in the Far East. We know our government is not bluffing. The quicker Japan understands that the better it will be for her own safety and future."

The Mayor was applauded when he said the country stands behind President Roosevelt, who stands behind Secretary of State Cordell Hull in supporting our "definite and unalterable" policy.

"Let no one get the idea so far as Hitler and his gang are concerned, that we are neutral," he added. "We are not neutral. We are definitely, nationally, morally, socially and militarily against Hitler and the Axis powers."

Particularly addressing the fifty Negro soldiers from Fort Dix who attended, the Mayor recalled his own World War service and said:

"Soldiers, we are not preparing for a dress parade. We are preparing for grim, serious business. We intend to protect our institutions and defend our lands and the entire Western Hemisphere. Nobody at any time is going to be permitted to put a foot anywhere in the Western Hemisphere. Your government has taken every possible precaution for the defense of our coasts. Bases and outposts have been established. We are in complete agreement and have worked out joint defense plans in every detail with our neighbor on the north."

Phillipson Speaks For Army

Major Gen. Irving G. Phillipson, Commander of the Second Corps Area, expressed the official appreciation of the Army for "what you are doing for our soldiers here in New York."

Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, Regional Coordinator of Health, Welfare and Related Defense Activities, said the gathering represented "the real Harlem—not the Harlem the newspapers have been writing about."

Mrs. Julius Ochs Adler, co-chairman of the New York City Defense Recreation Committee, joined Mrs. Rosenberg in calling on all citizens of the community to get whole-heartedly behind the project and keep up the morale of the service men.

Miss Mary L. Gibbon, first deputy commissioner of the State Department of Social Welfare, in charge of New York City offices, congratulated Harlem on being one of the first communities to organize recreational facilities for its soldiers.

Hubert T. Delany, Negro member of the City Tax Department, said the Harlem Center is "one of the answers to those who criticize us." Channing Tobias, Negro representative on the Citizens Joint Army and Navy Committee for Welfare and Recreation, said the building is "not a Negro club, not a Harlem club, but a club for the men of the Army and Navy of the United States."

Samuel A. Allen, chairman of the Harlem Committee of the Defense Recreation Committee, said the project will "try to keep the boys off the street and out of trouble and give them good, clean fun," and William H. Hastie, civilian aide to Secretary of War Stimson, said the Army is planning to provide recreational facilities for Negro soldiers all over the country.

Others who took part in the ceremonies were Judge Jonah J. Goldstein of the Court of General Sessions, Lieut. Comdr. Charles B. Cranford, representing Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the Third Naval District; John Golden, theatrical producer; Parole Commissioner Samuel J. Battle, Walter White of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Robert Sissle, Mrs. Bill Robinson, Benjamin J. Namm and David Rockefeller.

NOV 30 1941

There was a musical program and the meeting began and closed with prayer. A parade along Seventh Avenue preceded the exercises.

The building has accommodations for 500 at a time, with lounge rooms, a roof garden, game rooms, library, snack bar, locker rooms, showers, sleeping quarters and committee rooms.

Army Opens Its Newest Recreation Camp For Negro Soldiers at Anacostia Flats

Golf Course, Other Facilities Provided For Visiting Troopers

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

The flag went up at 3:30 p m. yesterday above 88 walled tents in the Anacostia flats and Negro soldiers visiting Washington now have, as d owhite soldiers in another part of town, "something of a deluxe hotel."

o it was described by Maj. Alston W. Burleigh, United States Army, the camp's commander, a moment before other speakers, including Brig. Gen Frederick H. Osborn and Judge William H. Hastie, civilian aide to the Secretary of War, urged a greater application of the democracy the country is fighting for.

"Our greatest immediate need is not the dedication of camps and other physical facilities, but a dedication of ourselves as Americans to the practice of the ideals we profess," Judge Hastie said "Morale cannot be raised if citizens consider the soldiers in their midst as outsiders to be tolerated and exploited, or if soldiers treat the near by town as merely a place to carouse without regard to the rights and sensibilities of the civilian population."

The camp, with facilities for 500 men, a softball diamond, a golf course and recreation tents, is the first such establishment for Negro soldiers. Gen. Osborn explained. Three others are under construction, one in Lincoln Park, one on the Tuskegee Institute grounds in Alabama, and another in Raleigh, N. C.

"Your Army recognizes the need of fair and equal treatment to all troops in the development and maintenance of ah high morale," Gen. Osborn said. "We are all all aware of the events in recent months which have tended to dishupt our progress. Hovever, every effort has been made to correct these conditions."

Judge Hastie said that "the Army's own responsibility to its soldiers on leave has not been ignored. Contrary to an opinion sometimes expressed, military investigation is not a device for whitewashing the mistreatment of Negro soldiers.

"For example," he continued, "the investigation of a recent affray between Negro soldiers and military policemen near Fort Bragg has been viewed with skepticism by some civilians. I am in position to say that all aspects of the Fort Bragg controversy have been subjected to most detailed inquiry."

SEP 21 1941

"A veteran officer, experienced in military police work, is being detailed to Fort Bragg as provost marshal. Arrangements are being made for increased officer supervision of military policemen while on duty in the civilian community and for the establishment of a military police station and headquarters in the City of Fayetteville, N. C., separate fro mthe civilian police station. The unified force will consist of selected permanent personnel colored as well as white, without any racial distinction as to the authority or equipment of the individual military policeman."

PLAN CENTER FOR NEGRO SOLDIERS

B. F. Hubert Announces Their Needs Discussed

Announcement was made by B. F. Hubert, chairman of the S.S.S.S. committee for recreational work among colored soldiers, that plans are going forward for the equipment of a center that will be used for colored service men in and around Savannah.

He states that conferences have been held with representatives of the men at the Savannah Air Base and the soldiers and CCC men at Camp Stewart to ascertain their immediate and long-time needs and plans are being adjusted so as to meet these needs.

This executive committee made up of Ophelia Lee McIver, Walter Scott, J. G. Lemon, Frank Callen, Marian Starr with B. F. Hubert, chairman has been actively at work enlisting the co operation of the leading citizens of Savannah to serve as chairmen of the various groups that will serve the colored enlisted men in many helpful ways. This same committee, with the assistance of practically every public-spirited colored person in Savannah, sponsored a drive that raised approximately $1,200 among colored people for the U. S. O. which is lending its efforts towards the improvement of recreational opportunities for men in service.

President B. F. Hubert who saw service in France during the World War period in the Army Educational Corps has had a great deal of training and experience himself in developing programs for people in all activities. He states that every facility of the Georgia State College, including its classrooms, gymnasium and community house will be available for the use of the soldiers.

A. H. Gordon who holds his bachelor's degree from Atlanta University and his master's degree from Columbia University with additional graduate work in the field of social sciences has been selected by the WPA to serve as director of the Soldiers' Service in Savannah. Professor Gordon formerly served with the Y. M. C. A. and the officers' training camp while professor at the South Carolina State College. He has made a study of negro history and social life and comes to this job with training and experience that make him exceptionally well-qualified to head up this program. The local colored S.S.S.S. committee is entirely behind the administration of Professor Gordon and other workers who may be placed in the Soldiers' Service Center.

President Hubert states that he is especially appreciative of the service rendered by Fred A. Davis, chairman of the Savannah Social Service Center and the work being done by Mrs. Lucy B. McIntire who has given so much of her time and energy to the end that negro service men may have the same opportunity as now afforded other soldiers.

The Center at Thirty-seventh and Ogeechee road when opened will be a place where not only negro soldiers, but others will be welcome to go for recreational opportunity and improvement. Every thoughtful citizen of Savannah is urged to co-operate with those who are working to bring the best possible opportunity to soldiers quartered in this area. The Guaranty Life Insurance Company through its president, Walter Scott has made available temporary offices of meeting for the colored Soldiers' Service Center until the Center is open on Thirty-seventh and Ogeechee road. Professor A. H. Gordon will be found in this building until work has been completed on the Center. A special program is arranged for negro service men at Georgia State College on Sunday evening at 6 o'clock where a special artist from Fish University will render a piano recital.

Recreation Planned for Negro Troops

Entertainment is being planned for negro soldiers in the city this week-end. The men are members of the Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh coast artillery regiments here to take part in the anti-aircraft exercises.

The Service Men's club, the Y. W. C. A., the WPA and city schools are cooperating in arranging recreational facilities. Centers in the city to be open to the negro men in service include: The Mary Street center of the WPA, Archer school, Burke school and Avery school. The Coming Street branch of the Y. W. C. A. will assist negro soldiers and their families.

Th eService Men's club has allocated $100 of its funds to b eused for the soldiers' entertainment.

A dance will be held at Burke school Saturday night. The Seventy-seventh regiment orchestra will play. The committee for the dance is composed of negro school principals and a group from the Y. W. C. A. branch. Games also will be set up at Burke school.

The WPA center in Mary street will be open to service men every day and every evening including Sunday. Games and reading and writing rooms will be available.

Archer school will be open all day Saturday and Sunday with games arranged and the library also open.

Other features of the program will be a concert by the Seventy-seventh regimental band, and a community sing Sunday at a place to be arranged, and a football game tomorrow afternoon at College park.

Sunday will be hospitality day at the negro churches and service men will be dinner guests of congregation members.

Zvenia Jackson Brown has been appointed director of negro work in the Charleston U. S. O.-Y. W. C. A. office, it is announced by Miss Mary Gwynn, director of those activities here. She began her duties October 1.

A tremendous increase in the negro population of Charleston, due to the employment of them in the navy yard, at the dry dock, the ordnance depot, in the various expanding defense industries and at the Stark hospital plant, has rendered insufficient the present limited housing, educational and recreational facilities provided for their use. Not only are improved facilities of this kind necessary for negro men, but for women and girls recently employed in the area, as well.

Zvenia Brown, who came from Atlanta, will direct a program of assistance for the negroes in Charleston affected by the national defense emergency. She previously was branch executive of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Y. W. C. A. In the Milwaukee Y. W. C. A., she served as the Girl Reserve secretary. Earlier, she was a teacher in the public school system of Marietta, Ga. She has attended Morris Brown college, the Atlanta School of Social Work, and the Institute of the National Recreational association, all in Atlanta.

NEGRO SOLDIERS TO HEAR KELLY AS CLUB OPENS

NOV 2 1941

Mayor Kelly will be the principal speaker today when a club for Negro soldiers is formally launched in the Good Shepherd community center, 5120 South Park way.

Preceding the ceremonies at the new center, participants will gather at 2 p. m. at the war monument at 35th street and South Park way to honor the war dead of the 8th infantry regiment.

A parade from the monument to the center will feature the ROTC unit of Du Sable High school and the Du Sable and Phillips High school bands. American Legion and VFW posts will provide a guard of honor for Col. Anderson F. Pitts, commander of the 184th field artillery, Negro regiment at Camp Custer, Mich., and his staff.

"We have appealed to the War Department and the Department of Justice," the letter continues, "They seem unable to agree as to which agency should prosecute. In the meantime, nothing is being done to punish the persons guilty of these crimes against the United States government and nothing is being done to prevent similar occurences.

Harlem Center For Service Men To Open At Old Vincent Sanitorium On November 16th

NOV 1 1941

Samuel A. Allen, chairman of the Harlem Committee of the New York City Defense Recreation Committee, announced Monday that plans for the establishment of a Harlem Center for active service men have been completed, and that the Harlem Committee will open its new headquarters on or about November 16th.

Mr. Allen announced that the new committee headquarters will be located in the renovated building once occupied by the Vincent Sanitorium at 2348 7th avenue, in the heart of Harlem.

The building, which is being renovated to specifications drawn by Vertner C. Tandy, architect, is five stories in height, and will feature a roof garden game rooms, snack bar, locker rooms and showers, and Committee rooms for the use of Service men.

The headquarters will be equipped to care for the recreational, welfare and information needs of approximately 500 enlistees at one time.

NOV 1 1941

There will also be quarters set aside for the exclusive use of the officer personnel of the Army and Navy.

It is estimated by military and naval authorities that there are approximately 6,000 Negro soldiers and sailors currently serving in the armed forces in the Second Corps area and the Third Naval District. There are also numerous enlistees visiting New York City on leave or furlough from such remote points as Florida, North and South Carolina, and the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Allen in discussing the projected Harlem Center for active service men stated:

"Our committee believes this is the first Center of its type to be devoted to the interests of Negro service men in any large city in the country, and it is its aim to make New York the friendliest town in the country for the service men who are giving so much to so many."

NOV 1 1941

The committee plans to feature a parade, and have various Harlem organizations provide luncheons, dinners and entertainment for Service men on the day of the opening, which will be announced within the near future.

The Harlem Committee of the New York City Defense Recreation Committee comprises Samuel A. Allen, chairman; Major Ira L. Aldridge, secretary; Samuel J. Battle, Parole Commissioner of the City of N. Y.; Dr. May E. Chinn; Henry K. Craft, Y. M. C. A.; Mrs. Helena Coates, West Harlem Council of Social Agencies; Thomas B. Dyett, State Commission of Correction; Robert J. Elzy, Brooklyn Urban League, George Gregory; and James H. Hubert, New York Urban League; Mrs. Cecelia Cabaniss Saunders, Y. W. C. A.

Also Mrs. Frances W. Hill; Mrs. Lillian S. Hunter; Mrs. Fannie Robinson, wife of Bill Robinson; Noble Sissle, president, Negro Actors Guild; Harold A. Stevens, Ludlow W. Werner, Roy Wilkins and Mrs. Julius Ochs Adler, who is representing the executive committee of the New York City Defense Recreation Committee.

Wilson Appeals For Support In Efforts To Raise $1,000 Sum

The Rev. E. M. Wilson, pastor of the Friendship Baptist Church, who was recently named Etowah county chairman in the Negro division of the United Service Organizations for National Defense, today called on all colored agencies and citizens to begin an immediate drive for $1,000. The $1,000 quota has been assigned for this county and the Rev. Wilson expressed confidence the sum will be raised quickly.

"I am appealing to all pastors, regardless of denomination, and to the heads of all Negro organizations and agencies to rally to the support of this drive," the chairman said. "The government expects us to do our part and the Negro boys in the service are counting on us to help put over this worthy program."

$5,000 Service Club For Negro Troops Okayed

A service club will be built at Fort Jackson for Negro troops, with $5,000 worth of equipment for the club authorized today along with a junior hostess.

The Negro troops, numbering more than 1,000, at Fort Jackson are quartered in the old 8th Division area along the old Hickory road. Here these troops have all their facilities, including barracks, mess halls, theaters and a lake for swimming.

Authorization for the construction of a service club for the Negro troops was made by the war department under a $885,000 program, and construction is being rushed by the quartermaster corps.

Under a new $254,000 allotment by the war department made public today, $5,000 will be ear-marked for the Negro service club at the fort from which equipment for the club will be built.

Under the $5,000 allotment, the club will be outfitted with a 500-volume library, a junior hostess and a kitchen for short orders.

The junior hostess for the Negro Service club at the fort will be appointed by the commanding general of the 4th corps area in whose jurisdiction the facilities are located.

Pastors of all colored churches in Gadsden have pledged their full cooperation in the campaign of the Negro division of the United Service Organizations to raise $1,000 in Etowah county, the chairman, the Rev. E. M. Wilson, announced today.

Plans for the drive were mapped at a meeting of the Inter-denominational Ministerial Alliance when the Rev. Wilson asked each of the pastors to serve as a key man in the campaign. Each church has been assigned a quota and has been asked to select a person to solicit contributions in various areas. The Rev. O. B. Fox was elected secretary for the campaign.

Each of the colored pastors of the city has been asked to make a drive in his church Sunday and Chairman Wilson is hopeful of raising the entire assigned quota within a short time, he said today.

ARMY RECREATION, BUILDING RESTRICTIONS, AND OTHER MATTERS OF VITAL COMMUNITY INTEREST TAKEN UP BY C. OF C. BOARD

Army recreation, building restrictions, municipal and naval airports, the proposed Coast Guard Station, a hospitality program for families of Army and Navy men and Negro education comprised the diversified program of business of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce last night of the Civic Center.

The board acted promptly and favorably upon a recommendation by the Building Promotion Committee, which met immediately preceding the directors' session, upon proposed legislation which would restrict undesirable building in three areas in St. Augustine and on St. Johns County beaches.

ENABLING ACT

A general enabling act will be drafted and sent to the State Legislature, under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce, which, if enacted, would not only make possible the regulation of building in St. Johns County but throughout the entire state. In St. Augustine proper, the bill would enable the city government to enter a mutual agreement with the Federal Housing Administration in ruling out undesirable proposed construction in Fullerwood, Davis Shores and Nelmar Terrace. It would mean that the city would not change zoning ordinances in these areas without the consent of the FHA, which would then be in a position to assist extensively in new building in these districts.

RECREATION CAMP REPORT GIVEN

President W. M. Toomer, Jr., reported on conferences with representatives of the Morale Division of the War Department that resulted in St. Augustine's tentative selection for a 1,000-man Army recreation camp, which would be the largest in Florida. Mr. Toomer pointed out that these camps are built by the Civilian Conservation Corps with the cooperation of the National Park Service. They are maintained by the War Department.

SEVEN SITES

At the request of the Chamber of Commerce, the city and county have offered seven proposed sites for the camp. No report has been available from Washington as to the site chosen. Four of the suggested locations were on the beaches and three were in the city.

Mr. Toomer explained that although the camps consist of 90 pyramidal tents (St. Augustine will have two units or 180 tents) the area is so beautiful that it will be an attraction. Army men are given leave of absence at recreation camps from Friday afternoons until Sunday evenings. No meals are served and other necessities ordinarily provided in camp are not provided, thereby establishing the men as potential customers of St. Augustine merchants.

The establishment of this camp was one of seven major National Defense objectives adopted by the Chamber of Commerce less than one month ago.

OTHER OBJECTIVES

Other objectives were discussed and the progress on each was outlined. Hiram Faver, secretary of the organization's Port and Naval Affairs Committee, reported that the Treasury Department had accepted the site of the proposed Coast Guard station, which was purchased by the Chamber of Commerce with funds provided jointly by the city and county.

BIDS FOR RUNWAYS

It was reported that bids for the paving of runways at the St. Augustine Municipal Airport would be opened Friday and that the work must be completed within 60 days after the contractor is notified. The future of the municipal airport and the Mill Creek Road airport were discussed. Steps are being taken to interest the U. S. Navy in the latter field, which currently is maintained by the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

HOSPITALITY PROGRAM

The board voted to assist financially the Junior Service League in planning an informal program for wives of Army officers. President Toomer also appointed a committee composed of Mr. Faver, Milton E. Bacon, Jr., Otis Barnes and Mrs. A. H. Tebault to consider plans for an extended hospitality program for the families of all men living in St. Augustine who are in military service.

Frank Harrold, Harold Ryman, David R. Dunham and John W. Dillin were appointed to a committee to study a proposed legislative act which would transfer 200 acres of Florida Normal and Industrial Institute land to the State of Florida for possible future establishment of an East Florida Industrial School.

Directors of the organization were asked to be in readiness for special meetings before the next regular session in June for matters dealing with the National Defense emergency program.

Proud of This Record

Today's salute goes to the Negroes of Elizabeth City who, assigned a quota of $100 in the USO campaign, went over the top for a total of $128.15 yesterday.

In short, it's to the Negro race in Pasquotank County that credit must go for being not only first to reach their quota, and for reaching this quota within the time set for the drive, but also credit for passing their quota within the time limit set by more than 25 per cent.

In paying this tribute to Elizabeth City Negroes, The Daily Advance wants to say that the record never could have been made without an efficient organization, and for such an organization President Harold L. Trigg of Teachers College and his coadjutors must be accorded credit. The Daily Advance is happy in the privilege of naming these coadjutors. They are: F. M. Bell, Jennie H. Butler, John Davis, Brooks Dickens, J. R. Fleming, C. F. Graves, Blanche Harris, W. W. Hoffler, James Paige, Mabel C. Pailen, Charles Robinson, Addie Spellman Lawrence, Mocille Cardwell Spellman, Ben Wesley, Julia N. Wesley and S. D. Williams.

With $128.15 raised by Negro workers and contributors, and with a grand total for the whole drive of more than $700 reported up to last night, there is every assurance that Pasquotank County will go over the top for its $1200 early next week. This newspaper hopes to carry the announcement that Elizabeth City is over the top in its Wednesday's issue at the latest.

USO NEGRO DIVISION EXCEEDS $1500 QUOTA

Reports Show It Goes Over Top By $167.45

Exceeding its quota of $1500 by $167.45, the Negro Division of the United Service Organization's Memphis headquarters, closed its drive yesterday with a report meeting at the negro Y. M. C. A., 816 Mississippi.

The blue team, headed by Prof. R. T. Hunt, principal of Booker T. Washington High School, won the plaque for raising the largest amount, $800. The white team, captained by Prof. L. C. Sharpe, principal of Douglas Junior High, raised $501.25, and the red team, led by Prof. H. C. Latham of Booker T. Washington High School, obtained $437.97.

L. J. Searcy, executive secretary of the Community Welfare League, was general chairman. C. R. Lawrence, secretary of the negro Y. M. C. A., was secretary, and L. O. Swingler, editor of the Memphis World, was director of publicity.

Negro USO Work Gains Headway

The Rev. E. M. Wilson, chairman of the Negro USO drive for $1,000 in Etowah county, reports that the corps of solicitors he has appointed is doing a splendid bit of work and that next week all business places will be contacted.

"We can raise the $1,000, and I am sure that as loyal citizens of the best country in the world, North America, we are not going to fall short of the goal that is set for the Negroes of Etowah county," Chairman Wilson stated.

"We are not unmindful of our many privileges in America today, whereas, in many other countries public worship, public schools, open conversation, selling and buying, taking a night's rest, doing a day's work and receiving good wages are things of the past."

The chairman put in a plea for his people not to fail their own 57 boys who are now in training.

He likewise expressed his appreciation for the address given last Monday before the Inter-Denominational Ministerial Alliance by Acting Postmaster Daniel A. Westcott, in which Mr. Westcott stressed the worthwhileness of the USO drive.

National Defense Removes Teacher From Downingtown

MAR 13 1941

At least until the end of the present school-term and possibly for a longer period Downingtown Industrial School will have to get along without the services of Percival B. Hunt, for 14 years its instructor in automechanics and welding. He has been drafted by the U. S. Bureau of Education and the Philadelphia School Board to teach those subjects in the vocational program being carried out in the Philadelphia Schools for training National Defense workers. He was ordered to report for duty on March 10. Since only short notice was given the school of the employment of Mr. Hunt, Downingtown is still seeking a man to take over his work.

MAR 13 1941

A second employee of the school may also very soon be working for Uncle Sam. Archie E. Rowley, assistant commandant of boys, chauffeur and buyer, has received his questionnaire from his draft board and may be called into the service at any moment.

3,000,000 TRAINED! Trade and Industrial Education!

MAR 13 1941

Reports from all States received by the U. S. Office of Education show that regular and defense vocational school training is ahead of its scheduled program planned last year to train 700,000 workers for defense industries by June 30, 1941. ***

More than 800 of the 900 cities with vocational trade and industrial schools are making their facilities available for defense training. More than 300 cities have put their vocational schools on 24-hour, 6-day week schedules.

Enrollments in the regular vocational education program are highest in history. They total approximately 2,000,000. A large proportion of the occupations trained for in the regular program are directly useful to defense industry needs.

Trade and industrial education alone enrolls more than 750,000 including hundreds of apprentices who attend part time. Youth in these courses receive basic and related training in such defense-vital skills as pattern-making, welding, sheet metal, drafting, machine shop, electricity, and auto mechanics.

The total number that will be served by various vocational education courses during the coming year will be in excess of 3,000,000.

Vocational schools, Commissioner Studebaker reported, are serving more varieties of needs than ever before in their 23-year history.

Armstrong Association To Guide Drive To Urge Race To Train For Jobs

MAR 13 1941

Using as their slogan "Let Us Work to Defend America," civic, social and educational groups throughout the entire country will observe Vocational Opportunity Campaign Week from March 16 to 23. The purpose of the campaign will be to stimulate Negroes into training and preparing for jobs in employment fields where the greatest emphasis will be placed during the next few years.

The National Urban League, cognizant of the fact that beginning March 15, the U. S. Employment Service is directing a drive for national registration and classification of all unemployed labor, is urging every kind of Negro worker to register with his local employment service as the first step towards obtaining work.

The government employment service will of course concentrate chiefly upon workers who may be available for work or training in defense industries, but the league submits the following deductions: That industries not classified at present as "essential to defense" may be so classified as the national program develops and the war crisis intensifies; that as workers are drawn for non-defense occupations to fill defense jobs, openings will be left vacant for unemployed workers, including thousands of Negroes who cannot qualify for defense occupations.

The failure of unemployed workers to register will eliminate them completely from sharing in this tidal wave of work which will in all probability begin to engulf the country after July 1st, when 600,000 additional men will leave their homes for service in military training.

Already 45 branches of the League, 51 National Youth Administration groups, and 150 Negro schools and colleges have agreed to participate fully in the program.

Three radio programs will be carried on national networks as follows: E. Simms Campbell, Negro cartoonist and commercial artist, will be dramatized on the program called "On Your Job"; on Tuesday afternoon the "Scrapbook" program of Tony Wons will be devoted to problems faced by Negro workers in securing jobs; and immediately following this program a 15-minute talk on the "Negro Worker and Defense Employment" will be given by Edward Lawson, managing editor of Opportunity magazine.

MAR 13 1941

Here in Philadelphia plans for this city's participation in this gigantic program were completed by the Armstrong Association. The week will open officially on Sunday, March 16. Every church throughout the city has promised its cooperation and not only will sermons be delivered that will be built around the job guidance and preparation, but hundreds of young people will appear in churches as informative speakers.

Other features will be Round Table discussions, special meetings of militant civic organizations; field trips by students of several schools to some of our large Negro business concerns; an art exhibit and a quiz will be part of the regular forum program at the Reeve Memorial Church on the evening of Sunday, March 23.

Charles A. Shorter, industrial and research secretary of the Armstrong Association, and Wayne L. Hopkins, executive secretary of the Armstrong Association, will address various groups throughout the city during the entire week.

BUILDING TRADESMEN MAY 'BRUSH UP' ON SKILLS IN SPECIAL GOVERNMENT CLASSES

MAR 21 1941

KANSAS CITY, Kas. — (Special) —An opportunity for building workmen to "brush up" on their trades will be available if a sufficient number of men and boys enroll in classes to be formed when the necessary arrangements have been made. The courses will be offered by the Kansas City, Kansas, board of education with the assistance of the federal government.

Classes in carpentry, painting, brick work, and plastering will be started first and additional groups added as the demand increases.

These will be night classes and the place will be the new Sumner high chool.

All men and boys interested in getting training that will enable them to do their work better are asked to attend the meeting of the Colored Builders' association Monday night, March 17, at 8:30 o'clock. The place is Slaughter's hall, 1317 North Ninth street, across from the old Sumner high gymnasium.

Fifteen men at the builders' meeting registered for the courses at last Monday's meeting.

L. W. Tennyson, president, states that these new courses should prove to be of much benefit to workmen who have had much experience in their trade but who need additional technical knowledge to compete with younger men who have had both extensive training and some experience in the work.

MAR 21 1941

Age is no bar to workmen who desire to take the courses. Immediate registration is urged so that plans for the courses can be drafted by the board of education and submitted to the federal government for approval.

FORMER TEXAN GETS PHILLY DEFENSE JOB

Rufus S. Watson Named Coordinator for Board Of Education

PHILADELPHIA. (ANP).—A co-ordinator of defense training will be named this week by the local board of education, to help in the training and placing of Negro youth for the vast defense industries. The position has been offered to Rufus S. Watson, now state director of the Negro program of NYA. The job pays $360 per month.

Watson was one of six persons nominated for the job by the Philadelphia Committee on the Participation of the Negro in National Defense, of which G. James Fleming, newspaper editor, is chairman. From the six persons nominated, the board of education selected one. Two white co-ordinators have also been named.

The Philadelphia committee, in making public the plan of having the co-ordinator, pointed out that it may be possible for Negroes to get a co-ordinator for defense training in other sections of the country. His duties include setting up facilities for providing technical and collateral training for youth between 17 and 25; for helping them to get into existing training courses, and to work to find them jobs in industry.

Rufus S. Watson is a native of San Antonio, Texas, a graduate of Fisk university, and Harvard university. He has been in the NYA job since 1935.

YOUTH ENTITLED TO TECHNICAL TRAINING

It was brought out at a conference last Saturday with Mr. F. J. Jeffrey, assistant superintendent in charge of technical training just where the "bottle neck" obstruction is, which prevents the Negro youths of St. Louis from receiving technical training in the public schools the same as is given other groups and races.

FEB 7 - 1941

Mr. Jeffrey said and repeated his statement that he would not recommend any course in the technical trades for Negro youths unless there were openings awaiting them in some industries where they could get jobs to pursue such trades. And whereas he did not state specifically that his decision was the policy of the Board of Education, yet his inference was that he was carrying out the policy of the Board.

FEB 7 - 1941

It will be remembered that this paper has pointed out from time to time that the greatest injustice to the Negro youths who are eligible to attend the public schools of St. Louis is that they have consistently been denied technical training on first one pretext and then another, coming from Mr. Jeffrey. We have charged Mr. Jeffrey with standing in the way of the Negro youths in their pursuit of training and now he has admitted that he has been and is using his official position to play just that sort of role. He has intimated that the Chamber of Commerce and organized labor has influenced his action, but we deny that either the Chamber of Commerce or organized labor has any right to force or coerce him into denying Negroes the kind of training to which they are justly entitled. His statement that we must wait until a demand is made for our services, is both illogical and unreasonable, to say nothing about being unlawful. As we have said before, the first requisite for work is to be prepared to do the job. Anybody can understand that. Such a statement is both logical and reasonable. The young woman who applies for a position as stenographer but states that she is unable to perform that kind of work and suggests that her prospective employer wait until she prepares herself, always finds that jobs do not wait for people to prepare themselves. Consequently the work is given to some one who is already prepared. Most of us have had or witnessed such an experience.

The National Urban League has just sent out a statement indicating that there is a demand for Negro skilled workers and a great need for training and experience among our group. The statement is as follows:

> "A reminder that the training of skilled Negro workers is an important part in opening jobs for them in defense industries was given this week by the National Urban League in a report on placement of Negro workers in defense industries. The League stated that it had openings in several cities for skilled Negro workers which could be filled only with difficulty because Negroes with the specific training and experience were already satisfactorily employed. In one city an Urban League local sent in a call to the National Office for an experienced sheet metal worker capable of teaching a defense training class. A similar request for a welder came from another city. The National Office was obliged to circulate a hurried request among its branches for assistance in filling these spots."

This request shows that a man who is trained here today may be employed in New York or Kansas City or California tomorrow. This is but a natural course of things in a homogenous country like this of ours where it is easy to go from one place to another where similar work is in demand and where we all speak the same language.

It is interesting to us to note that the assistant superintendent in charge of technical training of the youths in the public schools protests that his treatment of the Negro youths is fair when he absolutely refuses to provide courses that will enable these youths to make a living when they get out of school—training which he freely provides for others.

The stubborn and arbitrary position taken by Mr. Jeffrey in this matter can only be met by a lawsuit—a mandamus suit that the courts may force him to do his duty as a public official. We refer to Mr. Jeffrey in this connection because it is his duty to recommend the courses for the technical schools, both Washington and Hadley. Of course, in the final analysis a suit would be filed against the Board of Education. Just as we filed an injunction suit to stop the Board from action in the Vashon site case, so can we file a mandamus suit to compel this same School Board to provide technical training for our youths.

Tuskegee Physician Reports To Ft. Bragg

APR 25 1941

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE — (SNS)—The U. S. Veterans Administration, Eugene H. Dibble, M.D., manager, released its first physician for army service, Tuesday, April 15, when Vance Hunter Marchbanks, Jr., M.D., left to report for duty at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Dr. Marchbanks, a first Lieutenant Medical Corp Reserve, was appointed to the medical staff of the Veteran's Administration in 1940.

APR 25 1941

Dr. Marchbanks is not new to Army life. He is the son of Captain V. H. Marchbanks, Sr., who retired after 43 years of army service. Born and reared at Army Posts, young Marchbanks went to Howard University for his medical training.

APR 25 1941

Along with Captain Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., and Cadet Robert Tressville now completing his second year at West Point Military Academy, Dr. Marchbanks stands out as one of the few sons of older Negro Army men who have followed their father's footsteps.

APR 25 1941

Dr. Marchbanks' wife and three months' old daughter will continue for the present to make their home at Tuskegee Institute.

Appeals to Agency For Negro Training

An appeal to the U. S. office of education to sponsor the training of Negroes in distributive education was made by Charles H. Welch of the Hampton institute division of business at a special meeting in Washington last week.

B. Frank Kyker, chief of the business education division of the office of education, and his staff of regional agents met with Welch to determine a better means of integrating Negroes into courses of retail selling and merchandise information. These programs, sponsored under the George Dean act, are being given throughout the United States.

Welch spoke instructional material to be prepared in courses in simplified record keeping for small stores and outlined his plans for a program in this field for Negroes.

ATLANTA, Ga., Mar. 20—(By L. B. Harris for ANP)—The annual conference of the Georgia Interracial Committee, holding one of the most interesting meetings in its history, met here last Friday in the Exhibition Room of Atlanta University with a capacity audience present, and Dr. R. L. Russell, of Griffin, Ga., presiding.

The subject of "Vocational Training In the South, As It Relates to National Defense," was discussed by J. R. Womack, assistant State supervisor of Industrial Education, Atlanta. He explained the type of defense work Negro adults were being trained for in Georgia and also said that training is being given Negroes in all the principal cities of Georgia, except Augusta.

When asked why there was no such program in Augusta, he explained that labor unions in this city objected, and that his division was instructed by authorities in Washington, not to conflict with the unions in any place.

Further facts were presented by J. B. Blayton, president of the Negro Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta, whose report was one of the most outstanding at the conference.

MAR 2 2 1941

Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, gave much information concerning the progress made by Negroes seeking professional training in colleges and universities of the South.

Nelson Jackson, instructor in the Department of Community Organization, Atlanta School of Social Work, presented an interesting report of the work conference, held recently at Tuskegee Institute.

Dr. E. G. Mackay and A. T. Walden reported on "The Right of Prisoners." The fact was brought out that though the lash had been legally abolished in prisons, the practice continued. Attention was called to the bill recently presented to the State Legislature, to restore the lash, and each one was urged to contact the legislators and gain, if possible, their promise to vote against such an iniquitous bill.

Civil Trainees Invited To Join Military Forces

WASHINGTON, D. C.— (ANP)—According to the latest report of the Civil Aeronautics administration in the training of the civilian pilots, needed by the army and offered inducements to join up with the military forces, the Negro institutions which have participated in the program have done splendid work turning out a number of well trained men.

As of June 30, 1940, the reports show the following institutions and the number of students.

Tuskegee Institute	25
NCA and T College	35
Howard University	20
Hampton Institute	55
Virginia State College	20
West Virginia State College	70
Total Flyers in Training	225

MAR 2 1 1941

While this is a small percentage of the total number of pilots trained and in training, it represents a basic effort to train Negro pilots all of whom have qualified, it is reported with excellent ratings.

The future program of the Civilian Pilot Training program calls for a total of 45,000 during the fiscal year of 1941. The percentage of Negroes in this number would seem to be limited by the facilities of the training centers where they are accepted.

MAR 2 1 1941

However, upon completion of their courses, each of the trainees receives from the government a letter suggesting that he join up with the military forces and outlines the advantages to be gained thereby.

WPA Defense Projects Eyed

MAY 7 - 1941

Negro Trainees Listed In National Program Through March

The extent of participation by negro trainees in the WPA National Vocational Training Projects is reflected in a report just issued by the division of statistics, Federal Work Projects Administration, Washington. The figures cover an eight-month period ending March 26.

WPA Region Four, which includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio and West Virginia, takes the lead with 3,676 negro trainees who are nearly fifty per cent of the country's 7,902 colored parents assigned by WPA for training for defense jobs. Region two stands next with 2,193. Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York City and New York State are in this WPA region. Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, North Varolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia are in region three having a total of 1,331 negro trainees. In Region Six, embracing Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Texas the figures stand next with a 522 total.

According to the report, Kansas is the only State with a large negro population which offers no defense training for its colored workers. Maryland, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas reported earlier as having no negro defense trainees, are jointly responsible for boosting the figures in the current report to an all-time high.

Job placements for trainees of the race in private industries having to do with defense show 792 for the whole country. Another 484 comprise the number of trainees who voluntarily left the vocational training classes for reasons unknown, and it can be assumed left for private employment. Two thousand others for whom the National Defense Vocational Training Project was created have secured employment on other WPA projects. In the order of job placement among negro trainees, Michigan stands first with 154, Illinois comes next with 145. North Carolina follows with 89; Ohio, 87; Virginia 69; District of Columbia, 44; Pennsylvania, 30; and New York City, 26.

MAY 7 - 1941

The National Defense Vocational Training Project is sponsored by the National Advisory Commission and the U. S. Office of Education. After a survey is made of existing vocational training facilities, representatives of local industrial management and labor are consulted to determine local needs in those occupations regarded as essential by the National Defense Advisory Commission. Then the local vocational education authorities requisition from the WPA and the State Employment Service the number of trainees for whom there are facilities.

Approximately fifty per cent of the Vocational Educational trainees are chosen from WPA rolls. Selections of trainees are made on the basis of previous training and experience in occupations for which training is given. Assignment also may be made in occupations for which training is given. Assignment also may be made on the basis of aptitude and adaptability to the field of training under consideration. The WPA may choose not only those persons who have been assigned to projects, but also those unassigned workers who have been certified by the local relief agencies. During the training period, those persons selected from the WPA rolls receive their security wage. Those who are not on projects but who are assigned from the waiting assignment list are paid on the same scale as regular project workers. Upon completion of their training, these defense workers are listed on registers kept by the local and State employment services and are assigned to defense jobs in private industry as the need arises.

WHITE AND NEGRO STUDENTS TO LEARN TO MAKE PLANES ON SAME MACHINERY IN ANNEX

APR 4 1941

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The shop annex adjoining the R. T. Coles vocational and junior high school is soon to become an aircraft mechanics training center.

The large brick building which faces Grove street between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets will be put into condition to house machinery upon which both Negro and white men will learn how to make airplanes.

The aircraft sheet metal classes will be sponsored by the Kansas City board of education which has been requested by the North American Aviation company to train men to man its bomber plant now being erected in the Fairfax airport district.

APR 4 - 1941

Learn on Same Machinery

Negro and white trainees will learn aircraft mechanics on the same machinery and from the same instructors. The board hopes that the classes will be opened in the latter part of April.

The board of education voted last Thursday night to establish the aircraft sheet metal training program in the vacant shop building at the R. T. Coles school. The board will spend approximately $9,920 on improving the building to make it suitable for the training program.

The government will reimburse the board for all costs of instruction, including teachers' salaries, instructional supplies and operation of the plant.

The board acted last Thursday upon the recommendation of O. H. Day, director of vocational education, and Dr. Herold C. Hunt, superintendent of schools, who first approved Mr. Day's plans.

The vacant shop building in which the aircraft training will be taught was acquired by the school board for the purpose of expanding the regular school shops of R. T. Coles. With the use of the annex by the defense training program the regular school shops will remain in their present locations for the duration of the National Defense program.

In recommending to the board that the R. T. Coles annex be used, Mr. Day wrote:

APR 4 - 1941

"We realize that taking this building for aircraft training will mean that the R. T. Coles school would continue with its present facilities for the duration of the training program. However, under the emergency which now exists, all of us are finding it necessary to make sacrifices and accept inconveniences, and we believe the R. T. Coles school will accept this as other schools have as a part of its contribution to the defense program."

The aircraft classes to be located in the Coles annex are being set up especially to train men for the North American bomber plant.

To Be Given Tests

Men who desire to take this training should apply to the Missouri State Employment Service at 1312 Grand avenue where they will be given aptitude tests. Already about eight Negro men have applied and have successfully passed the tests. Some of them are James Robinson, 1915 Brooklyn avenue; Wardee Bruce, 1221 Euclid avenue; B. L. Slaughter, 2116 Wabash avenue; John Winn, Edward Thomas, 1816 E. 16th street; and Sylvester Hodges.

One of the examiners at the employment office told the applicants that they all were average or above.

With the opening of the aircraft classes training program, there will be three types of vocational classes at R. T. Coles:

1.—Regular shops for school children.

APR 4 - 1941

2.—National Defense "refresher" courses in auto mechanics, woodworking and in the near future welding, electricity and radio.

Since the school is not to have use of the annex at the present time, the board voted, upon request of Earl D. Thomas, principal of R. T. Coles, and Mr. Day, to spend nearly $5,000 to recondition the old shops and to purchase equipment for the regular school program.

Items approved for the R. T. Coles shops include:

1.—To recondition the former masonry shop and move the print shop into it, $1,170.

2.—To recondition the present printing shop and move the sewing room into it, $910.

3.—For the electricity shop, a motor-generator, $65.

4.—For the auto mechanics shop, a hydraulic jack, $52.50.

5.—For printing shop, a Boston stitcherpower machine, $450; makeready table, $47; miltering machine, $35.

7.—For the institutional cookery shop, a model kitchen-aid mixer, $49.50.

8.—For clothing, two sewing machines, $72.

9.—For the woodworking shop an Oliver motor-on-head shaper single spindle with motor, $550; a drill press with motor, $77.25.

10.—For shoe repairing, a stapler, $301.

11.—For tailoring, a hand finishing unit, $49.25; a blind stitcher, $200, and a steam spray gun and stand, $32.

This equipment and repairs total $4,305.

EVANS PUT ON RACE RELATION VOCATION BODY

APR 19 1941

Sidney Hillman Makes Appointment Of School Technical Instructor

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management, this week announced appointment of James C. Evans, director of trade and technical education at West Virginia State college, as vocational training assistant in the racial relations section of OPM.

Evans, coordinator of national defense training for Negroes in West Virginia, will be assigned to the office of Dr. Robert C. Weaver, who heads the newly created section which is concerned with the integration of Negroes into the training and industrial phases of the national defense program. Until recently, Dr. Weaver directed similar work in the labor division of OPM, where he served as an administrative assistant.

In announcing the appointment, Mr. Hillman said:

"The Office of Production Management is deeply cognizant of the importance and necessity of training the vast reservoir of Negro labor for integration into skilled and semi-skilled positions in our national defense effort. In a recent letter to all defense contractors, I pointed out that available Negro workers must be given training and employment in capacities commensurate with their individual skills and aptitudes.

APR 19 1941

"Because of his 12 years experience as director of trade and technical education at West Virginia State college and the valuable experience gained in coordinating defense training for Negroes in that state, Mr. Evans' service will be of great value to Dr. Weaver's office in expediting this valuable work for national defense.

"Mr. Evans will not only assist that office in increasing the number of Negro trainees now being prepared for defense employment, but, through cooperation with federal, state and local educational authorities he will also assist in improving the quality of the training now being given to Negro enrollees in defense classes."

Evans, a graduate of Roger Williams university in Nashville, Tenn., also holds two degrees in electrical engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He received a B. S. from M.I. T. in 1925. and a M. S. in electrical engineering in 1926.

APR 19 1941

In addition to his other duties at West Virginia State college, the new vocational training assistant has served as administrative assistant to President John W. Davis since 1937. Evans has already assumed his duties in Dr. Weaver's office

REFRESHER COURSE FOR MACHINISTS AND WELDERS OFFERED AT SUMNER HIGH

APR 25 1941

KANSAS CITY, Kas. — (Special) —A petition for federal appreciations to complete the setting up of a refresher course unit for machinists and welders at the new Sumner high school, Eighth street and Oakland avenue, was received in Washington last week from the Kansas Cty, Kansas board of education.

According to F. L. Schlagle, superintendent of schools, action from federal authorities should follow within a week in order to enable the local board of education and the state department of vocational education to proceed with purchases of equipment for the classes in which machine shop and electric and acetylene welding will be taught to men who have qualified for the training.

Plans for the refresher course units at Sumner high school were completed this week after several days' conferences, between members of the Kansas City, Kansas board of education and Lawrence Parker, representative from the office of C. M. Miller, state director of vocational education.

Two weeks ago, according to the superintendent of school, the local board took action regarding the training of Negroes at the new Sumner high school, and requested that a petition be sent to the state supervisor of vocational education.

Recently, applications of qualified Negro mechanics have necessitated the taking of such action, Schlagle said. The men who have the proper background for the refresher course instructions will be given equal training and will have equipment equivalent to that maintained at the Argentine high school refresher course units.

At Sumner high school two units on two nights a wek will be maintained, with shifts from the end of the regular school period until 11 o'clock and from 11 o'clock to 5 in the morning. APR 25 1941

These classes, Schlagle stated, will have nothing to do with the airplane construction training which will be given at the old Sumner high school. It has been settled, he stated further, that Negro youths will be trained at the Ninth and Washington emergency training center as the old Sumner is designated. APR 25 1941

Applicants for training in the new Sumner high school refresher courses do not have to be Kansas City, Kansas men, Schlagle pointed out, inasmuch as the courses will be offered under state and federal sponsorship. Applicants may be men from any part in the eastern section of Kansas. Classes offered at night will make it possible for men who work during the day to receive the training without losing any time.

Applications for training in the refresher courses will be taken at the office the Kansas State Employment office, 914 Minnesota avenue. Men who are qualified to share in this training are urged to apply at once, in order that the classes can be started on schedule and with full quotas.

SIDNEY HILLMAN SAYS OPM WILL TRAIN FOR JOBS

Labor Chief Makes Pledge To Conference Of Negro Leaders Held in Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24—Creation of a new section in the Office of Production Management, devoted entirely to the integration of Negroes into the national defense program, was announced Friday evening, April 18, by Sidney Hillman, Associate Director of OPM, in a speech to the First Annual Conference on the Negro in Business.

Addressing a mass meeting at the Mt. Carmel Baptist church here, Mr Hillman revealed that the newly-created Negro Training and Employment section will be headed by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, former Administrative Assistant in the Labor Supply and Training section of OPM. In his new capacity, Dr. Weaver will be directly responsible to Mr. Hillman. APR 25 1941

At the same time, the Associate Director announced the appointment of Will W. Alexander, former Executive Director of the Commission in International Cooperation, as Special Consultant on employment and training problems relating to all minority groups. Dr. Alexander, vice president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, will coordinate the work of all OPM agencies which now have field contacts with employers.

The expanded machinery for the integration of Negroes into defense training and employment was revealed by Mr. Hillman during the course of a report to the conference on the progress of similar work already instituted by the Advisory Commission to the Council of National Defense and more recently by the Office of Production Management.

Through the efforts of national defense agencies, Mr. Hillman declared, thousands of skilled Negro building trades workers have been given employment in the construction of army cantonments and power plants.

"More than 2,500 Negro carpenters alone were employed on these various sites at wages ranging from $8 to $12 a day," he said, "and thousands of brickmasons, plasterers, cement finishers, plumbers, roofers, power-saw operators, and other skilled and semi-skilled Negro workers were and are being given employment."

Increased employment opportunities for Negroes were seen in iron and steel works, shipyards, and in other industries in which Negro workers already enjoyed employment status, Mr. Hillman said, and defense training programs are being pushed to prepare colored artisans for all other branches of defense production.

Both training and employment opportunities for Negroes had been expedited by the National Defense Advisory Commission's labor policy stipulation that workers should not be discriminated against because of age, sex, race or color, the Associate Director of OPM declared, and by an agreement with the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations that Negroes should not be discriminated against in defense employment.

These measures were implemented later, Mr. Hillman said, by a letter to all defense contract holders asking them to remove training and employment bans against Negroes.

The First Annual Conference on Negro Business was sponsored by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The President's Executive Order

Honestly, we were not very much in favor of the "March on Washington." We were not in favor of cancelling the Sunday session of the N. A. A. C. P. in order that delegates to the N. A. A. C. P. might take part in that postponed adventure in mass pressure.

In answer to a telegram from Walter White just before the session, requesting our view on this subject, we said substantially what we have said here. Never at any time did we doubt the sincerity and good intentions of A. Philip Randolph. This individual won his spurs with the Black Dispatch when he resigned the presidency of the National Negro Congress. We thought he did right then, and in this instance it was solely the question of technique and method.

But the proof of the pudding is in the eating. The declared intention of A. Philip Randolph to stage this parade has brought startling results. The President has issued an executive order outlawing Jim Crowism in defense production. Randolph and his colleagues asked for no more than Negro leadership all over America has been asking. The difference lith in the method by which Randolph went about making demands upon government.

As chairman of the resolutions committee of the N. A. A. C. P. during its Houston session, the executive order of the President was placed in our hands. We studied it carefully, searching for loopholes in that important document. We do not doubt the good intentions of the President, but we know that most of the loss in citizenship sustained by Negroes develops in administration. No law, after all, is much better than the individuals who administer it.

With this in mind we jumped on our typewriter and wrote the following lines which were incorporated in the N. A. A. C. P. resolutions:

"While we commend the spirit and good intentions expressed in the recent executive order issued by President Roosevelt, in connection with the right of Negro labor to be fully integrated into the national defense program, we wish to point out that there are certain statements in the language employed in the order which might constitute a loophole.

"For instance, if it is going to be a continued policy of the states to determine the qualifications of individuals meeting certain requirements, as has hitherto been the rule in WPA, NYA, and other governmental agencies, we fear that state minipulation, under this order, may still evade and make abortive the clear intention and desire of the President. Our suggestion is that drastic federal qualifications and rules should be adopted to make or effect a general qualification.

"We seriously object to that phase of the order which indicates that 'hereafter' government contracts shall be let to only such bidders as will sign agreements to provide employment, non-discrimination of individuals because of race, color or national origin. The President's order, in our judgment, should have decreed that all contractors holding existing contracts and those hereafter to be effected, shall be bound by the non-discriminatory decree of President Roosevelt.

"We suggest further than the committee of five to be attached to the Office of Production Management, as provided by the President's order, shall have in its personnel at least three Negroes.

We wrote that statement because we know that if "qualification" of Negroes is to be determined by state government, anything can happen, much of which will do violence to the President's intention. Anyone familiar with administration of the various relief agencies such as WPA, NYA and CCC, know what we are talking about. State influence, controlled by labor unions, prevents Negroes from getting defense training under NYA and other federal agencies. This phase of the order should be watched for violations of the presidential command.

Under the president's order the billions hitherto spent at Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Kansas City, and other sections of America by the government, in developing the aircraft industry are exempt. "Hereafter," says the order. If we interpret this language and its meaning, it will not be necessary for these contractors already holding sixteen billions in defense contracts in the United States to bother about Negro employment, but "hereafter" any other contractors who secure government work must recognize the black toiler.

In addition, the Presidential decree fixes no penalties for violation of his edict. Before Negroes can be absolutely certain that Jim Crowism is abolished in defense industry and training, it will be necessary for Congress to pass some sort of act fixing penalties for those who disregard and ignore the President's executive order.

Someone may argue that the President's order cannot be retroactive, but we believe enough precedent was established in the recent action taken in defesne industry, in settling the West Coast strike, to dispose of such argument. The general welfare clauses in the constitution give broad powers to the Congress, and this should extend to the law of contract.

We do not believe the President intended to leave any such loophole, but it nevertheless is there, and this is why we point it out. American Negroes need not get busy preparing to work in the defense plants. If Negroes are employed, such opportunity will come according to the whim and caprice of the contractor. The order leaves all of the government contracts letprior to the order high and dry.

In the last paragraph, dealing with the personnel of the "complaint" committee, to be attached to the Office of Production Management, we believe the President intends that a portion of this committee shall be Negro. However, the order does not say so, and we felt that the N. A. A. C. P. should declare itself on thispoint.

The Black Dispatch suggests that the Negroes of America be patient for a reasonable period of time to see what effect the President's order will have on defense contractors and generally upon Jim Crow which the ultimatum outlaws. It may be that there is still reason for a speech being delivered at the base of the Lincoln Memorial. Let us hope that such is not the case.

NOT SOUTHERN "PROBLEM"

Commenting on President Roosevelt's statement denouncing discrimination chiefly against the colored population of the country in defense industries, the New York Times stresses the fact that here there is no Southern problem.

There are very few defense production industries in the South. The South got a few millions here and there but the billions and billions which the Federal government is pouring out and for which all of us will have to pay are going to the North and East and to the Pacific Coast.

And these are the places where the discrimination is alleged to be by President Roosevelt and the New York Times.

It is unusual not to have rocks being thrown at us in this matter.

The bald facts have to be faced, however, and Washington and other places have to do some preaching to their more favored congregations.

Jobs For All

While national attention has been focussed on wages and union labor problems, one important phase of the American labor situation has been overlooked. The right to work seems to be denied to a large number of Americans who need work. They are Negroes, unorganized and lacking spokesmen.

The President has found it necessary to bring this matter to the attention of Messrs. Knudsen and Hillman, directors of the Office of Production Management. "Complaints have repeatedly been brought to my attention," he said, "that available and much needed workers are being barred from defense production solely because of race, religion or national origin. Also that discrimination against Negro workers has been nation-wide. Industry must take the initiative in opening the doors of employment to all loyal and qualified workers regardless of race, origin, religion or color."

Of course he is right. And it is not only a matter of justice but of common sense. Today, especially, when the whole country is one great workshop for national defense, it should have the services of all its people, and all should have a fair and honorable share in the task.

The Negroes In National Defense

The editorial appearing in the June 12 issue of The Post, captioned "Negroes and Defense," is a credit to any American newspaper. It imparts to some readers the hope that democracy, such as it is, will yet survive the totalitarian attack and continue on toward perfection.

The Council for Democracy has undertaken an admirable task and all truly democratic newspapers or institutions that profess a sincere interest in the perpetuation of democracy should vigorously support this program. Influence of the press is still an invaluable instrument in creating and maintaining social standards. It seems grossly inconsistent that with all of the intelligence and genius this country is credited with having, it should remain content to dissipate its resources, both physical and mental, on such devitalizing issues as group hatred and racial intolerance.

It is my hope that the Council for Democracy will continue its efforts to establish an economic, social and moral balance in the present American scheme of living, and that all other rational and progressive organizations will contribute to the actual enforcement of this program. Also it is necessary to have individual support so that all American citizens may eventually realize the intrinsic value of the virtues upon which his sovereign government was originally predicated, and so that we, as a nation, may prove to the rest of the strife-torn world that democracy can work here, if not elsewhere, and that it is the most enduring, the most logical, the most productive form of social order.

THOMAS E. KIRTON
Washington, June 14.

Permit me to commend you on your editorial of June 12 entitled "Negroes And Defense," and for the courage which its publication evinces. Protests and denunciations against practices of totalitarian governments must necessarily fall upon deaf ears so long as our own practices are so pronouncedly undemocratic.

As you have said in your editorial, it is a stupid policy that would prevent the full and effective utilization of all our much-needed man power in a national emergency. It is to be hoped that firm steps will be taken to the end that our much-needed man power may be utilized. The dangers of friction to which you refer in your editorial many of us believe are in most cases more imaginary than real.

I am convinced that the first great need on the issue of race discrimination is firmness in the Government itself, beginning at the White House and filtering down to the remotest section in any Government agency. Such a course would give backbone to the timid industrialist and facilitate the integration of Negroes into shops and factories. This would be a great step forward toward a real democracy. It would greatly lessen our vulnerability as a target for totalitarian attack.

May I express the hope that other great dailies will join you in this advanced step. A. S. PINKETT.
Washington, June 14.

The Post's June 12 editorial "Negroes and Defense" was pertinent and seasonable. For example, its printing was timely respecting opening for service of the Federal Government Airport terminal at Gravelly Point. There is neither reason, occasion nor places for separate waiting rooms, cafeterias, and other terminal facilities upon these government premises.

RIENZI B. LEMUS.
Washington, June 10.

Your editorial, "Negroes and Defense," was very fine and timely. The efforts of the Administration to secure employment for the Negro in national defense has met with opposition by indutry, labor unions, and unsympathetic Government officials. The latter is evident by the numbers of Negroes who have been certified by the Civil Service Commission, but have been refused employment and had their names removed from the eligible list because of the opposition of Federal appointing officers.

If the Government expects industry to treat the Negro fairly, the Government must set an example for fair dealing. During this emergency, an administrative order should be issued that the highest-rated eligibles on the civil service lists be appointed to fill vacancies. In all contracts for national defense materials, a nondiscriminatory clause should be included and enforced. The Negro is the largest and most loyal minority group in America and only asks the opportunity to contribute his share to national defense.

HOWARD D. WOODSON.
Washington, June 14.

The Post is to be commended upon its "Negroes and Defense" editorial. To end, however, upon an apologetic note, paying tribute to the existence of persistent hostility within the ranks of white, skilled labor and timidity of management, casts a doubt upon the unity of the democracy now being so vigorously advertised. Similar hostility has shown itself toward the colored worker since his emancipation and formed the attitude of even small capitalism toward mechanics since the republic's earliest days.

Despite the loyal aid of the fighting and laboring arm of the colored people, the fervor and reality of their religion, and the harmony and naturalness of their music since colonial days, interracial good will advances but slowly. In social evolution, however, patient endurance is God-like. The history of the struggle for human liberty shows slow but steady advance as men have learned that their freedoms must be self-imposed to fit masses to live together in mutual respect and toleration. Thus the ideal of democracy is worth every sacrifice.

Shall The Negro Work?

There are a fifth fewer Negro farmers in North Carolina today than there were in 1930. This situation is not restricted to North Carolina. In the University of North Carolina News Letter, S. H. Hobbs, Jr., rural sociologist at the University, recently wrote:

What has happened in North Carolina during the last decade has occurred throughout the entire South. . . . Perhaps the most significant thing in Southern agriculture since the Civil War has been the decline of Negro farm operators and especially Negro cropper tenants during the last decade.

It is a patent fact that the decline of Negro tenants, renters and croppers is not offset by any increase in ownership. In other words, the decline means that these people either have left agriculture or a hired labor system has supplemented renter and cropper tenancy. A tremendous readjustment is going on in Southern agriculture.

Beside this movement of the Negro from the land, not so much in migration as in ejection, and apart from it, the President recently felt it necessary to protest against a Jim Crow line in employment in defense jobs in towns and cities. The Negro, for all the apparent progress of his race, seems now caught in a more desperate position than even he knew in the past between a land where there are fewer places for him and the towns where there are not jobs for him.

This is an American problem of special significance to the South. In recent years huge numbers of Southern Negroes have moved to the cities of the North. Indeed, today the largest communities of Negroes in the world are North of the Mason & Dixon Line. But millions of Negroes remain in the South and always will remain. That means that when, on the land and in the town, he is progressively shut off from a chance to work, the burden of his dependency on the region will increase. That is tragedy for the Negro but it is a tragedy from which his white neighbors do not escape.

Indeed, this increasing economic plight of the Negro is one which puts a growing load on the South's advance. No region can afford the luxury of carrying a race which in large degree is not allowed to work for itself. But the process, shown in census figures, moves in that direction. Discrimination against the employment of Negroes in the end comes to a white insistence that white men be allowed to support Negroes in idleness. If that makes sense this is a silly world. Yet that seems to be the direction in which discrimination against the Negro in town and country employment is leading.

WOULD INSURE ENFORCEMENT OF MEASURE

NEW YORK—At least two Negro members of the board to be appointed by the President as provided for in his executive order banning discrimination in defense employment and training were requested by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and director of the Negro March committee, and Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, when they conferred in Washington, Thursday, July 10, with Sidney Hillman, co-director of the Office of Production Management.

Randolph and White stressed the importance of the appointment of at least two outstanding and qualified Negroes to the board which will be attached to the Office of Production Management to hear, investigate and act upon complaints of discrimination in industries holding government contracts and vocational training courses.

It was also stressed that the entire board be made up of outstanding persons of real ability, and that appointments must be made without further delay.

Give Us At Least Two

President Roosevelt's five-man commission to prevent discrimination in National Defense production ought to include at least two Negroes. We are surprised that there is any thought that fewer than two are to be named.

When it became known that the President would name a commission to see that the provisions of his executive order aimed at prohibiting job bias are carried out, it was our candid opinion that a majority of the members would be Negroes. We still feel that way.

While the order specifies that there shall be no discrimination on account of race, creed, color or national origin, yet everyone knows the action was necessary only because of the plight of the Negro. It is he who is being denied jobs on account of his race and color, and Mr. Roosevelt acted only after Negroes had threatened to march on Washington 100,000 strong in a dramatic protest against the injustices.

When the President issued the order three weeks ago, we hastened to applaud his stand. We applauded because we believed he was sincere in his efforts to check discrimination and to make the way clear for Negroes to be integrated into our National Defense program. We don't want to see his efforts sabotaged by inaction and lack of interest. Few white men will be as eager to delve deeply into the problem as most Negroes. So, Mr. President, in order that your pronouncement will get the greatest possible result, we urgently insist that you name at least two Negroes on that commission.

THE AMERICAN NEGROES HAVE AT LAST SMOKED THE PRESIDENT OUT IN THE OPEN, AND MADE HIM TALK

The memorandum issued by the President, on official discrimination against the Negro on the defense program, is not worth the paper it is written on; and will not get the Negro any more jobs under the Office of Production Management, or any other department of Government employment, than he is receiving now. The President in good conscience must confess that the Negroes smoked him out, and made him say publicly, whether he approved disapproved the un-democratic policy of his administration, discriminating against American citizens; on the defense program, on the ground of race and color.

Following the lead of the National Baptist Union-Review, the official organ of the National Baptist Convention of America; Dr. Green L. Prince, president, ninety per cent of the Negro press have continued to bombard the President's administration; until he had to say something whether what he said, changed the status of Negro participation in defense work. The Negro press and pulpit have done the race and country a good job and have served notice on the New Deal at Washington; that the race may not be able to do anything about the President's policy; but it was not going to take the injustice lying down on its back without the most vehement protestation that the human heart could make.

We agree with A. Phillip Randolph, head of the Pullman Porters' Association, when he said, there is nothing conclusive in the President's memorandum. It is not an official executive order, or a proclamation directing the Office of Production Management to change its policy of race discrimination, and give the race an equal opportunity to earn money on the defense program with other citizens. In consequence of which, Mr. Randolph said, that the mobilization for the march of citizens on Washington would be redoubled to the end. The President is afraid of the militant protest Mr. Randolph is leading against racial discrimination. He knows it will open the eyes of the Nation; and expose the fallacy of the President's efforts to guarantee democracy to foreign people, and deny in the same breath deliberately, the same privileges and rights to his people at home, on the ground of race and color. We are inclined to ask the question; what is the matter with any government that will pawn the lives and property of its citizens to give freedom and opportunity to aliens and deny these same privileges to citizens at home, on the ground of race and color? If the President has power and authority to seize the property of citizens; take over their mines and factories and operate them under military rule, by executive order, why can't he say to those holding Government contracts on our production program, you must give citizens jobs without regard to race, color or previous condition of servitude. God only knows what sort of a Government we have. The devil does not know; all he knows, is, that those in charge of such a government are headed his way, and he is making preparation to give them a hot reception when they reach their destination.

The President is visibly on the "spot," and all liberty loving Negroes who love freedom more than they do, a "meal ticket," are going to fight to keep him on the "spot"; until he quits substituting politics for their Constitutional rights and privileges. If the President wanted the Negro to have work on our defense programs; all he would have to do; would be to say: Knudsen and Hillman; "cut discrimination out," and it would be cut out. And the Negro would have all the work he could do on all defense production projects. Knudsen and Hillman were appointed by the President and their duties were fixed by executive order; the President is their superior officer and they are his inferior officers, and must take orders from him or get out. Mr. Knudsen was chosen to head the Office of Production Management, because of his special fitness as a producer. One of his special qualifications for the job, was, as President of the General Motors Automobile Company, he didn't permit a Negro to have a job above that of a janitor, and worked more than 200,000 men daily.

Our President is a dictator, clothed with all the power and authority of a Hitler or Churchill, and he can do anything he wants to do. If he chooses to, he can create emergencies and provide for their cure or let them run their course. Whatever power or authority he did not assume to meet emergencies, that he discovered; he frightened Congress into conferring further dictatorial powers upon him by the Lease-Lend Bill. Since then, he has declared that an unlimited emergency exists; and if in his wise judgment, he thinks it is necessary for him to suspend the Constitution and its amendments; declare himself Emperor of America and return all Negroes to the South as slaves, he has the power and the authority to do so; and there is none to stop him, if he commands the Army and Navy to carry out his executive or military orders. If the President can seize the property of private citizens; public utilities, factories and mines, why can't he make some of those holding billions of dollars in Government defense contracts; give capable, deserving and worthy Negroes jobs, that they may make some of the money the Government is paying to white people making them millionaires? Is it the policy of the administration to keep all the Negroes on relief, on half rations and half pay, and take all white people off relief, and put them on production defense jobs at full wages and short hours? God forbid.

LINCOLN SAID WE WON THE CIVIL WAR

[Abraham Lincoln gives advice to President Roosevelt to use colored men as soldiers, seamen and laborers in the U.S. armed forces.]

Take from us [the Union] and give to the enemy [the Confederacy] the hundred and thirty, forty or fifty thousand colored persons now serving us as soldiers, seamen, and laborers, and we cannot longer maintain the contest [the Civil War].

It is not a question of sentiment or taste, but one of physical force which may be measured and estimated, as horsepower and steampower are estimated and measured.

And by measurement, it is more than we can lose and live.

Nor can we by discarding it, get a white force in place of it. There is a witness in every white man's bosom that he would rather go to war having the Negro to help him than to help the enemy against him.

All Qualified Labor Is Needed, Says Ethridge

Mark F. Ethridge, chairman of the Committee of Fair Employment Prcatice, said yesterday that the defense program would require the use of all qualified labor regardless of race, creed, color or national origin.

Ethridge is vice president and general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times. He said that the committee, which organized yesterday, would meet weekly.

"From a practical standpoint," Ethridge said, "discrimination against loyal and qualified workers for any reaso is stupid. From the standpoint of Democratic aims it is unforgivable.

"Guns, planes, tanks and ships alone will not make us stron. If we are to keep men free, we must take positive steps to widen the base of democracy at home while we help to defend it abroad."

THE AMERICAN NEGROES HAVE AT LAST SMOKED THE PRESIDENT OUT IN THE OPEN, AND MADE HIM TALK

The memorandum issued by the President, on official discrimination against the Negro on the defense program, is not worth the paper it is written on; and will not get the Negro any more jobs under the Office of Production Management, or any other department of Government employment, than he is receiving now. The President in good conscience must confess that the Negroes smoked him out, and made him say publicly, whether he approved or disapproved the un-democratic policy of his administration, discriminating against American citizens; on the defense program, on the ground of race and color.

Following the lead of the National Baptist Union-Review, the official organ of the National Baptist Convention of America; Dr. Green L. Prince, president, ninety per cent of the Negro press have continued to bombard the President's administration; until he had to say something whether what he said, changed the status of Negro participation in defense work. The Negro press and pulpit have done the race and country a good job and have served notice on the New Deal at Washington; that the race may not be able to do anything about the President's policy; but it was not going to take the injustice lying down on its back without the most vehement protestation that the human heart could make.

We agree with A. Phillip Randolph, head of the Pullman Porters' Association, when he said, there is nothing conclusive in the President's memorandum. It is not an official executive order, or a proclamation directing the Office of Production Management to change its policy of race discrimination, and give the race an equal opportunity to earn money on the defense program with other citizens. In consequence of which, Mr. Randolph said, that the mobilization for the march of citizens on Washington would be redoubled to the end. The President is afraid of the militant protest Mr. Randolph is leading against racial discrimination. He knows it will open the eyes of the Nation; and expose the fallacy of the President's efforts to guarantee democracy to foreign people, and deny in the same breath deliberately, the same privileges and rights to his people at home, on the ground of race and color. We are inclined to ask the question; what is the matter with any government that will pawn the lives and property of its citizens to give freedom and opportunity to aliens and deny these same privileges to citizens at home, on the ground of race and color? If the President has power and authority to seize the property of citizens; take over their mines and factories and operate them under military rule, by executive order, why can't he say to those holding Government contracts on our production program, you must give citizens jobs without regard to race, color or previous condition of servitude. God only knows what sort of a Government we have. The devil does not know; all he knows, is, that those in charge of such a government are headed his way, and he is making preparation to give them a hot reception when they reach their destination.

The President is visibly on the "spot," and all liberty loving Negroes who love freedom more than they do, a "meal ticket," are going to fight to keep him on the "spot"; until he quits substituting politics for their Constitutional rights and privileges. If the President wanted the Negro to have work on our defense programs; all he would have to do; would be to say: Knudsen and Hillman; "cut discrimination out," and it would be cut out. And the Negro would have all the work he could do on all defense production projects. Knudsen and Hillman were appointed by the President and their duties were fixed by executive order; the President is their superior officer and they are his inferior officers, and must take orders from him or get out. Mr. Knudsen was chosen to head the Office of Production Management, because of his special fitness as a producer. One of his special qualifications for the job, was, as President of the General Motors Automobile Company, he didn't permit a Negro to have a job above that of a janitor, and worked more than 200,000 men daily.

Our President is a dictator, clothed with all the power and authority of a Hitler or Churchill, and he can do anything he wants to do. If he chooses to, he can create emergencies and provide for their cure or let them run their course. Whatever power or authority he did not assume to meet emergencies, that he discovered; he frightened Congress into conferring further dictatorial powers upon him by the Lease-Lend Bill. Since then, he has declared that an unlimited emergency exists; and if in his wise judgment, he thinks it is necessary for him to suspend the Constitution and its amendments; declare himself Emperor of America and return all Negroes to the South as slaves, he has the power and the authority to do so; and there is none to stop him, if he commands the Army and Navy to carry out his executive or military orders. If the President can seize the property of private citizens; public utilities, factories and mines, why can't he make some of those holding billions of dollars in Government defense contracts; give capable, deserving and worthy Negroes jobs, that they may make some of the money the Government is paying to white people making them millionaires? Is it the policy of the administration to keep all the Negroes on relief, on half rations and half pay, and take all white people off relief, and put them on production defense jobs at full wages and short hours? God forbid.

LINCOLN SAID WE WON THE CIVIL WAR

[Abraham Lincoln gives advice to President Roosevelt to use colored men as soldiers, seamen and laborers in the U.S. armed forces.]

Take from us [the Union] and give to the enemy [the Confederacy] the hundred and thirty, forty or fifty thousand colored persons now serving us as soldiers, seamen, and laborers, and we cannot longer maintain the contest [the Civil War].

It is not a question of sentiment or taste, but one of physical force which may be measured and estimated, as horsepower and steampower are estimated and measured.

And by measurement, it is more than we can lose and live.

Nor can we do by discarding it, get a white force in place of it. There is a witness in every white man's bosom that he would rather go to war having the Negro to help him than to help the enemy against him.

Say F.D.'s Order Won't Stop J.C.

JUL 3 1941

(Special to the AFRO)

HOUSTON, Texas. — Expressing dissatisfaction with the recent executive order of President Roosevelt calling for the elimination of discrimination in defense industries, the NAACP, meeting in its thirty-second annual session here last week, pointed out that the order did nothing to end jim crow in the army, navy, marine and air corps.

In a strongly-worded resolution, the association said:

"No chain is stronger than its weakest link. The prevalence of mob violence, jim-crowism, segregation, disfranchisement, and general discrimination against the thirteen million colored Americans — which includes the denial of the right to work — is the weakest link in our democratic process."

Hit President's Order

Striking at the President's executive order, the NAACP, while admitting that it was "a step in the right direction," raised the objection that the order dealt solely with the awarding of future contracts to defense firms.

"The President's order, in our judgment," the resolution read, "should have said that all contractors holding existing contracts and those hereafter to be effected, shall be bound by the non-discriminatory decree. . . ."

It was further urged that there be at least three colored persons on the five-member committee to carry out the provision of the President's order.

Urged End of Armed Force J.C.

Pointing to the "abuse of citizenship" by the armed forces of the United States, a section of the association's resolutions urged the President, by executive order, to abolish the discriminatory practices in the armed forces and in the Federal Civil Service.

Referring to the recent courtroom lynching of Bob White at Conroe, Texas, the association rapped Congress for its "cowardice" in failing to pass Federal antilynching legislation and called upon the State of Texas, the Department of Justice and the President to bring the murderer to justice.

Other Items Touched

Among other items which the association urged were:

1. Abolition of the poll tax.
2. More colored persons to run for Congress.
3. More funds for housing and slum clearance and the elimination of discrimination in all Federal housing facilities.
4. Adequate medical care for all underprivileged fellow-citizens.
5. Abolition of discrimination in all tax-supported institutions and equalary for colored and white teachers.
6. Extension of social security benefits to domestic and agricultural workers.
7. More Federal attention to the plight of sharecroppers and tenant farmers with a view to remedying their economic and social conditions.
8. Increased unionization of colored workers and the amendment of the National Labor Relations Act to prohibit any union which habitually discriminates after Januay 1, 1942, from being designated the bargaining agency in any given industry.

Deplore Naming of Byrnes

The association deplored the appointment of Senator Byrnes of South Carolina to the U.S. Supreme Court as "a negation of the very principles upon which this country is based."

Notice was taken of the deaths of C. F. Richardson, former president of the Texas State Conference of Branches, and of Dr. Charles Edward Russell of Washington. Telegrams were also sent to Miss Mary White Ovington, Arthur Spingarn and Dr. Louis T. Wright, all of whom were prevented by illness from attending.

Prizes in the essay contest were awarded Thursday night by Walter White of the national office. Friday's program consisted of a roundtable of legal defense and education, panels on association work, presentation of the Spingarn medal to Richard Wright of New York, and a closing address by Walter White. Mrs. Daisy E. Lampkins of Pittsburgh presided over the night service session.

The entire Saturday session was devoted to business sessions after which the delegates made a trip to Galveston for a beach party.

F. D. ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENTS ON JIM-CROW WON'T GET JOBS FOR RACE IN DEFENSE PLANTS

WASHINGTON, D. C.— The National Negro Congress today described President Roosevelt's memorandum to Sidney Hillman and William Knudsen of the Office of Production Management asking them to take steps to procure an end to discrimination in defense industry, as "a meaningless gesture which the President should know will not result in getting a single Negro skilled worker a job in the Genn L. Martin Plant or hundreds of other Jim Crow defense industries where colored workers are openly barred."

Whether thousands of workers who have been brutally shut out of defense industry, will now get jobs, is placed squarely up to the President, the organization said.

In a statment reviewing its nation-wide efforts to break down the color bar against the Race the Congress said: "The President knows that hundreds of industrial establishments with billions in government contracts have flatly refused to employ colored. By a mere stroke of his pen he could have abolished not only this discrimination but as well the even more flagrant Jim Crowism in the government service, the navy and the army. Instead he resorts to the use of polite phrases which fool nobody.

'Ironically, he passes over completely the source of this program of industrial Jim Crow, the Government itself. Without mentioning this, he proceeds to tell the Office of Production Management to take immediate steps to 'facilitate the full utilization of our productive man power." These are weasel words. When labor sought a slight increase in wages to meet the rising cost of living, the President replied with bayonets, in the name of democracy. To profit-mad industrialists who refused to "cooperate" until they had got their demands, the President was all ears, and gave them all they asked. But only after a nation-wide protest from the colored people in the form of thousands of leaflets, thousands of letters, thousands of telegrams hundreds of delegations to plants like the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Company all over the country, and the prospect of a Job March on Washington does the President reluctantly throw out a sop in the form of a promise of action.

'It is significant," said the Congress statement, "that the Roosevelt gesture comes after strong rumors that Mayor LaGuardia of New York and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt had failed last week in their efforts to head off a job march to Washington by thousands of colored people scheduled for July 1. There is now more than ever the need for tens of thousands of colored people to bestir themselves with every kind of activity."

"If the president is serious in his attempt to make the colored people believe that democracy can be revived in America by giving jobs to workers in defense industry, let him also add his voice to our demands to pass the Anti-Poll Tax and Anti-Lynching Bill, to our demands that thousands of colored families be restored to economic security by ending discrimination against them in NYA and WPA," the statement said.

Roosevelt's Firm Stand

BECAUSE defense construction contractors had not moved with any noticeable speed toward giving employment to skilled Negro mechanics and semi-skilled workers in certain industries, and because the country was confronted by a nation-wide protest in the form of a march of 100,000 Negro job seekers on Washington, President Roosevelt last week issued an executive order requiring contractors to remove job discrimination on account of race and color. Following is a striking paragraph from the President' order:

> I do hereby affirm it to be the policy of the United States that there shall be no discrimination in the employment of workers in defense industries or government because of race, creed, color or national origin, and I do hereby declare that it is the duty of employers and of labor organizations . . . to provide for the full and equitable participation of all workers in defense industries without discrimination.

On June 12th President Roosevelt issued a memorandum to the Office of Production Management calling upon that agency to take steps to bring about a relaxation of discrimination against Negro workers. The Journal and Guide said on June 21st that "it is reasonably certain that if this solemn admonition and warning is not heeded the President will take more specific and definite action." This action came in less than ten days. We predict now, that if the President's order is not obeyed, there will be still further, and more determinative action.

F. D. R.'s Executive Order

President Roosevelt's executive order prohibiting discrimination on national defense jobs on account of race is epochal to say the least. It marks the first time an American President has issued an executive order affecting the status of the Negro since Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation.

Lincoln's action was designed to free the American Negro from physical slavery, and to ban that human evil from this country forever. Yet in some sections of the United States to this day chattel slavery or peonage exists in the rankest form, and it is only by constant struggle and awareness that the Negro has been able to prevent the spread of peonage. This cannot, however, be charged against Lincoln. It cannot be said that he didn't set the machinery in motion. It is up to the Negro himself to see that slavery or peonage does not survive.

If President Lincoln's proclamation was designed to end physical slavery, it would seem that the recent order of President Roosevelt is designed to end or at least curb, economic slavery. It is not to be expected that there will be any rush on the part of hostile and prejudiced employers to hire Negroes. Some of them will cooperate, others will balk, while many will resort to all kinds of schemes and artifices to circumvent the order altogether.

Just how effective the proclamation is going to be toward providing jobs for Negroes will be in direct proportion to the deligence and activity on the part of Negroes in their efforts to see that the order is obeyed.

President Roosevelt stated that a five-man commission would be named to see that the provisions of the order are carried out. Obviously, there will be some Negroes on the commission. Whoever they are, their job is plain. Being appointed by the President and therefore responsible directly to him, they need have no fear of political reprisal, and since the job pays no salary, they don't stand to suffer economically.

The entire Negro race ought to help in this fight, and once the commission has been named and begins functioning all complaints regarding failures of employers to respect the order should be filed with the commissioners.

Mr. Roosevelt's order may not be as punitive as some of us wish it were, but we believe continued pressure can serve to force otherwise indifferent and biased employers to abide by the spirit of the

Dixie Rough On Northern Whites! Can't Forget Civil War In South

Northern White Soldiers Find Southerners Are Still Anti-Yankee. Common Bond Between Negroes and Northerners Noted by Prattis.

CAMP WHEELER, Ga., June 19—If you think all the sears caused by the Civil war are healed you should visit this or any other Southern Army camp where any considerable number of northerners, white or black, are quartered. The southerners still want to prove that although they lost the war officially, they are kingpins below the Mason and Dixon line.

As a consequence, white soldiers from the North catch as much rough treatment and abuse from southern military police and city police as the Negro soldiers do. Sometimes they are manhandled more. The southerners always was to "show" the Yankees something.

For their part, the Yankees play a peculiar role. In their home States, they are just as prejudiced against Negroes as southern whites and, in most instances, much meaner, but down here they adopt the role of friends.

When Mississippi whites at Fort Jackson shot up the colored area, Yankees from the Eighth division wanted to come to the rescue of the colored boys.

The press bureau at Fort Jackson frowns on the use of the term "Yankee" in releases. It doesn't want to rub it in.

The northern whites at Camp Wheeler fraternize with the colored boys in the city of Macon and affect to be outraged by all the segregation signs, just as though segregation in the South were worse than elimination in the North.

Mr. Roosevelt Gives Second Notice

In his appeal to the nation to unite for defense, President Roosevelt on March 17, 1941, said this:

"The light of democracy must be kept burning. . . . There will be no divisions of party or section or race or nationality or religion. There is not one among us who does not have a stake in the outcome of the effort in which we are now engaged."

The Glenn Martin Aircraft Corporation near Baltimore is typical of large industrialists with billions of defense contracts. Martin employs 20,000 workers. Not one was colored [illegible] and despite applications of skilled mechanics, not one is colored now.

Saturday, the President noted that discrimination against colored defense workers is nation-wide; that the situation is grave; and he directed the Office of Production Management to take steps to use all our man power.

Mr. Roosevelt said this must be done. Let us see whether the big boys will kick in or whether they think he is kidding them.

Statesville, N. C. Daily
June 17, 1941

Give the Negro His Chance.

President Roosevelt calls upon the Office of Production Management to take immediate steps to deal with the complaint of nation-wide discrimination against negroes in defense industries. He reminds that it is highly important for us to "strengthen our unity and morale by refuting at home the very theories which we are fighting abroad."

While he deals with the complaint about discrimination against the negro, he dips an oar in the interest of others who are discriminated against because of their "race, religion or national origin." Where the negro is competent to do a job well, his color should not count against him; where the Jew or the foreign-born is qualified, and his integrity assured, by all means put him to work. The negro would be less likely to be guilty of sabotage than certain elements which will accept the President's interest and pronouncements as the signal for them to begin boring from within. Very few of us indeed, will undertake to say that Mr. Roosevelt is not on solid ground when he says that we should not be "refuting the very theories which we are fighting abroad."

And almost while the President was speaking out in this connection, John W. Mitchell, State negro farm agent, was saying at Flag Day exercises in Guilford county, that negroes want only fair-dealing and a chance to work, prepare and die if necessary alongside other Americans in the defense of democracy; that the negro wants an opportunity to train and use his training in vocations, professions and business; that he wants a chance to learn a trade and render national defense service; that for 321 years the negro has labored and served America, and today he pledges a new allegiance to the American flag.

The white people of the South have never discouraged the negro in his ambition to do these things. On the contrary they have built schools to start him on the way to this goal. When one or many of them have shown aptness and diligence the whites have been the first to go out of their way to encourage and help him. And as much as in any other section President Roosevelt's plea for consideration will find hearty sympathy in the South. For it has nothing to do with social equality. It has much to do with civil liberty.

But a good place for the negro to start in this program of improvement is at the bottom. And right there the New Deal program must be credited with error—excusable in emergency, perhaps, but nevertheless an error that applies not only to the negro—the error of making mendicants and parasites of able-bodied men who could but won't work.

Try it out some day when you have a day's work in the garden, around the premises, on the farm. You are asked "what kind of work, how far away, how much will you pay" and if finally he does not protest that he has to see a fellow about a hound dog, he goes and does as much work in a day as could reasonably be expected of him in half that time.

By all means the negro should be given every opportunity to skill himself in any line he chooses and reap the fruits of his preparation. But a good way to convince that he is collectively serious in this purpose is to begin at the bottom.

"Negroes And Defense"

I wish to thank you for your splendid editorial, "Negroes and Defense," of June 12. As one who is sorely concerned about the present situation of my people, and greatly distressed about the future of the thousands of young people who are turned out of our schools each year with no open door, no opportunity for making a living, I am anxious to extend my heartfelt gratitude for the sentiments expressed in it.

The plight of the Negro in this country is by far more serious now than it has been within the last 25 years. Even in the most menial positions there is the rankest discrimination against the Negro. Read the "Want-Ads" in our daily papers and see how few jobs are open to colored people.

The Negroes of this country, 13,000,000—one in every ten persons—know no other country. They are ready and anxious (as in the past) to serve our country. They are loyal; there are no Fifth Columnists among them.

We are importuned to register for defense, conservation, and to buy Defense Bonds. What incentive is there for loyal patriotism when our Government, through its high officials, closes the avenues for a livelihood to these self-same citizens? Industry has taken its cue from these officials and refuses to hire Negroes in their plants. How does America stand with those countries which Hitler has subdued, when they learn, as surely they know, how America is treating one-tenth of its population in this gigantic struggle to save democracy. I have long since prayed that there would arise in these troublous times someone courageous enough to call attention to this inhuman treatment of the Negro.

All we ask is that we may have the privilege of living under the true democratic way of life of which our country boasts. Again, thank you for your courageous and just editorial.

Congress Gets Proof of Negro Defense Bias

House Committee Given Evidence, During Marcantonio Bill Hearing, That Brooklyn's Defense Firms Refuse Jobs

Refusal of the Sperry Gyroscope Co. of Brooklyn to hire two highly trained Negro engineers were among the cases cited recently to a Congressional sub-committee by the National Negro Congress and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to prove that firms with big defense orders continue to discriminate openly against Negro workers.

Evidence presented to the committee by Mrs. Dorothy K. Funn, speaking in behalf of both organizations, was gathered in organized "job hunts" conducted by the Brooklyn chapter of the Negro Congress.

The congressional hearing was held on the Marcantonio anti-discrimination bill which would punish acts of discrimination by fines up to $50,000.

DEGREE IS USELESS

One of the cases cited was that of Fitzgerald Bramwell, who holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Cooper Union's Institute of Technoly. Replying to radio and newspaper advertisements for skilled men, Bramwell applied for a position of engineering inspector.

After months of inaction on that application, he re-applied for the post of inspector of material. In spite of continued advertising for men by the firm, Bramwell was told the company was "overstaffed."

Charles W. Bingham, a trained pilot and graduate of the Pratt Institute School of Science and Technology, was similarly rejected for employment by the Ranger Aircraft Co., the Curtiss-Wright Co., Republic Aircraft and Grummond Aircraft.

The Sperry Co., which also discriminates against Jews, has long employed persons of known Nazi sympathies and only recently was found to have had a Nazi spy on its pay-roll. President of the firm, it was pointed out by Mrs. Funn, is a member of Governor Lehman's State Defense Commission.

Navy Adamant In Barring Of Negro Sailors

Discrimination Is Defended By Stimson Group

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(SNS)—Representatives of six national organizations financed and officered State Navy when thsy lodged nowhere" in a recent interview with representatives of the United States Navy hwen they lodged a strong protest against the virtual exclusion of Negro Americans from the Navy.

The delegation, which called upon both Army and Navy officials was composed of representatives of the Union for Democratic Action, Friends of Democrary, Council for Democracy, Student Defenders of Democracy, and the Committee to Defend America By Aiding the Allies. Not represented in person, but 100 per cent in support of the protest, was the Fight for Freedom Committee.

The Navy interview is reported as follows:

"Compared with the satisfactory and friendly character of the interview with representatives of the War department, our interview with the representatives of the Navy department got exactly nowhere. They admitted the existence of discrimination, defended it, and insisted that they would continue the policy. Despite a long and sometimes slightly heated interview, the only thing we could get from them was a grudging statement that they might reconsider their policy in view of the President' proclamation against discrimination in employment in the defense industries.

"We pointed out specifically that continuation of discrimination in the Navy meant that the President, as commander-in-chief of the Navy was setting a bad example to the employers in the defense industries, but even that argument did not change their attitude."

DISCRIMINATION IN JOBS BECAUSE OF RACE CHARGED

Practice Alleged in Private Industry and Armed Services

(The Associated Press)

Washington, July 19.—Charges of racial discrimination by private employers and by the nation's armed services were put before congressional committees Friday by separate sources.

John T. Jones, legislative representative of the C. I. O. and director of labor's nonpartisan league, filed with a House judiciary subcommittee a statement urging enactment of specific legislation to forbid racial discrimination in employment.

He contended that a "handful of rich and powerful corporations" were discriminating against Negro workers and added:

"The use of one racial group against another, one national group against another, in order to beat down the economic standards of all, is an old story to the labor movement. It is the ancient maxim of divide and rule—divide and exploit."

Noel Sargent, secretary of the National Association of Manufacturers, testifying before a House committee studying migration of defense workers, discussed the charges of discrimination and said that "the government has sought to concentrate the heat engendered in this issue on industry."

"The fact is," he told the committee, "that both the government as well as organized labor might well put their own houses in order.

"Is it not fair to ask the government if consideration is being given to the existence of official discrimination in the army policy that Negroes have consistently been denied opportunity for army aviation training, and that the first modification of this latter policy was announcement of a 'segregated' training field to be established at Tuskegee Institute?"

Sargent testified that his association had advised members that "there should be no arbitrary prejudices in employment" and contended that prejudices in an "overwhelming proportion" of cases arose with fellow workers rather than management.

Earlier, Dr. Thomas Parran, head of the public health service, told the migrant committee that $1,885,137,891 additional funds would be needed to provide proper health facilities in areas crowded with defense workers.

The Committee On Job Discrimination

IN selecting Mr. Mark F. Etheridge as chairman of a committee to investigate discrimination in the hiring of defense and government workers because of race, creed, color, or national origin, President Roosevelt chose a man eminently worthy of confidence. Mr. Etheridge may be depended upon to get the facts, and to weigh them impartially.

Organized labor has three representatives on the committee, namely, Phillip Murray, President of the CIO; William Green, President of the AFL; and Milton P. Webster, Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. Mr. Green's membership on the committe will arouse pessimism. Much of the discrimination complained of is due to the policy of labor organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. These are for the most part the skilled crafts which decline to accept Negroes as members of locals. As each affiliated body in the American Federation of Labor is autonomous, Mr. Green has, and has always used, the excuse that personally he had no jurisdiction in these matters.

David Sarnoff, President of the Radio Corporation of America, as a member of the six-man committee, will doubtless speak for management. Earl B. Dickerson, a Chicago attorney, is an able man and should lend strength to the committee through his ability to intelligently interpret the Negro's economic problems.

Getting At The Seat Of Discrimination

THE investigations going on in Congress and by an independent committee named by President Roosevelt will certainly reveal interesting findings on racial discrimination in private employment, in defense industries and in government employment itself.

A house judiciary sub-committee heard an interesting statement the other day by Noel Sargent, Secretary of the National Association of Manufacturers. Mr. Sargent told the committee that "the government has sought to concentrate the heat engendered in this issue on industry", but that "the fact is that both the government, as well as organized labor might well put their own house in order."

Democracy in government, as well as in private industry handling defense contracts will be subjected to a long deferred test before these investigations are over. Industry is going to hurl at the government the justifiable charge that discrimination against Negroes should be lifted in the various government departments and in the army and navy if the government is going to compel, by any means possible, industry to do the right thing. At the seat of this trouble is the government itself. In the civil service the Negro has been discriminated against in the rankest kind of manner for the past quarter century. Congressional investigations and independent investigations by committees which have no legal powers will not bring about an improvement unless out of these investigations come legislation which will make racial discrimination unlawful. The fundamental constitutional provisions are there, but there are no statutes for their enforcement.

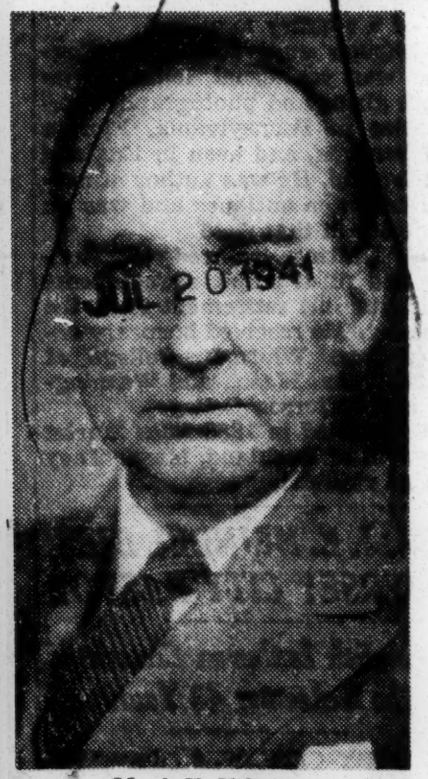
Will Head a Committee To Sift Discrimination



Mark F. Ethridge
Harris & Ewing, 1938

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 19—Mark F. Ethridge, vice president and general manager of The Louisville Courier Journal, was appointed by President Roosevelt today as chairman of a committee to investigate complaints of discrimination against Negroes seeking work in defense industries and the government.

Other members are Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O.; William Green, president of the A. F. L.; David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, and two Chicago Negroes, Milton P. Webster, vice president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and Earl B. Dickerson, an attorney.

The committee was created under an executive order of June 25 which reaffirmed the policy of the government against discrimination in the hiring of defense and government workers because of race, creed, color or national origin.

Serving without pay, the committee will investigate complaints and take steps to redress grievances.

AMBASSADOR WINANT COMMENDS FDR'S ORDER

NEW YORK, July 21—In a letter to Walter White, NAACP secretary, United States Ambassador John S. Winant in London expressed his pleasure at the action being taken by the Government to wipe out discrimination against the Negro in the national defense program, and particularly at the executive order of President Roosevelt.

Complaints On Defense Discrimination Aired In Congressional Hearing

WASHINGTON (ANP)—Hearings on H. R. Bill 3994, introduced by Rep. Marcantonio of New York on March 13, were conducted this week in the House Office building. The bill is to "prohibit discrimination by any agency supported in whole or in part with funds appropriated by the congress of the United States of America, and to prohibit discrimination against persons employed in such employment on government contracts because of race, creed or color."

Appearing two days before the committee, persons presenting claims of discrimination against Negroes and other minority groups included on Monday the Rev. Owen Knox of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties and U. Simpson Tate of the National Negro Congress and NAACP. On Tuesday, George Murphy of the National Negro Congress and Ann Sawyer of the AKA Non Partisan lobby and Dorothy Funn of Brooklyn, were spokesmen.

Hit Federal Departments

Mr. Tate told the committee of which Rep. Walter was acting chairman of the discrimination against Negroes, giving concrete cases of such practises in various departments of the government. He named the state department; treasury department; NYA, CCC; civil service, OPM, TVA, Railroad Retirement board, department of justice and other units.

"Negroes do not want favors," Mr. Tate said, "they want equal treatment after proving their qualifications for work."

He told of instances at the navy yard where trained Negro workers had been hired and then placed on the job as janitors.

Segregated, First Fired

Other agencies cited by Mr. Tate included the wages and hours division of the department of labor; the government printing office, the war department and the bureau of census.

In the latter department, Mr. Tate said Negroes were segregated and first to be fired.

Doxey Wilkerson of Howard university also spoke on the situation.

Miss Funn, representing the Brooklyn branches of the NAACP and the National Negro congress, cited instances of discrimination in the manufacturing plant of the Sperry Gyroscope company of Brooklyn, which makes many of the highly technical instruments used by the navy and in aviation.

Several other persons, white, spoke of the evil practises prevailing against Negroes and other minority groups.

Committee Makes Query

However, the chief question presented by the committee was "How would you gain conviction under law, and how would you get the matter before a jury?"

The spokesmen, however, were satisfied that they get their material on record, whether or not the bill comes out of committee, which some believe will not happen.

The bill itself provides that:

"Any person who violates any of the provisions of it shall upon conviction thereof be dismissed from his post and fined not less than $1,000 or more than $10,000 or any person who violates any of the provisions of the bill shall upon conviction thereof be fined not less than $10,000 nor more than $50,000."

Also on the sub-committee were Reps. Bryson of South Carolina and Gwynne of Iowa.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR US

A. Philip Randolph, the dynamic president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, scored again when his recommendation for the appointment of two Negroes to the Committee on Fair Employment Practice was approved by President Roosevelt a few days ago.

With the pattern of discrimination already well established, it was evident that the industrial plants would evolve some ingenious stratagem to circumvent gracefully the President's executive order against discrimination in the defense industries. Out of a thousand or more Negro applicants they might hire two or three as a clever expedient for escaping the charge of discrimination on account of color or race. With full knowledge of the lengths to which the fanatic apostles of race prejudice are willing to go to enforce their evil creed, Randolph headed them off by calling on President Roosevelt to appoint two Negroes on the Committee that will investigate all complaints relative to unfair employment practices in the defense industries and training centers.

The issuance of the Executive order and the appointment of two Negroes on the Committee on Fair Emlpoyment Practices are two signal victories whose social and economic consequences may extend far beyond the period of national emergency. And they may, with the watchful leadership of Mr. Randolph, become lasting attributes of democracy in America.

The America that gives fair and equal opportunity to all of her citizens regardless of race, creed or color—is the America we shall defend and fight for without COMPULSION.

CHICAGO RULING DENIES HIS ARMY JIM CROW APPEAL

JAN 18 1941

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—The local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced this week that it will take action in the case of Ernest Calloway, whose request for exemption from military service because "the United States Army denies me or any other Negro the right and opportunity to make an equal contribution to the welfare and defense of my country," was denied in a draft board ruling here Wednesday, January 8.

CASE OFFICIALLY REFERRED TO N.A.A.C.P.

Calloway, educational director of the United Transport Service Employees of America (Red Caps), had his case officially referred to the N.A.A.C.P., on January 9, according to Ira Williams, president of the branch, after local draft board No. 81 had also ruled that the union official could not appeal his case to the State Appeals Board.

Admitting the truth of a statement made by Calloway January 1 in a letter to the board pointing out that "deep-seated prejudices exist against me and other Negroes in the U.S. Army and Navy," board officials nevertheless ruled in a formal opinion handed down January 8 that:

"It is the opinion of the board, that the social ills of which Mr. Calloway complains are true, but this board is without power to remedy the said ill and affords no forum for their discussion and redress...therefore, the registrant is hereby placed in Class 1-A."

In a letter to the New York headquarters of the N.A.A.C.P., explaining the development of his case from December 20, 1940, when he received a copy of the Selective Service questionnaire from the board, up to the present time, Calloway said:

OUTLINED CERTAIN RACIAL INEQUALITIES

"In filling out the questionnaire, I indicated that I was a conscientious objector, and in doing this I attempted to amplify for the board, the possible trend my objections might take. I did this in the form of drawing a line from the phrase 'religious training and beliefs,' to the margin of the page and indicated certain social concepts which were my intention to incorporate into 'religious training and beliefs.' I placed a check in both squares to indicate my unwillingness to serve in any capacity. Also an informal statement was attached to the questionnaire (not a sworn affidavit) outlining certain racial inequalities existing in the armed forces."

Defense Job Bars 4 Women

Firm With Government Contract Refuses To Hire Negroes

By E. W. RHODES

JAN 2 1941

The President's plea for national unity on Sunday night was given a deliberate slap in the face the next morning by Morton M. Rose, clothing manufacturer, of 1214 Arch street.

Four women applied for work at Rose's factory in reply to an advertisement Monday morning. They are experienced workers. They state that they have worked on similar jobs for more than two years.

These four women came into The Tribune office with this story: "We were told by the elevator operator (colored) that it was useless for us to apply for work because Mr. Rose does not employ colored workers."

Has Government Contract

"We wanted to help our government and at the same time help ourselves; therefore, we went in to see Mr. Rose, especially since we knew that he was working on contracts for the government."

"Mr. Rose told us that, 'since he was a Jew he had no prejudices, but he could not employ colored people since they created too much discussion in his shop.'"

"We asked Mr. Rose how did he expect colored people to live. He stated that he was sorry but he could not employ colored people."

Rank Discrimination

Here is an example of rank racial discrimination as America prepares full steam ahead for total defense. Here is a matter that warrants the attention of the President and other officers who are leading the defense program.

There are many similar instances, but here is one in which the employer states openly and frankly that he will not hire colored workers simply because of prejudice.

The TRIBUNE sent a reporter to see Mr. Rose, in order to determine the accuracy of the report. Mr. Rose told the reporter substantially what he had said to Mrs. Hattie Alexander, 1040 West York street, Mrs. Yona Dubrey, 1915 Judson street; Miss Irene Minyard, 1522 north 26th street; and Miss Minnie Chapelle, 1711 Judson st.

Blame Southerners

"In my employ are a number of Southern white women who are extremely prejudiced and refuse to work with colored women. I cannot afford to dismiss these workers as they are efficient and permit me to put my work out on schedule," Mr. Rose told the TRIBUNE reporter.

Perhaps Mr. Rose does not know that his catering to the prejudices of his workers brands him with the same tar as those workers.

In America's total defense program there is no place for the kind of prejudice manifested by Mr. Rose. There are things more important in this program than speed and money-making.

Mr. Rose should know, if he knows anything, that the prejudice which he says controls the southern white women is the same prejudice which gave Hitler sufficient power to kick the Jews out of Germany.

And the same prejudice which, with his approval, makes it difficult for colored people to get work in his shop, is operating with sinister effect against his own people right here in America.

Ill Will Increasing

Men of the Rose type are responsible for the increasing ill will which is growing in the hearts of colored Americans against their Jewish fellow citizens.

Mr. Rose alleges that "he employed five colored women several months ago, but had to discharge them because of inefficiency." Were they fired because the southern women in his employment objected to them?

But assuming that they were inefficient, does Mr. Rose mean to say that all colored workers are inefficient?

America Needs All

Before this defense program is completed, America will need every ounce of manpower available. If those who are in control of the government are going to permit a few workers and employers to create prejudice and ill feeling, then the necessary unity for which the President asked will be impossible.

We regret that it is necessary to begin the New Year with this type of story, but sooner or later the showdown must come as to just where fifteen million Americans fit into the defense program. And the sooner the better.

Plan Mass Meeting

A city-wide mass meeting to make known how Philadelphia's colored citizens are participating in the national defense, and to lay plans for opening the doors of industry to all, will be held here the second week in February.

Some of the questions to which answers are being sought are:

1. How many millions in defense contracts have been assigned to the Philadelphia area?

2. What is the employment record of establishments having contracts, so far as the race is concerned?

3. What Philadelphia unions are still barring Negroes from membership and are thus keeping Negroes out of employment?

4. What are the policies which keep Negroes from getting into certain classes in the re-training program?

5. What job resources exist in colored Philadelphia — how many and what is the nature of the training of the unemployed?

6. By what measures can Negroes locally get more complete integration into the industrial life of the city and vicinity?

Negroes Are Urged To Work Against Discrimination

Negroes have been urged to organize to remove the barriers of discrimination keeping them from doing their part in the national defense program by Lawrence Templeton, industrial secretary of the Baltimore Urban League, who spoke before a mass meeting Sunday afternoon at the Leigh-Street Methodist Church.

Sponsored by the Richmond branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the session was one of several being held throughout the country. Mr. Templeton asked if the Negroes are to defend this country, why should they not help prepare that defense?

Wiley A. Hall, chairman of the speaker's committee for the meeting, declared that union representatives he met while on a recent trip to Camp Lee had stated they would not interfere with the employment of unskilled Negro laborers, but would not grant permits to skilled workers. Mr. Hall said that the government had set up machinery to prevent discrimination and urged Negroes in this locality to do something about the situation.

Dr. J. M. Tinsley, president of the local branch of the association, presided at the meeting, while Dr. H. J. McGuinn, professor at Virginia Union University and member of the Richmond Housing Authority, summarized the speeches and scored efforts to relegate Negroes to unskilled categories.

Stupid, Silly Prejudices Bar Negro Share In National Defense Effort

JAN 21 1941

THE INTEGRATION of colored Americans into all phases of the National Defense Program is proving to be one of the most difficult problems that the nation has ever faced.

Intelligent colored Americans, realizing that it would be impossible for America overnight to change its racial pattern completely, expected that there would be some discrimination based on race and color.

However, we felt that the very real crisis with which the nation was confronted would be the determining factor in most instances, rather than the color of the citizen's skin. In that expectation we have been gravely disappointed.

Everywhere the colored American turns, whether in government circles or in private industry, he finds barriers set up to prevent him from contributing his share to the National Defense Program.

The attitude of the personnel officers at the local Navy Yard, the Frankford Arsenal and the local Quartermaster's department is nothing short of disgraceful. These personnel men practice the most vicious kind of race discrimination against colored workers, in many instances hiring incompetents rather than competent colored men.

In personal interviews questions are so framed as to make them difficult to understand and, naturally, to answer; while for others the officers simplify their questions. This is not a figment of the imagination. This has happened. For instance, a colored applicant will be questioned as to what "mechanical devices" he has used that would qualify him for the job he seeks; another applicant will be asked if he has used a "rip saw" or whatever the device may be. Had the colored man been asked about a rip saw he could have answered easily. Colored applicants who negotiate the "technical terms" successfully are further questioned as to what they know about the particular kind of work they would have to do in the arsenal, or the Navy Yard, or the Quartermaster's department. Never having worked in either of those departments before, they can not give satisfactory answers. For other applicants, the fact that they know how to use the necessary machinery is sufficient.

For this reason we can not agree with Congressman John E. Sheridan's suggestion that heads of departments be permitted "to interview job-hunters direct, engage them and examine them later." If colored workers are having difficult with Civil Service examiners, there is no reason to believe that they would do any better with department heads.

The Congressman expresses his willingness "to repose in the officers in charge of the Frankford Arsenal, the Navy Yard and other government plants the responsibility of hiring directly the employees they need." We, on our part, have no such confidence in these men. We suggest to Congressman Sheridan that, if he goes through with his proposed investigation of the breakdown in the local Civil Service system, he will include specifically the prevalence of discriminatory practices against workers because of race and color.

Some indication of the difficulty which faces colored men seeking work at the Frankford Arsenal may be gleaned from the fact that they are using subterfuges to get into the Arsenal, so that they might have at least a chance to talk to those who are hiring men. Two colored men were held in bail by United States Commissioner Norman J. Griffin because they had been found using the badge of a former employee of the contractor for whom they worked at the Arsenal to gain admission. The Commissioner was reported in one of the daily newspapers as having his "ire aroused" by the conduct of these men.

The TRIBUNE appreciates the fact that the government authorities can not allow unauthorized men to enter the Arsenal or the Navy Yard. What Commissioner Griffin either does not know or else chooses to forget is that these two men are typical of thousands of colored men, with wives to support children to feed, and educate and house rent to pay, but who are denied work at the Arsenal because their skin is black.

What Commissioner should do is to use the influence of his office to break down the un-American practices at the Arsenal. These two men are poor men; they are not "fifth columnists" — they perhaps would not know what a "fifth columnist" is, if they were asked; they were looking for work.

Two weeks ago the national director of the American Red Cross nursing service sent out an SOS for several hundred nurses to volunteer from Philadelphia and the four contiguous suburban counties. The notice made reference to "all single nurses, under thirty-five years of age, who are in good health" and emphasized that "this is an opportunity for eligible nurses to do their part to make America safe." But we know that colored nurses, of whom there are many who meet the qualifications were not included in the "all."

Private industry, taking its cue from the government, is in no hurry to employ competent colored labor. The policy of industry, as expressed by a western industrialist, is to employ colored labor when no other kind is available.

North and South, East and West, in government service or in private industry, wherever colored Americans turn, they find these un-American barriers blocking them in their effort to contribute their best to the National Defense Program.

Sooner or later America must decide which is more important —the upholding of silly, stupid and unscientific doctrines of racial superiority, or the loyalty of fifteen million citizens.

Nat. Airmen Assn. Oppose Prejudice

JAN 24 1941

Chicago — A strong resolution condemning the War Department's plan to establish an all-Negro pursuit squadron as a part of the United States Army Air Corps was adopted by the National Airmen's Association here Friday.

At the same time, the association, made up of Negro flyers throughout the country, voted to intensify its campaign to have Negroes integrated without regard to race into the United States Army Air Corps which presently bars Negroes.

According to under secretary of War, Patterson, the squadron consisting of a ground crew of 400 men, 33 pilots and 27 planes, will be set up at Tuskegee institute in Alabama where a flying field and other facilities will be provided.

The ground crew, according to the announcement, will be trained at Shanute field, Illinois for several months before going to the southern school. The squadron, it is understood, will be commanded by a white officer.

JAN 24 1941

Cornelius R. Coffey who, in addition to being the president of the Chicago chapter of the association is also national president, in commenting said the action taken Friday is in line with the association's policy.

"Our fight for entrance into the air corps has been long. We don't intend to compromise now. Both the army and navy have stressed tradition in arguing against the abolition of segregated units.

"In the air corps there is no tradition either favorable or unfavorable to complete racial interagation. If we permit the establishment of a Negro unit, it will be establishing a precedent which will be hard to break down.

"We'd rather be excluded," Coffey said, "than to be segregated. There's no constitutional support for segregated units and the only traditions existing in aviation as I know it are ones which would make complete integration sane and logical."

Senator Arthur Capper One of Four Sponsors of N.A.A.C.P. Measure

FEB 28 1941

Resolution Asks Committee of Eight Be Named for Investigation of Jim-Crowism In All Phases of Defense Program

FEB 28 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A resolution asking Congress for $25,000 to finance a probe of discrimination in national defense was introduced in the U. S. senate last Wednesday by four senators.

The senators, who introduced the measure at the request of the N.A.A.C.P., are Arthur Capper, Republican, Kansas; W. Warren Barbour, Republican, New Jersey; Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, New York and Prentiss Brown, Democrat, Michigan.

The resolution, (S. R. 75) declares that the exclusion of Negroes from the national defense program, particularly in industrial plants which have been granted contracts for that program, robs the nation of the services of a tenth of its man power and thus constitutes a bottleneck of serious proportions.

Plants Restrict Employment

Material already gathered by the proponents of the inquiry reveal that many of the plants to which contracts have been awarded for a considerable percentage of the seventeen billion dollars already voted by the Congress, either refuse to give employment of any nature to Negroes or restrict them to work as cleaners and porters.

Some of this is attributed by these employers to some labor unions which bar Negroes from membership through constitutional provisions, ritualistic practices or other means.

"Unless this discrimination is examined, exposed and corrected," the introducers of the senate resolution declared, "thirteen million Negro citizens are going to question with increasing bitterness our protestations of fighting for freedom and democracy, and foreign powers will increasingly fling at us charges of hypocrisy regarding our protests against the mistreatment of minorities in those countries.

Shut Door

"In addition, the shutting of the door of opportunity to work in the races of our Negro citizens by industries who are being paid out of the national treasury for the support of which Negro citizens are taxed at the same rate as other Americans, will tend to pauperize this part of our population and to increase mortality, morbidity, juvenile delinquency and crime rates among our colored population for which we, and not they, will be to blame.

"Either complete opportunity to participate in every phase of our defense program must be extended to all our people or our whole premise of democracy is proved invalid and hypocritical."

The senate resolution provides for a special committee of eight senators to be appointed by the vice president and asks $25,000 for the inquiry.

Announce List

The sponsors announced that among an imposing list of witnesses who have already consented to appear are: Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Phillip Murray, president of the C.I.O.; A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters; Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Lester Granger, assistant executive secretary of the National Urban League; Judge Stephen S. Jackson and Lieutenant-Governor Charles Poletti, of New York; and Walter L. Robinson, Negro graduate of the University of Minnesota, who after finishing high in a C. A. A. course, was barred from the United States Army Air Corps because of his race. Robinson has since enlisted and been accepted in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

FEB 28 1941

Among others the sponsors of the senate resolution plan to suggest being invited to testify before the committee are Quentin Reynolds, famous war correspondent who is expected to tell how England abolished its color line when bombarded last fall by Nazi planes; Wendell Willkie who during his campaign last fall was outspoken in his denunciation of discrimination against the Negro in the national defense program and in governmental agencies generally; William H. Hastie who is civilian aide to the secretary of war; Mayor Fiorella H. La Guardia, of New York; Sidney Hillman and William S. Knudsen, of the office of production management; and numerous employers and labor union heads who are responsible for anti-Negro discrimination as well as employers and labor leaders, who do not discriminate and lead groups where whites and Negroes work together in amity.

Preliminary hearings on the resolution are expected to be held by the senate committee on education and labor as soon as debate on the lend-lease bill is completed.

White Union Accepts 'Unfit' Navy Messman

FEB 22 1941

Byron Johnson Given a Chance When Scrap Iron Workers Become Interested In Case Following Exposure Of Navy Discrimination In The Courier and Magazine PM.

FEB 22 1941

By MORGEN S. JENSEN
(Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Undoubtedly thousands of interested readers of The Pittsburgh Courier, eager to learn what becomes of young men kicked out of the U.S. Navy as "undesirables," are wondering what has befallen the 15 Negro mess attendants who were recently "fired" by Uncle Sam.

Lest some new readers may be unacquainted with Uncle Sam's recent wholesale firings, however, we first had better tell you that 15 Negro boys from the U. S. S. Philadelphia, protesting in a letter to The Pittsburgh Courier the racial discrimination in the service, not only were discharged from the Navy—they were handed "undesirable" discharges for "unfitness."

That's what seemed to give the boys a resentful feeling and a certain amount of bitterness—"Undesirably" discharged! Only one degree above the dishonorable kind. Because of this taint, no favorabzle recommendation to prospective employers. Because they dared protest against what they alleged were totally unfair conditions aboard their cruiser, possibly no jobs as civilians.

Well, Byron C. Johnson, one of the unfortunate victims, for a few weeks found the going pretty tough. Just as he had anticipated, possible employers quickly extended to him the cold shoulder when they read his discharge papers and saw that threatening word, "undesirable." Fortunately, through his brother, he landed a piece of a job in Brooklyn, N. Y., working in a factory which grinds and crushes nut shells for making a fur-cleaning powder. Inexperienced, the lad didn't command much of a salary. As he says, the job just about "beat a blank."

TOLD OF CONDITIONS

"One day, out of a clear sky, I received the shock of my life," Johnson exclaimed. "Mr. John Calandrillo, a white official of the Scrap Iron Demolishers and Handlers Union, Local 1120, A. F. of L., 160 Fifth avenue, New York, learned of the firing from the Navy of we 15 mess attendants. Mr. Calandrillo saw a story in the white daily 'PM,' and he found out that I needed a better job."

Calandrillo granted Johnson an interview. The youth made such a favorable impression that he was invited by the union official to attend a meeting of the local. Complying, Johnson astounded his mixed audience with a speech in which he related conditions under which Negroes have to toil in the Navy.

UNION ACTS

Despite the fact that the "books were closed," at the conclusion of the meeting Calandrillo moved that Johnson be voted into the union as a full-fledged member. The motion received unanimous approval and the ex-mess attendant found himself on the road towards success.

FEB 22 1941

The plucky Johnson was directed to report as a union worker at the plant of the Borough Scrap Iron and Metal Company, 1048 Rockaway avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

where both Negro and white employes toil side by side.

Byron, as the mild-mannered and refined Johnson is affectionately called by his associates, radiates happiness on his new job—a job procured for him by a sympathetic and understanding white man.

"I really enjoy it," he almost shouted. "The work, of course, is a bit harder than that to which I have been accustomed. Don't forget, though, the pay is more than double. Remember, now I'm in the union, working union hours and getting union pay. Besides, there's quite a future to this trade. I'm going to try my best to reach the top. Oh! If only there were more white employers in the world such as Mr. Calandrillo."

Johnson, commenting upon his discharge from the Navy, claims that about six weeks ago he mailed a letter to the Executive Mansion in Washington, calling to President Roosevelt's attention the latter's recent discourse praising the "freedom of speech" and the "freedom of the press" in this country. Johnson says that he explained his plight and that he insuired of the President the possibility of having the "undesirable" discharge changed to a desirable one. According to Johnson there was no reply for about one month. When an answer was received it came in somewhat of a roundabout manner, he states. He reveals that the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, after "thoroughly reviewing the case" regards the incident as a closed affair insofar as they are concerned.

A. Philip Randolph Can't Sell This War To Oppressed, Jim Crowed Negro People

By William L. Patterson

A. Philip Randolph, former president of the National Negro Congress has issued an appeal to the Negro people for "all out aid" to British Imperialism, including support of the Lend-Lease Bill, "because," says Mr. Randolph, "she (Britain) is fighting the cause of democracy, the only hope and salvation of minority groups."

By this step the head of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters unwittingly has helped to dispel the confusion he attempted to create and to some degree created through his resignation from the presidency of the National Negro Congress and the charges he made of "red control" against it at its third meeting in Washington, D. C. last spring. His stand is now clear. He supports the war of the men who oppress his people.

NEGRO AMERICA MOVES

Negro America was in motion in the spring of 1940. In Miami, Fla., in South Carolina, Brownsville, Tenn., Texas and Georgia, Negroes were openly opposing the Poll Tax laws which disfranchises them. Southern sharecroppers, landless and homeless, were organizing for struggle. The pre-Congress call of Randolph and the other officers of the N.N.C. strengthened the will of these forces to struggle and led them to believe that his speech at that Congress would be a veritable battlecry and a clean-cut fighting program.

MAR 3 1941

Negro leaders from the ranks of the people had come to that historic Third Congress of the National Negro Congress as Mr. Randolph had admitted, "seriously, resolutely and courageously to grapple with problems of joblessness, WPA and relief cuts, Ku Klux Klan whippings and violence against person and property, lynching and mob rule, discriminations in government, labor unions, with problems of education, housing, health and war."

Randolph pretended then to be against the imperialist war. He seemed to be for the sharpening of the fight at home against the innumerable ills he had described.

LEWIS' HISTORIC SPEECH

As that Congress opened John L Lewis, then president of the CIO and head of Labor's Non-Partisan League in an address broadcast over a national radio network dealt with fundamental problems facing all of the American people. But "Equal Opportunity" was his theme and for the first time in the history of this country a leading spokesman for labor made an appeal for collective action to the Negro people.

MAR 3 1941

John L. Lewis invited the N.N.C. and other organizations of the Negro people to join with Labor's Non-Partisan League "that we may seek out as American citizens together those political means and instruments by which the common welfare may be promoted."

The CIO leader quoted from a speech made by that great Negro leader and revolutionist Frederick Douglass in 1883, "It is a great mistake for any class of laborers to isolate itself and thus weaken the bond of brotherhood between those on which the burden and hardships of labor fall."

AN EMPHATIC STAND

John L. Lewis attacked the Poll Tax system, lynching and segregation; he assured white labor that to defend the rights of Negroes was to defend its own rights and where Mr. Randolph in somewhat abstract terms had called for "Unity for Peace" Mr. Lewis in terms definite and concrete stated: "We must not go to war." "Our responsibility" he continued, "is to preserve American civilization. . . . We must not send men to die in foreign fields. There is work to be done at home."

But Randolph repulsed the supporting arm of labor offered by Lewis. He denounced collaboration with whites in the Negro Congress. He called for the very isolation of Negro labor Frederick Douglass had condemned. All white support to the N.N.C. was labeled Red and in a speech in the best Martin Dies style Mr. Randolph "red-baited" to his heart's content.

This was a new A. Philip Randolph in whom American imperialism could have perfect faith.

He called for the "voluntary segregation" of Negroes, which would break up that Negro and white unity, which it has been taking years to promote, and which the employers are trying to tear asunder through war hysteria.

The debacle of Randolph is no accident. A leader of the people must go forward leading the people to ever higher forms of struggle or —surrender.

MAR 3 1941

FOE OF UNION DEMOCRACY

Randolph has never permitted democracy to prevail in his own Brotherhood. In this he followed religiously in the footstep of the AFL bureaucracy. He has never consistently supported the struggles of Negro workers in other unions. Randolph never called for independent political action by workers, white or black.

Randolph, the "socialist" had all of the fear of Social Democracy of a people's movement. But he had maintained a pretense of hatred for the economic royalists whose exploitation and oppression keep the Negro people at the foot of the social ladder in America and whose lynch law-segregation policy makes divide and rule succeed here in our country.

At the Third National Negro Congress Randolph found the Negro masses beginning to surge forward. Negro reformism was hard-pressed indeed. The white workers were preparing for far-reaching struggles. Unity of Negroes and white in struggle was about to take concrete form in a number of places and particularly where the CIO was leading. Randolph was afraid and the voices that sweetly cautioned him of dangers ahead found a listening ear.

Negro reformism also needed Randolph desperately. It had almost become thoroughly discredited. It had not only won the label of Uncle Tom, but its bankruptcy was beginning to reflect itself in its chief characteristic. Every class-conscious Negro worker saw that the reformist ways and their means of "struggling" against lynching, segregation and discrimination was a failure. The Negro intellectual and middle class is beginning to appreciate the same thing. Negro reformism had no spokesman who had either the respect or the con-

MORALE IS HIGH

The morale of the Negro people was not broken by Mr. Randolph's desertion of the N.N.C. Both John P. Davis, its National Secretary and Dr. Max Yergan, who succeeded Mr. Randolph brought forward the political and organizational proposals which coincided with the best interests of the Negro people and fully accepted the offer of collaboration made by John L. Lewis.

Negro labor must show its contempt for Randolph's Social-Democratic surrender. Thus it will help the Negro people to see the poisonous role of Negro reformism and Social Democracy; thus it will accomplish its historic task of unifying the Negro people.

The betrayal of Randolph will become a boomerang for American imperialism. Around such leaders as James W. Ford, the Frederick Douglass of our day, the Negro people will be found in the vanguard of those who challenge and defeat the war program of imperialism.

Black America has no yen to die for its imperialist masters and they know it. Black America will not be deceived into support of the imperialist war aims by the fake "defense" program.

Byron, as the mild-mannered and refined Johnson is affectionately called by his associates, radiates happiness on his new job—a job procured for him by a sympathetic and understanding white man.

"I really enjoy it," he almost shouted. "The work, of course, is a bit harder than that to which I have been accustomed. Don't forget, though, the pay is more than double. Remember, now I'm in the union, working union hours and getting union pay. Besides, there's quite a future to this trade. I'm going to try my best to reach the top. Oh! If only there were more white employers in the world such as Mr. Calandrillo."

Johnson, commenting upon his discharge from the Navy, claims that about six weeks ago he mailed a letter to the Executive Mansion in Washington, calling to President Roosevelt's attention the latter's recent discourse praising the "freedom of speech" and the "freedom of the press" in this country. Johnson says that he explained his plight and that he insuired of the President the possibility of having the "undesirable" discharge changed to a desirable one. According to Johnson there was no reply for about one month. When an answer was received it came in somewhat of a roundabout manner, he states. He reveals that the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, after "thoroughly reviewing the case" regards the incident as a closed affair insofar as they are concerned.

By William L. Patterson

A. Philip Randolph, former president of the National Negro Congress has issued an appeal to the Negro people for "all out aid" to British Imperialism, including support of the Lend-Lease Bill, "because," says Mr. Randolph, "she (Britain) is fighting the cause of democracy, the only hope and salvation of minority groups."

By this step the head of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters unwittingly has helped to dispel the confusion he attempted to create and to some degree created through his resignation from the presidency of the National Negro Congress and the charges he made of "red control" against it at its third meeting in Washington, D. C. last spring. His stand is now clear. He supports the war of the men who oppress his people.

NEGRO AMERICA MOVES

Negro America was in motion in the spring of 1940. In Miami, Fla., in South Carolina, Brownsville, Tenn., Texas and Georgia, Negroes were openly opposing the Poll Tax laws which disfranchises them. Jim Crow In Defense Training Is Rapped By League Official

Studebaker Is Told Of Discrimination

MAR 9 1941

NEW YORK, N. Y.—(SNS)—The National Urban League this week officially called the attention of John W. Studebaker, U. S. Commissioner of Education, to "widespread and serious infractions" of the Government's policy forbidding racial discrimination in vocational training for defense. Eugene Kinckle Jones, Executive Secretary of the League, reminded Commissioner Studebaker of the conference which an Urban League committee held with him last October regarding means of making defense training facilities freely available to Negro workers and students.

Following that conference the Commissioner issued a communication addressed to all State Officers of Education calling their attention to legislative provisions of the First Supplemental Civil Functions Appropriations Act, stipulating that the benefits of defense training could not be denied to any person because of race, color or creed.

RECALL STATEMENT

Mr. Studebaker pointed out to State Educational Officers that the demands of defense industry were expected to be such within the next one or two years that all types of skilled labor will be needed regardless of the race of the workers, and that training courses should begin now to equip Negroes as well as whites with the necessary skills. MAR 9 1941

Mr. Jones stated, "Since the issuance of that statement by your Office, affiliates of the National Urban League report persistent evasion by state, county and municipal authorities of the policy outlined by you....The practice is not confined to any one section of the country. Many Southern Boards of Education which have established defense training courses for whites have refused to match these courses with similar facilities for Negroes. On the other hand in many cities of the East, Mid-West and Far West, Negro students in 'mixed' school systems have been denied their right to enter certain training courses because of a supposed unwillingness on the part of employers to accept them for placement after the training courses are completed."

DOORS CLOSED

Mr. Jones referred to the official position taken by the New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction, which closes the doors of certain vocational courses to Negro pupils unless it can be established that local employers will certainly hire them when trained. He indicated similar experiences in such cities as Buffalo, Seattle, Kansas City and St. Louis.

Calling upon the Office of Education to take steps to eliminate these practices, the League Executive declared that "the provisions of the Congressional Act and the authority delegated to the U. S. Office of Education by that Act undoubtedly place authority in your hands which effectively used can go a long way toward protecting the best interests of our nation and making available to American industry the services of thousands of skilled Negro workers within the next several years."

In releasing this letter to the press, League officials point out that in many cities exclusion of Negroes from vocational courses may be traced directly to undue control over Boards of Education policies by craft unions or powerful employers opposed to skilled employment of Negroes. It has been the influence, for instance, of the big aircraft corporations that has kept Negro students out of aviation mechanics courses in so many cities and made it necessary for Urban League secretaries to exert tremendous pressure in order to have those bans removed. The League points out that only the utmost vigilance and strongest sort of expression from the Negro community will have any appreciable effect in changing these discriminatory policies.

33 PILOTS, 276 MEN WILL FORM SQUADRON

MAR 29 1941

Extensive Training Courses Will Include Weather Forecasting, Radio and Engineering.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—The War Department announced today more details of its plan for the formation of the 99th Pursuit Squadron.

Creation of this squadron, the first Negro tactical unit in the Air Corps, requires the training and commissioning of 33 flying cadets to be pilot officers, and transfer or commissioning of 6 to 14 non-flying officers, and the enlisting and training of 276 soldiers for duty as mechanics and other technical specialists.

Training of pilots will be started about October 1, at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala. Applications for flying cadet appointments will be received by Corps Area Commanders. Standards for appointment will be the same as for white applicants, who must be unmarried, and must have passed their twentieth but not their twenty-seventh birthday. They must have completed at least two years of college work or pass a written examination which demonstrates the equivalent education.

OFFICERS TO TAKE COURSE AT N. Y. U.

Flying cadets are paid $75 a month and receive $1 a day ration allowance. The Tuskegee course of training will require 30 weeks.

Upon successful completion of the course, a flying cadet is eligible for appointment as Second Lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve and is subject to call to active duty.

At least four of the non-flying officers for the squadron will come from existing ground units or other arms of the service. Air Army and Corps Area commanders have been notified that four Negro officers, lieutenants or captains, are to be detailed to the Air Corps for one year of non-flying duty. Any Negro officer desiring this detail may make application to their commanding officers. These officers will be needed about September 1, 1941.

MAR 29 1941

Two more prospective Negro non-flying officers will enroll as students April 7 at New York University in engineering courses utilized by the Air Corps in training many of its engineering officers. Upon completion of their work there, these two students will go to Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., to complete their training.

Enlisting of the 276 soldiers for duty as mechanics and other technical specialists will be started immediately. They will be recruited in various sections of the country and will be sent to Chanute Field for training starting April 1. Upon completion of training at Chanute Field, the men will be transferred to Tuskegee to serve as maintenance crews for the pilot training school. Each Negro candidate for enlistment must be a high school graduate and must pass aptitude tests to determine his suitability for attendance at an Air Corps technical school.

LIST QUOTA REQUIREMENTS

A nucleus of 14 enlisted men from existing colored units has been ordered to Chanute Field to prepare for the reception of the recruits for processing, issuance of uniforms, innoculations, and basic military training. Instructors will be furnished from Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., and Lowry Field, Denver, Colo.

The 276 recruits will be enlisted for three years at stations with the following quotas:

Mitchell Field, New York	40
Bolling Field, D. C.	40
Maxwell Field, Alabama	60
Patterson Field, Ohio	30
Chanute Field, Illinois	50
San Angelo, Texas	30
March Field, California	26

The technical courses to be given at Chanute Field, number of students and time required for training are as follows:

Course	Number of Students	Period in Weeks
Air mechanics	151	22
Instruments	4	8
Parachute riggers	3	8
Metal workers	2	14
Welders	2	14
Teletype maint'nce	4	8
Armorers	14	12
Radio operators and mechanics	26	22
Clerks (technical)	12	16
Clerks (admin.)	40	16
Telephone maintenance	2	22
Auto mechanics	3	22
Machinists	2	17
Electricians	2	4
Weather observers	6	12
Weather forecasters	3	26

276 NEGROES WILL BE ENLISTED FOR GROUND SERVICE

MAR 2 1941

Men Will Be Permitted To Qualify As Pilots Of Squad

WASHINGTON—(SNS) — The War Department announced plans for the creation of the 99th Pursuit Squadron, first Negro unit of the Air Corps, for which 276 Negroes from all sections of the nation will be enlisted for the ground service.

Applications will also be accepted from Negro candidates for appointment as flying cadets to qualify as pilots tof the squadron. The unit will have about 33 pilots.

The 276 men to be enlisted will be trained as maintenance crews of the squadron. Like all other men recruited for the Air Corps, these recruits must have at least a high school education. They must also pass the Air Corps tests to determine their suitability for attendance at Air Corps technical schools.

MAR 25 1941

OFF TO TUSKEGEE

After the men have completed their training at Chanute Field, Illinois, on or about October 1, 1941, they will be transferred to Tuskegee, Alabama, where the 99th Pursuit Squadron will be formed. There the flying phase of the training will begin at a flying cadet school to be established near Tuskegee Institute.

Prospective recruits for the ground service are advised that they will be accepted in the order that they apply—first come first served. Enlisting will begin in a week, which will give all applicants equal opportunity to reach recruiting stations at designated air fields.

Mitchell Field, New York	40
Bolling Field, District of Columbia	40
Maxwell Field, Alabama	60
Patterson Field, Ohio	30

THE RADIO AS A PROPAGANDA MEDIUM

APR 5 - 1941

THE NATIONAL URBAN LEAGUE had a happy idea when it conceived the plan to use a national radio broadcasting hookup as a medium by which some favorable propaganda on the Negro could be put across to the public. In a one-hour broadcast Sunday evening, no less than ten of the outstanding concert, stage and screen stars of the race joined in a program designed to focus attention on the unemployment problems of the race. Brief addresses were made by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York and Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina.

Marian Anderson, Ethel Waters, Joe Louis, Duke Ellington, Ella Fitzgerald, Louis Armstrong, John Kirby, Bill Robinson, Kenneth Spencer, the Golden Gate Quartet and Anne Wiggins Brown were among the list of stars who entertained. Needless to say this was in many respects the best program ever presented by a Negro organization and was probably heard by more people than has ever listened to the problems of the Negro.

Since we as a race possess an unusual talent for entertainment, the radio offers an excellent means of putting our cause before the public when an appeal can be mixed with such a program as that staged by the Urban League.

We congratulate Edward Lawson, who arranged this program, and the National Urban League staff, for putting the unemployment problems of our race before the American people in this unique and effective manner.

Many Negroes Hired on Job

Constitute 2,300 of 5,800 at Ft. Eustis

HAMPTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—George L. Zuidema, hiring agent for the contractors on the big Fort Eustis construction job, gave the Hampton Institute Builders' Conference a surprise turn at the opening session by personally appearing to state that 2.300 of the 5,800 workmen on that project are Negroes.

The conference, which opened yesterday to continue through Wednesday, heard charges at the first session that Negroes had been discriminated against by defense work employers—charges previously voiced elsewhere in the State.

Dean L. R. Browning, of the Howard University School of Engineering, told the 200 delegates from twenty States at the beginning of the fifteenth annual conference that information should be given Congressmen "showing that we have men capable of participating in all fields."

Dean R. O'Hara Lanier, of Hampton Institute, advised the conference of a letter addressed to it by John M. Carmody, Administrator of the Federal Works Agency, promising an immediate investigation of reports of discrimination against Negroes on national defense housing projects in Tidewater Virginia.

The Newport News Daily Press, which gathered figures intended to show Negroes in the skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled trades, are well employed on major defense jobs in this area, quoted Zuidema as saying of Fort Eustis:

"We are hiring and have hired 100 per cent. colored cement finishers, varners, caulkers, asphalt rakers and broom operators. Skilled colored mechanics are placing all our sewer lines and a large proportion of our water lines, doing practically all our road work, and colored laborers are doing all our excavating and placing of concrete."

The Daily Press further said a survey showed 4,000 of the 13,600 men employed at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company are Negroes, with their minimum wage being 40 cents an hour and the maximum more than a dollar an hour.

First Lady To Testify At Senate's Defense Hearing

FEB 19 1941

NEW YORK —(SNS)— Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Phillip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and Lester Granger, assistant executive secretary of the national Urban League will be among the prominent witnesses to testify at a preliminary Senate hearing to investigate discrimination against Negroes in National Defense, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced.

FEB 19 1941

The hearing, according to the NAACP, is scheduled to take place in Washington, D. C. just prior to the introduction of a resolution in the Senate calling for an investigation of discrimination against the Negro in the government's national defense program.

Introduction of the resolution which is being sponsored by several senators, has been held up because of the illness of Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, who with Senator Warren Barbour, of New Jersey is taking the lead in organizing the plans pushing the resolution.

Doctor Asks Ousting Of Jamaica Board Head

DEC 18 1940

Identical letters protesting alleged discrimination against Negroes by a local draft board were received today by Gov. Lehman and Col. Arthur V. McDermott, director of selective service in the city.

The letters, signed by Dr. John Singleton, Queens physician who is chairman of the Jamaica branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, demanded the removal of Edward W. Warnke, chairman of local draft board 261, Jamaica. He was accused of prejudice in the case of a Negro draftee who sought deferment on the grounds he had a dependent and was placed in class 1-A.

Quotes from Memo.

Dr. Singleton quoted from a memorandum which he said Mr Warnke had written, which read in part: "This particular case is common in our particular board We have a large colored population and there seems to be no regard for moral or financial responsibility and some get tired of one woman and then decide they can live with someone else."

The health of New York City's young men who are eligible for conscription into the United States army is, on the whole, "good," Col. McDermott said today in revealing an analytical report of the physical examinations made for first-call draftees.

The report, representing partial returns from 120 local boards showed that 430 out of 1643 men were rejected or found fit for limited duty only. This total, about 26 per cent, "does not show any specific deterioration in the population, but rather enhances the fact that the general health of the community is good," according to Col. Samuel J. Kopetzky, chief of the medical division.

Teeth Conditions Cited.

Most rejections were caused by teeth and mouth conditions, the report from Col. Kopetzky to Col McDermott revealed. These were 5.7 per cent of the total. Eighty eight men were turned back because of insufficient teeth and in 20 others it was a secondary condition.

Seventy-four men were rejected because of defective vision—a 5 per cent total. Sixty-six prospective conscriptees were turned back because of diseases of the heart. Other rejections included:

Chronic ear infection, 19; infantile paralysis after injuries, 28; chronic pulmonary tuberculosis, 15; syphilis, 6 (although there were 90 cases of positive Wassermann tests, which deferred the men until they could be re-examined); hernia, 16.

McNUTT ASSURES RACE OF EQUAL JOB CHANCES

MAR 8 1941

U. S. Official Stresses Optimism at Howard U. Charter Day Banquet

Assurance that he was working for equal job opportunities for Negroes in the defense program was made by Federal Security Administrator, Paul V. McNutt, principal speaker on Saturday night at a banquet commemorating the seventy-fourth anniversary of Howard University.

"Going back to 1929 as the last period of full employment, most Negroes had jobs at that time, but they were among the last to come into industry and they were mostly in unskilled labor," said the administrator.

"Should Do Better"

"We hope to do better this time. With the superior facilities of the educational agencies of the U. S. Employment Service, we should do better," he continued.

"I, in my capacity of a public official, and you, in your capacity of leaders of public opinion, cannot afford to slacker our efforts for equal job opportunities, for the welfare of the nation will demand it.

MAR 8 1941

"If we proceed much further on the road to total defense, the brains and brawn of every citizen will be needed. No large group can be left out."

More than 600 alumni and educators from all parts of the country participated at the banquet or took part in various other parts of the celebration.

Mr. McNutt said that he had chosen leadership as his theme because of the strategic position Howard University is playing in preparing leaders for America. He said that he was aware of the difficulty Negroes experience as members of a "minority group," but declared that in no other country are minorities given any consideration whatsoever.

During the emergency, he continued, the nation requires full loyalty of all its people in answer to the dictators' claim that they will destroy and divide us.

Have Marched Together

Since the day Crispus Attucks fell beside his white brothers on Boston Commons, Negroes have gone along with white people from victory to victory, declared the administrator.

He further asserted that problems of local communities must be of national concern if national coordination of health and welfare activities is to mean something more than "an empty generality."

Mr. McNutt also complimented Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, whose fifteenth anniversary as president of Howard was also observed.

A handsomely lettered testimonial pamphlet outlining his principal achievements in fifteen years as president was presented to Dr. Johnson on behalf of the university by T. L. Hungate, chairman of the university's board of directors.

Others Participating

Participating in the presentation were: Harold Delaney, senoir in the College of Liberal Arts, representing the students; Dr. Charles H. Wesley, dean of the graduate school, faculties and employes; William T. Andrews, member of the New York Assembly and Howard alumnus, and Dr. Channing H. Tobias, member of the board of trustees.

J. M. Nabrit, university secretary, read messages of congratulations from alumni unable to attend. Dr. C. Herbert Marshall, Jr., of the class of '21, presided at the dinner.

MAR 8 1941

Earlier in the day, Dr. Charles H. Garvin, graduate of the class of '11 and a trustee, was the principal speaker at Charter Day exercises. He is president of the Cleveland (Ohio) Library Board, the original deed to Howard University was signed.

A resume of the previous day's celebration was given by Frederick D. Wilkinson, registrar of the university, in a national radio broadcast, Sunday morning, on the "Wings Over Jordan" program.

Many Negroes Hired on Job

Constitute 2,300 of 5,800 at Ft. Eustis

HAMPTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—George L. Zuidema, hiring agent for the contractors on the big Fort Eustis construction job, gave the Hampton Institute Builders' Conference a surprise turn at the opening session by personally appearing to state that 2,300 of the 5,800 workmen on that project are Negroes.

The conference, which opened yesterday to continue through Wednesday, heard charges at the first session that Negroes had been discriminated against by defense work employers—charges previously voiced elsewhere in the State.

Dean R. O'Hara Lanier, of Hampton Institute, advised the conference of a letter addressed to it by John M. Carmody, Administrator of the Federal Works Agency, promising an immediate investigation of reports of discrimination against Negroes on national defense housing projects in Tidewater Virginia.

The Newport News Daily Press, which gathered figures intended to show Negroes in the skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled trades, are well employed on major defense jobs in this area, quoted Zuidema as saying of Fort Eustis: "We are hiring and have hired 100 per cent. colored cement finishers, varners, caulkers, asphalt rakers and broom operators. Skilled colored mechanics are placing all our sewer lines and a large proportion of our water lines, doing practically all our road work, and colored laborers are doing all our excavating and placing of concrete."

The Daily Press further said a survey showed 4,000 of the 13,600 men employed at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company are Negroes, with their minimum wage being 40 cents an hour and the maximum more than a dollar an hour.

Anti-Negro Bias Held Key Issue In Draft Unit Resignation

By PITTS SANBORN.

There may never have been a louder and faster performance of the Don Juan of Richard Strauss than the one set before us by the Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, at the beginning of its Carnegie Hall concert last evening. But such is the virtuosity of the band that the breakneck speed and the furious detonations it could take in stride.

However, the listener suffered as a traveler does in a lightning express. The one couldn't hear much and the other can't see much. Time is wanting.

Welcomed cordially by the large audience, Paul Robeson, baritone, next appeared to take part in an excerpt from the O'Neill-Gruenberg Emperor Jones. Mr. Robeson sometimes spoke and sometimes sang, and his singing of the "spiritual" lines "standin' in de need of prayer" was his finest achievement of the evening.

After the intermission he returned to deliver two contrasting excerpts from Moussorgsky's Boris Godounoff—the final monologue of the dying Czar and Varlaam's drunken ballad. In each the interpretation seemed rather mild, but the listener ignorant of Russian, the language employed by the soloist, was obviously at a disadvantage.

To conclude the concert Mr. Ormandy's choice had fallen on Beethoven's Eroica Symphony.

Anatole Kitain, Pianist.

The piano half of the Brothers Kitain—Anatole—was heard in a recital at the Town Hall last night after a short absence. Brother Robert plays the fiddle.

Mr. Kitain flaunts the kind of technic that dashes off Schumann's C major Toccata in breezy style, follows up smilingly with Brahms's F minor sonata, and goes plunging nonchalantly into Liszt's high-geared Funerailles.

He followed that order last night and coasted the rest of the way with a sheaf of Debussy and Chopin.

The Toccata went at a fast clip. As pure motion it broke the season's speed record, and pianists aren't travelling at a snail's pace, exactly.

Mr. Kitain seemed in a terrific hurry to reach home plate. He actually took a deep breath when he landed. Maybe he wanted to thaw the frost out of his fingers, having just come in out of the cold. If so, it warmed him up nicely.

The Brahms sonata obeyed traffic regulations. Mr. Kitain's solid tone and technic showed up brilliantly, especially in the Intermezzo. And most of the nostalgic sequences came through poetically.

But the Sonata has a way of sounding scrappy, rambling, incoherent in any but a Titan's hands. Mr. Kitain is no Titan, though he made a passable carbon copy at times.

The same thing applies to the Liszt number. One expects the grand manner and eerie resonance. Funerailles is a thing of sweep and fantasy. Maybe a handful of pianists can tackle it brilliantly.

Mr. Kitain gave it plausible utterance. After all, he has loads of power and can't be caught short technically. But the last word in Liszt is not in his vocabulary. He came mighty close, though, in Au Bord D'Une Source.

A large audience seemed to like him.

Race Workers Overlooked In Speedup Plans

Contractors Do Hiring and Firing, Says Gen. Marshall

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Although colored skilled, semi-skilled and common labor has been virtually shut out of jobs in the building underway for housing the enlarged army expected to reach a strength of $1,418,000 men by June 30, that factor is omitted from a summary of causes which have impeded the work and increased costs.

Those factors are listed in the report of the House Committee on Appropriations explaining a bill making deficiency and supplemental appropriations for the army and navy for the national defense in the sum of $1,533,439,702.

SPEED ESSENTIALL

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, told the Appropriations Subcommittee on Deficiencies during hearings on the bill that 'speed was essential in this construction in order that we could get our forces under arms at the earliest practicable moment."

He added that this necessity required rapid expansion of labor forces resulting in the use of semi-skilled or unskilled labor and in a scarcity often of common labor.

Colonel Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the construction division, office of the Quartermaster General, testified that it was necessary for contractors to build up their forces so rapidly that they "had to take on people who did not have the skill of journeymen carpenters or journeymen plumbers, or any other skilled mechanic."

HIRED INCOMPETENTS

Complaints reaching here, however, were to the effect that hiring agents for contractors engaged in building camps and cantonments refused to employ skilled colored carpenters, but did hire a great many white men provided by labor unions who were not competent in any way.

Colonel Somervell testified that that in one camp, where the greatest turnover occurred, four times as many men as were needed during the course of the job were hired and the incompetent ones were discharged as soon as they had earned enough money to pay their dues in the union. It was added that some were discharged in three hours' time and some remained on the job for four or five days before their incompetency was discovered.

MAR 8 1941

UP TO CONTRACTORS

Employment of labor to build camps and cantonments for the army is a matter for the contractors, Colonel Somervell said. "Obviously, no one would take a contract unless he had the right to hire and fire his people.

"Now, some of the contractors have union arrangements and some ofthem do not. They have maintained their customary union arrangements on the jobs they have had with us."

MAR 8 1941

Wage rates on army construction contracts are fixed by the Labor Department. Whether the contractor is a union or nonunion contractor the cost to the United States is the same.

One of the contracts for which additional funds is carried in the bill is the contract for building a cantonment camp and replacement center at Fort Belvoir, Va. Fort Belvoir is the Engineers' School. It is contemplated that there will be 18,000 troops at this center by July 1, of whom 2,000 will be colored.

CONTRACT LET

The contract for Fort Belvoir was let to Charles H. Tompkins Company, Washington, D. C. and Potts and Callahan Contracting Company, Baltimore. The cost of the contract is $5,749,243, of which the fixed-fee is $186,357.

Colored organizations in the Tidewater area of Virginia protested to high government officials including Sidney B. Hillman co-administrator of the Office of Production Management, against discrimination against colored skilled workers seeking employment on the Fort Belvoir job.

Mr. Hillman has not yet disclosed what action he took, although the contract is due for completion at an early date.

Defense Jim Crow "On Spot"

Pledge Given Negro Builders At Hampton

FEB 19 1941

HAMPTON INSTITUTE, Va. — (SNS)— The 15th biennial Hampton Builders' Conference meeting in conjunction with the National Builders' Association on February 10, 11 and 12 at Hampton Institute, was packed with nationally significant events concerning Defense construction and the Negro.

In a personal letter to the assembled delegates, John M. Carmody, administrator of the Federal Works Agency announced for the first time the opening of an immediate inquiry into discrimination against Negroes on National Defense housing projects in the Hampton Roads area.

With this hurdle passed, the 200 delegates from 20 states listened to George Zuidema, sole hiring agent for all contractors engaged in construction work at Fort Eustis, Virginia, as he attempted to answer the personal charges made on his discriminatory practices again skilled Negroes.

Unsatisfied with Zuidema's explanation that you "can't change a custom overnight," the Conference dispatched a 580-word telegram to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and 19 other key government officials, denouncing discriminatory practices, submitting specific proof, and asking for immediate action.

The National Defense program of vocational education training for Negroes was praised in a resolution passed at the close of the meeting.

Organized in 1923, this meeting of the Hampton Builders' Conference proved to be most outstanding in its history. Elected president of the National Builders' Association was Walter H. Aiken, Atlanta, contractor. It was announced that next year's conference will be held in the Municipal Auditorium, Atlanta, Dr. Malcolm S. McLean addressed the conference at a banquet on Monday evening and introduced H. Whittemore Brown, who organized the conference in 1923.

FEB 19 1941

In explaining his reasons for not hiring a single Negro carpenter among the 2000 carpenters employed at the Fort Eustis project, Mr. Zuidema told the delegates that 2300 of the 5800 employees at the Fort were colored workers. He did however, refused to answer a pointed question to explain why "he felt that skilled Negro carpenters cannot work side by side with white carpenters at Fort Eustis—when it is now being done successfully at Fort Monroe, a few miles away."

The resolution sent to President Roosevelt, government officials, and the press, denounced the action of numerous firms holding government contracts and certain organized labor groups.

Minnesota Negro Defense Group Fights For Jobs

AUG 25 1941

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 21 (ANP) Saturday, August 9th, saw plans laid for the continuance of the fight to secure full equality for Negroes in Minnesota home defense force by the Minnesota Negro Defense committee, with the naming of a committee to contact personnel of local firms with defense contracts, seeking to secure employment for Negroes. At the same time, Gov. Harold E. Stassen received an invitation to speak at a mass meeting given Sunday, August 17, in the Hallie Q. Brown house, on his position in regards to Negroes in Minnesota's home defense program. Discussion held on the matter of obtaining jobs in various defense industries, drew several hundred whites and Negro citizens of the twin cities.

The Minnesota state fair board's attention was directed, in a letter, to acts of discrimination practiced at the state fair last year, wherein a Minneapolis minister was charged 75 cents for a hamburger at one of the concessions there, informing the board that such would not be tolerated this year.

In the Navy, Messmen Only

The Kansas City naval recruiting station has issued an urgent call for young Negroes to enlist as messmen.

SEP 10 1941

Every time the navy asks for Negro messmen our blood boils. It is not that we don't want some of our men to serve in the mess branch of the service but we object to the fact that all Negroes who enlist in the navy are limited to mess service.

Why can't some of our stalwart, brave lads who would risk their lives for Uncle Sam don a sailor suit and fire some of the big naval guns?

If black boys can make up crack units in the army, if some of them can rise to the rank of lieutenant, colonel and even general, if they are good soldiers on the land, why wouldn't they be good sailors on the sea? There have been black sailors and famous ones in past wars of this country. Why not now?

In the National Defense program, the army has gone so far ahead of the navy in practicing real democracy and Americanism that the navy, from the secretary down to local recruiting officers, is out of step with the times when a call is made for "Negroes as messmen only."

SEP 10 1941

As this country becomes further involved in war and loyal, courageous men are needed to defend these shores against invasion, we would not be surprised if the navy should drop its color bar and begin to enlist Negroes in all branches of the service.

'Let Negroes Be Janitors,' Says Boilermakers Union

SEP 19 1941

PORTLAND, Oregon.—The Boilermakers union, Local 72, with offices in Labor Temple here has been accused of "flagrant discrimination" by the Advisory Council for Negroes and was reported last week to the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice now holding hearings in Los Angeles.

From a copy of the complaint sent to it by the Advisory Council, the local N. A. A. C. P. revealed that the local apparently is keeping four companies which have stated in writing their willingness to use Negro workers in any and all plant operations from doing so.

The Oregon Shipbuilding corporation, Willamette Iron and Steel, Commercial Iron Works, Albina Machinist Works, all of this city are under contract to the union. This union is reported to have refused to grant the request of Dr. D. N. Unthank, chairman of the Advisory Council to abolish its policy of excluding Negro members.

The refusal was made on grounds that "the available supply of Negro labor in this area could be absorbed as janitors."

The wage for janitors is about 77 cents an hour. The prevailing wage for boilermakers is approximately $1.25, according to Dr. Unthank.

"Atlantic Charter Designed For Whites Only"--Churchill

OCT 11 1941

By Our Londo Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 9. (Censored)—The Prime Minister's statement that the Atlantic Charter drawn up between himself and President Roosevelt will not apply to the colored races within the British Empire, has created much resentment among Colonials in the British capital, especially as Major C. R. Attlee, the Deputy Prime Minister, has assured African students that "it means dark races too."

Speaking in the House of Commons, Mr. Churchill told M.Ps. that "At the Atlantic meeting we had in mind primarily restoration of the sovereignty, self-government and national life of the States and nations of Europe. * * That is quite a separate problem from the progressive evolution of self-governing institutions in the regions and peoples which owe allegiance to the British Crown."

WHAT THE LABOR LEADER SAID

"Colored races, as well as white, will share the benefits of the Churchill-Roosevelt Atlantic Charter," declared the leader of the Labor Party and Deputy Prime Minister Major Attlee, addressing the members of the West Africa Students' Union in London a few days before The Prime Minister made his statement in Parliament.

OCT 11 1941

Major Attlee told the colored students that "we in the Labor Party have always been conscious of the wrongs done by the white races to the races with darker skins. We have always demanded that the freedom which we claim for ourselves should be extended to all men.

"You will not find in the declarations which have been made on behalf of the government of this country on the war any suggestion that the freedom and social security for which we fight should be denied to any of the races of mankind.

"We fight this war not just for ourselves alone, but for all peoples. I look for an ever-increasing measure of self-government in Africa, and for an ever-rising standard of life for all the peoples of Africa," concluded the Deputy Leader of the British nation.

PRESS CRITICISE CHURCHILL

Criticising the Prime Minister's speech, the Liberal "News-Chronicle," declares editorially: "Mr. Churchill has had a bad political record on India. He never wholly eradicated from his mind the early bias of a subaltern in India, who was convinced of the superiority of the rule of English sahibs. He was the leader of the Tory Diehards who did their best to destroy the government of India Bill which became law in 1935. In Indian eyes his present intentions are therefore doubly suspect. But he is a big enough man to cut out the past and to deal honestly with present realities."

The newspaper points out that the colored races of the Empire have supported Britain in her hour of need with money, men and materials. "They have earned the reward which reason and justice should have given them long ago. Mr. Churchill must think again. Otherwise the Atlantic Charter will become for hundreds of millions a symbol of hypocrisy."

Philadelphia Groups Fight to Enforce Ban Against Jim-Crow

Negro Congress Lists Cases of Active Discrimination Against Skilled Men In Defense Industries

SEP 29 1941

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 28.—Samuel Watson is a young Negro worker certified after a course at the Bok Vocational School as a welder and was, on Aug. 2, called to work at the Cramp Shipyard.

Watson is still unemployed; he didn't get his job building ships for democracy because he is a NEGRO welder.

The Job Campaign Committee of the Philadelphia Council of the National Negro Congress, which is fighting for the execution of President Roosevelt's order demanding that all firms handling national defense work hire all workers, regardless of color told the story of Samuel Watson and of many more Negro workers among the quarter million Philadelphia Negroes who would work for the defeat of Hitlerism but who are being prevented by prejudice as dangerous as appeasing Hitler.

SMACKS OF HITLERISM

E. Washington Rhodes, publisher of the progressive Negro weekly, the Philadelphia Tribune, said: "In my opinion it is an exceptionally stupid policy for the training schools and industry to refuse to train colored workers because industry has heretofore refused to employ the Negro. They are more than stupid. They are reactionary and smack of Hitlerism. The Negro worker is a store house for democracy. Only people blinded by prejudice can fail to observe this. . . ."

The Job Campaign Committee of the National Negro Congress, under the chairmanship of Dr. N. F. Mossell, founder of the Frederick Douglass Memorial Hospital, the first Negro hospital in the United States, went to the Cramp shipyard to see what it could do to break down discrimination.

After a meeting with the management they received the following communication:

"The Cramp Co. reaffirms the previously published statement to the OPM that it will accept trainees of the Negro race, all other things being equal. However, as stated by President Reed (of Cramps) in the conference, it is definitely the policy of the company that it cannot permit itself to be used as the instrumentality for overridding certain practices and rules with reference to the employment of colored persons.

"The Cramp Company will not agree to attempt to employ a definite stated percentage of its working force based on either percentage of colored or any other proportion, but will follow strictly the policy outlined above."

There are no Negroes in the three training schools of this gigantic plant.

But even the 139 Negroes working here represent a partial victory for the Jobs Campaign Committee. Last year only 19 Negroes were employed in this shipyard.

The Sun Shipbuilding Co. asked for four carpenters. The carpenters union sent four skilled men. They were hired; they too were Negroes.

The union in a letter to the company wrote:

"In times like these when the world is on fire we must take every opportunity to break down the ignorance and stupidity of those who would deny employment because of color.

"We are informed that men are being employed regularly as carpenters yet our men were deprived of employment.

"In the present emergency every one is expected to do his share in furthering the national interest. Therefore it is repugnant to every principle of American democracy to bar any group of our citizens."

There is also the case of Westinghouse Electric, second largest monopoly in the electrical field in the world.

Two skilled carpenters, R. Elly and George Hicks, have been applying for jobs at Westinghouse very often.

Each time they are told to return. They are not told bluntly that Negro workers aren't hired; they are given the run-around. Finally, after four or five visits, they were told by the company police: "We don't want your kind around here."

The Westinghouse case has been taken to the President's Fair Practice Employment Committee and a hearing has been demanded.

That Missing Freedom

Ever since papers not friendly to our national defense program raised the question about a certain freedom being left out at the famous Churchill-Roosevelt meeting somewhere in the Atlantic, it was evident that some request favoring religious freedom in behalf of the Russians was forthcoming.

OCT 28 1941

At a recent press conference the President made some remarks favorable to the granting of religious freedom to Russian subjects. Stalin of course if he is expecting help from the United States will give such a request for serious consideration. If he does not, then he will be heaping coals of fire on his back. He will be giving quarter to those isolation groups not only in the senate but all over the country who are opposed to the national defense policy.

Through this medium Stalin may be forced to grant to the people of Russia that missing freedom. In his extremity Stalin may make this move and the long suffering people of Russia may be the beneficiary of what thousands long have sought.

OCT 28 1941 OCT 28 1941

In our own country is a missing freedom. That freedom of political participation and economic security. There are millions of colored American citizens denied the right to vote in primaries of their faith. The lack of voting power has destroyed their educational, economic and civic enterprises. Under this system the non voters are ever in the breadlines of opportunity and educational activity, holding their hands as poor wards. This accounts to threatened marches on capitols, never ending protests to the President of the United States and half settled issues that do nobody good. If these people had full voting power they would not stand in the protest lines nor threaten to march anywhere but to the polls in seeking remedy for their ill's.

Under the old axiom of sweep before your own door before you ask others to sweep before theirs—and straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel somebody might raise the question of the political emancipation of millions of blacks in America struggling in poverty and suffering many partialities in the training camps where they are trying to prepart to defend a democracy that is seeking for foreign people that missing freedom.

UAW-CIO HEADS TELL PLANTS "NO MORE DISCRIMINATION"

OCT 25 1941

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 23.—It was reported to the N.A.A.C.P. last week that the International Executive Board of the United Automobile Workers, CIO affiliate, unanimously adopted a resolution demanding an end to discrimination against Negroes in plants holding UAW-CIO contracts.

The resolution was passed after Negro members of the Detroit locals presented the problems of the colored worker to the board. The resolution states that curtailment of automobile production have seriously aggravated the problem of the Negro worker, and that it is hard for Negroes to get transferred from non-defense to defense work.

The executive board resolved that all plant managements "covered by UAW-CIO contracts be immediately notified that any further racial discrimination will not be tolerated; that the International president appoint a committee to make available reports on the problems of Negro workers; that when dissension occurs among Negro and white workers, we recommend that the local union involved establish a joint committee to make a summary and investigation and report to the regional director and national committee."

Ethridge and Cramer Prepare for Hearing on Defense Jim-Crow

Heads of FEC Committee Confer With Urban League and N.A.A.C.P on Investigation To Be Made

NEW YORK — (ANP) —Mark Ethridge, chairman, and Lawrence Cramer, executive secretary of the Fair Employment Practice committee, conferred here Wednesday afternoon with representatives of th various Urban League and NAA CP branches as well as the Governor's Committee Against Discrimination in Defense Industry in preparation for hearings that will be held in this area this fall on quality of compliance with the President's executive order barring bias in defense hiring.

While no specific date was announced for these hearings, they will not be undertaken until a study has been made elsewhere. It has already been announced that the first such hearings will be conducted in Los Angeles on Oct. 1 and 2.

Both Mr. Ethridge and Mr. Cramer were enroute to Hartford, Conn., when they stopped off here. At their request, Robert Washburn, executive secretary of the governor's committee hurriedly invited the various representatives to confer. They were Miss Frieda Miller, state industrial commissioner, and John Habberton, all for the governor's committee; Lester Granger, National Urban League; Charles Berkley, Brooklyn Urban League; Charles Collier, New York Urban League; Walter White, NAACP; and Richard Walker, United States Employment service.

The group informally discussed specific firms in the New York area which have refused to cooperate and a few which have given but reluctant copperation with regard to the executive order. In view of the fact that the committee is not yet prepared to hold hearings here, it was deemed advisable to withhold the names of these firms for the time being.

The talks, however, did reach out and include the broader aspects of the question of employment of Negroes by firms holding defense contracts. Consideration was given to the manner in which the hearings will be handled. So far as be determined, no specific conclusions were arrived at, nor was any official statement released.

SEP 19 1941

The two FEPC omcials left Thursday morning for Hartford where they intended to give their attention to the situation at the Colt Fire Arms company, a firm that has steadfastly refused to comply with the order. At least Mr Cramer was expected to return to New York for a Friday conference with another group which is seeking to coordinate the job-seeking activities of the various agencies locally.

Report Says There Is No Justification For Injustice to Negroes

Representatives of 32 Goverhment Agencies Make Study Preceeding Roosevelt's Recent Executive Order

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP).—Blasting discriminatory practices against Negroes in civil service, the report of the Council of Personnel Administrators is one of the "hottest" documents to reach President Roosevelt's desk recently, sources close to the administration declare.

Going into full detail on discriminations, it is reported the document states "there has been no justification for the cruel and unjust treatment accorded Negroes under present procedures."

The result of months of study by the personnel administrators of the 32 governmental agencies operating in the city, this report is one which has been eagerly awaited and as soon as it was submitted to the President, action was expected.

Nothing has been said of the report, nothing has been released, but it is known that it made the "boys' on the Hill strangely silent.

The report, laid on the President's desk sometime back, plus the urgency of the Fair Employment Practice committee, is believed responsible for the recent issuance of the executive order to the governmental agencies banning discrimination in the employ of Negroes under the civil service.

An inkling of what the report contained was bruited about town early in the week but it was discussed in whispers and in an 'off-the-record" manner.

However, one of the offshoots of the action of the President was recorded in a local daily as follows:

Five Negroes were sent to the war department to take positions as clerks or stenographers. The personnel director refused to accept them. They in turn notified someone, (believed to be Secretary McReynolds at the White House) and the order went back to the war department to place these applicants on the job, or else there would be a new personnel administrator in the war department the next morning. They went to work.

As far back as early spring, the Council of Personnel Administrators has been at work on this problem.

SEP 19 1941

Meeting with the various Negro department heads, they sought the advice of these officials and discussed at length the problem of integrating the workers into the regular set-ups or of establishing segregated units.

To the everlasting credit of the council, it went on record and so reported to the President that it was for complete integration of Negro workers along with the whites.

The report is one of the most important documents—even as important as the original executive order of June 25 to the industrial plants, since it gives Negroes an opportunity in the many bureaus of the government. And since there are over a million people on the payrolls of the government it is hardly going too far afield to expect that at least 10 per cent of these employes will be Negroes.

Profiting by the report, Negroes accepted under the civil service will be amenable to all the rules and regulations thereof, with regard to promotions and other benefits now enjoyed only by the whites.

N. Carolina Ill Feeling Continues

Civilians and Soldiers of Both Races Conflict

KINSTON, N. C.—(ANP)— That there is much ill feeling between soldiers and civilians of both races in this state is apparent by the frequent outbursts and clashes. Many of these soldiers, both white and colored, are from the north, and with them comes the burning resentment for the southern white and colored persons. It is commonly known that white southerners do not like Negro soldiers, particularly from the north, as can be seen from recent happenings in southern camps; but white soldiers bear no good-will for southern white citizenry either, and frequently are at opposite ends in a struggle to ridicule and mistreat each other. Another side is revealed in the southern Negro civilians dislike for northern Negro soldiers.

Reports emanating from this city last week reveal that authorities have requested that the number of Negro soldiers permitted to visit here be curtailed, since they caused considerable disturbance while here. It is said that about 1,000 spent the week end here, and the police were kept quite bbusy. The disorders however, were blamed on a comparatively small number.

Among the incidents said to have occurred was the stabbing of Ralph Hicks, local Negro teacher, by a soldier, James Roberts, at Hillcrest, a suburban resort. Hicks was dangerously wounded and Roberts was arrested by a lone policeman who spirited him away from the crowd which protested his arrest.

Reports have it that several white women were "insulted" by Negroes in uniform, and the rumor is going around that a white girl had been slain by a soldier in an outlying district. The report was announced untrue, however, but officials says that such reports can be exceedingly dangerous.

At a colored hotel, a civilian was knifed by a soldier when the citizen resented the attentions of the soldier to his girl friend. Two arrests were made, but six policemen were needed to remove the prisoners from the hotel. Although threats were made, the police did not draw their pistols.

James Canady, a white cab driver, was assaulted with a hammer and robbed by a soldier and a man who might have been a soldier in civilian attire. Canady was choked and beaten on the head, but escaped severe injury. Another cab was approaching and Canady managed to blow his horn. With the occupants stopping to investigate, his assailants fled into a field. He reported a loss of $15.

Authorities say that army officials did not ask for the return of soldiers picked up by police, but expected them to be dealt with by the police court.

First Lady Cheered by 700 Women

Says All Have Vital Part to Play for U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C.— In simple straight-forward language Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told 700 Negro women leaders from forty states the District of Columbia, Cuba, the British West Indies, and the Virgin Islands that there will be no Jim Crow in the operating policy of the Civilian Defense Program, and they cheered her to the rafters.

Speaking in her capacity as assistant to Civilian Defense Director Fiorello LaGuardia, the First Lady addressed the opening meeting of the National Council of Negro Women's two-day conference held here in the auditorium of the Labor Department.

"As Negro women you have a vital part to play in the Civilian Defense program," she said. "You're going to defend your way of life more wholeheartedly than ever before. I hope that every one of you will go back to your community and take advantage of every contact that you have in order to make this program of civilian defense effective.

"We hope to have bureaus of information and placement in every community, and I hope that in no bureau will there be discrimination on account of race, creed or color. We are asking that all citizens be treated alike and I think we will succeed."

Mrs. Roosevelt was introduced by Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, director of the Office of Negro affairs in the National Youth Administration, and president of the National Council of Negro Women.

Praising the First Lady as a great woman who "comes here to learn from Negro women as well as to bring us a vital message," Mrs. Bethune characterized the Conference as the most important gathering of Negro women in America. "We have here leaders from every National Negro Women's organization in this country," she said, "And they represent the powerful influence of Negro women in every strata of our economic life."

Mrs. Roosevelt made it clear that she regarded the whole Civilian Defense program as an opportunity for the American people of all races and creeds to learn something more about what constitutes real democracy.

"I hope that this program is going to teach us to work together with anybody who wants to work," she declared. "Whatever our race or religion, we have got to remember that if we're going to make this a country where everybody has an equal chance to obtain those certain rights that go with freedom, we have got to work together.

Othe speakers on the program which was a symposiumon the role of the National Council in World affairs, were: Mrs. Vivian Carter Mason, Mrs. Sue Bailey Thurman, Miss Dorothy Height, Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, Miss Elsie Austin, and Miss Carita V. Roane.

Mrs. Roosevelt explained to the delegates that because of the large number she was unable to keep her original plan to have the first meeting of the Conference at the White House. Immediately, after the meeting she led the entire delegation in a bus motorcade to the White House, where they were her guests at tea.

Cops Hold Crowd At Bay As M. P.'s Beat Soldier

TAMPA, Fla. (ANP) -- While seven white military policemen stood guard with pistols drawn and deputy sheriffs forced the gathering crowd to move on, an unidentified soldier was severely beaten here Sunday by white M. P.'s from MacDill Field.

The trouble began when a soldier walked out of a local tavern with his shirt collar open and the lapel of his shirt pocket out of place. An M. P. approached and told him to arrange his clothing properly. When the soldier did not respond immediately the M. P. struck him across the head.

The soldier ran but was chased and caught by the M. P., as seven others rushed up. They drew their guns as a crowd, including other colored soldiers, gathered. The unarmed soldier meanwhile was being beaten unmercifully, and finally was placed in a car and carried away. The sheriff's force had been called to the scene and blocked off the area driving spectators on.

Conditions Bad

Colored soldiers say conditions are generally bad at MacDill Field, with M. P.'s assaulting troops with little or no provocation. A group of colored soldiers was shot at one night last week while returning to their quarters through the white area of the encampment. There is no other way to reach the colored section.

A few weeks ago, two were shot on a Tampa street by M. P.'s and local police. One of them, Sgt. Gilbert D. Wagoner, Jr., was taken to the county hospital and then to jail on charges of assault with intent to kill the city policeman, although witnesses and Wagoner say he was unarmed and never approached within ten feet of the officer who joined in the fray and shot Wagoner in the hip as he sought to protect himself from the M. P.

Bragg's First Pay Day After Tragedy, Peaceful

FORT BRAGG, N C — (ANP) —In the unusual manner, Negro troops stationed here were paid the fifth of the month which was exactly a month from the tragic incident involving the death of heroic Pvt. Ned Turman who was shot down by a white M. P. in the Fort Bragg bus. Only two large Negro units were on the post payday, September 5. These were the 16th btatalion, field artillery replacement center and the 76th coast artillery (AA). The others were out on maneuvers and firing problems.

In a plan to attempt to halt public criticism "temporary Negro military policemen" were selected to serve during the payday season. These temporary M. P.'s were stationed in the badlands where Negroes are settled heavily but none were seen in or around the bus station where a large percentage of trouble usually brews.

In an impromptu poll with the Negro M. P.'s it was noted that there was very little trouble paynight or afterwards. The Negro M. P.'s are not given the training as the whites are given and are usually told indirectly or directly not to arrest white soldiers. Since the recent inspection tour of Brig. Gen. B. O. Davis, it is believed that fully trained regular Negro military men for all time M. P. duty would be recommended.

The union bus station at Fayetteville is crowded nightly with Negro soldiers on pass or furlough visiting Raleigh, Durham, Wilmington, the Atlantic beach and other points. Most of them are forceed to stay in Fayetteville or in camp due to the cost of transportation. With the school season opening at the Fayetteville State Teachers' college, there will be many recreational affairs for soldiers and students of that institution arranged by army morale officers and school officials.

The Fayetteville city police authorities have just about cleaned up prostitutes who were operating in Fayetteville's notorious "Little Harlem." Women who are seen soliciting are arrested and taken to jail and are examined by public health authorities. If the examinations proves these women have any of the various social diseases, they are sentenced to terms of from 3 to 12 months at the state women's prison in Raleigh.

Army officials recommended a cleanup drive in Fayettebille's vice lands inasmuch as this fort has an extremely high percentage of social diseases among the enlisted men.

Sunday night taxicab owners and cafe operators were not near as busy as they had been in the past four weeks. There were numerous arrests made also of cab drivers who were caught contacting women for soldiers and "pad" operators. These "pads," as soldiers term them, are the ragged houses where usually five or six women are located. At this time, there are very few Negro or white prostitutes seen on Fayetteville streets.

OPINION

KEEPING 366th OUT OF DIXIE IS WISE

We have heard some complaint, but not a great deal, because the 366th Regiment at Fort Devens, Mass., was not sent into North Carolina for the war games.

Secretly, we are very glad that it was kept in New England, where it is in camp.

Any advantage gained from experience in war maneuvers would have been nullified by lowered morale resulting from clashing with Southern race prejudice.

Of course, the government ought to be able to protect its soldier defenders from unprovoked abuse and the attacks of prejudiced white civilians.

Of course, Southern communities must be taught to respect the uniform of the U.S. Army, whether worn by black or white men.

But the government isn't protecting them, and until it does, we say that Northern soldiers should be trained in the North.

All of us who are in the North and West are migrant fugitives from Southern oppression. In many cases we have sacrificed everything in order to seek freedom from jim crow, for the right to an education, and the right to vote.

No occasion, as we see it, is important enough to compel these men to go back into the "slavery of Egypt" once they have crossed the Red Sea."

Whether the War Department or the officers of the 366th themselves are responsible for the order which keeps this regiment out of Dixie, we think it wise.

REFUSE TO SEND 366TH SOUTH FOR ARMY PRACTICE

OCT 12 1941

FORT DEVENS, Mass.—Negro troops of the 366th regiment will not take part in the coming war maneuvers of the first and fourth armies in the south, Col. William H. Smith, announced Thursday without further comment. The regiment is stationed at Fort Devens, Mass.

Despite the fact that Col. Smith did not reveal the motive for holding the soldiers back from the normal and expected training in the south it is obvious that the persistent friction between Negro troops from the north and southerners was the chief and lone motivating factor.

It was a concession to the south and can not be a move calculated to increase either army morale or military efficiency.

To practice in the most modern of blitz battle the south is the scene of the "mock battlefields." Just how the men intend to obtain the best practice our country has devised in battlefield technique is more or less speculative. It is highly probable that the War Department was thinking less of battlefield technique and military efficiency than it was of the attitude of the south toward the presence of Negro soldiers.

It is a case of the Civil War being set in progress with the south still gaining concessions. It will be remembered that the Negro soldiers for the most part fought with the Union forces. Since that time the white south has had a bitter resentment to a Negro in army uniform. The World War days revealed the most caustic and malicious treatment of colored soldiers on the part of southerners.

Governor Stassen Faces Court Action By Minn. NAACP

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Because Governor Harold Stassen claims to be helpless to admit Negroes to Minnesota's Home Defense set-up, claiming that he is bound by the "military code of the federal army" and that this code excludes Negroes, the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, plans action in the state courts against the governor and the adjutant general of the state.

OCT 11 1941

Negroes who voluntered were not accepted and attempts were made to set up a Jim Crow company. The Governor appeared before a mass meeting called by the branch and said he was in total disagreement with the discrimination. But he stated flatly that it was beyond his power to change the situation because he claimed the Adjuant General's office must operate according to the federal military code which excludes Negroes.

The action planned by the NAACP in this case is the first of its kind.

Race Problem Stand Rapped

Insists Solution Lies In Disregarding Color Question

LITTLE ROCK—Taking to task Dr. J. B. Watson, president of the Agricultural, Mechanical and Normal College, Pine Bluff, for his position on the recent incidents between "Negro soldiers and white civilians in various southern communities," the Rev. J. C. Clay made public this week a copy of a letter he wrote the college president immediately following the appearance of his views published in a Little Rock daily paper under a Pine Bluff date line.

The purported views allegedly given out by Dr. Watson said among other things: "The Army has neglected to take the precaution to cultivate the local community to which the Negro should be brought, by sending in advance Army officers for preliminary conferences with the officials and leading citizens of the community.

"A conference with city and county officers and the ministers, for instance, of the community would help prepare the community for the unusual experience of having in their midst Negro soldiers with Army guns and Government uniforms. In the second place, the Government has not taken proper precaution to prepare Negro soldiers for an event all so unusual."

The Rev. Mr. Clay, C. M. E. presiding elder, of the Forst Smith district, takes sharp difference with Dr. Watson's views, declaring:

"The way to avoid friction between whites and Negro soldiers is for every one to agree that an American is just a soldier regardless of his race, color or creed."

BAR NEGRO TROOPS FROM MOCK BATTLES

OCT 11 1941

Jim Crow 366th Left Out Of Southern War Maneuvers

47d

Valuable training in offensive and defensive tactics, lessons on the "must" list for any man who faces the possibility of having to help check a modern, highly mechanized blitz attacks, will be denied members of the jim crow 366th regiment stationed at Fort Devens, Mass.

The Negro regiment was informed that it would not be transferred to the South to participate in the war games of the 1st and 4th armies, by Col. William H. Smith, Thursday.

The jim crow outfit will remain in the cantonment for the duration of the maneuvers, after which, if called into actual combat, it will enter handicapped by lack of training.

Colonel Smith declined to state reasons why the Race troops will not be sent South along with other outfits at Fort Devens.

It could not be determined immediately whether the decision to keep the 366th out of the South was made in Washington. The decision, however, follows closely after agitation in some quarters to keep all Negro troops north of the Mason and Dixon line.

This point of view was vigorously opposed by the Chicago Defender, thousands of its readers, and others unwilling to have their government surrender to undemocratic sectional prejudices.

OCT 11 1941

The decision to bar Negro soldiers from participation in the war maneuvers because they are being held in the South means either that the government is unwilling to challenge a philosophy which may, if allowed to flower, destroy it, or that keeping the Negro troops out of the South is a simple way to dispose of a knotty problem, about which it is not too much concerned anyway.

Already known attitudes of the War Department make it easy for one to lay at its door responsibility for any such action.

The Chicago Defender has charged without contradiction from any branch or officer of the government that the War Department is not concerned about the problems facing Negro soldiers unless they affect its routine or mar in any way army efficiency.

It was for this reason that the Chicago Defender failed to be impressed by the War Department's announcement that investigations were being made of numerous reports of brutality and injustices suffered by Race soldiers.

Investigating all reports of irregularities is a part of War Department routine. Investigations are not necessary to establish that Negro soldiers are not being treated like other soldiers.

The War Department knows it, because it has adopted a racial policy, the underlying factor of which is the belief that whites are superior.

Fruits of Protest

Last March when J. H. Kindelberger startled the country with his statement that the North American bomber plant in Kansas City, Kas., would not employ Negroes as aircraft workers no matter how skilled the might be, Negro citizens made a mass protest which resounded all over the country.

That protest had a far-reaching effect. It reached the ears of high officials in Washington. It started a nation-wide movement to eliminate discrimination against Negroes in defense industries. It influenced other cities to hold similar demonstrations against thoughtless un-Americanism. It led to the breaking down of age-old barriers against Negro skilled labor in the Kansas City community. It resulted in a successful fight for the training of Negro youth for defense industry.

All of these developments were by-products of the mammoth mass meeting which was held primarily to bring about a change in policy of the North American Aviation company.

This week, that primary purpose is about to be realized. Four young Negro men who have completed an aircraft sheet metal course were called Monday to begin a week's try-out at the bomber plant which has not yet begun full production. The four young men are skilled workers and if they pass the company's test they will be put to work as aircraft sheet metal workers.

Kindelberger never has publicly retracted the policy of "Negroes as janitors only" that he announced last March. He has not answered the hundreds of communications sent him by Negro citizens and organizations. He has not stated openly that he intends to follow the President's executive order and the policy of the Office of Production Management.

But the calling of Negro aircraft workers to the bomber plant is concrete evidence that Mr. Kindelberger and the North American Aviation company fully intend, as do all good Americans, to comply with the principles and policies laid down by the federal government. We can overlook the fact that Mr. Kindelberger has not publicly retracted his statement of last March if only he will continue to employ Negro skilled workers. That "actions speak louder than words" is an old axiom. It is as true now as when first spoken.

LAWYER FLAYS NEGRO OFFICIALS; OXLEY LOST TEMPER, CRITICIZED

OCT 19 1941

By J. W. TATE for ANP

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 16—More than 800 persons witnessed a heated controversy when they attended a citizen's mass meeting Sunday at Phyllis Wheatley Settlement house sponsored by the Minnesota Negro Defense committee. The principals in the verbal battle were Jonas Schwartz, white, and Lawrence A. Oxley, supervisor of racial relations unit, U. S. Bureau of Employment Security, Washington.

Mr. Oxley gave a summary of the work of his department in the fight for Negro jobs in the defense program. He referred to the President's executive order against discrimination and the urgency of Negro training and made an appeal that Negroes not resent the many unpleasant obstacles that may be thrown in their path.

Atty. Schwartz, who is a liberal Jew, was invited by the chairman of the meeting to make a few remarks. He criticized the attitude of the Negro government officials and stated that Oxley knew that very little would be done because of the insincerity of those controlling the set-up. Schwartz further disagreed with Oxley in his praise of the Ford Motor company's hiring of Negroes on a percentage basis according to population.

He said, I believe if five jobs are open and there are five competent Negroes available, they should have the jobs irrespective of racial population.

Officials Not Sincere

He concluded his criticism by stating if these Negro government paid officials were sincere about this discrimination breakdown, they would resign from their jobs in two weeks after they were employed or force a change of condition.

Mr. Oxley apparently became angry as he interrupted Mr. Schwartz and challenged him to a debate, called him a demogogue, and exclaimed, "I know better Jews than you!"

J. FINLEY WILSON RESIGNS FROM AMERICA FIRST COMMITTEE

ONE RESULT of Col, Charles A. Lindbergh's recent speech in which he blasted Jews as war-mongers, has been the resignation of J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the I. B. P. O. Elks of the World, from the America First Committee, under whose auspices Col. Lindbergh has been speaking. In a letter to M. R. Hufty, national organization director, Mr. Wilson wrote:

OCT 18 1941

"I am resigning from the committee because I cannot follow the views expressed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. As a great flier he once ruled the hearts of the American people. His recent expressions, however, in connection with his attitude toward the Jewish people, are not in keeping with the ideals of Americanism which I believe all patriotic Americans should hold to dearly . . . I cannot allow myself or my organization, the Improved, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World, to be drawn into giving aid and comfort to the twin brutes of Europe, Hitler and Mussolini, by speaking disparagingly of another race of people."

The Grand Exalted Ruler takes high ground in recogniizng that no Negro, as a member of a minority group in this country, can afford to be party to the general condemnation of any racial group by an individual or organization which would hold that group as a whole accountable for the acts of its individual members.

Such an attitude only fosters racial intolerance and we have been a victim too long of such an attitude on the part of many whites in this country. OCT 18 1941

In making amends for his mis-leadership in allgning his order with the America First Committee Mr. Wilson has caused to be published a booklet, "The Colored Elks and National Defense," in which some valuable material has been presented to the antlered herd and an appeal to their pariotism is made.

Curtiss-Wright Will Employ Negroes In All Capacities; Wright Company To Hire 1,500; Cites Training Need

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP).—Continuing the breaking down of jim-crowism in industry, the Office of Production Management adds to the report submitted two weeks ago, listing some additional organizations which have taken on Negroes and at the same time pointing out that the previously listed firms have greatly increased their Negro personnel.

Dr. Robert C. Weaver said the Curtiss Wright company at Beaver, Pa., just about ready to open, will employ Negroes in all capacities. Trainees are now being taught in the schools and the same policy will be followed as is in effect in the plants at Buffalo, Cincinnati and Columbus, O.

The Union Switch and Signal company of Pittsburgh, has 90 Negroes, employed as moulders, helpers, assistants, firemen, truckers and generally. The company plans to "up-grade" these men and hire additional Negroes. There is a definite need here for skilled men for foundry work.

The Hartsook Machine company in Cleveland, has employed two Negroes as machineshop trainees, and the Taylor Chemical company of the same city has also two Negro machineshop trainees. Both of these are rather small companies.

The Ford Instrument company of Brooklyn, has increased its Negro employes from 7 to 17. They are engaged in skilled and semi-skilled labor.

OCT 17 1941

Hire Negro Electrician

The Republican Aviation company, Long Island, has a Negro electrician who is also a tool and die maker. Negro trainees are in the Republic school, training for aircraft work.

The Remington Arms company at Bridgeport, Conn., has 40 Negroes as machine operators and semi-skilled workers. They formerly had two Negroes employed as janitors.

At the Seneca Amunition depot, New York, 250 Negroes, or about 20 per cent of the whole staff, are engaged in construction work and many will be hired upon completion of the plant.

The Curtiss Wright plant at Columbus, O., has 120 Negroes as machine tool operators, fabricators, sheet metal workers and 20 more are being trained to go into the factory immediately upon completion of their courses.

It is interesting to note that in connection with this the local Urban league maintains a revolving fund, allowing each trainee to borrow $10 for tool purchase. This is returned to the league when the trainees starts work .

The Otis Elevator company at Harrison, N. J., has taken on six Negro crane operators. More are scheduled to begin work this week and the company is calling for all the skilled and semi-skilled workers it can find.

The Brewster Aeronautic company of Newark has increased its Negro personnel from six to 22 of which three are machine operators and five paint sprayers. Ten Negroes are enrolled as sheet metal workers and being trained in the Bloomfield school for immediate employment ni the Newark plant.

The Kelco Chemical company of Plainfield, N. J., employs 150 Negroes as process workers and more are being added to the group.

The Crucible Steel company of Harrison, N. J., has 300 Negro workers skilled and unskilled laborers. They have asked the state employment office for as many skilled Negro workers as appear on the lists of that office.

The Western Electric company at Kearney, N. J., has employed six Negroes and is asking for Negro machinists.

OCT 17 1941

To Increase Negro Personnel

The Wright Aeronautical company at Cincinnati, has 23 Negroes out of 300 bench hands and plans to increase the Negro personnel to a total of 1,500.

The Kankakee Powder plant at Joliet, Ill., has 17 Negroes and will increase this to 125. One of these is in training as a "laundry operator" (a highly-specialized department.) Upon completion of his training, his salary will be $250 per month. Other workers are receiving from 65 to 72 cents per hour.

The Carbide and Carbon Chemical company at Texas City, Texas is constructing a new plant with less than 200 men on the payroll. Of this number 12 are Negroes and it is hoped that the same percentage will be maintained after the plant is in operation.

On the other hand, Dr. Weaver deplores the condition in Detroit where some 900 Negro trainees will be effected by the mass layoffs in the automobile industry. The same predicament was expected in Buffalo when the Chevrolet plant closed down, but the Negro trainees were so superior to the average worker they were retained, while the older workers were let out.

Segregation In Defense Set-up Draws Protest

Resolutions Presented To Bishop Williams

OCT 20 1941

OMAHA, Neb.—(ANP)—The 66th annual session of the African Methodist Episcopal church, with Bishop Noah W. Williams presiding, went on record in ringing language in support of national defense but in opposition to discrimination against Negro workers in its meeting this past week. Among the resolutions which were passed was one pledging loyalty and another condemning un-American practices.

"Realizing that the church of the living God is the only heaven ordained institution for the bringing of peace on earth, we of the Kansas conference go on record as endorsing the national defense program of the President of the United States," the resolutions began.

We have, however, had our attention, through the Negro press and pulpit, called to the alarming practice of discrimination in the national defense setup. Negro carpenters, mechanics, and engineers of all sorts are denied the right of joining the ranks of organized labor. Because of the denial of the right of organization, black hands cannot help in the mighty industrial effort that will cause this nation to be so armed until no foe will dare put his feet upon our shores.

"The Kansas conference goes on record condemning such practice as unhealthy for our vaunted democracy. The Negro has shed his blood on every battlefield. Glorious has been the bravery and valor of the Negro soldier. The pages of American history are illuminated with the valiant deeds of men of color.

"Be it hereby resolved that since the Negro has played such a dominant role in the development of this nation, that our official heads of government take such action as necessary to see that discrimination, esgregation, and jim-crowism ceases in our industrial program .

"We say that if Uncle Sam will strike the chains that bind the hands of Negro labor, the Negro will man the tanks and artillery; he will take the wings of the eagle and fly the planes. He will navigate the battleships of our glorious nation that sail the seven seas; he will be willing to shed his blood and continue to be loyal that we may remain one nation, indivisible, with charity and justice for all." The resolutions were presented to Bishop Williams by the committee which included M. C. Knight, T. W. Green Jr., R. A. Adams, F. Jesse Peck, R. S. Everett, G. W. Reed, D. M. Cole, Mrs. Lottie White, Mrs. Freda Wilson and Mrs. Gertrude Clark.

REJECTED ON MORAL GROUNDS

OCT 11 1941

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 9—What appears to be a consistent policy of the War Department to restrict Negro Army officers to certain branches of the service was revealed here last week when Major General J. O. Mauborgne, chief signal officer of the Army, summarily rejected the appointment of Ozzie H. Johnson to a commission in the Signal Corps.

For three months The Courier has been pushing the case of Mr. Johnson through the red tape maze of buck-passing in the War Department in an effort to break the unwritten law of keeping qualified race men out of certain branches of the armed services.

Johnson, holder of a doctorate and possessor of an enviable scholastic record from three major colleges and universities, applied for a Second Lieutenancy in the U. S. Signal Corps Reserve. He passed all physical and mental examinations and was called to Washington for a personal interview on last July 11th.

CASE RECONSIDERED

When The Courier learned Johnson was being given the "bum's rush" it intervened in the case and after several conferences between P. L. Prattis, executive editor, and War Department officials, a reconsideration was given the young man's application.

Last week in a very terse communication Johnson received the following notice: "Application unfavorably considered. Lacks requisite moral qualification."

Army officials based their action on the fact that Johnson was divorced by his wife in 1936 on a charge of desertion while he was doing graduate work at the University of Chicago. The Courier learned that Johnson had no knowledge of his wife's action and that the court had allowed $50 a month alimony fee in absentia.

MARRIED GIRL, 17

Investigation shows that Johnson consumated a youthful marriage with Esther Mae Staples, 17, at Fort Smith, Ark., on May 19, 1931. He was 19 years old at the time and a junior at Kansas State Teachers' College, Pittsburgh, Kan. The youth continued in school and did not live long with his wife who remained at her parents' home in Guthrie, Okla.

Johnson continued his studies by doing graduate work on a Rosenwald Fellowship at the University of Iowa and in 1936-37 he matriculated at the University of Chicago to get his Doctor of Philosophy degree. After receiving his doctorate Johnson returned to Oklahoma to accept a position at Langston university.

Shortly after accepting the position he was confronted with an alimony suit. An agreement was worked out with the court and the alimony demand was fully met. This the Army has used as a test of Mr. Johnson's moral character.

Former Member of 24th Infantry Tells Ugly Story

It's hell to have a soldier in the South," declared Technical Sgt. William Brown, when he called at the Black Dispatch office Saturday. Sgt. Brown is in Oklahoma on leave from his military outfit, from Hattiesburg, Miss., attending the funeral of a relative.

"I had my wife moved away from Hattiesburg in order that I would not get in trouble regarding her," Brown delared. He said the reason why he knew he had better separate from his wife while in Mississippi resulted from poor whites meeting her up in the business part of the city, where she was shopping and telling her "Nigger, get on back down in your part of town."

"I have a car," said the sergeant, "but if you'll believe me the white folk don't want me to drive it. Twice whites have driven up beside me and told me to get off the highway," said Brown.

A former member of the 24th Infantry, Brown said he was now with a company of colored engineers.

"We build roads, bridges, airports, do drafting, surveying and study methods of water purification," said Brown. "We are also taught how to blow up bridges," said Brown, who alleges he can get rid of any bridge so quickly it would make one's head swim. The non-com said he had taken a course in engineering at Fort Belvior in a class of 250, seven of whom were colored.

OCT 18 1941

Brown said he was stationed at Fort Bragg shortly before the trouble which occurred there.

"I served as an MP for a long period," said Brown. "One night I had to work almost all night riding the buses to protect the colored soldiers. The white MP's were on the war path that night and several of them were attempting to herd the Negro soldiers with drawn guns.

"On one occasion when a cheap carnival came to town they made the Negro soldiers remain in camp for eight days when a white woman with the carnival alleged she had been insulted by a Negro.

"Shortly after this, while serving as an MP down in the Negro section I had to arrest two white sodiers for chasing Negro women; but nothing is ever done about this sort of thing," said Brown.

The soldier, who said his home is in Georgia, said he remained in the army 17 years before receiving a promotion.

OCT 18 1941

"We realy got it in the neck under Pat Hurley. From 1922 to 1936, there was no advancement for a black trooper in the 24th infantry, but since that time things have materialy changed. I think this war scare has benefitted the Negro soldier immensely. We are today creeping into branches of the army where we have never been before," Brown said.

Ethridge Raps Union Jim Crow

OCT 19 1941

SEATTLE, Washington—(SNS)—Race discrimination on the part of a union is an "unrelieved tragedy," Mark Ethridge, Louisville newspaper editor and chairman of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice told the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, as he made a plea that labor "abolish all the devices of constitution and ritual" which now bar Negroes and other minority groups from the opportunity to work.

Ethridge spoke as chairman of the Fair Employment Practice Committee which was named by President Roosevelt some months ago to "receive and investigate complaints of discrimination" against potential defense workers because of thei race, creed, color, or national origin.

"Our committee has the means to bring recalcitrant manufacturers into line and undoubtedly means will be found to bring recalcitrant unions into line," he warned.

"But we do not want to do that," he added. "We want your full support and your full acceptance of the national policy."

After recalling the many efforts made to integrate minority groups into the defense program, climaxed by an executive order by the President on June 25, Ethridge continued:

OCT 18 1941

"Unfortunately, there are still many unions, and many locals of unions not all of them engaged directly in the defense effort, which bar their fellowmen because of color. I would not be frank at all with you if I did not say that most of them are yours."

Citing examples, Ethridge, who as general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal, deals with 12 unions pointed out:

"We have a notorious case in which an employer subscribed in effect to Hitler's theory that Negroes are best fitted for slavery, or at the very best, for domestic work, but offsetting that, we have a notorious case in which a union, by hypocrisy and trickery, deprived Negroes who were already working of their right to employment."

On the eve of the first hearing of the committee on Fair Employment Practice to open Monday (October 20) in the Embassy Auditorium, Los Angeles, Ethridge told the unionists that discrimination against workers because of their race, creed, color or national origin, is "a game that this country cannot afford to play in the light of all it has stood for and challenged; it is certainly a game that the union of the United States cannot afford to play unless they want to invite the destruction which has come to their fellow-unionists in Germany and Italy."

Ethridge will preside over the Los Angeles hearing which will be attended by the entire membership of the Fair Practice Committee, with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, represented by proxy.

The War Department Takes Action

FROM TWO authoritative sources last week came indications that the War Department has been firmly convinced that steps must be taken to prevent the recurrence of such racial disturbances as cropped up at Fort Bragg in North Carolina and Camp Robinson in Arkansas.

The crux of the trouble was aired both by General B. O. Davis, Sr., whose report of an investigation into the Fort Bragg affair was handed the War Department last week and by Judge William H. Hastie, civilian aide to the Secretary of War in delivering an address at the dedicatory exercises of the Anacostia Leave Camp near Washington, D. C.

General Davis took more than 600 pages to say it, but he did not mince words to express the sound opinion that the War Department is making a serious mistake in not giving military police "equal equipment and equal authority" with those of the opposite race.

Equally important was his second suggestion that "an experienced officer, trained in police work" be dispatched to Fort Bragg 'to be provost marshall at the camp and to train and organize a police force of white and colored military police."

Hardly had these proposals reached the War Department when Judge Hastie acting as spokesman for the Secretary of War announced that they would be carried out by the army without further delay.

This is encouraging news to those of us anxious to see Negro boys wearing the uniform of the United States Army accorded equal respect and treatment as those of any other race.

SEP 29 1941

A hopeful sign that the Fort Bragg incident will not be repeated is the announcement that those empowered as military police will be given training for these positions — that means white personnel as well as black.

A step further toward re-establishing amicable relations would be a more careful selection on the part of the War Department of the white officer and police personnel. A closer check on their beliefs and attitude on racial questions would not be time ill spent. It might well be the proverbial ounce of prevention that will be worth far more than the pound of cure.

Job Discrimination— Danger to U.S. Security

• One of the most important necessities for strengthening national defense is the elimination of job discrimination against the Negro people and other minorities.

President Roosevelt has issued two orders against this Hitler practice—one against discrimination in defense industries, the other against jim-crowism in federal employment. These orders followed energetic struggles by the Negro people, labor and other anti-fascist forces of the country.

A few days ago in a radio speech, Lieutenant Governor Charles Poletti denounced this practice and declared that national defense industries will not be able to get away with job discrimination in New York State. Some progress has been made against this evil upon the initiative of Negro organizations working with trade unions, which are realizing more and more that their interests are vitally at stake. But far too little has been accomplished in giving effect to the policy urged by the nation's chief executive.

Those industrialists who maintain a policy of job discrimination are not only violating the rights of the Negro people, they are endangering the fight against Hitlerism. The nation needs to mobilize all its resources and, above all, to end the un-American bans which seriously hamper this objective. Stern and practical measures should be taken against every manifestation of discrimination in national defense in this and other states.

In all phases of the defense effort, racial discrimination should be eliminated and full equality established in order that the country's maximum effort against Hitler can be realized.

Army Bias Hit In Commonweal Magazine

NEW YORK—(SNS)—A stinging editorial scoring race prejudice in the army appears in the Commonweal, weekly magazine, for September 19. Outlining the friction at Fort Bragg, N. C., and at Camp Robinson, Ark, the editorial states "These incidents serve to dramatize in the U. S. Army conditions which, in the last war, led to the lamentable outbreak at Houston, Texas, when enraged colored troops seized arms and ammunition and invaded that city."

"Segregation produces a host of evils. It makes impossible that three-musketeers sort of solidarity which can act as a great protection against minor manifestations of race prejudice. It automatically encourages the giving of better quarters and facilities to white outfits. It encourages the fear of 'arming the Negroes,' and thereby themselves short of insurrection and desertion."

Substitute White For Colored Truck Drivers

FORT JACKSON, S. C., Sept. 18——(ANP)—Another act of discrimination recently came to light in this area with news of the dismissal of Negro truck drivers and the hiring of whites for that position.

Originally Negro soldiers were serving as truck drivers for the fort. The issuance of orders from headquarters that they be taken off and begin training as soldiers, brought about their replacement by Negro civilians, who received a pay of $21 a month. Later, when their wages were increased to $25 per week, white civilians summarily ousted the Negroes and took over the jobs themselves.

Pilot Barred from British Ferry Service

NEW YORK—A protest to the British Government against the barring of Charles M. Ashe, Washington pilot, from service with the Royal Air Force Ferry Command, is being formulated by the NAACP, officials announced this week.

The association is in possession of photostatic records to prove that Ashe's rejection was based on his race.

He has about 2,400 flying hours to his credit and is licensed as a commercial pilot and instructor. Requirements for applicants call for a minimum of 400 hours.

"Must Be of White Race"

Investigation of Ashe's case has revealed that, among nine requirements for pilots and co-pilots set forth by the RAF unit, one states that "All applicants must be of the white race."

Ashe, who lives at 274 Division Avenue in Washington, told the NAACP that he applied, on the strength of a published appeal, to officials of the TWA airlines, which has contracted with the RAF to give three weeks' free training to applicants for the service of ferrying American-built planes from Montreal to England.

SEP 27 1941

Rejected at Montreal

He received a favorable reply from the TWA training center at Albuquerque, New Mexico, Ashe said; then forwarded his application to Montreal, as instructed, and called personally at the British Air Ministry in Washington.

Here, he said, he was given another application form, with the suggestion that he designate his race, although no space was provided on the form for such information.

Cause Confirmed

After waiting several weeks without a reply, Ashe said, he called Captain J. D. Mugford of the RAF Ferry Command, who relayed the advice from officials at Montreal that he could not be accepted.

At Ashe's request, Captain Mugford wrote confirmation of the statement that the rejection was based on race, enclosing a list of the qualifications containing the discriminatory provision.

BLANKET ORDER

The new regulation provides that "there shall be no discrimination by reason of race, creed, color, national origin or political affiliations in the employment of persons qualified by training and experience for work in the development of defense housing or defense public works at the sites thereof."

The previous regulation had applied to defense housing projects only.

This regulation follows the recent enactment by Congress of legislation providing for the development of educational, health, recreational and other public facilities in defense areas.

EARNINGS HIGH

In a recent report on the operation of this non-discrimination regulation in the defense housing program it was disclosed that Negro skilled and unskilled workers employed on these projects had earned nearly a million and a half dollars.

A. J. Sarre, director of personnel of the Federal Works Agency and W. J. Trent, Jr., racial relations officer in the Personnel Division, will give special attention to the enforcement of the regulation against discrimination.

Contractors Must Report Payrolls Every Four Weeks

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Determination to end discrimination against colored workers in Federal Works Agency projects was further emphasized here last week when a regulation was issued to contractors (including sub contractors) engaged in the construction of all public defense works requiring stipulated percentages of their total payrolls be paid to colored skilled and unskilled workers as evidence of non-discrimination; such reports to be made at the end of each four-week period to the director of the Defense Public Works Division.

The order was announced by Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody and signed by John N. Edy, acting federal works administrator.

LATIN AMERICA STILL COLD TO U.S.A.

The great drive of the United States to build goodwill in Latin America has so far been a dismal flop.

Latin America is still cold to this country despite our strenuous protestations of affection, the handouts from the Import Export Bank and the numerous ambassadors of goodwill we have dispatched to the lands below the Rio Grande.

The past aggressive activities of the United States in the furtherance of dollar diplomacy are still painfully fresh in the minds of Latin Americans, and intelligent people among them have not forgotten our vicious racial policies which long antedate those of Hitler.

The motion pictures we have been shipping southward to flatter the Latin Americans have merely confirmed their opinion of Yankee hypocrisy and Anglo-Saxon chauvinism.

It is illuminating that the Rockefeller committee with over a quarter billion dollars in hand to further hemisphere solidarity and goodwill has not been sufficiently intelligent to TRY to eliminate some of the hesitancy and suspicion of Latin Americans by refuting the charge of racial prejudice.

Obviously if the people we are trying to influence to love and trust us are dubious about our racial attitude, the smart thing would seem to be to attempt to remove this doubt by propaganda showing the progress of the allegedly oppressed minority under the Stars and Stripes.

American Negro ambassadors of good will—artists, writers and lecturers—could be sent to various Latin American seats of learning and culture.

American Negro labor leaders could be sent to meet labor officials in South American lands.

Latin American editions of Negro publications could be subsidized and many books by and about American Negroes, including belles lettres, could be reprinted in Spanish, Portuguese and French.

Educational films on Negro progress in the United States could easily be produced in technicolor with the advice of qualified Negroes.

But our government has done none of these things and apparently does not contemplate such a step.

No wonder Latin Americans continue to believe that our racial policy is as vicious as Hitler's and consequently question our motives. After all, the majority of them are what we call colored.

Much of the unwarranted reputation the French have borne concerning their racial liberality has been based on the propaganda they spread to create that impression. This reputation has always been an asset to the French.

Sometimes we wonder if our American white folks are really bright. Has traditional race prejudice numbed their intellect?

GEN. DAVIS FILES REPORT ON FORT BRAGG SITUATION

Apointment of Negro M. P.'s Urged by Colored General

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24, (ANP)—Gen. Davis' report on the situation at Fort Bragg, N. C., in its preliminary form, covers 600 pages and is in the hands of officials of the war department, it was reported last week.

The three made a thorough investigation of the conditions bringing about the recent disturbances in the camp and among the recommendations are the following:

The dispatching of an experienced officer, trained in police work, to be provost marshal at the camp and to train and organize a police force of white and colored military police;

The establishment of a military police headquarters in the city of Fayetteville, separate and distinct from the civilian police;

A unified force of military police to be established with Negro and white personnel, with the men having equal equipment and equal authority.

Democracy's Bar Sinister

SPEAKING as associate director of the Office of Production Management, SIDNEY HILLMAN urges all holders of defense contracts to employ available members of the Negro race. As vice-president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, MR. HILLMAN is one of the leaders of the trade union movement in America which has itself been guilty of the racial prejudice which he deplores in the employers of industry—although the C. I. O. has been decidedly less culpable than the A. F. of L., and its constitution specifically forbids racial discrimination. If MR. HILLMAN can break down prejudice in the trade unions against the admission of skilled Negro workers to a membership that would entitle them to hold jobs for which they have trained themselves, we shall be over one of the most formidable barriers to Negro employment, and will have gone far toward breaking up a pattern of racial discrimination in American democracy which is a source of vital weakness. A thoroughgoing review of this whole matter is contained in Black Workers and the New Unions, by HORACE S. CAYTON and GEORGE S. MITCHELL.

It will be further discussed at the interesting meeting which the Virginia Commission on Interracial Co-operation is to hold in Richmond next Friday. The program has been planned primarily to show the part that the Negro has in our employment situation and to demonstrate the role he must have in "the conservation, development, and use of our total regional resources." Prior to 1860, when the South occupied the most important position it has ever held in the life of the nation, the labor of the Negro was being fully utilized—not only in the fields, but in the skilled trades. Failure to use his labor to the best advantage was one of the major reasons for the many decades of progressive poverty that the South later endured, and from which it is still suffering.

That the unions are revealing now a more enlightened policy with respect to the granting of charters to Negro chapters, will, we think, be shown by a summary of the present Virginia situation which is to be made by WILEY A. HALL at the meeting on Friday to which we have referred. There is now a Negro carpenters' union in Richmond; there is another at Newport News, and there is a lathers' union at Norfolk. Virginia unions and employers seem to be changing their attitude toward Negro labor, and if the recent series of editorials which this newspaper carried on "Negroes and Our Defenses" helped to promote this development, THE TIMES-DISPATCH is glad.

Keep Trying To Enroll

With training a prerequisite to employment, the failure of Negroes to be trained will bar their getting work. We must break through and get ready! If we do not, no matter how much Washington insists that there be no discrimination in employment, nor how much the nation needs us, we cannot be put to work.

APR 25 1941

We must be practical! Prejudice is wrong. Its injustices creates sympathy for our unfortunate group. But however much we are wronged, nothing comes out of it which qualifies us to handle a tool. That we must learn. It is the key which opens to us the door of employment.

APR 25 1941

As a common sense measure, let's concentrate on getting training. No need to keep trying to establish the unfairness of prejudice. Prejudice or no prejudice we must first comply with the rules. Since that calls for investigation by the employment bureau of the state, let's stay all day, let's go back again and again, and never give up trying to get that agency's approval for the next step toward our goal. That persistency we have yet to show. We have been too busy complaining. We should fill up the offices of the state employment bureau to overflowing. The hundreds of places which we want, and which are our share, are not to be gotten unless we storm the public employment offices by the hundreds. The pitiful little handful now trying to get admitted to training are not enough.

NAACP Continues Fight For S.R. 75

APR 29 1941

Association Urges Letters Requesting Favorable Action

NEW YORK—(SNS)—Following favorable report by the sub-committee and as similar action seemed about to be taken by the Senate committee on labor and education, the fight for equal participation by Negroes in the national defense program received a temporary set-back, Thursday, April 24.

After lengthy debate about Senate Resolution 75 which proposes investigation of discrimination in national defense, the Senate full committee voted to table the resolution until its next meeting and to consider including its aims under the work of the Truman committee already set up to investigate the letting of government defense contracts.

APR 29 1941

On receipt of information concerning the committee's action, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which is backing the resolution, made known that it had purposely refrained from submitting material to the Truman committee, after certain interested persons had requested it to do so, on grounds that the Senate would then minimize the importance of S. R. 75 and that the racial emphasis of the proposed investigation would be lost.

S. R. 75 is aimed specifically at showing up racial bias in the defense industries, the armed forces and vocational training while the Truman committee investigates general conditions surrounding the letting of government contracts.

WRITE SENATORS

All members of NAACP and other organizations interested in the passage of S. R. 75 are requested to write to Senator Elbert D. Thomas, chairman of the Senate committee on labor and education, Washington, D. C., strongly urging that the resolution get favorable action, and that it is not referred to the Truman committee.

APR 29 1941

Action on the resolution has been pending for several weeks waiting the return to Washington of Senator H. H. Schwartz of Wyoming, chairman of the subcommittee. On April 23, NAACP learned from Senator Schwartz that all arrangements for favorable consideration of the resolution had been made, except for the vote of Senator Claude Pepper of Florida who was out of town.

Although this action came as a blow to swift passage of the resolution, the NAACP stated that it will double its efforts to have the measure brought before the Senate.

The failure to give the Negro access to his rightful place in national defense is assuming the proportions of a scandal. Many defense plants will not hire Negroes at all, and others give them few or no opportunities beyond those of common labor. This tenth of our nation has much to offer. The National Urban League estimates that one-fifth of the Negro adult population is trained for skilled or white-collar work. Just as Jim Crowism in the armed services has produced an unhealthy atmosphere on both sides of the color line, so defense industries are creating psychological barriers to civil unity. It simply is not true that blame for this must be equally shared by industry and labor unions, an excuse which The New York Times is now repeating. Only a few AFL craft unions make color distinctions; the Urban League says that fewer than twenty-five out of two hundred major unions have constitutional bars to Negroes, and that in practice locals will admit to membership anyone they favor. The CIO has been friendly to the Negro, and its attitude in this regard has been highly praised by Negro leaders.

Negro Congress Claims 45,000 Workers Should Have Been Employed

WASHINGTON, D. S.—Unless the fight for jobs in the nation's aircraft industries is won speedily, 45,000 Negro skilled workers stand to lost $90,000,000 in wages during the next 12 months, the National Negro Congress said in a statement issued on Saturday.

The figures for shipbuilding and other industries, taken from Government data, reveal that already the total wages lost in the more than 200,000 jobs to which Negroes are entitled in defense industries is more than three-quarters of $1,000,000,000.

The statement was issued coincident with the organization's polling of every member of Congress, asking whether they favored two actions—passage of legislation prohibiting discrimination against Negroes in defense industries and the issuance of an executive order by President Roosevelt banning such discrimination.

MAY 2 9 1941

FEW JOBS

Emphasizing that less than 100 of the 193,000 new worker employed in the aircraft industry are Negroes, and that these received during the past ten months to a year roughly $190,000,000, the statement said the exclusion of the race in this industry alone has resulted in a loss to it of approximately $20,000,000 in wages.

Basing calculations on Government figures, it was estimated that the aircraft industry should be expected to employ upwards of 45,000 Negroes at average hourly rates of 80 cents, or about $2,000 annually.

In a poll of Congress by means of letters, the NNC cited the Glenn Martin and Vultee Aircraft Corporations as examples of the more than 100 industrial firms approached by the organizations who have refused to employ Negroes, despite the fact that Sidney Hillman, associate Office of Production Management, sent them a letter on April 11 requesting them to do so.

CAMPAIGN GOES ON

The campaign for jobs at Glen Martin Company, Middle River, Md., has been extended to Cumberland, Md., where a job registration campaign is under way, congress officials announced.

A delegation of job seekers, all students of Morgan State College, Baltimore, visited the Martin plant on Wednesday of last week. This brought to 115 the total number of persons turned away by the aircraft factory during the past month.

For the sixth time during the month, an NNC picket line marched in front of Sidney Hillman's offices on Thursday. It is located in the Social Security Building, Fourth and Independence avenue, Southwest.

SEEKING AIRCRAFT JOBS HELD "RED" MOVE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The height of something or other was reached here at a hearing before the Dies committee last week when Miss Mary Spargo, investigator for the committee, testified that efforts to get 7,000 jobs for colored workers at the Glenn L. Martin aircraft plant was a plan by the American Peace Mobilization to sabotage production at the factory.

Miss Spargo charged that APM sought to accomplish this by the infiltration of Negro Communist workers. She told of a meeting where it was proposed that 30 to 100 colored workers with Communist sympathies apply at the Martin plant each day. By that method, she said, the APM hoped to get 7,000 colored workers into the plant.

MAY 2 9 1941

The campaign for jobs in the Martin plant for colored workers is being waged by the National Negro Congress. The company has steadfastly refused to hire any but white workers. More than 115 skilled workers, some ready to graduate in engineering courses, have been denied work by the officials within the past several weeks.

Charges of being "Reds" or having communistic leanings were hurled at three outstanding colored persons during the hearings last week. Those classified as such were: Dr. A. Hunton, Howard University instructor of English; Langston Hughes, author, and Paul Robeson, renowned baritone.

Cincinnati CIO Demands End Of Jim Crow in Defense Jobs

Council Resolution Calls for Immediate Reform Steps

(Special to the Daily Worker)

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug 19. — Employer discrimination against Negroes in defense industries and in general industry was roundly assailed here this week by the Greater Cincinnati Industrial Council, CIO, which adopted a resolution introduced by a National Maritime Union delegate.

The action of the CIO body here is in line with a growing criticism by hundreds of locals and union organizations throughout the country against the apparently organized stand taken by big employrs, particularly in defense plants, to bar Negroes, regardless of the qualifications of many Negro workers to perform skilled jobs.

ASK IMMEDIATE ACTION

The CIO Council here, in its resolution urged "abolishing discrimination against Negro workers in industry and, where such discrimination is still in practice, we condemn it as a practice opposed to the defense of democracy and of our country and say that immediate reform must be made."

The council sent copies of the resolution to President Roosevelt, Associate Director of Office of Production Management Sidney Hillman, the Cincinnati daily newspapers, the CIO News, and presidents of all local unions affiliated with the council.

The delegates to the CIO Council also passed a resolution authored by the National Maritime Union, urging the reappointment of Edwin S. Smith to the National Labor Relations Board.

Fine Training

Member of Engineer Battalion Says No Jim-Crowism There

White and Negro Trainees Receive Same Training at Missouri Post; Plenty Recreational Activities

By WILBUR W. SEWELL

Private Sewell is a member of the 34th Engineer Training Battalion located at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He was graduated from Wiley college, Marshall, Texas, in 1934 with an A.B. degree in social science. He spent seven years as athletic director and teacher of American history, civics and algebra at the Mexia, Texas, high school before joining the army. Private Sewell voluntarily submitted the following article to The Call:

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo.—The Negro trainees a Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., have read in Negro papers of so many evils Negroes suffer in army camps that we would like to put in a word, a good word, for this camp.

First, we might say we hope the Negro press is not overplaying minor incidents that might occur in any humanly-controlled organization. The times are too critical to feed that sort of propaganda to a group that feels that it is mistreated at every turn from the start.

We cannot confirm or deny the reports of these evils, but we do hope the Negro press is presenting pure facts and not accepting the words of some disgruntled soldier or some reporter's statement who can see no good in anything where the two races are concerned.

Most of the Negroes at Fort Leonard Wood are members of the enigneer branch of the service. We work, yes, but so do the white trainees who are in engineer battalions. It has been charged that in certain camps the whites train while the Negroes do the work; that's not true here at Fort Wood.

Every engineer here receives the same type of training, be he white or black. It's almost absurd to believe otherwise. Think how that makes our people feel at home to read that we are being made slaves instead of soldiers. It will lower the morale of the incoming Negro selectees. If we were not being trained we would not hesitate to howl, but we know we are getting the "real McCoy" at Fort Leonard Wood.

We have all forms of recreation —baseball, basketball, softball, volleyball, horseshoes, boxing, etc. We have recreation halls with radios, pianos and pool tables. We also have a post exchange where merchandise is sold just above cost, a post library, post theatres which are open every night. We have religious services each Sunday morning at 8:30. Weekend trips to Springfield and St. Louis tend to break the monotony of soldiering, too.

Our officers are very efficient and give us the highest type of training. They are firm but as kind as any man could be in or out of the army. There is a fine sense of understanding and loyalty between all groups, races, creeds and colors. We are Americans and want to do our part in any crisis.

We who are training at Fort Leonard Wood feel that we are getting the proper type of training, regardless of race, creed or color, which will enable us to do our part efficiently and willingly when and if the time comes.

11,000 Negroes On Southern WPA Projects

Work Satisfactory On Vast Air Defense Program

The part which negro workers are taking in the $130,000,000 defense airport program of the Work Projects Administration is reflected in employment figures issued this week by Alfred Edgar Smith, staff adviser of the Federal WPA.

In every State except Delaware, an army of 71,000 men was employed at the beginning of the current fiscal year on 278 sites certified by the Secretary of War or the Secretary of Navy as having military importance. In all Southern States, where 97 of the sites are located, there were 11,000 WPA negro workers on airport projects. The estimated completed cost of these airport construction and improvements projects in the South is $38,366,566 in WPA funds and contributions of the sponsor.

For the Southern region, negro workers in the defense airport program were about 49 per cent of the total. They ranged from 80 per cent in Louisiana, where a $2,644,941 program was under way, to 14 per cent in Texas, where funds for 15 airport sites reach the $5,000,000 mark.

Figures cited by Mr. Smith also reveal that Florida's 21 airport project sites lead all other States in this type of WPA defense construction. The 2,750 negro workers in Florida were approximately 38 per cent of the total number of workers employed at these sites on work to cost $15,000,000. Another large WPA airport construction program is in Alabama, where 57 per cent of the workers on 12 sites, valued at $5,743,-167 were negroes.

Other employment percentages reported by Mr. Smith for airport construction workers of the race and estimated completed cost of active projects in the Southern States were:

Arkansas, 55 per cent, $887,046; Georgia, 70.0, $2,641,729; Mississippi, 62.0, $2,520,251; North Carolina, 52.0, $1,979,999; South Carolina, 46.0, $530,-492; Tennessee, 27.0, $149,486; and Virginia, 49.2 per cent and $1,257,-223 the estimated completed cost.

Mr. Smith pointed out that for a year after the national defense program got under way, the WPA constantly increased its airport construction and improvement. Three times as many men were employed on such projects during the last week of June, 1941, as a year before. This was done, he emphasized because of the importance of the work although total WPA employment had been acutely reduced.

Many of the 860 airport and landing field sites which the WPA has already constructed or improved are included among the 278 sites and auxiliary fields. Many others are new fields being constructed on U. S. Army and Navy reservations or, at the request of the armed forces, on civilian sites now regarded as of strategic importance.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration has been providing funds for non-labor expenditures at a number of the airports in the active WPA program. It has been announced that the two Federal agencies will continue to cooperate under the new airport construction program recently announced by the WPA. This program includes additional improvements at [illegible] of the sites in the current WPA program.

"The WPA workers on airport construction jobs who have been employed on airport construction have won the admiration of officials high in civilian and military aviation circles," Mr. Smith said. "Despite the drastic cut in appropriations which will reduce WPA employment during this fiscal year, the number and percentage of WPA workers of both races will remain high because of the importance of this work to our air defenses."

Defense Effort Spells Jobs For Many Negroes

AUG 25 1941

Tuskegee Air Training School Employing Hundreds

Negroes are being called in large numbers to take a definite place in the national defense program in Alabama.

The Alabama State Employment Service has opened a temporary local office at Tuskegee to supply hundreds of workers for the army air training station which has been located near Tuskegee.

Already severel hundred negroes have been recruited through the Tuskegee office and are now engaged in grading and other operations on the site of the training school.

Reports received from local offices of the Alabama State Employment Service indicate that negroes are being recruited for national defense jobs in many sections of Alabama. Between Jan. 1 and May 31 the Alabama State Employment Service found jobs for 11,850 negroes. This is 48.9 per cent of all placements made by the service in Alabama during the first five months of 1941. In the nation during the same period 20.4 per cent of the placements were negro workers.

President Roosevelt recently issued an executive order which prohibits discrimination against any segment of American citizens. However, investigations indicate that negroes, even before the order was issued, were given the opportunity to obtain defense jobs on the projects in Alabama.

Negro Contractors

Tuskegee is being watched by citizens of all sections of the United States. This is the first project in the national defense program that has been put into the hands of negro contractors. McKissick and McKissick of Nashville, negro building contractors, were awarded the contract to build the structures at the Tuskegee training base. They are using the Tuskegee office of the Alabama State Employment Service in recruiting the labor needed on the project. At the end of this week more than 550 persons had been referred to the job by the Tuskegee office. A large majority of the referrals were negro workers who live in Macon and adjoining counties. This is in line with the policy of the Employment Service and a large majority of the national defense contractors in Alabama. First consideration is given to local workers who are qualified for the particular jobs before an effort is made to obtain workers from other sections of the United States.

Although work on the Tuskegee project was started only about a month ago, temporary structures have been built for administrative and supply staffs and more than 500 workers are now engaged in grading, draining and preparing the grounds for the buildings.

Labor Needs Not Met

Even the calling in of all classes of workers who are available for national defense jobs will not meet the labor needs of the country. Paul V. McNutt, Federal security administrator, advised Judge John D. Petree, director of Industrial Relations, today that a survey of labor requirements of 9,305 employers in industries vital to national defense revealed that a minimum of 487,000 additional workers would be needed by Oct. 1.

Representatives of State Employment Service throughout the country visit selected defense employers regularly to obtain estimates of labor requirements. It is on the basis of their estimates that the Bureau of Employment Security of the Social Seceurity Board is able to make advance plans for recruiting and, where necessary, training the number and kinds of workers required. The information is also made available to defense training and housing officials, as well as a number of other defense agencies.

The greatest relative increase in employment, Mr. McNutt reported, was expected in the ship and boatbuilding and repairing industry. Employment in this industry is expected to increase 64 per cent over employment in May. The aircraft industry reported the next largest relative increase, which will be 34 per cent.

JOB GROUPS SET UP NEW ORGANIZATION

'Clearing House' To Aid Jim Crow Fight By N. Y. Agencies

AUG 25 1941

NEW YORK.—(ANP)—At least a dozen government and private agencies locally interested in securing jobs for groups discriminated against last Wednesday adopted a plan of organization for a clearing house through which activities of the affiliated groups might be made known to cooperating agencies in the hope of avoiding conflict among them in their approaches to tentative employers.

The council of cooperating groups, as yet without an official designation, met originally on Aug. 1 in the office of S. Parks Harmon, chief of labor supply, New York district, Federal Security administration. Those participating were the New York and Brooklyn Urban leagues, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., New York State Employment service, Office of Production Management, National Urban league, Brooklyn Coordinating committee, Coordinating Committee for Employment, the local March on Washington committee, the Jewish Federation of Employment Services, and the Governor's Committee on Discrimination in National Defense.

A sub-committee appointed at this meeting and charged with evolving a method of procedure met and worked out the program that was adopted at Wednesday's meeting.

The plan calls for the establishment of a greater council with two sub-divisions, one dealing with the Negro and the second with other groups. Each of these two sub-divisions would be divided into three classifications covering labor relations, education and placement. Membership throughout would comprise representatives from the various agencies forming the greater council. A paid executive with a small clerical staff would carry on the administrative work.

Prior to receiving his commission on March 4, and being ordered here on April 16, Chaplain Faulkner was waiting table on the Fort Worth-Denver City Railroad. He went through school waiting table and isn't ashamed to admit that he went back to waiting, even after he had pastored a church for two years.

A native of Fort Worth, Texas, he attended Jarvis College, Hawkins, Texas, and studied for the ministry at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, later pastoring East Annie Street Christian Church, Fort Worth, and St. James Baptist Church.

The camp glee club is his pride and joy, the quartet, his big delight. He will take singing groups into [illegible] churches as often as twice on the same Sunday.

He loans money, cashes checks, intercedes for men in minor trouble, conducts two services at camp on Sunday, and arranges dances and parties at least once a week in Macon. Negroes Just Haven't Applied, Officials Say

Only Whites Are Now Working At American Co.

By JOHNNY WILLIS

LORAIN, Ohio — (ANP) — American Shipyard officials here holders of huge government contracts for defense battleships, lake freighters, and boats for steel trade declared in a surprising announcement made here this week through a union official that "There is absolutely no discrimination against colored in our yards, and never has been."

The announcement came after company officials were approached by one of Lorain's militant councilmen, Alex Munro, who is also head of the local AFL grievance committee. The fact that no Negroes are now working in the Lorain plant has not only caused the company to be generally thought of as absolutely prejudiced, but has recently caused considerable speculation among local Negroes who have been contemplating seeking an organized method to have the company open its doors to colored because of its immense share of defense funds.

Councilman Munro, when questioned earlier this week as to the attitude of the AFL and as to what the union under way toward obtaining Negroes representations at the local shipyards, stated that he was never conscious of any particular discriminatory attitude of the company toward colored" and that he would take it up immediately with shipyard officials.

Munro first approached the head of the employment agency asking Negroes be given equal consideration for hiring in the yards of the American Shipbuilding company. Munro was informed that colored had been at one time employed at the plant that it was not a policy of the company to discriminate

NOT COMPANY POLICY

The local committee chairman was for reasons of color, race or creed further told by company officials that colored seemed not to apply at the time when men were being hired.

Munro continued his query to the head Superintendent, Joseph Conley, complaining that Negroes were not being given jobs and full benefits out of their taxes at the Lorain shipbuilding subsidiary.

According to Mr. Conley stated, a company spokesman, that it was not company policy to discriminate, and that he was certain that any Negro applicants would be given just consideration for jobs when hiring was underway at the plant. The superintendent further intimated, that the company was expecting more rush orders from the government and that the shipping season was fast drawing to a close (meaning that boats will be coming in for lay-up and ra

Kill Plan To Bar Race Workers From Project

WASHINGTON, D. C.—As the result of direct intervention of Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody, Negro carpenters are working on the 500-unit defense housing project which the Public Buildings Administration is developing in Mobile, Alabama, at a cost of $1,409,000.

Informed that the contractor had not employed the required percentage of Negro labor only because white carpenters threatened to walk off the job if Negro carpenters were employed, Mr. Carmody sent a telegram to the business agent of the white local citing the President's non-discrimination order and the non-discrimination policy of the Federal Works Agency, and called upon the union to state its position. Both Negro and white carpenters belong to the same [illegible] but are organized in separate locals.

Failing to receive a satisfactory answer to his telegram, Mr. Carmody sent an FWA labor relations representative into Mobile to effect a settlement. Meanwhile, William J. Trent, Jr., FWA Racial Relations Officer, was in contact with the business agent of the Negro local and with other leaders of the Negro community. These efforts resulted in the breakdown of racial discrimination on this job.

In accordance with the FWA regulation, the contractor was required to pay 22 per cent of the payroll for skilled workers and 74 per cent of the unskilled payroll to Negro workers as evidence of non-discrimination. While Negro cement finishers and other skilled workers had been employed in the construction of the project, Negro carpenters had been refused jobs until Mr. Carmody intervened.

COMMITTEE URGED TO PROBE MOST FLAGRANT FIRMS IN DENIAL OF EMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, D.C.—In a memorandum to the new committee on fair practices created under the President's executive order banning racial discrimination in defense employment, it has been suggested by the N.A.A.C.P. that eight or ten firms known to be most flagrant in the discrimination against Negro workers be investigated at the outset.

Among the firms suggested in the N.A.A.C.P. memorandum are Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, San Diego, Cal.; Glenn L. Martin Company, Baltimore, Md.; Baldwin Locomotive Works, Eddystone, Pa.; North American Aviation, Inglewood, Cal.; General Motors Corporation; Sperry Company, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Colt Firearms Company, Hartford, Conn.; Vultee Aircraft Corporation; United Aircraft Corporation, Hartford, Conn.; Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle, Wash.; Spartan Aircraft Co., Tulsa, Okla.

The N.A.A.C.P memorandum declared "we believe that such an approach (to these firms) would be most salutary and that investigation of and corrective action against discrimination in these larger plants will dramatically affect employment policies of other concerns as well as the ones chosen for initial action."

The N.A.A.C.P. memorandum also urged that the newly-created committee use "moral suasion or other effective means of reaching discrimination in contracts let by the federal government prior to the issuance of the President's executive order."

Job Placement Discrimination Being Broken Down, N.A.A.C.P. Hears

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 14—After receiving notice from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People of two cases in which employment qualifications discriminated against Negroes, Mrs. Lillian L. Poses, regional attorney for the New York State Employment Service, informed the New York office of the NAACP that the State Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance is holding a series of meetings and continually training their interviewers on the question of discrimination.

Mrs. Poses stated that a fuller report on the matter is forthcoming.

The NAACP recently called upon Richard Brockway, director of the NYSES, to act upon a notice in the Yonkers office of the Service asking for laborers but "no Germans, Italians or Negroes," and upon application blanks for a defense industry which carried a racial distinction in the personal description of the applicant.

Boy Exposes How Florida Officials Aided Segregation

NEW YORK CITY — President Franklin D. Roosevelt received a report last week of a letter in which a young Brooklyn, N. Y. man enlisted in the United States Maritime Service in Florida, tells of the humiliation and segregation he suffered at the hands of an officer and some of the men in his company.

The letter was brought to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People by the boy's father and states that some of the Southern men called him "Nigger" in front of the captain and the rest of the men.

The letter also says, "I heard the captain tell one of his officials to get that Nigger out of the line and put me on the side. While I was looking for my bag, the captain was askin gone of his officials where he could place this 'Nigger.' He used that word quite often. Then he came over to me and told me to follow one of the boys he had picked. He said he would have plenty of work for me to do. I was then segregated from the bunch I came down with, I slept downstairs."

In writing to President Roosevelt, the NAACP enclosed a copy of the letter and stated the matter is being called to his attention not only because of this particular individual involved, but because of similar cases which have been brought to the N. A. A. C. P.,

Discrimination Banned By Contracts: FBI Head

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Army, navy and maritime commission contracts now contain clauses binding the contractor against discriminations because of race, creed, color or national origin, Mark Ethridge, chairman of the Fair Employment Practice committee, disclosed last week.

Ethridge made this disclosure on announcing the appointment of Lawrence Cramer, former Virgin Islands governor, as executive secretary of the committee. Cramer will work out means of enforcing the anti-discrimination clause.

Negro Troops, Police Clash

Incident Said Cleared After Conference At Arkansas Maneuvers

WITH THE ARMY IN SOUTHWEST ARKANSAS, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Second army headquarters said that "several incidents" between civilians and Negro troops of the Ninety-fourth Engineer Battalion from Fort Custer, Mich., climaxed in a "dispute" on the Prescott-Gurdon highway yesterday.

"The altercation was caused by a misunderstanding of authority between local state police and officers in control of the troops," second army officials declared in a prepared statement.

"In order to clarify this situation and obviate the possibility of further incidents," Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr., in command of the seventh army corps, called a conference at army headquarters in Prescott with A. G. Albright, superintendent of Arkansas state police, who came from Little Rock.

"At this conference, all points of difference between military authorities and state police were satisfactorily settled and an agreement made that will obviate any difficulties due to presence of Negro troops in this vicinity."

The statement said one Negro was slightly injured during the altercation but gave no details. Witnesses at the scene said a state police car waved down a column of Negro troops marching on the highway and an argument followed. The report reaching the second army at Prescott declared a "race riot" was in progress and scores of military police rushed to the scene. Several citizens in Gurdon, hearing the same report, armed themselves to enter the argument, but did not leave town.

CASE FOR DISCIPLINE

The News and Observer.

Acts of violence between Negro soldiers and military policemen occurring at Fayetteville and Wilmington are now under investigation by boards of inquiry.

The race angle in these incidents might easily be exaggerated. On the basis of the best available information that angle appears to be incidental rather than dominant. The real problem is one of discipline. With thousands of soldiers of any race turned loose on any community on pay day, deplorable incidents are to be expected. All that can be asked of any army is that such incidents be kept at a minimum.

Fortunately, such incidents have been rare in North Carolina cities adjacent to defense establishments. There is every reason to believe that such incidents will continue to be rare

Denies Race Discrimination

Fort Bragg, N. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Col. Charles B. Elliott, commander, said today that there was no evidence of race discrimination at Fort Bragg.

In commenting on the fight Wednesday in a bus containing Negro troops in which two persons were killed and five wounded he said:

"I do not consider it as an indication of race discrimination."

He added that in any area where so many persons were gathered there would be some "bad actors."

He said that there had been practically no trouble at Fort Bragg between Negro and white troops.

There are currently 46,000 white troops and 6,500 Negro troops at the post.

The Negroes consist of two regiments of the coast artillery anti-aircraft and two regiments of engineers situated in the same area and one battalion of artillery in another area.

He said that Fayetteville would not be declared off the limits for Negro troops, who would continue to go their way as previously.

He announced that Sergeant Russell Owen of Hartley, Ky., of the military police would face a court-martial in connection with the killing of Pvt. Ned Turman of Ashton, S. C., Negro member of the 76th Coast Artillery in connection with the melee Wednesday. He explained, however, that a court-martial always followed such things.

RACE CONSUMERS URGED TO AID IN NAT'L DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—Practical ways in which Negro people may strengthen the living standards of families in their own communities and thereby aid total defense are given in "A Negro Community Works in Behalf of Its Families," a bulletin recently issued by the Consumer Divisian, Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

"A Negro Community Works in Behalf of Its Families" is issued in pamphlet form and is the first in a series of American family stories designed to help consumers recognize the little things that will contribute to their community and its defense.

Equality of Treatment For Negro Ordered

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(INS)—President Roosevelt today personally directed the heads of all government departments and agencies to give Negroes equal treatment when hiring workers for the national defense program.

The President instructed departmental heads to thoroughly examine their personnel policies so they would be able to assure him "the doors of employment are open to all loyal and qualified workers regardless of creed, race or national origin."

This round-robin letter formalized an executive order the President issued on June 25, deploring any possible discrimination and setting up a special committee to review all complaints and grievances.

Stassen Refuses To Issue Orders Breaking Race Ban

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 4—(ANP)—White and Negro citizens of the twin cities rubbed elbows at a mass meeting sponsored by the Minnesota Negro Defense committee, Tuesday night, in the Hallie Q Brown Community house, to hear Gov. Harold E. Stassen defend himself against charges of discriminating against Negroes in Minnesota's Home Defense force.

Rev. Clarence T. R. Nelson, pastor of Camphor Memorial Methodist church and publicity chairman of the defense committee, gave a brief review of the committee's fight to have Negroes enlisted in Minnesota's home defense program. Following this, Frank L. Alsup, chairman of the committee, in his introductory remarks ,told the governor that the people would not be interested in his speech if it were on any other subject than that which they had gathered together to hear.

DEFENDS RECORD

Gov. Stassen's address for the most part was given over to the citing of instances to show that he is not and never has been prejudiced nor ever done anything in his public career that could be labeled discriminatory to the Negro. He referred to his association with Negroes in the R. O. T. C. and as a Pullman conductor, saying "I am against discrimination and that has been my attitude from the cradle." He lauded the work of Attorney Raymond Cannon, Mill City, Minn., and Lawrence Tarver, St. Paul, in compiling a report for the inclusion of Negroes in the defense force of the state, and remarked that it was their suggestion that the organization of a jim-crow unit in the home defense program would be inadvisable.

Blame for discrimination of colored was placed upon the United States army officers in the force who are following the army code of placing Negroes in separate units.

To the charges of the governor that the committee had been unfair to him, J. Nathaniel Smith, St. Paul, defended the committee's action in asking that practices of discrimination be wiped out. Smith said that the committee had been informed by Rep. Melvin Mass that the U. S. government had nothing to do with the state militia, hence the committee requested Gov. Stassen to issue non-discrimination order.

STASSEN REFUSES TO ACT

In answer to the governor's statement that he would work with the committee to make a test case of the discriminatory army code, Cecil Newman, editor and publisher of the St. Paul Recorder and Minneapolis Spokesman, challenged the governer to strike the first blow in the fight by the issuance of an order to the effect that Negroes be inculcated in Minnesota's home defense, to which the governor replied that he could not do that.

Youth Reared Among Whites Relates Experiences in South

SEP 26 1941

I was inducted into the U. S. army in Milwaukee, Wis. Immediately discrimination began. I, being the only colored included in that particular draft from my local board, was immediately called out and sent with a group of colored; while the rest of my white companions that I left home with took a different route.

After several days of processing I ended up in Texas; a state where from the evidence I gather the people are too illiterate or backward to realize that the Civil war has been ended for over 76 years, that's right near three quarters of a century!

I, mind you, a red blooded American, who grew up, attended school, fought and played with pale faces all my life. I had managed to live 23 years and in all those years I had gained the respect of all who knew me. I came to Texas, an "American citizen," wearing the olive drab that represents everything this government stands for. A uniform that I should be proud to don and one that each and every real American should show the utmost respect for if he could not find him self broad-minded enough to love it.

What respect am I shown? I pay my hard earned dollar, yes one of the 21 a month paid by my dear old "Uncle." I pay the same as any other soldier or citizen regardless of color or creed. Boarding the bus I seat myself comfortably, to be immediately accosted by the bus driver who in no polite manner whatsoever informs me that "all colored people" sit on the "back seat." Immediately I am angered because I didn't ask to be drafted into the army and be sent to Texas, I didn't ask to leave a nice home, a very good job, a job that had a very promising future. I, at my age, had practically reached a position so that I could call myself independent. A position where I could begin to realize dividends. I had my ideals and my plans for a future—a wife, home, security, and respect—what more could a man ask for Then to be accosted in such a manner you can easily see the position of a northern colored soldier serving his country in this the "beloved land of the south."

In one instance I happened to be loitering near the bus station and saw several colored soldiers board a bus comprised entirely of soldiers, the bus being filled to capacity left several white soldiers standing on the side—the colored soldiers were immeliately asked off the bus and their places filled with whites

Their motto is "colored on the back seat if there are no whites to fill it."

Our women are treated inhumanly and must above all take it because our men are so brow-beaten that they refuse to pursue tactics that will eventually put a stop to it. I do not believe that any of us thinking men would care to have our mothers, sisters, wives, or sweethearts ordered to sit "on the back seat" of anyone's bus.

I do believe that we should demand our rights. If it isn't worth fighting for it certainly isn't worth lying for!

Traveling with a soldier companion we ran out of matches; so we entered the Greyhound bus station at the next stop and a southern lady, or I would believe it more adequate to say "woman," (I say that because a woman must have respect for herself to be called a lady. You cannot have respect for yourself if you have none for your fellow man) accosted us and informed us that we must "get out" and she would give us matches if 'we came around to the kitchen." Do we have to succumb to such treatment? I say not! I should go down fighting such inhuman degradation than to go on living, or rather existing in such a submissive and passive manner!

Are we going to carve a niche in society for ourselves or are we going to be content with falling into the first crevice we come to? Have we courage to fight for our rights or shall we take whatever is put upon us and continue to pray for deliverance? The Bible says, "The Lord helps those who help themselves." If we must go down let's go down like men. Do we not desire social and economic equality?

Even we who are illiterate subconsciously desire recognition. Life isn't dished out to us on a silver platter; it must be attained through sugering and death. To live we must first be courageous enough to die!

Are we to continue existing upon the white man's promises Promises without any founlation whatsoever!

What I would like to impress upon you is that you must earn your place in society. Is our youth to continue entering this wicked old world without a clean birthright? Are we never to throw off the yoke and stigma of slavery? A pestilence that was overthrown 76 years ago? The gool Lord moved in '65, his wonders to perform." Doesn't it seem that we shoud have enough initiative in that number of years to stand on our own feet? Are we to give the cream of the American Negro youth in another war with no securitf whatsoever? Are we to continue letting ourselves be fooled by veiled promises or are we going to demand an open and above board showdown.

I say and I am expressing the views of all our boys who are capable of thinking: our fight for existence and equality is right here and not over there.!

Dr. Watson Has New Slant On Race Friction

Says Proper Precautions Were Not Taken

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (ANP) – "Referring to the incidents between Negro soldiers and civilians in various southern communities which have received and are still receiving much publicity through the press, these could have been avoided, or at least minimized, if the government had taken the proper precaution in the first place, according to President J. B. Watson of Arkansas State college located here, in an interview published in local white papers.

"The army has neglected to take the precaution" Dr. Watson declared, "to cultivate the local community to which the Negro soldiers should be brought, by sending in advance army officers for preliminary conferences with the officials and leading citizens of the community.

A conference with the city and county officers and the ministers, for instance, of the community would help prepare the community for unusual experience of having in their midst Negro soldiers with army guns and government uniforms. In the second place, the government has not taken proper precaution to prepare its Negro soldiers for an event so unusual.

SOLDIERS NOT COUNSELLED

"Regardless of the feeling of the people in a southern community they have not been accustomed to large bodies of Negro soldiers with uniforms and arms. In talking with some of the officers of the Negro units, I have asked them if they have counselled their soldiers and warned them to guard against possible difficulties growing out of their presence in a community and some have said to me frankly that the army had not done as much of that as it might have.

"The fact is, a large percent, and in some case a majority, of these Negro soldiers are from the south direct, or have spent most of their lives in the south and know all about conditions there. It would only take a word of serious precaution to prepare them against difficulties that might arise. I believe with proper steps by the army, al lof these difficulties could have been avoided or greatly minimized.

CASE OF PINE BLUFF

"We have had in Pine Bluff two outfits of soldiers. First came the 92nd battalion that moved in from Prescott and was followed by another group of 1,000 men direct from Fort Bragg. A week before any of them arrived here. Police Chief Met Galigher and Mayor Blickwell called a group of Negro and white citizens together. After brief conferences, we worked out plans for the entertainment of soldiers and complete care of the situation. The result was that both of these groups of Negro soldiers came and went almost without a noticeable incident.

"Three drunken soldiers went into a white waiting room at the Union station and had to be taken in hand by an officer. They were taken to headquarters and turned over to their M. P.'s. With that exception, there was not a single incident that came to the attention of the police headquarters or the sheriff's office.

"What occurred at other places might have occurred here, if precaution had not been taken in advance."

Marshall Plant To Hire Negroes

Shoe Factory Listens to OPM

MARSHALL, Mo.— The International Shoe company factory here will employ Negroes, according to an announcement made by Lewis O. Clymer, field representative of the Negro Employment and Training branch of OPM, directed by Dr. Robert C. Weaver.

Last week the Saline County branch of N.A.A.C.P. reported that the employment manager of the company had said no colored would be hired.

After conferences with the OPM representative, the company decided to hire four Negroes within the next two weeks. They will work on the night shift doing "general work" such as handling materials. These men will replace four white men who will be given other duties. Later six more Negroes will be hired to do the same kind of work on the day shift. A Negro janitor and maid already are employed by the company.

It is estimated that there are now 700 persons working at the factory which is a branch of the main plant at St. Louis. When peak employment is reached, there will be about 900 workers, 15 of whom are expected to be Negroes.

The OPM representative told The Call that it is also planned to hire Negroes at the branch in Sweet Springs, Mo. Qualified persons are urged to get on the rolls of their local employment offices.

YANKEE OFFICER THREATENS SUIT AGAINST SO. STATE

GURDON, Ark., Sept. 18—(ANP)—The apparently prevalent opinion around this hill billy town that anything can be done to a black soldier in a United States uniform or to a Yankee officer in the same attire, may be due for something of a shock.

The entire country was appalled three weeks ago when a group of poor white citizens of this town took the law into their own hands, levelled guns and revolvers at Negro members of the 94th Engineers, down here to encamp for the army practice games, and forced the men off the highway into the ditch. The same cracker element slapped 2nd Lt. D. A. Curry, white, of the 94th, in the face when he resented the treatment accorded his men, protesting they had done no wrong. Lieut. Curry is the person who is contemplating the suit.

"A Just Claim"

"I would like to file suit against the state of Arkansas, for I feel I have a just legal claim," Lieut. Curry said this week. "I haven't the means at present to finance such an action and so far no help has been forthcoming, but I'm considering doing something about it."

Major Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commanding officer of the seventh army corps is the commander in this area, gave an explanation when he said the Negro soldiers cursed the people of Gurdon but he did not explain why he permitted U. S. soldiers to be driven about by civilians without giving them ammunition. It was quite evident that Gen. Richardson had read the riot act to the state police, however, because the white state trooper who struck Lt. Curry has already written him a letter of apology and been transferred to another state department.

It is the concensus of opinion among the men that Negro organizations ought to rally behind Lt. Curry and defray the expense of the suit he desires to bring. No Negro organization has come to the fore in the matter, however, and while there has been some talk of asking the Civil Liberties union to intervene, local leaders have felt abashed to ask a white organization to step in to finance a program which Negroes distinctly ought to handle for themselves.

Much praise has been showered upon the young white officers of the 94th Engineers for their efforts to protect their Negro enlisted men. First Lt. R. I. Brasaemle of Barberton, O., decribed how the state patrolmen displaying riot guns and using profane language, ordered his company off the road.

Pushed Off Road

"The men moved off but I didn't," said Lt. Brasaemle. "I called a halt and went to the rear to talk to the patrolmen.

"They claimed the men had been insulting motorists. At this moment, Lt. Curry came up to deny the charge. He was struck in the face, then we were both pushed off the road. Before anything further happened, military police came up and the violence started."

Lt. Curry, who is from Madison, Wis., and has been in the military service four months, told of the attack upon him.

"I approached Sergt. Frank McGibbony of the state police and began denying that our soldiers had been disorderly," he said. "A uniformed policeman whose name was Mason, was standing beside the sergeant. Mason snatched my glasses off and socked me in the face. Then Lt. Brasaemle and I were pushed into the ditch also."

The incident represents a fine opportunity for some of the civil rights groups among Negroes to support an effort on the part of young northern white men to protect their black comrades. Some of the men in the 94th Engineers had been school mates of the young white officers who commanded them. Unfortunately Arkansas appears to be very poorly organized among its Negro citizens to protect the rights of the group which perhaps is one of the reasons for the insolence of the state troopers.

Steel Workers Rap Jim-Crow Of Soldiers

Ask President Roosevelt To Take Action

OCT 13 1941

GARY, Ind. — (ANP) — The regional conference of the CIO Steel Workers Organizing committee, meeting at the Knights of Columbus hall here Sunday, condemned in a sharply worded resolution, segregation and maltreatment of Negro soldiers in the U. S. Army, and called upon President Roosevelt and all CIO unions to take effective action to remedy the situation.

The resolution, sponsored by Rayfield Mooty of the Wilson & Bennett local of SWOC and Murray president of the Federated Metals locals of the American Smelting & Refining Company, was passed without a single dissenting vote from the 500 delegates representing 53 steel workers, locals in the Chicago area, according to reports from the Negro Labor Council.

After recounting the various forms of discrimination to which Negro troops are subjected in the army and in various local communities, the resolution warned that:

"Such abusive and unfair practices on the part of the citizens of a democracy tend not only to shatter the morale of the United States armed forces, but also rise to the very conditions that we pledge ourselves to crush."

Particular attention was attracted to a section of the resolution which called upon President Roosevelt to communicate with governors and local officials of all states, "urging them to use their influence and authority to obtain the proper respect and treatment for all American soldiers."

WAR DEPT. FIRES NEGRO WHO PROTESTED DISCRIMINATION

JOHN EVANS, a local boy who was the first Negro assigned to Patterson Field, Fairfield O., as an aviation mechanic received a notice from the War Department that he would be dismissed October 17 at conclusion of his six months period of probation.

In the letter, which was signed by Col. M. G. Estabrook jr., commanding the Air Corps at the field, the charge was made:

OCT 25 1941

The specific reason for your dismissal from the service is due to the fact that since your employment at this station you have conducted a propaganda campaign which included the initiating of lying letters to the various presses and Negro Associations with the specific intention of stirring up agitation over the question of racial prejudice, which is to the detriment of the United States Government, and particularly the National Defense efforts.

When Evans arrived at Patterson Field, he had to wait from 8 a. m., to 4 p. m., before being interviewed and assigned work, although several white boys who went with him were given immediate assignments. Moreover, Evans was barried from the field cafeteria, and assigned to work in the maintenance department, not the work he was supposed to do. The reason given by the personnel department was that white workers resented a colored man among them.

The young Negro wrote a letter to the Editor of the Dayton Herald which ran an editorial on the matter and also contacted Judge William Hastie and these things incurred the wrath of his superiors.

Since receiving his dismissal notice, he has placed the matter before the President and called it to the attention of the N. A. A. C. P. It is hoped that President Roosevelt and Secretary of War Stimson will see the wisdom of reversing the dismissal order of Col. Estabrooks, as it seems to us that Evans did only what anyone might have done in the face of such prejudice.

HITLERISM AT HOME

It is difficult to comment with calmness and restraint on the Nazi-like persecution of colored American soldiers in Fayetteville and Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Here were men serving their country in time of stress and in their country's uniform being baited, bullied, humiliated, beaten and, in one instance killed, with cruel, cold and sadistic calculation, by white men in that same uniform detailed to maintain law and order.

Here were soldiers who had committed no crime whatever (except the American "crime" of being colored), menaced with revolvers, clubbed, cursed and punched to bloodines; insulted, robbed and compelled to sit on the ground for hours with folded arms for no reason except that they were hated because of their so-called race.

Here were Negro military police stripped of their weapons, Negro noncommissioned officers bullied and insulted by inferiors who happened to be white, a Negro commissioned officer subjected to unparalleled indignities—all because, and only because, they were colored and therefore considered helpless prey for sadistic Negrophobes.

And now that this horror has happened amid hypocritical calls to defend democracy, it is time to fix the blame where it belongs; on the War Department.

With craven spirit the War Department has bowed from the beginning of the national emergency to the doctrine of white supremacy and racial separatism with a zeal that Dr. Joseph Goebbels would regard as commendable.

Far from insisting that Negro soldiers must be treated as other soldiers, it has cooperated with the traditional Ku Klux spirit of the unreconstructed South until discrimination and segregation have become military law.

This is Hitlerism and nothing but Hitlerism, and the War Department cannot avoid responsibility.

We Negroes demand, as we have every right to demand, that disgraced the U.S. Army over 20 years ago; that there those guilty of this crime against humanity and national unity be quickly and severely punished.

Nothing short of the most drastic punishment of officers and enlisted men among the white military police will satisfy a justifiably aroused Negro people.

American Negroes simply will not stand such intolerable terrorism directed against their sons, brothers and husbands conscripted against their will to fight for a democracy so flagrantly denied them.

Negro Graduates Face 'No' in Hunt For 'Defense' Jobs

Trained Chicago Students Have Dismal Future as Negro Congress Survey Shows Widespread Jim-Crowism; 20,000 Negroes on Rolls

(Special to the Daily Worker)

CHICAGO, May 29.—On Chicago's South Side hundreds of Negro boys will graduate from technical schools within the next few weeks as trained mechanics and engineers.

But will they find jobs at these trades? Will they be taken in by the firms which are crying about a "shortage" of skilled help?

Results of a survey conducted here by the Chicago Council of the National Negro Congress indicated that the answer is "No."

DOORS CLOSED

"Our files are packed with case histories of highly trained Negro workers for whom the doors of industry, and particularly so-called 'defense' industry, are closed," declared Ishmael P. Florey, chairman of the council.

Thousands of Negro boys are attending trade classes at Tilden, Du Sable and Phillips High Schools on the South Side. Also there are several hundred attending industrial and shop classes at Crane Tech on the West Side and Lane Tech on the North Side. Many of these youths will graduate next month with training in architectural and mechanical drafting, auto mechanics, pattern-making, forge and foundry work, machine shop, printing, woodworking and electrical work.

According to signed statements from the personnel offices of thousands of aircraft, armament and "defense" factories received by the Negro Congress in reply to a questionnaire, a small percentage will hire Negroes for menial and unskilled jobs only. The bulk of them bar Negroes altogether.

20,000 DENIED JOBS

On the rolls of the Illinois State Employment Service are some 20,000 skilled and semi-skilled Negro workers who cannot be placed on jobs in spite of the need for them because of racial barriers.

Typical ads appearing in the Chicago Tribune say:

"Wanted for Factory Work—Men, white, 20 to 30 years old."

Florey cited one example of the National Defense Training School at Tilden High School, where a special 8-week training course is given.

CROWD OUT NEGROES

"Recently a representative of the Howard Aircraft Co. came to one class to hire help. In this class there are 15 Negro and 6 white students. The teacher of the class recommended five white students.

"When one white student said he couldn't accept because he intends to go to college, the teacher gave the application to the sixth white student, even though this is a boy who is known to be incompetent. He doesn't attend classes regularly and when he does he smells of liquor."

Florey further pointed out that one of the best draftsmen in the school was not placed because he is colored.

"Is there any wonder that Washington finds the Negro people 'suspicious' of the war drive?" said Florey.

Glenn Martin Cop Threatens Negro Cameraman

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1.—Glenn L. Martin Aircraft officials, annoyed at the prospect of having pictures taken of the delegations of Negro job applicants which have been keeping up a steady beat to the plant twice weekly from the Baltimore and Washington Councils of the National Negro Congress for the past five weeks, threatened a cameraman, representing a weekly Negro newspaper with the loss of his plates if he took a photo of the delegation on the grounds of the plant.

The threat was made by the chief of the police guard at the plant. Demanding an explanation, Negro Congress officials in charge of the delegation were told by a public relations representative of the firm that permission to take any kind of photo at the plant would have to come from the War Department, because the plant was working on defense orders.

The plant is located at Middle River, Maryland. With delegations applying at the plant the total number of persons applying for jobs during the past five week period was increased to 135. Meantime the office of Sidney Hillman OPM labor official was picketed by the Congress for the eighth time in the past five weeks.

Poll Congress On Negro Job Discrimination

Issue of Jim Crow in Defense Industries Pushed in Capital

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29.—The National Negro Congress this week polled every member of Congress, asking representatives and senators how they stood on the question of discrimination in defense industry.

The legislators were specifically asked if they favored legislation prohibiting discrimination against Negroes in defense industry and the issuance of an executive order from the President banning such discrimination.

The Negro Congress pointed out that less than 100 of the 103,000 new workers employed in the aircraft industry were Negroes.

AIR PLANTS BIAS

A statement issued yesterday by the NNC revealed that the aircraft industry, according to calculations based upon government figures, should be expected to employ upwards of 45,000 Negro workers at average hourly rates of 80 cents an hour, or about $2,000 annually.

"Thus the exclusion of Negro workers from the aircraft industry alone has cost these workers $20,000,000 in wages during the past years," asserted the statement, "and will cost them $90,000,000 more during the next twelve months unless the fight for jobs in aircraft factories is won."

In polling members of the House and Senate upon their stand on discrimination, the Negro Congress cited the Glenn Martin and Vultee Aircraft Corporations as typical examples of the more than one hundred industrial firms approached by the organization who have refused to employ Negroes, despite the fact that even Sidney Hillman, associate OPM director in charge of labor, had sent them a letter asking them to do so.

Negro Congress officials announced that the campaign for jobs at Glenn Martin Aircraft Company, Middle River, Md., had been extended to Cumberland, Md., where a job-registration campaign was begun this week.

Negro Soldiers

The attitude of civilians and civil authorities, as well as Military Police, toward Negro soldiers in a number of communities presents a problem, which is already serious and freighted with grave consequences, but which threatens to flare at any moment into incidents which may result in great loss of life and very serious embarrassment to the government and the Negro people.

Any kind of soldiers is always a problem. Civilians and local law enforcement officials find it difficult to cope with the situations and often serious trouble arises from the presence of soldiers in a given community. But that difficulty is always heightened, when for any reason the element of race prejudice enters the equation which is almost always the case when there are Negro soldiers.

The recent trouble at Fort Bragg in North Carolina and in Arkansas gives evidence that the Military Police in one instance and the civil authorities in the other were actuated by race prejudice in their handling of situations which otherwise might have been adjusted with a minimum of friction and far less unfortunate results.

We want to be absolutely fair in the matter, and we do not deny that there are frequent problems of discipline, which tax the powers of the authorities, but what the law enforcement officials will have to learn, both in the army and out of it, is that they only aggravate the situation when for any reason they give the impression that they are prejudiced in their action, because the soldiers involved are Negroes.

Negro soldiers who are being trained to fight for the preservation of democracy are not going to stand for discrimination and mistreatment by narrow-minded and prejudiced white men, who, because of their ignorance, are bent upon trying to keep Negroes in what they arrogantly call "his place." Black men who fought in every war of this republic have come to the conclusion that they know what their place is and are determined to make this nation a "land of the free and the home of the brave." To them it will mean just as much to die for the cause of freedom at home as in some foreign war and for some vague and meaningless crusade which has no fruitage in their native clime.

It is the testimony of white military officers and civilians that Negro soldiers are usually orderly and behave themselves on par and frequently above that of white soldiers under similar circumstances, and it is, therefore, very difficult for us to believe that there is sufficient provocation for some of the things which have recently happened.

The New Leader Defends The Jim-Crow Reactionaries

Long ago Social Democracy revealed its advanced agency for the capitalist Red-baiters and war-mongers. But with regard to the Negro people it has tried to conceal its poisonous role behind a few demagogic words now and then on Negro rights.

In the June 21 issue of the New Leader, however, Social Democracy exposes its total and dangerous bankruptcy with respect to the Negro people. Commenting on the Job March to Washington scheduled for July 1, a New Leader editorial states:

"The obstacle to be overcome (by the Negro people—ed.) is not some specific policy of the Administration, not some rule of the army or navy, not some prejudice of employers or trade unionists. It is an attitude of the American people as a whole based deep in old habits and emotions."

This is a shameless whitewashing of the sinister anti-Negro capitalists who rule the country and want to plunge it into a shooting war. Who lynched Robert White, the innocent Negro worker in the Conroe, Texas, court room, "the American people" or a wealthy feudal landlord? Who issued the odrer officially upholding jim-crowism in the armed forces, "the American people" or President Roosevelt? Who continues to give contracts to "defense" employers, who arrogantly refuse to employ Negroes, "the American people" or President Roosevelt? Who refuses to enforce the constitutional rights of the Negro people, "the American people" or the President and the Department of Justice? To ask these questions is to answer them. Hitler too tries to place upon the German people the responsibility for his revolting crimes against the Jewish and other minority peoples.

By falsely imputing to the American people the sins of the war-mongering capitalist class, the New Leader is attempting to break the unity of Negro and white masses, attempts that lead to the "race riots" that the war-mongers want. The Negro people should not oppose the policies of the Administration and the Wall Street employers, according to the New Leader, they should oppose the white workers. It says:

"Ask an employer why he discriminates against Negroes. He will tell you that it is because he fears discontent in his labor force. . . . This alibi . . . contains enough truth to make it stick."

Despite the fact that more than a hundred thousand Negro workers are organized on a basis of equality in the CIO and many AFL unions, the New Leader provides the employers an "argument" for denying jobs to the Negro workers. In the name of "Negro rights" it is attacking the whole struggle of the Negro people for jobs and equality symbolized in the Job March.

The rotten policies of this Social Democratic organ, in supporting the war program, lead it into an alliance with the reactionaries against the Negro people and the white workers. It is clear that A. Phillip Randolph, Frank Crosswaithe and other Negro leaders who follow this policy are trying to lead the Negro people into the arms of their enemies. Undoubtedly the Negro masses will repudiate this Social Democratic poison, and make the job march the expression of their mass desire for Negro and white unity, job equality and peace

BANS DISCRIMINATION FROM DEFENSE HOUSING PROGRAM

JAN 17 1941

John B. Carmody, FWA Head, by Executive Order, Rules No Person May Be Denied Work Because of Race, Color

JAN 17 1941

WASHINGTON.—(ANP) — Discrimination against Negro skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled workers on defense housing has been banned by an executive order of John B. Carmody, head of the FWA.

Said Carmody: "There shall be no discrimination by reason of race, creed, color or political affiliations in the employment of persons qualified by training and experience for work in the development of defense housing at the sites thereof."

Machinery has been established to impliment the agency non-discriminatory policy to handle specific complaints growing out of possible violations of the order. Regulations have been sent to all contractors on defense housing and Carmody's order has been published in the federal register.

A. J. Sarre, director of personnel, and William Trent, racial relations officer, will give special attention to enforcement of the regulations against discrimination as it applies to the total defense housing program.

At the Urban league meeting Monday, Robert Weaver, commenting on the order, said that wider employment opportunities for colored citizens in federal service here should be attained before the government seeks to enforce such wider employment one contracts throughout the nation.

Discrimination In Defense Program

JAN 11 1941

ALMOST daily there is some new revelation of narrow and undemocratic denial of economic opportunity to America's chief minority group in the program of national defense. No single section is guilty alone. A chance to work, to help gird this nation for its greater security, is refused workers of color in the North, South, Middle West, and Far West.

We are seeking to preserve in this nation especially, and in this hemisphere, a way of life that provides and guarantees initiatives and freedoms—"life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," a way of life in which every citizen is equal before the law and endowed with the right, among others, to work and thus provide at least shelter, food, and clothing for himself and his dependents.

There are and have been imperfections in our democracy, and to overcome them much recent federal legislation includes clauses designed to prevent discriminations against workers because of race or politics.

Not many months ago the Defense Commission has voiced its formal disapproval of job barriers of the nature now being erected against the Negro. In consultation with the commission the two great national labor organizations jointly pledged themselves to a policy of fairness in the distribution of jobs. It is, formally, the fixed policy of the present Administration and of labor, as well as the law of the land, that none who apply and are qualified for work shall be turned away. In this present crisis it is, in addition, merest common sense to harness all of our resources and use all of our manpower.

BUT what is happening? In Norfolk a great addition to an aviation base, costing millions, is being constructed. Only a relatively few colored men, and those UNskilled, are hired. At Fort Eustis an urgent call has just been issued for 1,500 carpenters. Negro carpenters are turned down. "We cannot mix the races," the contractors explain.

Meanwhile, the defense program is far behind schedule. It is predicted by experts that the present program by 1942 will be severely handicapped by an acute shortage of all types of skilled craftsmen.

But, still, at Camp Lee near Petersburg, Va., our carpenters cannot ply their trade. Told they must be unionized, they joined—but gained nothing but the equivalent loss in cash of membership fees. In other places, if not at Camp Lee, the fees quoted our craftsmen are double or triple the normal ones.

At Fortress Monroe (Va.) only one painter and six carpenters of our race, out of hundreds, are at work. They got on with great difficulty, it is pretty well assumed.

In the East, Pacific Coast, and Tennessee Valley aircraft plants the same situation prevails. At Fort Dix, N. J., and at air fields in three Florida cities, BOTH unskilled and skilled workers are barred if they are of African descent.

* * *

IT is not because there are no qualified colored craftsmen. The federal-state employment offices in a large proportion may have only a few colored men listed in skilled capacities—but that results from a too general local policy of classifying all Negro applicants, regardless, as unskilled.

JAN 1 1941

However, the Newport News office of the Employment Service—with the assistance of this newspaper—had listed 162 carpenters and carpenters' helpers available for the Fort Eustis project involving an outlay of over 5 million dollars and planned to house 14,800 troops, including 800 colored soldiers. The contractors could, rather than deny all Negroes work, easily group them on individual building units if they insist on "no mixing" as a policy.

All of this accelerated defense program is stimulated by the threat of the totalitarian dictators under whose rule the non-Aryan peoples have suffered untold cruelties. Many of the offending officials, contractors, and other employers are of races which, were they under the heel of Hitler and his Gang of International hoodlums, would be subjected to similar refusals to work and hence to survive, to the atrocities of concentration camps, and to slow or sudden death. It is strange indeed that they can, that any freedom-loving American can, so easily forget this—and, of all times, during these troubled days.

* * *

IN a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, there was a carefully documented article on this same subject by Walter White. His concluding paragraph follows:

"It is the Negroes' hope that Mr. Roosevelt's recent declaration will have a remedial effect in this situation. The overwhelming majority of American Negroes regard the United States as a country which they helped to build, and which, rebuffed or not, they propose to help defend. Unsatisfactcory as conditions are, the average Negro, up to now, doesn't believe that either Hitler or Stalin has anything better to offer. He is, therefore, hanging on to his faith in democracy and going grimly ahead, determined to carry on his shoulders a fair share of the burden of its defense."

We Can Help To Speed Up Defense

JAN 18 1941

PERIODICALLY, newspapers, leaders, defense directors, legislators, and even our President, all express great alarm over the slow progress being made in the nation's gigantic defense program. We are in agreement that there is, obviously, some delay in this program but we find it necessary to indict this entire staff of defense leaders, from Mr. Roosevelt down, for either purposely or by negligence ignoring an important factor in a possible solution of this problem.

There is the almost universal failure of the nation to completely utilize the trained manpower in the Negro race. This reservoir of skilled labor remains untouched while national leaders continue to make calls for more and more speed, more and more sacrifices, and for more and more work. JAN 18 1941

Last week the President made his annual address to the 77th Congress on the state of the nation. It was a splendid address. Unfortunately, in his justifiable appeal for more production by the nation's vast defense machinery, he failed to mention some of the hundreds of cases where defense progress is being shamefully slowed down to protect the anti-Negro policies of certain unions of skilled mechanics, employers, and even officials.

Perhaps our President didn't know about the situation in Newport News where the construction of defense workers homes was slowed up for lack of sufficient carpenters. There were carpenters to be had all right, but they had black skins. So a vital project is held up while the state is scoured for white carpenters and colored mechanics are forced to stand around or accept the most menial type of job in order to gain a livelihood.

We say that probably Mr. Roosevelt is not familiar with this case but surely the thousands of similar instances where labor unions, or federal employment offices, or employers—or all three—have collaborated to save all of the defense program earnings for the pockets of white workers with a subsequent loss to the immensely important national defense program, could not have entirely escaped the attention of a man who tries to be as generally well informed on "the state of the Union" as does our President.

And even if his duties have been so strenuous that he has given little consideration to isolated cases of discrimination against skilled workers of color, we are absolutely certain that some of the members of the national defense commission, who have expressed alarm and deep concern over defense "bottlenecks," know all about this neglected reservoir of trained mechanics.

(Since this editorial was written an important new regulation has been promulgated, designed to eliminate the objectionable conditions.)

YOUTH MAKES ISSUE OF ARMY RACE POLICY

JAN 11 1941

Others Ready To Follow Lead Of Young Chicago Labor Official

The case of the Negro draftee was dramatically presented to Illinois Selective Service office last week in Chicago, when Ernest Calloway announced that he would not respond to Uncle Sam's call to arms if he has to serve in a jim crow army.

Calloway, who is educational director for the United Transport Workers of America, a labor organization made up of red caps, is rated by the draft board in classification A-1, which means that when they get around to calling up Negroes for service, he will be among the first summoned.

Indication that Calloway will not be the only Negro to refuse to serve came simultaneously with his announcement when J. G. St. Clair Drake Jr., secretary of the Conscientious Objectors Against Jim Crow, revealed that his organization had issued a call to Negro draftees in the Chicago area to join the fight for democratization of the nation's armed forces.

Drake came into the national picture during the draft lottery in October when he wired objections to discrimination in the army, navy and air force to President Roosevelt and Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, director of the selective service program.

The COAJC plans to establish the legal right of Negroes to claim exemption from military service on the grounds of conscientious objections because of the jim crow policy of the armed forces.

"We are ready, if it is necessary to do so, to go to jail or go to court to win our point," Drake said Monday. "We understand that quite a number of young men—some of them white—will flatly refuse to join any national defense program, be it military or civil, so long as discrimination exists."

Drake's reference to a civil program was taken as an answer to Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois director of the selective service. Armstrong Monday issued a statement declaring that conscientious objectors to military training will be sent to civilian camps and put to work on reforestation and soil conservation projects.

Calloway, who announced his determination to see the issue through regardless of what it might mean, said in a letter to draft officials setting forth his position: "I cannot accept the responsibility of taking the oath upon induction into military service under the present anti-democratic structure of the U. S. Army, and ask to be exempted from military training until such time that my contribution and participation in the defense of my country can be made on a basis of complete equality."

To date queries sent to state and national draft officials on the acceptability of objections to the jim crow policy of the army as grounds for exemption have gone unanswered. Provisions for such exemptions are not to be found in any selective service literature.

The practice of separating the races in the army is responsible for the deferment of Negroes throughout the country. Official announcements have naively explained that training camps for colored draftees are not yet ready.

Men And Defense

BY CARROLL KILPATRICK
Washington Bureau, The Birmingham Age-Herald-News

Army and navy officials, backed by administration leaders, have adopted as a guiding principle the slogan that the defense of America calls for a total national effort.

That fact is underlined in almost every report, memorandum or statement issued in Washington today. Regardless of what decisions are made it is said they are made for reasons of national defense.

Officials often do many things, of course, which have no relation to defense but are tagged "defense projects" in order to obtain congressional support or public approval.

* * *

There is one administration-supported project, however, which is related to the defense of America and deserves to be considered in the general emergency picture.

It is the rehabilitation and training program of countless thousands of Negro workers.

Someone may ask what relation this has to national defense. The answer is easy.

First, the problem of morale among minority groups is exceedingly important, particularly in a democracy that is on record as opposed to the criminal treatment of minorities in the Axis countries.

Second, every available worker is going to be needed if weapons of defense are to be manufactured in time to be of much aid in the struggle abroad now approaching the crisis stage. The Negro worker, skilled or unskilled, can be of real importance in this program of rearmament.

Third, problems of relief, housing, health and migration of workers can be reduced to a minimum if all available labor in every industrial locality is utilized to full advantage before additional workers are moved in.

* * *

Negro labor accomplished remarkable results in American shipyards during the World War, but in depression years white workers often were preferred, and the Negro lost many of the advantages he had gained.

With a surplus of labor always available after 1929, employers turned to white workers, making it necessary for many skilled Negroes to seek employment in whatever field work was available, whether a skill was required or not.

Studies have shown that the effects were in many instances disastrous. The nation as well as the Negro suffered, for his training was put to no good end and he often became a burden on the public relief rolls. Since the nation is the real loser whenever a trained worker is unable to use his skill we can get some idea of the importance to national defense of the administration's efforts to find places for skilled Negroes now unemployed or employed in unskilled trades.

* * *

Through the National Youth Administration and other educational groups, millions of dollars are being spent in the training of workers for defense industries. But the enemies of democracy abroad are not waiting for this training program to become effective.

It, therefore, becomes encumbent upon all employers to attempt to utilize to the greatest extent possible all available skilled labor. There have been reports in Washington of certain contractors who have refused to employ Negro carpenters but instead have sent to New York for white carpenters. The transportation of these carpenters naturally has helped create new housing and health problems as well as discontent and jealousy on the part of native labor.

In some instances the trade unions themselves have barred Negroes from defense projects, but Sidney Hillman, of the Defense Commission, has now obtained assurances from both the AFL and the CIO that discrimination will not be countenanced.

In still another instance it is said that a labor union with a contract admitted Negroes but could not persuade the employer to use them.

* * *

These difficulties are extremely complicated. It cannot be said that anyone is being necessarily vicious. It can be said that shortsightedness and ignorance have prevailed in some instances, and shortsightedness and ignorance are evils of first-rate importance; in this time of emergency they cannot be tolerated, however upsetting a sharp, bright light might be in some localities.

* * *

All elements of the population are needed if total defense is to be achieved and secured. Recognized trade unions have assured Washington that workers will not be "discriminated against because of age, sex, race or color." Congress has specifically stated that racial discriminations must not be tolerated in the defense of America.

It is not a harsh demand, but a demand that all the nation's human resources be utilized for the welfare of the American democracy.

USO Can Help Break Down Jim-Crow in Army Service

Afro-American Reveals Lack of Camp Facilities for Negro Draftees; Recreational Aid Vital for Defense Unity

By Eugene Gordon

Subway trains and buses carry a United Service Organizations card, in colors, showing a handsome young soldier and a handsome young sailor. The printed caption asks that the reader of the card contribute to USO's support.

It is an excellent idea. For the United Service Organizations are intended to provide recreation for our boys in the army and the navy.

It will be recalled, however, that the soldier and the sailor portrayed on the card are white. If you notice certain Harlem windows you will observe that they carry USO placards showing two soldiers and a sailor. The second soldier, out of consideration for the feelings of the Negro people (and to win their support) is a Negro.

This failure to integrate the Negro draftee with the country's soldiers and sailors as a whole in the matter of recreation for the service man is typical of the country's failure to integrate the Negro soldier and sailor with the armed forces in general. It grows out of the same cause.

A staff correspondent of the Baltimore Afro-American writes from Camp Shelby, Miss., that most of the men he talked to there wanted to be transferred to other camps. He says he tried to find out why the men's cry for a change had taken on the quality of a "theme song." He writes:

"Colored selectees at Shelby have no place to play. They are too confined. They have no recreational facilities."

"FACILITIES" FOR NEGRO

He adds that these Negro boys have "no band," "no service club," "no guest house for their relatives and girl friends," "no library," "no movie house," "no hostesses," "no recrational hall for ping-pong, cards and other games.' They once had a baseball field, he says, "but white soldiers came and saw and took over."

The Afro-American writer goes on:

"One baseball game has been played, and, I understand, volleyball, softball and basketball are scheduled for the near future. But many of these men have been in camp for months. They're getting mighty restless. They see white regiments with service clubs and recreational halls and movie theatres—and they want these things, too."

The Afro-American correspondent writes:

"Hattisburg, which is 14 miles from Camp Shelby, is no help at all in solving this very serious problem. This place of 28,000 inhabitants is a typical Mississippi town—with all too few pleasure spots for whites and none at all for colored.

He points out that the presence of Negro soldiers in uniform is "resented" thereabouts. But the men "can't get off the streets because there is no place for them inside anywhere." So they "crowd the walks in a short sector about two blocks long." On that brief stretch of sidewalk they are prey for domineering civilians and arrogant military police." Many of these boys have been beaten, the writer declares, "most of them threatened."

These draftees are native to that section. Not long ago there entered the camp a contingent of Negro troops from Illinois. These boys didn't know how to stay in "their place." The only way their Negro officers could prevent a flareup—and perhaps bloodshed—between the Negro troops and the Southerners was to forbid the soldiers' leaving camp at all.

Inside the camp there is the 'exchange," where men may buy soft drinks, candies, cigarettes and toilet articles. There also they may sit and talk. But when all that's over, there remains nothing for them but to cluster in groups and complain. And their complaint is undeniably just, in so far as it relates to the situation just described.

Army Jim-Crow Probe Asked After Fort Bragg Attack

Negro Congress Asks Appointment of Bi-Racial Committee to Study Anti-Negro Actions in Army; See Incidents Blow to Morale

(Daily Worker Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11.—The National Negro Congress has requested President Roosevelt to direct appointment by the War Department of a bi-racial civilian investigating committee to study the numerous incidents of anti-Negro actions by white army officers and military police and to make remedial recommendations to the War Department.

This action was taken by Congress officials following the report of the killing of a Negro draftee, Ned Turman, by white military police at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Turman was one of a truckload of young Negro soldiers accused of "making too much noise."

In a telegram sent President Roosevelt, the Congress declared that unchecked occurrences similar to the Turman case would result in "another Brownsville, Texas, affair for which the War Department officials will bear the direct responsibility."

"Nothing could more disturb the development of a healthy national morale," continued the telegram, "in our all-out effort to halt Hitlerism than the continued belief of tens of thousands of Negro parents that their drafted sons have no rights which white army officers are bound to respect."

"The killing of the Negro draftee, Ned Truman, by white military police in the vicinity of Fort Bragg, North Carolina, has gravely shocked the Negro people. This incident serves to highlight a number of serious incidents between white military police and white army officers on one hand and both Negro draftees and Negro civilians on the other. Months ago our organization advised the War Department of serious attacks on the Negro civilian population by military police at Columbia, S. C. The only advices received have been that the matter is still being investigated. Meanwhile numerous reports are springing up all over the country of vicious anti-Negro attitudes by white army personnel. This is an intolerable state of affairs, which if permitted to continue will result in another Brownsville, Texas, affair for which the War Department officials will bear direct responsibility. Nothing could more disturb the development of a healthy national morale in our all-out effort to halt Hitlerism than the continued belief of tens of thousands of Negro parents that their drafted sons have no rights which white army officers are bound to respect. For this reason I respectfully urge in the name of my organization that you direct the War Department to appoint a civilian committee made up of both Negro and white persons with full power to make a complete investigation of Negro-white relations in the armed services and to make recommendations based on this investigation to the War Department.

OPM Committee And NAACP Can't Agree On Defense Bias Situation

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Dr. Robert C. Weaver, chief of the Negro employment and training branch of OPM, this week made public the findings of an investigation by his office into the employment practices of the Brewster Aeronautical corporation in Long Island City, N. Y.

The investigation resulted from published charges by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that, contrary to announcements by Dr. Weaver's office, the New York aircraft firm had "made no steps to drop its color bars," and that the Office of Production Management "is attempting to paint a rosy picture of a dark situation."

The N.A.A.C.P. charged

(1) That Brewster Aircraft corporation hired five Negro workers as sheet-metal assistants and that "it is also rumored that one of these assistants was recently fired."

Investigation by Dr. Weaver's office revealed:

(1) That, following a visit to the plant by representatives of the Negro employment and training branch of OPM on June 25, the Brewster corporation hired seven Negro defense trainees as sheet-metal workers. These seven youths were eight of a list of 25 Negro trainees offered employment by the OPM representatives through telegram and mail. The other 17 Negro graduates did not respond to the offer.

None of the seven youths, who, like all trainees, are classified as sheets metal helpers, has been fired. They are paid the same wages and have been assured the same promotions as all other persons accepted from defense training courses.

At present, 11 Negro trainee-graduates are employed as sheet-metal production workers in the Brewster plant. Seven of these were working on August 1 when the N.A.A.C.P. issued its release.

The N.A.A.C.P. charged:

(2) That during the week of July 23, Edmond Van Osten, 31, of Brooklyn, N. Y., "who has nine years of experience as a sheet-metal worker," was denied employment as a sheet-metal worker because of his racial identity.

Investigation by Dr. Weaver's office revealed

(2) That, on his application blank at the Brewster plant, Mr. Van Osten listed his experience as that of a tinsmith's helper and declared that he had been employed in that capacity from 1931-1939. He has been working on odd jobs since 1939. Tinsmithing is an allied occupation and not the most desirable type of experience for aluminum sheet-metal work in aircraft manufacture. Mr. Van Osten claimed no experience in the latter field.

A review of the application blanks of 50 white men rejected on the day of Mr. Van Osten's visit revealed that the majority of this group possessed more suitable experience for aircraft metal work. None of these men was hired however.

The N.A.A.C.P. charged:

(3) That John J. Woods, 22, of Yonkers, N. Y., "with 400 hours of special training in aircraft riveting," was denied employment at Brewster because of his racial identity.

Investigation by Dr. Weaver's office revealed:

(3) That John J. Woods was one of the eight Negro youths originally taken to the plant by OPM representatives. While the seven others were hired as sheet-metal workers, Woods was told that there were no openings at that time for riveter-trainees.

Woods, however, has since been given employment by the company and is now one of the 11 Negro sheet-metal production workers there.

The N.A.A.C.P. charged:

(4) That Oliver Ming, 21, of New York City, who "has both training and experience," and who "worked for a year at LaGuardia field as junior aircraft assistant," was denied employment as a sheet-metal worker because of his racial identity.

Investigation by Dr. Weaver's office revealed:

(4) That Mr. Ming's training in aircraft manufacture had been limited and was not comparable to that of youths hired on the date of his visit, and that his experience was in the operating rather than the manufacturing field of aviation.

Ming is now employed in an operating capacity at Wright Field in Ohio.

War Department Bans Stories And Pictures Ridiculing Negroes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In response to protests made by The New York Age against derogatory pictures and news releases about Negroes, the Bureau of Public Relations of the War Department has issued the following instructions to all public relations officers in the field.

"Public Relations Officers are urged again to take every precaution against releasing stories or pictures which reflect on the dignity of the Army as a whole or of any group within the Army.

"Two recent incidents involving Negro troops have been brought to the attention of his office. One was a picture of Negro soldiers eating watermelon which was distributed to Negro newspapers and had the effect of making these soldiers appear ridiculous. In the other case a Negro soldier was quoted in dialect in a news story.

"Incidents of this type are destructive of morale among the troops and nullify the Army's attempt at building good will by causing justifiable resentment among the civilian populace. No group within the Army should be singled out for stories or pictures emphasizing racial or religious characteristics.'

MAYOR KELLY BACKS FDR ANTI-JIM CROW ORDER

Pledging himself to see that President Roosevelt's executive order which banned discrimination in defense industries was carried out to the letter and in spirit, Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago issued a written appeal to defense industries in the Chicago area to make special efforts to provide jobs for Negroes.

This was Mayor Kelly's first act Wednesday following his appointment as United States Director of Civilian Defense for Chicago.

Mayor's Statement

"I believe," the mayor declared in a statement, "that it would be tragic from a standpoint of community welfare and also a definite handicap to any all-out defense program if the Negro citizens of Chicago have any well-founded reason to believe they are being discriminated against in employment opportunities in defense work. It is my hope that there is not any basis for a feeling that such discrimination actually exists.

MAYOR EDW. J. KELLY

"I feel that the industrialists in the Chicago area not only want to do the right thing in this matter, but are fully aware of the very real contributions to the success of the defense program that can be made by Negro workers.

"It is my firm opinion that drawing of the racial line in defense activity makes a mockery of the whole defense effort. Our defense program was undertaken to defend democracy. Opportunity for persons of all races and creeds to earn a living is a basic tenet of democracy.

"A successful defense program depends upon full co-operation by and among all classes of our people. Racial discrimination, whether in industry or any other field, is a dangerous impediment to our national defense program and cannot be tolerated."

Roosevelt Told Negro Soldiers Suffer Violence

Two Civilian Groups Say Arkansas Cops Blackjacked Troops

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Officers of two Negro organizations said today they had appealed to President Roosevelt to halt alleged discrimination and violence against Negro soldiers.

Euclid Louis Taylor, president of the National Bar Assn., and Howard Gould, head of the Chicago Urban League, wrote the President that numerous complaints of brutality and mistreatment had been received from Negro soldiers.

Most of the complaints, they said, came from Chicago youths en route to Southern maneuvers from Camp Custer, Mich. One was of an attack on Negro soldiers bivouacked near Gurdon, Ark., Aug. 11, in which several were said to have been beaten with blackjacks and fired upon by Arkansas state police officers.

Mr. Taylor asserted that treatment accorded Negro troops by police officers in the South was shattering morale. He also said that Negro soldiers were victims of discrimination in some army camps where recreational facilities were provided for white solders, but not for Negroes.

Barred From Air Corps Sues War Department

JAN 25 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A suit to compel officials of the War Department to consider his application for enlistment in the United States army air corps as a "flying cadet," was filed here this week by Yancey Williams, student at Howard University.

The complaint which was filed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, names as defendents Secretary of War Henry Stimson, Chief of Staff Major General George C. Marshall, Adjutant General E. S. Adams, Chief of Air Corps Major General Henry H. Arnold, and Major General Walter S. Grant, commanding general of the third corps area. The suit is being brought not only in his own behalf, Williams says in the complaint, but also in behalf of all other colored citizens "similarly situated."

In his complaint, Williams, alleges that he has successfully completed the primary and secondary training courses of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and holds a private pilot's license. He passed the physical examination by army doctors at Bolling Field last July. Williams says he met all requirements for application for appointment as a flying cadet, made out his application and transmitted it with all required references and records, to the commanding officer of the third corps area on November 20, 1940. The Commanding General according to the complaint refused to consider the application because of the plaintiff's color.

Williams says he appealed to the Adjutant General and the Secretary of War, and on December 13, 1940 the appeal was refused on the s ame basis. The complaint also alleges that during that time and at the present time the defendant officials of the War Department have been advertising in newspapers and over the radio requesting qualified citizens to enlist as flying cadets in the Air Corps of the Army of the United States.

The complaint alleges further "That such conduct on the part of these defendants, who, in their officia capacity as officers of the Government and of the army of the United States and charged with the duty of preparation for national defense in a period when the Nation, according to its chief Executive, the President of the United States, faces the gravest emergency in its history, is a violation of the duty and obligation of these defendants to the citizens and government of the United States and contravenes the fundamental principles of American democracy."

The complaint asks for a declaratory judgment to establish the rights of Williams and others similarly situated, and for an injunction to require War Department officials to consider the application of Williams on its merits.

Wendell L. McConnell, of this city, is the student's attorney, McConnell requested the N.A.A.C.P. to furnish attorneys to cooperate with him on the case. The N.A.A.C.P. assigned Thurgood Marshall, its special counsel; and W. Robert Ming, Jr., and Leon A. Ransom, both members of the National Legal Committee to cooperate in the preparation and filing of the case.

Throwing the Light On A Grave Injustice

ALL thoughtful citizens of the State should be grateful to the Richmond Times-Dispatch for its searching editorial inquiry into the exclusion of skilled Negro mechanics from defense construction work. The subject is covered thoroughly by the Times-Dispatch, in two editorials entitled "Negroes and Our Defenses," which we are printing in full on the opposite side of this page.

This whole question calls for a thorough examination by the responsible citizenry of the State, because it undermines the foundation of any reasonable or decent living standard for Negroes. This serious situation has developed to its present appalling proportions during the past two decades, although it has been in the making during the past 50 years. It is due to a combination of circumstances which reflect discredit upon democracy. One factor involved has been the desire of organized labor to protect its interests by controlling apprenticeships.

The idea there has been to keep the skilled labor crafts from being overrun, and to insure competent workmen. The idea would have been reasonable had not the organized craft unions excluded Negroes both from unions and from apprentice schools. Such a practice has resulted in bringing about the acute problem confronting Negroes skillfully trained in many private and state technical schools, both on the college and high school level. When a Negro mechanic possessing all the skill required for the job at hand applies for employment he finds that the government work is controlled by a contractor, who, nine times out of ten is under contract with the unions, which by ritual, by-laws and practice, exclude Negroes from membership.

We are then under a government which legalizes the labor union and legislates it into a place of power in the nation; which gives it the right to bargain exclusively for work and wages, while the union at the same time excludes from either work or wages a whole segment of American citizens.

Making a Farce of Defense

The type of excuses made for not putting Negroes to work as carpenters at Ft. Riley disclosed that the real reason is pure unwillingness. The contractor, spokesman of objectors, had "never heard" of Negro carpenters. The credentials of the carpenters union with which he was accustomed to deal left him no ground for opinion. He feared Negro carpenters "would find no place at Ft. Riley to eat and sleep." Negro laborers already at work there were eating and sleeping. Furthermore the contractor's responsibility does not extend to caring for his men. Next the contractor "feared a walk out of white carpenters if Negroes were employed." The organization of industry is such that he as employer, has nothing to do with the men employed. Only the union which sent these Negroes for him to employ, speaks for the worke

Finally this contractor whose attitude is the new barrier to Negroes taking a part in defense work, said he had no plans for the employment of a force of Negro carpenters. We are amazed! From Washington comes word, the President, Knudsen of the defense council, and the war department's secretary that the need is haste. Yet this contractor with labor offered, and labor needed, has no plans for the employment of Negroes! He expects Hitler to adjust his attack on America to suit the progress of its defense!

If only this contractor's life and property were at stake, there would be some basis for letting him do as he pleases But he has been given the job of preparing part of the national defense! That he should not do as he chooses, but carry out as part of the general plan made in Washington. If this were 1917, it would be common knowledge that he would be paid "cost plus," and that his profits would be the larger the more his costs. This time Washington has started out to block profiteering. Contractors are expected to be as loyal, as patriotic, as selfless as the soldier in the ranks. Would a soldier holding a post in the battle line at the risk of his life, refuse the help of a black American who stepped up beside him? We are sure he would not, no matter what his thought about the races. Neither should this contractor refuse Negro aid.

Something is wrong when prejudice persists and dares delay national defense. We recommend that he and all like him heed what President Roosevelt said in his message on the state of the country, delivered to Congress Monday:

"...I find it necessary to report that the future and the safety of our country and of our democracy are overwhelmingly involved in events far beyond our borders."

"In times like these it is immature—and incidentally untrue—for anybody to brag that an unprepared America, single-handed, and with one hand tied behind its back, can hold off the whole world."

"As long as the aggressor nations maintain the offensive, they—not we—will choose the time and the place and the method of their attack."

"That is why the future of all American republics is today in serious danger.

"...The immediate need is a swift and driving increase in our armament production."

"I am not satisfied with the progress thus far made. The men in charge of the program represent the best in training, ability and patriotism. They are not satisfied with the progress thus far made."

Charge Firms With Refusing To Hire Draftees

JAN 12 1941

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 9—In line with the President's plea for the American people to give their united effort in the present national defense emergency, Paul G. Armstrong, state director of Selective Service, said this week that unfortunately certain business firms are deliberately and shortsightedly discharging and refusing to hire young men subject to the Selective Service law.

"Because the law requires a private employer to reemploy young men who have been called into the service for one year," said Mr. Armstrong, "a few employers whose patriotism has been submerged have allowed self-interest to subjugate ther primary responsibility, which is to the United States.

"Fortunately these employers are few. Our experience in the administration of the Selective Service Act has been a reassurance that the overwhelming majority of men engaged in business, industry and labor are thoroughly sound in their patriotism. I believe it is timely to sound this note of warning to those who are not. The warning is not a threat from the Selective Service administration, but a reminder of the fact that business, industry and labor depend for their existence upon the welfare of the American family. There are very few families today who are not directly or indirectly concerned with the success of America's present defense effort which includes every man who registered under the Selective Service Act.

"The Selective Service administration would consider it a most disagreeable duty should it become necessary to make public the names of any business, industrial or labor organization, or of any individual, who put self-interest above that of their country."

Negroes and Our Defenses - II

JAN 11 1941

From Richmond Times-Dispatch

THE defense program in Virginia and the nation is being seriously hampered by the fact that Negroes are not being given an opportunity to do skilled work on defense projects, except in rare instances, and the further fact that, in this part of the country, at least apprenticeship training for Negroes is practically nonexistent. Facilities for vocational training, on the contrary, are much more satisfactory.

JAN 25 1941

High-grade apprenticeship training is offered at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company's school, but no Negroes are admitted, although there are many Negro employees in the shipyard.

The same goes for the Norfolk Navy Yard and the Norfolk Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company. In like manner, the apprenticeship offered by the Lynchburg Iron Foundry Company at its Lynchburg and Radford plants is for whites only.

FEB 25 1941

We have a situation, then, wherein a Negro who is skilled finds it extremely difficult to get a job in a defense industry where he can use his skill. Moreover, if he hasn't the skill he desires, he cannot acquire it in any apprenticeship school in the State, given the plan under which schools now are operated.

White employees in plants which have such schools are given the opportunity to improve themselves by taking the courses offered there, in connection with their jobs in the yard or factory, but not the colored employees.

Facilities for adult vocational training for Negroes in Virginia, as contrasted with apprenticeship training, are about as well developed as those for whites. Such training is offered at Negro high schools in Richmond, Roanoke, Danville, Norfolk and Bristol, and at the Virginia State College for Negroes, Petersburg, and at Hampton Institute.

From 1,500 to 2,000 adult Negros are taking courses in such trades as woodworking in all its phases, mechanics and machine shop operation, welding, sheet metal working, pipe fitting, drafting, and so on. The number of Negroes tak-

Seek Congressional Probe Of Jim Crow In National Defense

JAN 25 1941

Introduction in Congress of a resolution calling for a Senate investigation of the status and treatment of the Negro in the national defense program will be sought by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, it was announced here Saturday.

According to officials of the organization the name of the senator who will introduce the resolution will be made known within the next few days.

The resolution will call for public hearings, the announcement said, and the taking of testimony from officials of the Army, Navy, Air Corps, employers, leaders of trade unions and the submission of information gathered by the association as a result of two national surveys now nearing completion.

In the event that discrimination is not abolished after the investigation, the announcement said, the Association will seek the introduction of bills in Congress to require inclusion of Anti-discrimination clauses in all industrial defense contracts financed in whole or in part by the federal government, and to amend the National Labor Relations Act by denying the protection of this Act to unions which discriminate either directly or indirectly against Negroes.

Rejected by Air Corps, Youth Sues

JAN 25 1941

WASHINGTON

A suit to compel officials of the War Department to consider his application for enlistment in the United States Army Air Corps as a "flying cadet," was filed here last week by Yancey Williams, a student at Howard University.

The complaint, filed in the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia, names as defendants, Secretary of War Henry Stimson and other high officials of the War Department, and is brought in behalf of Williams and all other colored Americans "similarly situated."

Williams, who has completed two years of college work at Howard, alleges that he has successfully completed the primary and secondary training courses of the CAA and passed the physical examination by army doctors at Bolling Field, last July, but the commanding officer of the Third Corps Area on November 20 refused to consider his application on the ground that he is colored.

Negroes Barred From 38,000 Aircraft Jobs

MAR 27 1941

BALTIMORE, Md.—With more than 221 million dollars in air defense contracts, representing nearly one and one-half per cent of the entire 17 billion being spent by the government for defense industry, tucked under their belt, officials of the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Company located near here, told the National Negro Congress Wednesday, March 4, that the firm had no intention of "pioneering" in the field of defense jobs for Negroes, as long as the government itself continues to bar them from defense projects.

The attitude shown by Martin aircraft, the biggest plant of its kind in the East, parallels the position taken by Vultee aircraft in California, Congress officials said.

Youth Councils Have Three-fold Objective In Their Attempt To Stop Discrimination

Don't Want Johnson Act Repealed

LOS ANGELES.—(Special to CNA)—California Youth Legislature workers will organize local youth councils to "meet the real needs of young people" in every section of Los Angeles.

Through recommendations of an all-day education session here, the youth councils will have a three fold objective:

1. Development of recreational centers near selective service camps for the benefit of draftees, augmenting a program to make draft camps sanitary and healthy before conscriptees are admitted.

2. Securing peace time jobs for all unemployed youth, irrespective of color, since war time employment programs have made but a "small dent" in unemployment rolls.

3. Elimination of racial discrimination and segregation in the United States Army and Navy and in national defense industries.

The youth will swing into action in every neighborhood, centering their campaign on opposition to repeal of the Johnson Act, which provides that no loans be given to World War debt defaulters.

Rap Jim Crow Apologists

Keynoting the conference was Youth Legislature State Chairman Charles Rosenthal, who termed the campaign for jobs a "real campaign for national defense."

"Harriet Elliot, of the National Defense Advisory Commission, has said there are 45,000,000 American people living below the danger line of malnutrition," Rosenthal told the conference.

"We are proud to take a position behind Jefferson, Lincoln and Susan B. Anthony and carry on the traditions of real democracy."

The 56 delegates and more than 125 observers applauded when Tom Cullen, executive secretary of the American Peace Mobilization, answered arguments of apologists for Jim Crowism that "Negroes would rather be by themselves," by declaring:

"The experience of the trade unions have shown that Negroes are willing to take their place beside their white brothers. Our job is to break down barriers which separate the conscripted army and the body of our civilian democracy so there can be a free interchange of the benefits of our democracy."

After recommending establishment of a youth advisory committee to work with NYA heads for the abolition of Jim Crowism, the conference delegates voted to send a telegram of protest to Navy officials on racial discrimination.

Jim Crow In U. S. Army

Reprinted From "In Fact"
Issue December 30

JAN 11 1941

In March 1939 an Army Bill required the Army to set up a flying school to train Negro pilots, but since then in defiance of Congress no such flying school has been set up. Out of 62,200 licensed pilots in the country, 130 are Negroes. The Civil Aeronautics Board and the NYA are not training Negro pilots. Out of 180,000 men being trained as technicians, three are Negroes. One Negro aeronautical engineer, a graduate of MIT and Stanford, has been taken on as a "probationary employee" by Douglas Aircraft, but with that exception no Negroes work in the aircraft industry.

Negroes are not allowed to remain in ROTC units in Lake Universities for more than two years, for students get officers' commissions in their third and fourth year. The Red Cross does not hire Negro nurses. When the War Department sent Gold Star mothers on a junket to France several years ago, the Negro Gold Star mothers were sent on a Jim Crow freighter.

An amendment to the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill consisting of two phrases, "regardless of race, creed or color," and "including aviation units," was passed by the Senate in August over the opposition of poll-tax senators. It wasn't passed by the House and it was taken out by the House-Senate conference committee. The act now reads: "No Negroes, because of race, shall be excluded from enlistment in the Army for service with colored military units." Brigadier General Lewis Hershey, temporary administrator of the draft, told Negroes, "The act says there is to be no discrimination, but the act also says that no man may come into the Army who is not acceptable to the Army." Headquarters of the First Corps Army area in Boston issued quiet instructions to draft boards not to take any Negroes at all in the first draft, but after getting publicity in the Negro press the order was withdrawn.

Present Army plans are for inclusion of 36,000 Negroes in the first 400,000 men drafted. Most of them will serve in labor battalions. In the last war only 40,000 out of 200,000 Negroes in France were in the fighting forces. Southern officers were chosen to command Negro troops. On August 17, 1918, a memorandum was issued to French civil and military authorities from American General Headquarters, entitled, "Secret Information Concerning Black American Troops." It contained these statements:

"The Negro is regarded by the white American as inferior. The vices of the Negro are a constant menace to the American, who has to repress them sternly.

"We must prevent the risk of any pronounced degree of intimacy between French officers and black officers. We must not commend too highly the black American.

"Make a point of keeping the native cantonment population from spoiling the Negroes."

Major Campbell Johnson Defends Selective Service System

47c

WASHINGTON.—(ANP)—When Ernest Calloway, educational director of the Red Cap's Union, and George Leon Paul Weaver requested exemption from the military service of the United States on the grounds of jim crow existing in the army and the undemocratic attitudes displayed to Negroes, the Chicago draft board rejected their pleas, but not before Calloway and Weaver had sent letters to Major Campbell C. Johnson, civilian aide to Dr. Dykstra in the selective service system, and to ex-judge William Hastie, civilian aide to the secretary of war.

Both replied to the men, with Judge Hastie asking that the matter be referred to Major Johnson

In a statement given the Associated Negro Press on Wednesday morning, Major Johnson quoted from his reply to the letters as follows:

"The selective service system is making every effort to operate without discrimination toward any minority group. The war department has opened several new branches of the service to Negroes. Among them are the coast artillery, anti-aircraft, field artillery, engineers, signal corps and it has begun to call Negro reserve officers to active duty. Discussions are being held looking forward to further liberalization of the policies of our armed forces.

"These things are being done with much earnestness because it is realized that the greatest possible degree of democracy must exist in the country which stands before the world today as the hope of the democratic ideaology. The most important service which can be rendered by any of us at this time is to lend whatever aid we can to strengthening the arms of our nation without sacrificing for one moment the principles which we hold or giving up our constant struggle for the more complete democratization of our country."

Discussing the situation, one daily paper, liberal in intent, declared that the Chicago draft board tacitly admitted the jim-crow policies of the army in refusing the exemptions. However, officials say it was adjudged purely on the legal aspects and the exemptions as laid down by the selective service system and without any regard to color.

Shall The Negro Get Work?

The president recently felt it necessary to protest against a Jim Crow line in employment in defense jobs in towns and cities. The Negro, for all the apparent progress of his race, seems now caught in a more desperate position than even he knew in the past between a land where there are few places for him and the towns where there are no jobs for him.

This is an American problem of special significance to the South. In recent years huge numbers of Southern Negroes have moved to the cities of the North. Indeed today the largest communities of Negroes in the world are north of the Mason and Dixon Line. But millions of Negroes remain in the South and always will remain. That means that when, on the land and in the town, he is progressively shut off from a chance to work, the burden of his dependency on the region will increase. This is tragedy for the Negro, but it is a tragedy from which his white neighbors do not escape.

Indeed, this increasing economic plight of the Negro is one which puts a growing load on the South's advance. No region can afford the luxury of carrying a race which in large degree is not allowed to work for itself. But the process, shown in census figures, moves in that direction. Discrimination against the employment of Negroes in the end comes to a white insistence that white men be allowed to support Negroes in idleness. If that makes sense this is a silly world. Yet that seems to be the direction in which discrimination against the Negro in town and country employment is leading.—The Raleigh News and Observer.

Protest War Department Segregation Plan Through Calling Up Whites Only

JAN 11 1941

Negro Draftees Will Have To Wait Until Special Quarters Are Ready For Them

Draft Board All White

NEW YORK.—A vigorous protest against the studied policy of carefully preparing the ground for complete segregation of Negro troops from white troops in training camps by selecting and inducting, only white draftees into the army until "camp facilities are available for Negro troops," was launched with the War Department on Monday, December 23, by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The protest was made following the issuance of ai order to local draft boards here on Monday by New York City's selective service headquarters, advising board members that only white draftees will be selected and inducted into the army under the first 1941 draft call until sometime during February, when facilities for Negroas troops are expected to be ready. The order means that, regardless of number, Negro draftees will be passed over and only white draftees will be ordered to report for training during the present period.

Association officials said that they believed similar orders have gone out to draft boards in many sections of the country. The complete text of the type of order sent to local boards in New York City follows:

JAN 11 1941

"This is an order coming from the Selective Service Headquarters (in New York.) The Army has called for a total of 3,663 white men to be furnished from the city of New York in the initial call for January, 1941. Your quota for this call is 21 men. If any of the men whose order numbers bring them within your quota call are Negro they will not be directed to report at the induction station. Instead, notice of selection will be sent to these men and they will be called for induction as soon as camp facilities are available for Negro troops, probably during the month of February. For example, if the quota for your board is fifteen men and two out of the first fifteen men on the order list are Negroes, the two Negroes will be given only notice of selection, and the thirteen white men will be given notice of selection and also the order to report for induction."

Draft Boards All White

From reports that continue to come in from NAACP branches, as a result of the association's survey launched several weeks ago to determine conditions facing the Negro under the draft law, announcement was made today that no Negroes are serving on either local or advisory draft boards in St. Paul, Minn.; Newport, R. I.; Nashville, Tenn.; Fulton, Arkansas; and Charlestown, Mo.

Tacoma, Washigton, has one Negri serving on the local board, but none on the advisory board; New Bedford, Mass., reports none on the local and two on the advisory board. Bridgeport, Conn., has one serving on the local and one on the advisory board.

In none of the above named cities are Negres employed as paid workers on either local or advisory draft boards, it was reported. While ten Negro volunteer physicians work with local draft boards in Nashville, Tenn., they examine only Negro draftees. Negro physicians work with local draft boards in Nashville and in Saint Paul, Minn.

League Finds Job Discrimination In Defense Plants

JAN 18 1941

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Further indications that a long and continued fight must be waged to secure employment for Negroes in industries receiving defense contracts, were apparent in reports being received by the National Urban League from affiliated branches all over the country.

In one typical city—Cleveland Ohio—a survey made by the Associated Industries of Cleveland, at the request of the Cleveland Urban League, indicated that two-thirds of the defense program contractors of Cleveland hired no Negroes for skilled or semi-skilled work.

Those questioned, according to the report, were practically unanimous in excusing their admitted racial discrimination on the grounds that it was not due to their own opposition to Negro workers but rather to fear of resentment on the part of their white employees, 'which might lead to serious labor trouble, or at least sufficient ill will to interfere with efficient production.

The same survey indicated that even those companies employing Negroes, used only a small proportion of them in skilled or semi-skilled occupations. Practically all of the skilled Negro laborers were found in the foundry industry. Only six companies, in addition to those now employing Negroes, felt that it would be possible to hire colored workers as a regular policy under normal conditions, and only fifteen companies not now doing so felt that they could use Negro skilled labor for the production.

ONLY 550 OUT OF 13,000 EMPLOYED

In Warren, Ohio, it was found that 550 colored workers were among the 13,000 men employed by nineteen factories—about five per cent of the total. The managers of all the firms not now employing Negroes were fonud to be adamant in their position not to use colored workers.

In the South the situation was found to be the same in many respects. The ommunity Welfare League of Memphis, Tenn., reported that although it could find no firms in the city holding a Government defense contract that did not employ Negroes, practically all of the colored perosns employed were working as common laborers.

In Pittsburgh, where firms have to date received more than $36,000,000 in defense contracts, a few nationally-known plants were fonud to employ Negroes as skilled workers.

On the other hand, a far larger number of firms holding defense contracts were found to employ Negroes only in a menial capacity, or not at all. All of these concerns have contractes amounting to at least $8,000,000; and some of the contracts are as high as $15,000,000

CHICAGOANS BACK FIGHT AGAINST SEGREGATION

Flay Establishment of Separate Squadron For Negro Airmen

FEB 1 1941

CHICAGO—Support of the National Airmen's Association's fight against the establishment of a segregated pursuit squadron for Negroes as a part of the United States Army Air Corps was voted by the Chicago Council of Negro Organizations here recently.

The council, made up of 78 business, civic, social, fraternal, and religious organizations, represents numerically approximately 80 per cent of Chicago's 269,000 Negroes. The council's action was taken after Enoc P. Waters, NAA advisor, explained the significance of the campaign launched by the association last week, following an announcement made by Undersecretary of War, Patterson.

According to Patterson, an all-Negro squadron consisting of a ground crew of 400 men, 33 pilots and 27 planes, will be set up at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama where a flying field and other facilities will be provided by the United States Army Air Corps.

White May Be in Charge

The ground crew, according to the announcement, will be trained at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., for several months before going to the southern school. The squadron, it is understood, will be commanded by a white officer.

Mrs. Irene McCoy Gaines, prominent Chicago club woman and civic worker, who is president of the council, was pleased with the action taken by the council.

"This action," she said, "is in line with the policy of the council which is firmly opposed to all forms of segregation. We are especially concerned about the government's attitude on race questions because industry and private individuals as a rule adopt the government's policy where Negroes are concerned."

WANT TO WORK FOR GOVERNMENT?

Uncle Sam Past Master At Racial Run-Around

WASHINGTON, (ANP)—While the government has made provisions for the stoppage of discrimination against Negroes in its defense program and is setting up committees to see what can be done, the wrongs done Negroes in its own departments are shown by the copies of telegrams and correspondence on several cases which have come to light since June 1.

Miss Marguerite Adams of Washington, D. C., says she was notified of an appointment for three months as tabulator in the Social Security department, Baltimore. She reported for an interview but says her interviewer displayed a nasty attitude and almost refused to talk with her. He asked, she says, why she didn't stay in Washington since she was now employed at the census department.

She explained that she had discussed the possibility of an appointment in Baltimore and had received permission from her present employer to investigate such. He then told her, she states in her complaint, to wait in the back of the room for a while. Later he told another man to talk with her. This second person asked Miss Adams if she would accept an appointment for one month. She told him she would.

He then said he was sure the job would only last two weeks. Miss Adams informed him that her notice of appointment had stated that the job would last at least three months, whereby he assured her that it would last only two weeks.

CERTIFIED—BUT NO JOB

Miss Lucille L. Waters of Washington received the following wire:

"You have been certified for temporary appointment not exceeding three months as junior clerk typist at 1440 per annum, this service, Washington. If interested call for personal interview at 308 Hutchings building, Tenth and D streets, Northwest. Immigration and Naturalization service."

Miss Waters declares she reported for the personal interview at the Immigration and Naturalization service. The interviewer asked her any number of questions, mostly personal ones, such as why wasn't she satisfied with the work she is doing, which happened to be an NYA job; finally she was allowed to fill out the necessary blanks.

She was then told to have the statements notarized. In the meantime, a white girl was interviewed, received her certification and was told to report to work. Miss Waters was told to go home, she would be notified by telephone when a vacancy existed.

When she got home, she called the Civil Service Commission read the telegram to the information clerk and was told that it was one of appointment. Miss Waters then related what had happened and the information clerk said it was because she was colored that she did not get the job, and further informed that the department had a right to say whether they wanted white or colored workers.

"NO NEGROES HERE"

Miss Odeal Clark, of Washington, D. C., went to the Federal Housing Authority to ask for an application blank for a typist. She spoke with an assistant in the Federal Housing Administration. She was asked if she had an appointment, and when she said no, she was told:

"Oh, I see. Well, I'm sorry, but we don't hire any colored typists in this building. In fact, we have no colored people for any kind of work except charwomen. I'm sure you wouldn't be interested in that. Sorry you had to wait all this time just to hear that."

PITTSBURGHER CALLED

"If interested in temporary appointment at $1440 as junior photographer for a period of three months with privilege of extension of three months, please report for personal interview with Mr. Love, 815 Pennsylvania avenue, not later than July 3, at 4 p. m.

"Donald R. Perry, Acting Director of Alien Registration."

Mr. Thompson came to Washington for the interview and was politely told that he would have to wait about two weeks since the jobs hadn't "come through" as yet. At the end of two weeks, he went back. He filled out the Civil Service blank, enclosed his photograph as requested.

When he went back on July 21, he was advised that there had been no change in the positions, they weren't ready as yet, but the interviewer suggested that it would be best for Mr. Thompson to go back to Pittsburgh.

NOTHING IN AERONAUTICS

Mrs. Martha G. Young, Washington, was wired to report for a position as clerk-typist in the Civil Aeronautics administration, the telegram being signed by Dick Carlson, personnel director. When she reported for the interview, she talked with a Miss Rogers who is reported to have said the positions hadn't come through as yet and she had just sent the telegrams for interviews, they didn't mean positions, however, in case a position was open, she would contact Mrs. Young.

Prior to this call, Mrs. Young had received a letter from the state department in which she was told:

"If you wish to be considered for this vacancy, please fill out the enclosed application fform and bring it to Room 1000, Department of State Building," and was signed, "B. F. Allen, chief, recruiting and selection section."

"ALL FILLED"

Mrs. Young went for the interview on July 21 and talked with Mr. Allen who said people had been coming in since the day before, which happened to be Sunday, and early that morning, and due to the limited number of positions, they all had been filled. However, they all had been filled. if a vacancy occurred, she would be notified.

All of the cases have been filed with the local NAACP in the hope that they may be brought to light and something done to stop the vicious practice of barring Negroes from positions through the flimsy excuses usually offered.

This has been a common practice in the departments and hundreds of Negroes have been turned down on account of these procedures.

It is reported again, that the 13 colored girls supposed to be in the stenographic pool in the War Department, Munitions building, haven't been furnished with typewriters to date and they are merely herded together in one room, with no work to do and nothing to work with in the event some brass hat decided to give them a tryout.

COMPLAINTS BASED ON SURVEY MADE BY CARTER W. WESLEY

Ted Berry, Co-ordinator of Allied Councils for National Defense, Calls Government's Attention to Conditions

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7—Complaints of discrimination in the national defense program in Texas on account of race or color were brought to the attention of Government officials here last Wednesday.

These complaints were based on a report from Theodore M. Berry, of Cincinnati, Ohio, co-ordinator of the Allied Councils for National Defense, affiliated with The Pittsburgh Courier and the Committee on the Participation of Negroes in the National Defense Program.

BERRY'S REPORT FOLLOWED SURVEY

The basis of Mr. Berry's report was a survey of the national defense situation in Texas as it relates to the training and employment of colored persons. This survey was made by Carter W. Wesley, State Director of the Texas Allied Councils for Defense.

Attention of William H. Hastie, civilian aide to the Secretary of War, was invited to the fact that at Camp Wolters, Texas, the entire medical corps personnel, "saving maids, cooks and porters," is white. He was also told that there is only one colored chaplain at Camp Wolters, although there are 1,685 colored troops stationed at this replacement center.

Lieutenant Colonel Frank J. McSherry, director of defense training, Federal Security Agency, was asked to direct the establishment of defense vocational training courses for colored persons at Tyler, Texas. It was reported that while no industries in the region of Tyler have defense contracts, the public school system there has set up a $20,000 vocational training school for white trainees under the act making available Federal funds for vocational training in trades essential to national defense.

COMPLAINT ALSO MADE TO DR. WEAVER

Complaint about training and employment of colored persons under the defense program at Dallas, Texas, was made to Dr. Robert C. Weaver, chief of the Negro Employment and Training Section, Labor Division, Office of Production Management.

Dr. Weaver was told that in the Dallas area colored persons are denied equality of training for essential defense industries. Certain classes in non-essential defense activities, such as cooking, shoemaking and the like, he was advised, are being given colored persons, while white trainees are being given refresher and introductory courses in welding, sheet metal work, radio work, engineering and airplane mechanics.

The Avivon Village Defense Housing Project at Grand Prairie, Texas, through the Central Construction Company, contractors, is discriminating against colored skilled workers, Dr. Weaver was also advised.

CONTRACTOR REFUSES TO RECOGNIZE RACE LOCAL

The usual excuse given, he was told, is that workers are furnished by the Dallas Building and Trades Council, that colored workers are not members of the craft unions, and they cannot be permitted to have employment opportunities in the skilled trades.

There is said to be a colored carpenters' local, No. 774, American Federation of Labor, in Dallas, but the contractor refuses to recognize the colored local because of a protest from the white carpenters' local, which also has an American Federation of Labor charter.

North American Aviation Corporation, Grand Prairie, Texas, refuses to employ colored workmen in any capacities except that of janitorial and service work, Dr. Weaver was advised. A total of 42 colored workers are said to be employed at that plant in those capacities and receiving the minimum wage rate of 40 cents an hour.

ARMY HEAD TAKES DRASTIC ACTION TO END JOB BIAS

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 7—Negro applicants for clerical, stenographic and typing jobs in the War Department—if they are properly eligible under civil service—will hereafter be put to work in all bureaus, and if the white workers don't like the presence of Negro employes, they can get out, according to a well-informed source. This is the substance of a non-publicized order, said to have been issued by Secretary of War Stimson last Thursday.

This action is said to have followed long-standing complaints registered by colored civil service eligibles against personnel chiefs in the War Department. They have been sent to clerical, stenographic and typing pools in the War Department, but when bureau chiefs have sent for help, the colored applicants have been "looked over" in favor of whites and left with nothing to do for days and weeks at a time.

BANS RESTRICTION

Chief instances in which Negro applicants have been considered have been those involving so-called bureaus in the department, such as that of Judge William Hastie.

Stimson's new order to said to specifically state that the colored workers are not to be restricted to colored bureaus, but are to be used throughout the department where their services are necessary.

This action on the part of the Secretary of War, if reported correctly, is doubtless an indirect product of the creation of the Committee on Fair Employment Practice, one of the first attacks on job Jim Crow made before the committee was leveled at discrimination in the War Department.

These charges, as published in The Courier, are said to have been placed on Stimson's desk.

Persons who claim to have seen the Stimson order asserted that it is the most drastic and direct ever issued in the department.

Why President Roosevelt Issued His Order Denouncing The Non-Employment Of Negroes In Defense Plants

Washington, D. C.—Ray Tucker, veteran Washington correspondent and noted columnist, in a recent issue of his syndicated column, "The National Whirligig," told the complete story of the clever wire-pulling employed by high officialdom to call off the projected March on Washington to protest against the discriminations against Negroes being employed in defense plants holding BILLIONS OF DOLLARS of Government contracts.

How the March on Washington Was Stopped.

President Roosevelt's order forbidding discrimination against Negroes in defense factories was literally prized out of him by threat of a "March on Washington" by members of that race. The prospect of such a demonstration at this time threw the Administration into panic. They manipulated every lever in sight to prevent the affair.

The director of the threatened march, A. Philip Randolph, wrote to the President several weeks ago, asking if he would address the group when it reached the capital on July 1. There was no reply for two weeks. Then Mr. Randolph, who heads the Brotherhood of Pullman Porters, received a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt. She said she had discussed the matter with her husband, and that he was sternly opposed to the idea. Last week Negro leaders were invited to New York by Mayor LaGuardia in his capacity as Civilian Defense Director. He begged them to call off the demonstration, but they refused. President Roosevelt subsequently summoned the sponsors to the White House, and personally asked them to leave the matter to him. Again they declined.

Mr. LaGuardia and Aubrey Williams, NYA Director, attended the session. Mrs. Roosevelt, who was at Campobello off New Brunswick, tried by telephone to persuade them to listen to her and her husband's arguments. Still the Negro representatives, supported by the most prominent members of their race, refused to abandon the scheme.

The Showdown

The climax came dramatically at a White House conference early this week. The dramatis personae reveal the President's intense desire to avert a spectacle which inevitably would have political, social and economic repercussions.

Besides Mayor LaGuardia, Mr. Williams and Social Security Coordinator Anna Rosenberg, F. D. R. called the OPM-ers Knudsen, Knox, Stimson and Hillman.

The President opened the discussion by reiterating his firm opposition to the proposed "march." He declared that problems affecting the Negro race cannot be settled in that manner. He asked: "What would happen if the Irish and Jewish people staged a march on Washington? It would be resented by the American people because such a march would be considered as an effort to coerce the Government and make it do certain things."

Mr. Randolph replied that the Irish and Jewish people have no grievances while the Negroes do, and added that all other forms of protest have proved ineffective. When Mr. Roosevelt refused to address the group on the ground that he does not speak to such assemblages, he was reminded that he once spoke before the American Youth Congress, which booed him when he denounced the Communists. F. D. R. soon left the room.

The practical Mayor LaGuardia then suggested issuance of a Presidential order against discrimination on defense jobs. Both Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Hillman opposed this because so many other factors are involved in the defense program. Both agreed, however, to use their "influence" to insure the hiring of Negroes. Mr. Randolph and Walter White, of the NAACP, replied that "education" and "persuasion" have been tried and failed. Then it was that the President agreed to issue his mandate.

DEFENSE FACTORY TRAINS WORKERS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 7.—A signal victory for the Pittsburgh Courier's nation-wide campaign for the inclusion of Negroes in the National Defense Program was won today, when the United States Cartridge Company announced that more than 3,000 Negroes will be employed in its new plant here.

The colored defense workers will be hired in all departments, from laborers up to supervisors. According to H. L. Gardiner, director of industrial relations, the St. Louis Ordnance Plant will hire approximately 300 truck drivers, material handlers, yard employes and maintenance men during the first two weeks of September.

BEGIN TRAINING SOON

Training classes for colored supervisory workers are scheduled to begin within the next few weeks. Applications are being received at the St. Louis Urban League offices and the 400 chosen for the courses will receive pay at the rate of 55 cents per hour while in training.

Arnold Walker, executive secretary of the St. Louis Urban League, has been instrumental in getting the plant's consent to use colored workers and he has arranged a conference with officials of the Cartridge Company for August 21, to work out details of the hiring and training program.

Refused Job As A Typist At Air Camp

Because of his color, Ben McNeal's appointment as junior typist to the air corps at Rantoul, Ill., was recently turned down by Lt. Walter W. Suckow, employment officer. This week the Chicago Council of the National Negro Congress filed a strong protest with the Secretary of War.

Discrimination Is Checked

(From Trenton State Gazette)

A short time ago President Roosevelt created a committee to pass on cases of discrimination in defense jobs. As characterized by Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, who is one of the good patriots of the country, this action will remain as one of the important public documents of our history. While the executive order was directed along the solid front of discrimination, it was aimed particularly toward the discrimination against the Negro in national defense projects.

The reason is obvious. In a time of national emergency, when manpower becomes a problem and it is essential to maintain a steady supply of skilled labor, it is folly to ignore the millions of Negroes in this country who are not only capable of holding down vital jobs, but who have shown skill and aptitude wherever they have been placed.

The Negro has taken his place in the Army of the United States and has proved himself to be a good soldier. If he is good enough to fight for his country and possibly to die for it, surely he has merited a place in our national industry. Discrimination has always been a bad thing, creating a sort of bi-nationalism which has resulted in a certain amount of weakness. In our present crisis there is no place for this breeder of hatred.—(Reprinted from the Trenton State Gazette.)

When McNeal reported at Rantoul on an "indefinite probational appointment," Lieutenant Suckow evinced surprise. He then declared himself willing to work with Negroes but doubted "others" would feel the same way. He pointed out that Negroes were not allowed to live in Rantoul and that the job meant that McNeal must commute from Champaign daily.

After advising McNeal to refuse the appointment, which the appointee refused to do, the employment officer offered him a place in the storeroom rather than a clerkship. McNeal accepted this offer.

However, on returning here, McNeal received a letter from Lieutenant Suckow telling him that "due to unforeseen events," it had become impossible for him (Suckow) to retain McNeal. "Once you report at this station you are subject to immediate transfer...I would consider acceptance unwise...," the letter read in part.

The Blight of Jim Crow

A TERRIBLE danger stalks the land, and its ugliness is fed by stupidity and the blindness of bigotry. Millions of men and women in our population who happen to have black skins are treated as second-class Americans. They are discriminated against, treated with contempt and ridicule, terrorized, murdered. And still, these people are asked, and are eager, to take their places in the armed forces, to give their loyalty and devotion that the nation can preserve its safety. Their sons and husbands and brothers make fine soldiers, imbued with the hate of fascism. But is there not a danger that they may well ask their fellow citizens, "What meaning can all this have for us?"

Look at the record—not for the past years, but for the past month. Negroes have been drafted into the army. Yet they are forbidden to become pilots—except in Jim Crow squadrons that exist only on paper. In the navy, they can serve only as mess-boys or in similar menial positions. They are segregated in separate—and inferior—living quarters. They are given no recreational facilities in the camps—no bands, no ball fields, no hostesses, no places to meet or bring their families, no libraries. They can become officers only in very limited numbers—and then they can aspire at most to low ranks.

In Mississippi race hatred was stirred up by southern bourbons in a town near an army camp. To prevent bloodshed, Negro soldiers were forbidden to leave camp at all, and their leaves were canceled. An editorial reporting conditions at Camp Upton, N. Y., was headed with the insulting title, "Don't Shake a Nigger's Hand," and white draftees were told not to mingle with Negroes. At Prescott, Ark., the press reports forty-three Negro soldiers were so hounded by white police and nearby townspeople, that they tried to run away from their misery. To "cure" the intolerable persecution that had led young Negroes to attempt to escape to their homes, the commanding officer, Major-Gen. Robert Richardson, moved the battalion away from the outskirts of town "to a densely wooded area on the Little Missouri River."

Worst of all, white military police, selected for their prejudices against the Negro people, patrol the streets of little towns, insulting colored draftees, abusing them, provoking friction between white and black. Such approved procedure led to the atrocity at Fort Bragg, N. C. Into a bus marked "Colored Troops," the MPs swaggered, and with drawn guns ordered all the occupants to raise their arms. Then they began to beat a soldier who, they claimed, was drunk. In the melee that followed, a young Negro and an MP were killed, and several others in the bus suffered bullet wounds. The MP was buried with full military pomp; the body of the Negro lad was thrown unceremoniously into the morgue, where it remains.

Segregation, discrimination—these policies of the War Department and of officers in charge of army camps have made for violence and hatred and misery. And what is true of the armed forces is also true of civilian life. Look again at the record for the last two weeks. Two Negro brothers, Joseph and Edward Cobb, were murdered in cold blood by police in Washington, D. C. Lawrence Reed, Negro, accused of stealing an automobile, was shot by Baltimore police before he had time to raise his arms in the air as he had been ordered to do. In California Lewis Colman was railroaded to jail, sentenced to sixty-five years in the penitentiary for robbery and "rape." Reputable, informed defense committees insist that Colman was framed. In Alabama Frank Bass was sentenced to the electric chair because he was found guilty of burglary. Reginald Thomas was taken to Sing Sing for two to four years for a crime he never committed: five years ago a policeman was stabbed by what eye-witnesses described as "a slight, frail boy about seventeen years old," and five years later thirty-four-year-old Thomas, broad-shouldered, huskily built, was suddenly prosecuted and convicted because once he had been an organizer for the International Labor Defense.

But these examples still do not picture the day-by-day oppression of miserable, crowded living conditions at exorbitant rents, the undernourishment, the never-forgotten, continual fear of lynching in the South, the gnawing insecurity, below-average wage scales, lack of medical care and job opportunity, the meager chances for recreation and relaxation. The latest tragedy at a Harlem pier, when three Negro women were trampled to death and many others were injured as they waited for an excursion boat, only points up the disgraceful social conditions which form a background of this disaster.

These are but a few of the more flagrant instances. What more can those who are attempting to disrupt America desire? Small wonder the appeasers are so eagerly anti-Negro and anti-Semitic. The fifth column has as its aim to sabotage, to destroy from within, to undermine morale. Jim Crow tears at American unity. Our country's safety, our most decisive needs demand that this shame be ended.

Now is the time for action. Discrimination against Negroes in defense jobs, in all occupations, must be ended. Police brutality can be checked by raising the demand for immediate investigation into beatings and murders, and the severest punishment for the guilty. Local USO boards can be forced to provide recreation for Negro draftees. The sooner the War Department and Secretary Stimson are inundated with letters demanding investigation of the army camps, the sooner conditions there will show improvement. The first step against intolerable abuses will be taken when in every community committees of Negro and white citizens, with the support of organized labor, make it their business to guard the democracy of all the people.

Chicago Defender
Chicago, Illinois

THE NEGRO SOLDIER

AUG 30 1941

The wave of beating and killing of Negro soldiers encamped in southern communities should be checked without delay and the guilty persons brought to trial. The War Department should have taken stern measures long ago to prevent the recurrence of these monstrous incidents. A week seldom passes that a Negro soldier is not assaulted or killed by southern white morons.

If the Negro who is undergoing rigid military training for the eventual defense of his country cannot be protected by the government from the fury of an enraged mob, what incentive is there for him to shoulder a gun and repel an invasion? What hope does an indifferent attitude of the government raise in the souls of our civilian population?

In order to make costly sacrifice of blood on the altar of patriotism, the Negro must be convinced that the community which requires of him such sacrifice is worth defending and dying for. If he is subjected to insults and foul acts by the very people whose freedom and security he is pledged to protect and preserve, then he must be realistic enough to realize that his real enemy is right here, and not far fom the compound of his training camp.

Unless the War Department steps in at once, the cumulative weight of these weekly incidents may cause race riots of devastating and embarrassing proportions. A country engaged in preparation for defense and in forging national unity cannot afford the ugly implications and consequences of racial strife. It is bad enough for the Negro soldier to be Jim-Crowed. He should not have to endure insults, humiliation, and death at the hands of irresponsible and prejudiced white trash.

Minnesota Blacks Ask Full Equality in Home Defense Plan

AUG 30 1941

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(ANP)—Saturday, August 9, saw plans laid for the continuance of the fight to secure full equality for Negroes in Minnesota home defense forces by the Minnesota Negro Defense Committee, with the naming of a committee to contact personnel directors of local firms with defense contracts, seeking to secure employment for Negroes.

At the same time, Governor Harold E. Stassen received an invitation to speak at a mass meeting given Sunday, August 17, in the Hallie Q. Brown house, on his position in regards to Negroes enlisting in Minnesota's home defense program. Discussion held on the matter of obtaining jobs in various defense industries, drew several hundred white and Negro citizens of the twin cities.

The Minnesota state fair board's attention was directed, in a letter, to acts of discrimination practiced at the state fair last year, wherein a Minneapolis minister was charged 75 cents for a hamburger at one of the concessions there, informing the board that such would not be tolerated this year.

Jim Crow Joins The Navy

AUG 16 1941

The News Index is no opponent of the Jim Crow law. Constitutional or not, we believe the races should be segregated.

We believe such an arrangement is better for Negroes, better for Whites.

We believe Negroes should have their own schools, own restaurants, own churches, own bathing beaches, own railway cars from which Whites are barred.

We believe Whites should have the same privilege.

But we are opposed—and violently—to any enforcement of the Jim Crow law that denies to Negroes the enjoyment of creature neccessities that are the right of every man regardless of race or creed or previous condition.

There is, for instance, the elementary right to quench one's thirst.

AUG 16 1941

Such a right, we are informed, was denied some 73 Negroes stevedores aboard the Navy cargo ship Polaris in Hampton Roads last Thursday afternoon.

* * * *

It was hot last Thursday.

The sun beat down from a cloudless sky. The air was freighted with humidity. It was the kind of day that makes men thirsty, especially those engaged in strenuous physical effort.

At 3:30 in the afternoon 80 stevedores—seven White and 73 Negroes—boarded a Navy tug to go out to the Polaris that rode at anchor in the stream.

Every man had been ordered to leave his lunch-basket, his water bottle ashore. He was to take nothing aboard. It is a sensible order. Enforced for months, it is designed to keep saboteurs from taking bombs aboard in innocent-looking lunch-baskets.

The men swarmed aboard the Polaris, began their job of rigging the ship preparatory to taking aboard cargo. Sweat streamed off their bodies as they removed the hatch-covers, rigged up the booms.

The sweating men became thirsty.

On deck was a drinking fountain. A few men walked over, pressed a button and took deep draughts of the ice-cold water. It was the kind of fountain that, absolutely sanitary, shoots up a stream of water.

AUG 16 1941

The officer of the deck saw the men drinking. A few minutes later a sailor placed a canvas cover over the fountain.

The White stevedores, when thirsty, went to the wardroom or elsewhere below for a drink. The thirsty Negroes were denied that privilege.

* * * *

One of the Negroes saw an empty quart milk bottle, picked it up, asked a sailor if he would get him a drink of water.

The sailor came back a few minutes later with the bottle full of cold water. The man drank it, thanked the sailor.

"Some of the other men are very thirsty, too," the longshoreman said. "Could you get them a drink?"

"I'm sorry," the sailor said. "I can't get any more."

The 73 Negro stevedores went without a drink until the Polaris docked at 5:30 and they swarmed ashore with their dry palates.

* * * *

The three stevedores who brought the News Index the story of their treatment aboard the Polaris were not angry.

They were, however, a bit bewildered.

They were intelligent, hard-working men.

"We have been treated like this on some other ships before," they said. "There was an ammunition ship . . ."

The officers of some naval ships, we learned, are more considerate of the men who labor on the decks and in the holds. They see that they have drinking water available.

"But there are some others—the ones that are commanded by officers from the South—that are not so considerate, we were told. "After all, a man should be allowed the privilege of getting a drink of water somewhere. . ."

The News Index thoroughly agrees with the three stevedores.

North American Aircraft Changes Racial Policies

AUG 28 1941

AUG 28 1941

NEW YORK, N. Y. (SNS) — Negro skilled workers will be employed at the North American Aviation Corporation's plant in Kansas City, Kansas, the Urban League of Kansas City, Missouri, announced in a report received today at the offices of the National Urban League. Negro citizens all over the country were aroused last winter by a public statement issued by J. H Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation to the effect that there was no place in his Corporation's plants for Negroes except as janitors, even though some of the Company's plants were erected through defense funds.

In a statement issued this week, H. W. Schwallenberger, Factory Manager of the Corporation's Kansas City plant, has given guarantee that this policy has been reversed, at least for that subsidiary. The Kansas City plant will give a week's entrance examination test to all applicants regardless of race, creed or color. Those who complete this test successfully will be hired in any capacity for which their training fits them. Of the first 12 persons to be hired by the plant, Mr. Schwallenberger states, one is to be a Negro employed as a shop assistant, shipping clerk, and custodian. The Factory Manager further expressed belief that gradual mixing of Negro with white mechanics will produce better race relationships that will not only improve labor conditions but will also speed up production in the interest of national defense.

Immediate Action Asked Of LaGuardia

Change In Philosophy Emphasized

NEW YORK CITY — (SNS) — Civilian Defense Administrator Morella LaGuardia has received requests that the President instruct the army to issue a directive abolishing all racial segregation in army camps and other places in control of the army; that Negro military policemen be placed on equal footing and equipped as are all other military police; that orders be issued assuring protection for Negro troops stationed in southern areas and that law enforcement agencies should attend the illegal actions of state police and peace officers at Gurdon, Arkansas.

Mr. LaGuardia received the requests from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People along with four affidavits from members of the 94th Engineers division stationed at Camp Robinson, Ark., who went AWOL rather than submit to intimidation by state patrolmen and civilians there.

DETROIT PROTEST MEET

The affidavits were made after the protest mass meeting held in Detroit, Michigan, by the local branch NAACP last Sunday. The four men had made their way back to Michigan by hitch-hiking and riding freight cars, and their sworn statements underscored the vile treatment to which they were subjected.

The men testified that not only were colored troops forced off the highway at machine gun-point by bands of whites, but their commanding officers were insulted and one white lietuenant, Donald Curry, was slapped by a patrolman. Protesting against the imperious demands of the southerners to "get those damn niggers off the highway," the white officers were called "nigger lovers" and "damn Yankees."

The NAACP placed the responsibility for race clashes in and around military camps on the government's policy of segregation. It stated that the episodes in Arkansas and North Carolina are the direct outgrowth of the philosophy of the War Department which caters to southern segregation tradition. The NAACP emphasized the imperative need for a change in this philosophy.

The basic fact, the Association said, is "that the army has apparently not decided what it intends to do in utilizing Negro soldiers. It would appear that the present plan is to assign most, if not all, Negro troops to labor battalions. Practically none of the Negro units are as yet part of the army divisions. It would appear to be imperative that the army make up its mind definitely as to whether or not it is going to use Negro troops on the same basis as other troops or to excuse Negroes from military service."

Flay Randolph for Calling Off Job March to Capital

NAACP Delegates Protest Move As Against Vital Interests of Negro People; Assail Army Jim-Crow; Laud CIO

JUN 27 1941

By Ben Davis, Jr.
(Daily Worker Staff Correspondent)

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26.—Undivided opposition to anti-Negro discrimination in "national defense" was expressed here today as many NACP delegates began to voice their disapproval of the calling off of the "job march to Washington" by A. Phillip Randolph, Negro Social Democrat.

Speaking at the mass meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People last night, Randolph announced that the march has been "postponed" by him and Walter White, NAACP Secretary, after numerous conferences with President Roosevelt, Mayor La Guardia, Mrs. Roosevelt, Hillman, Knudsen, Knox and Stimson.

W. Robert Ming, Jr., of the NAACP legal staff, was vigorously applauded last night after recounting the discrimination against Negroes in the armed forces.

PROTEST RANDOLPH MOVE

One could hear a pin drop in the packed Good Hope Baptist Church as Randolph made the announcement of the march postponement. There was no possibility of immediate discussion of Randolph's action, but after the meeting a score or more delegates congregated in groups declared their opposition to calling off the march.

"Just at the moment when we Negroes are in a position to go to Washington in a body and express our protests against discrimination in 'industry' and every other phase of national life, Randolph calls off action by the people," said one delegate. "How can you put any faith in that kind of Negro leadership?"

JUN 27 1941

Randolph stated that the reason the march has been postponed was because he had secured an executive order from the White House against job discrimination and setting up a board of five members to hear complaints where discrimination existed. He did not even produce the order, nor did he give any evidence of jim-crow defense employers hiring Negro workers. He talked vaguely of "thousands of Negro workers being hired."

But one delegate declared:

"We Negroes have been hearing such 'executive orders' and promises before and they have come to naught. The 13th, 14th and 15th Amendment is even a part of the Constitution, and the President doesn't enforce it, how can we expect an 'executive order,' which no one has seen, to bring fruit?"

EXPRESSES DISTRUST

Still another delegate:

"Randolph says the march is postponed and that the people should remain mobilized, but how do the people know that Randolph and White won't call off the march again? Clearly the Negro people will have to stop putting their faith in leaders who call things on and off, when it suits their pleasure, instead of these leaders representing the wishes of the Negro masses. Besides, what about marching for passage of the anti-lynch and anti-poll tax bills?"

It is not clear to what extent the sentiment of the delegates will be expressed during the panel discussion on "defense," which is yet to take place. Incidentally, Randolph mentioned not one word of labor's rights, nor of the anti-lynch and anti-poll tax bills, which the administration is blocking.

Earlier today the delegates expressed wide approval of the organization of Negro workers into trade unions, and applauded vigorously when a discussion leader said:

"The Negro people regard the organization of the CIO under the leadership of John L. Lewis as one of the greatest things for Negro rights since the Civil War."

Speakers from the floor urged "joint struggles" between Negro and white workers, scored the discrimination against Negro workers by the AFL leaders in numerous trade unions, especially in the railroad industry.

"It is the NAACP's duty to cooperate with labor in helping to organize Negro workers," one speaker asserted, "and in making it impossible for the industrialists to use white against black and vice versa."

Speakers at the morning panel included Horace Cayton, Negro labor writer of Chicago, and Carl Johnson, Negro leader of Kansas City, Mo.

One of the highlights of the panel session was when delegates voiced sharp disapproval of C. W. Rice, of Houston, a Negro who has organized a so-called "independent union," to fight both CIO and AFL unions. The consensus of opinion was that Rice was playing into the hands of the anti-Negro employers who are enemies of both the Negro people and labor.

LAUD NMU

Cayton praised highly the National Maritime Union, CIO, in fighting for Negro equality and, at the same time, criticized the United Automobile Workers which, he said, had in the past failed to raise sufficiently the special needs of the Negro workers. "The Ford strike has shown what good union men the Negroes are," Cayton said.

Showing the desire of the NAACP membership that the organization focus its attention more on the problems of the common people, one delegate said:

"The only way to build our branches is to take up the needs of the man farthest down, the Negro workers."

A prominent local white woman, Mrs. W. H. Holly, called for white people in the South to become members of the NAACP to bring about understanding and mutuality in pressing for the elementary rights of the Negro population. Many white Southern delegates have attended sessions of the conference, a good number of them as delegates.

Negroes Crack Jim-Crow in Newark Pools

Victory Spurs Fight for Defense Jobs; Push Issue at Hearing

JUN 15 1941

(Special to the Sunday Worker)

NEWARK, N. J., June 14.—Newark's Negro youth had today won the right to use the city's four municipal swimming pools as a result of a successful campaign led by the anti-discrimination committee of the Newark Youth Assembly.

Spurred by this victory, the committee immediately launched a campaign in conjunction with two locals of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers to obtain jobs for Negro youth in defense industries. The committee will appear within the near future before the newly-elected city commission to demand action against those industries practicing discrimination.

The commission opened the pools to Negroes in its session Wednesday after it had been sharply rebuked by Robert Blakely, Negro youth leader, for considering proposals of a group of reactionaries who insisted on segregation.

An audience of 200 people loudly applauded Blakely who was accompanied by two girl leaders, Miss Jeanette Dean and Miss Mary Adams. City Property Director Villani was forced under this pressure to say that "any colored person can use any public building in this city as freely as anyone."

Repudiate Browns Request

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—Emphatically repudiating the appeal allegedly made to President Roosevelt expressing opposition to the Army's present system of training Negro and white officers in the same schools, forty-one distinguished Negro churchmen, editors, lawyers, business and professional men signed a statement to the President today, urging him to resist any "backward step."

The statement came after a check-up on a broadcast by newscaster Fulton Lewis, Jr., on October 20 over the Mutual Broadcasting system, during which he said, "A large group of the most responsible Negro leaders in the country has appealed to President Roosevelt in a formal official letter opposing the present policy of the Army whereby Negro officers are being trained in the same schools as white officers."

Blame Edgar Brown

The newscaster's assistant, David Stick, in answer to an inquiry from the NAACP about the source of his information, replied: "Information from Edgar G. Brown, president, United Government Employes," and others.

Anti-Negro forces in Washington and particularly in the War Department are reported to be delighted at the request of Edgar Brown for Jim Crow officers' training camps since it permits them to justify segregation on the camps be changed and that Negroes themselves have asked for it.

The statement opposing separate training schools officers' training schools. Segregation has always led to discrimination and widening of the chasm between races which menaces our country in this hour of peril. Flay Randolph for Calling Off Job March to Capital

JUN 27 1941

By Ben Davis, Jr.
(Daily Worker Staff Correspondent)

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26.—Undivided opposition to anti-Negro discrimination in "national defense" was expressed here today as many NACP delegates began to voice their disapproval of the calling off of the "job march to Washington" by A. Phillip Randolph, Negro Social Democrat.

Speaking at the mass meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People last night, Randolph announced that the march has been "postponed" by him and Walter White, NAACP Secretary, after numerous conferences with President Roosevelt, Mayor La Guardia, Mrs. Roosevelt, Hillman, Knudsen, Knox and Stimson.

W. Robert Ming, Jr., of the NAACP legal staff, was vigorously applauded last night after recounting the discrimination against Negroes in the armed forces.

PROTEST RANDOLPH MOVE

One could hear a pin drop in the packed Good Hope Baptist Church as Randolph made the announcement of the march postponement. There was no possibility of immediate discussion of Randolph's action, but after the meeting a score or more delegates congregated in groups declared their opposition to calling off the march.

"Just at the moment when we Negroes are in a position to go to Washington in a body and express our protests against discrimination in 'industry' and every other phase of national life, Randolph calls off action by the people," said one delegate. "How can you put any faith in that kind of Negro leadership?"

JUN 27 1941

Randolph stated that the reason the march has been postponed was because he had secured an executive order from the White House against job discrimination and setting up a board of five members to hear complaints where discrimination existed. He did not even produce the order, nor did he give any evidence of jim-crow defense employers hiring Negro workers. He talked vaguely of "thousands of Negro workers being hired."

But one delegate declared:

"We Negroes have been hearing such 'executive orders' and promises before and they have come to naught. The 13th, 14th and 15th Amendment is even a part of the Constitution, and the President doesn't enforce it, how can we expect an 'executive order,' which no one has seen, to bring fruit?"

EXPRESSES DISTRUST

Still another delegate:

"Randolph says the march is postponed and that the people should remain mobilized, but how do the people know that Randolph and White won't call off the march again? Clearly the Negro people will have to stop putting their faith in leaders who call things on and off, when it suits their pleasure, instead of these leaders representing the wishes of the Negro masses. Besides, what about marching for passage of the anti-lynch and anti-poll tax bills?"

It is not clear to what extent the sentiment of the delegates will be expressed during the panel discussion on "defense," which is yet to take place. Incidentally, Randolph mentioned not one word of labor's rights, nor of the anti-lynch and anti-poll tax bills, which the administration is blocking.

Earlier today the delegates expressed wide approval of the organization of Negro workers into trade unions, and applauded vigorously when a discussion leader said:

"The Negro people regard the organization of the CIO under the leadership of John L. Lewis as one of the greatest things for Negro rights since the Civil War."

Speakers from the floor urged "joint struggles" between Negro and white workers, scored the discrimination against Negro workers by the AFL leaders in numerous trade unions, especially in the railroad industry.

"It is the NAACP's duty to cooperate with labor in helping to organize Negro workers," one speaker asserted, "and in making it impossible for the industrialists to use white against black and vice versa."

URGE UAW PARLEY TO ACT ON NEGRO DISCRIMINATION

White Delegates Support Negroes in Call for Immediate Drive to Wipe Out Jim-Crow in Plants, Report on North American Issue

By Louis F. Budenz
(Daily Worker Staff Correspondent)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Urgent pleas that the United Automobile Workers Union engage more vigorously in the campaign of opposition to Jim Crow discrimination against Negroes in aircraft and other defense industries featured today's session of the sixth convention of that organization.

Negro and white delegates joined in making the pleas, which accompanied the passage of a resolution pledging the international union to work for equal rights for Negroes in employment and enjoined all local unions to see that Negroes are protected in transferring to the aircraft and other defense set-ups.

In a discussion which was the most extended and intense that any convention of this union has ever held on the question of discrimination, Negro delegates made their first appearance in any number on the convention floor. Their position, as expressed by Johnson Buchanan, of Flint, was that "resolutions are not enough. There must be real action on this matter."

URGES REAL ACTION

There have been resolutions adopted against discrimination in past conventions of the UAW, Johnson said, but they have been almost as fruitless as though "they had been thrown in the waste basket." He urged that the convention instruct the international officers to carry out the resolution in detail, after the convention.

Shelton Tapps, of Ford Local 600 emphasized the attitude of the Negro delegates on this question when he said: "This is a problem of labor. It is labor that should take this problem in its own hands. Labor should see that all workers—not only Negroes, but the members of all minorities — should be protected. As it is today, we Negroes have second-class citizenship in defense work. I hope that this resolution will not only be passed, but carried out with all the resources of the UAW-CIO."

In answer to some delegates who had said that this was a "problem of education," Victor Ford, Negro delegate from the west side local, declared that the Negroes cannot wait for "one thousand years for education to be carried through" He stated that discrimination in defense industries was a problem faced by the Negro workers now, and should be taken up by the UAW immediately and effectively

WHITES BACK NEGRO PLEA

This attitude was supported by a number of white delegates, one representative of Local 51 stating that "the question of Negro discrimination will not be solved until our international executive board takes a positive stand on the matter."

Courier's Protest Removes Bragg's 'Colored' Fountain

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 18—Fort Bragg's jim-crow headquarters drinking fountain has gone the way of all flesh, according to a report to The Courier made by a War Department spokesman Thursday.

This report states in part: ". . . there is now a single water dispenser, with paper cups, for the use of all visitors to the post headquarters; there are no signs restricting its use in any manner."

At the time of the bus outbreak at Fort Bragg a month ago, the Jim Crow drinking fountain for Negroes in the post headquarters was on the way to becoming a "cause celebre."

INSULT TO MEDICAL OFFICERS

Early in the summer, a first-class, modern, porcelain drinking fountain had been installed in the hall of post headquarters. From it ran a pipe to a dingy secondary fountain or spout. The first fountain was labeled "Whites." The dingy spout was labeled "Colored."

Negro officers at Fort Bragg were specially insulted by this inferior provision for them. They said that practically the only Negro visitors at post headquarters were officers and that, therefore, the insult was directed at them.

Most of these Negro officers belong to the medical corps. They were required to pass rigid health examinations. They insisted that the reason for the separate fountain could not be therefore based on health or disease. They insisted that they were thus being discriminated against because of their color.

POST COMMANDER DEFENDED FOUNTAIN

When Courier representatives visited Fort Bragg shortly after the outbreak there, they questioned the commanding officer of the post, Col. Charles Elliott, about the presence of the Jim Crow drinking fountain. Col. Elliott stated that such an arrangement was required by North Carolina state law and intimated that that was binding at Fort Bragg.

His attention was called to the fact that Courier representatives visiting other camps in the South had not found such an arrangement at any of these camps.

When Col. Elliott did not indicate that he would take any action to remove the Jim Crow fountain, The Courier took the matter to the War Department in a general report which it made of the Fort Bragg "Night of Terror."

War Department officials stated that they would take action.

The report made last Thursday to The Courier is the result of work done since the pledge was made.

SAYS 'COLT FIRE ARMS WOULDN'T HIRE HIM'

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—The N. A. A. C. P. has requested an investigation of the alleged refusal of the Colt Firearms Company, Hartford, Conn., to accept for employment a highly qualified Negro metallurgist last week.

Horace G. MacKerrow reported to the Association in a letter dated October 9 that, after reading that the FEPC had "cracked" the Colt plant, he applied there for work a second time. He said the first time he went he was told the company was building a new plant and would not hire any men until that was completed. MacKerrow charges that Colt is not building a new plant and that there are not enough men to staff the present one.

WELL QUALIFIED

MacKerrow stated that the employment manager seemed embarrassed at his second appearance and bluntly told him he could do nothing for him.

MacKerrow states that he is a graduate of Northeastern university, Boston, Mass., with a degree in chemistry and that last year he successfully completed a course in physical metallurgy at Tufts college, Medford, Mass., offered by the Engineering Defense Training Bureau. The course was announced as being for the training of chemists and engineers for the national defense program.

Executive Order Outlaws Jim Crow in Defense Work

When President Roosevelt affixed his signature, Wednesday morning to an executive order halting discrimination against workers in defense industries because of "race, creed, color or national origin," that document took its place alongside the historic Emancipation Proclamation.

JUN 28 1941

As a result of this far-reaching executive order, A. Philip Randolph, director of the Negro March on Washington, immediately announced the postponement of the march of 50,000 Negroes scheduled for July 1 as a protest of job discrimination in defense industries and in the federal government itself.

The rally at the Lincoln Memorial originally scheduled following the march will be held, however, with Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York, director of Civilian Defense, as principal speaker.

Eight-Hour Conference

The President's order to industry came as a result of an eight-hour conference between Mr. Randolph, Eugene Davidson, Dr. Rayford Logan, Thurman L. Dodson, Mayor LaGuardia and Aubrey Williams, NYA director, Tuesday.

When agreement was reached between the conferees that the President would implement last week's memo to Messrs. Knudsen and Hillman with an executive order with teeth in it the representatives of the March for Jobs Committee agreed to postpone the march on July 1.

Capitol Hill didn't want that march to materialize and high government officials from President Roosevelt on down were ready to make any compromise to halt that march of 50,000 Negroes from the U.S. Capitol to the Lincoln Memorial.

JUN 28 1941

The order further points out that it is the duty of both employers and labor unions not to discriminate. All new contracts with defense industries will contain non-discrimiation clauses. The Chief Executive will appoint a committee of five to receive and investigate complaints of discrimination and to take appropriate steps to redress valid greviances.

Randolph's Statement

Mr. Randolph's statement follows:

"While the Negro-March-on-Washington-Committee wishes publicly to express its appreciation and gratitude to the President for his statesmanlike action in realistically facing this grave question of discrimination in defense jobs arising out of race, color, creed and national origin, and for his promulgation of the executive order, it cannot too strongly emphasize and stress the fact that this act of the President does not meet the vital and serious issue of discrimination against persons on a basis of race, color, creed and national origin in various departments of the federal government itself."

JUN 28 1941

It is the firm and reasoned judgment of the Negro March-on-Washington-Committee that the inexcusable practice of discrimination against persons because of race, color, creed and national origin, by the government itself serves as a cue to and pattern for, private employers to commit un-American and un-democratic offenses of discrimination also.

"The Committee states that the Negro-March-on-Washington-Committee considers as a part of its unfinished task the business of continuing the fight to wipe out all forms of discrimination in all departments of the Federal government, including the Army, Navy, Marine, and Air Corps.

JUN 28 1941

To this end I, in the name of the committee, call upon the Negro-March-on-Washington-Committees in various sections of the country to remain intact in order to watch and check how industries are observing the executive order the President has issued."

Pittsburgh Courier
Pittsburgh, Pa.

THE PATTERN OF SEGREGATION

The program of integrating Negroes into national defense has so far been defeated.

There are scores of Negro units in the United States Army now, but they are all segregated units.

No headway whatever has been made by Negroes in the Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps because these services do not lend themselves to segregation like the Army.

The policy of the government regarding the Negro is a segregated policy, and in this respect there has been no New Deal.

This explains the "difficulty" in defense industry where neither the government nor private business has shown any marked disposition to hire colored people as citizens on terms of equality, despite the increasing volume of protest from Negroes and liberal whites.

In the meantime, Negro workers are being ground between the millstones of defense jim crow and work relief reduction, and a sober estimate compels us to reluctantly admit that there seems to be no immediate solution.

The President has spoken out sharply against this policy of discrimination that cruelly penalizes Negro workers in defense industry, and he has ordered the Office of Production Management to do something about it.

We sincerely hope that something WILL be done very soon, but the conviction persists that as long as the Administration itself encourages and condones, yes, compels Negro segregation in its various departments, thus solidifying the color caste system, discrimination against Negroes elsewhere will certainly continue.

Many Negroes believe that a policy of segregation is not an unmixed evil if opportunities are "separate but equal," but our present experience bolsters our conviction that under segregation there is always discrimination.

If there were any real disposition to grant Negroes equality of opportunity in the armed forces and defense industry, there would be no segregation of Negroes.

With the concentration of tremendous dictatorial powers in the hands of the Executive it should be a simple matter to enforce democracy here in order to bring it about abroad.

Granting that the desire exists, it can never be realized by segregation.

Strength In Numbers

JUL 6 1941

LAST week President Roosevelt issued an executive order Making more effective his announcement to the Office of Production Management that defense industries must cease and desist from discrimination against persons on account of race, color or religion. This order was in keeping with the emergency powers of the President and with the imperative necessity of spreading democracy to all citizens of this country.

It can not be successfully disputed that the occasion for the order grew out of the mass protests that have come from Negroes and whites throughout the country concerning mass discrimination that has been directed against colored employees seeking work in the defense industries.

Negroes got together once on a common cause. They reached an almost unanimity of opinion that there is something malignant about this wholesale discrimination and it can be remedied by the White House. Sentiment reached the boiling point. It demanded action, action that would shock the nation's leaders into a realization that this thing was beginning to get serious with Negroes and they were treating it as such. This gave President Roosevelt an opportunity to use unparalleled action to satisfy America's largest minority group. The chief executive of the nation has acted. He has met our demands with respect to employment. It now remains for the industries producing materials for national defense to comply with his orders. If they do not, Negroes will continue to demand action.

One thing that is interesting to observe in our mass protests which cannot be overlooked; that is, the effective power that we can produce when all agree.

If Negroes can demand that the President recognize them as an important segment of this country and eradicate discrimination in defense industries they can demand that the respective city governments give the jobs and appointments consistent with their numbers. And in these regards the Negroes of this city might well begin a campaign to ask for a few colored judges on the bench. If their protests are loud enough to be heard and strong enough to be felt they will be answered with, not one but, several judgeships.

EXECUTIVE ORDER AGAINST DISCRIMINATION IN DEFENSE WORK

The Fifteen Million Negroes throughout America welcomed the Executive Order coming from the President of the United States calling for a ban on discrimination against the employment of Negroes in defense industries. The order is the first issued concerning the Negro problems alone since the immortal Abraham Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation freeing the Negro slaves.

Much of the credit for the President's decision to speak out for the Negro worker is due to the untiring efforts and wisdom of a group of militant race leaders headed by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Sleeping Car Porters, and Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This committee had planned a march on Washington July 1 and held several conferences with President Roosevelt and other leaders at the White House.

The opportunity for Negroes, weakest of minorities in this country, who only a few years ago were slaves, to present their cause before the ruling powers of this nation and get action, should encourage the race to appreciate democracies more. In no other land would such an opportunity come to a minority group. The Jews in Germany nor peasants of Russia would be permitted to do so.

In view of the circumstances that surround the Negro job situation the government's hook-up with labor unions, the closed shop agreement with defense industries and unions, it is hard to believe that a mere Executive Order from the President will remedy the situation any more than his order to stop strikes in defense industries did.

Reference to the Negro in many instances, even the Thirteenth and Fourteenth amendments are ignored.

The quickest and safest way to settle the question of discrimination against Negroes in defense industries and to really get the job done is that the National Labor Relations Board withdraw from unions the sole bargaining rights which discriminate against workers on account of race; that the Office of Production Management withhold and abrogate contracts from industries that refuse to hire workers on account of color.

It is our opinion that Negro leaders should center upon this point without fear or favors from employers, politicians and labor unions.

28,000 Race Selectees Ignored In Draft Call

Courier Exposes Attempt to Circumvent Draft Law As Negro Selectees Are "Passed Over" — Service Restriction Policies Defeat Program.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 2—Because of the segregated set-up in the United States Army, which requires the creation of special units for Negro soldiers, nearly 28,000 Negro selectees have been "passed over" in the calls for the diferent states and the District of Columbia.

Negroes have been "passed over" in direct desregard of the President's order that Negroes were to constitute nine per cent of those inducted through selective service.

The figure, 27,992, representing Negro selectees who have been officially "passed over" may be much larger because, in some instances, the official figures do not reflect the true state of affairs.

In a report to the Selective Service Bureau, the District of Columbia branch of Selective Service reported that no Negroes had been "passed over" although it is definitetly known that 600 Negroes in the District of Columbia have been "passed over."

RESTRICTIONS DEFEAT PROGRAM

The chances are that 50,000 Negroes have been passed over. While these Negroes are being denied training, Negro citizens are being restricted to the messmen branch of the United States Navy and are being strictly excluded from the Marine Corps.

Jersey Interne Passed Written, Physical Tests

NEW YORK, N. Y. — The United States Navy does not want Dr. Harold J. Franklin of Jersey City, N. J., as assistant surgeon with the rank of junior lieutenant even though he has passed all examinations - written, oral and physical -- necessary for that post.

Dr. Franklin, who is now an interne at Medical Center in Jersey City, brought all the documents in his case to the office of the N. A. A. C. P. here including the final word from the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery of the Navy Department: "You did not meet physical qualifications for appointment."

Dr. Franklin wrote to the Navy May 25, 1941, and on May 27, he received a letter containing a circular, instructions for filing his application, and information that the next examination for appointment in the medical corps of the Navy would be held August 11 to 15, inclusive.

Proof that the Navy is anxious to secure surgeons may be seen in the cordial tone of the letter, whose salutation was "Dear Dr. Franklin," and whose ending contained the phrase "With kind regards."

Under date of July 21, Dr. Franklin was notified to report to the Naval Hospital at Brooklyn, N. Y., at 9 a.m. August 11 for the examination.

On the back of that letter is an official endorsement from the U. S. Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., signed by P. P. Maher, which states "examined and found physically qualified for appointment as Assistant Surgeon in the U. S. Navy with the rank of Lieutenant (junior grade)."

Later in August, Dr. Franklin found that he had passed both the written and oral examinations, and, since he had been certified as physically fit, he awaited notice of his appointment. When no notice was received, he finally wired the Navy department in Washington, and on September 11 received a telegram stating "You did not meet physical qualifications for appointment."

Puzzled by this apparent contradiction, Dr. Franklin wrote the Bureau a letter immediately, and on September 15 received a letter which added no information to that contained in the telegram. The letter merely states "A review of the report of physical examination conducted on August 11, 1941, shows that you do not meet the physical requirements for appointment as Assistant Surgeon."

In contrast to the cordial tone of the first letter received by Dr. Franklin on May 25, the letter of September 15 is strictly business-like, beginning "Dear Sir."

Dr. Franklin, who is light in complexion, told the N. A. A. C. P. that the only possible reason he could imagine for the reversal of opinion by the Navy department on his fitness was that somewhere in going over his record the Navy found out that he was actually a Negro.

By its actions in the case, the Navy once more demonstrates that it is determined to prevent the enlistment of any Negro above the rank of mess attendant.

A protest on the Franklin case has been sent Secretary Frank Knox of the Navy by the N. A. A. C. P.

Anti-Negro Forces Reported Delighted in D. C.

NEW YORK (SNS) Emphatically repudiating the appeal allegedly made to President Roosevelt expressing opposition to the Army's present system of training Negro churchmen, editors, lawyers, business and professional men signed a statement to the President today, urging him to resist any "backward step."

The statement came after a checkup on a broadcast by newscaster Fulton Lewis, Jr., on October 20 over the Mutual Broadcasting system, during which he said "A large group of the most responsible Negro leaders in the country has appealed to President Roosevelt in a formal, official letter opposing the present policy of the Army whereby Negro officers are being trained in the same schools as white officers.

The newscaster's assistant, David Stick, in answer to an inquiry from the NAACP about the source of his information, replied: "Information from Edgar G. Brown, Employees," and others.

Anti-Negro forces in Washington and particularly in the War Department are reported to be delighted at the request of Edgar Brown for Jim Crow officers' training camps since it permits them to justify segregation on the grounds that Negroes themselves have asked for it.

SIGNED BY LEADERS

The statement opposing separate officers' training schools reads: "We repudiate any and all request that the present successful methodist of training white and Negro officers in the same camps be changed and that Negro officers be sent to segregated officers' training schools. Segregation has always led to discrimination and widening of the chasm between races which menaces our country in this hour of peril. We petition you as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy to resist any backward step and to push forward in the national defense program toward the truest democracy without distinction of race, creed, color, or national origin."

Among the signers of the statement are: A. Logan, president, Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, Washington, D. C.; J. E. Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the National Negro Insurance Association, Louisville, Ky.

Also, Bishop John A. Gregg, presiding bishop of the Fourth Episcopal District, African Methodist Episcopal church, Kansas City, Kans.; Bishop W. J. Walls, of the Chicago District, African Methodist Episcopal Zion church; Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president, Atlanta U., Atlanta, Ga.; A. C. Soldiers Forced to Give Up Bus Seats

RALEIGH, N. C.—(ANP)—Private Fred Croston and Randall Wilson were absent without leave Monday morning when the roll was called in their units at Fort Bragg. The reason was that every Fayetteville bound bus that left the union station here was loaded with whites and these two soldiers and several civilians were ordered to wait for the next bus. This happened four times. The group waited and waited but were unable to get a bus until 8 o'clock Monday.

Upon arriving at their units the two soldiers, Auston and Randall, were met by their battery commander with a menu of two weeks extra duty for being A. W. O. L.

Their explanation was not accepted. The two were unable to get the bus concern to explain over the telephone that Negroes were not allowed to get on a bus going to Fayetteville as long as there were white people who could use the back seat.

Negro and white Soldiers Fraternize in Deep South

(Special to the Sunday Worker)

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—There is a feeling here that the boys in uniform, on the whole, did much, during maneuvers in this area, to create wholesome respect for inter-racial unity on the part of some prejudiced whites.

It is in the record that a number of restaurants which had never before served Negroes were forced to break their jim-crow rule during the field exercises of the Third Army.

In Shreveport, for instance, a group of Negro and white soldiers entered a swanky restaurant. Dumfounded at the unprecedented sight of Negroes in his place, the manager blew up and ordered the black Americans out. It was then that he learned the Negroes and the whites were in one party.

This fact however, only served to highten his rage. He ordered the whole bunch to "get to hell out." They did get out, but in such a demonstrative fashion that he will probably remember the incident for a long time. One reason he will probably remember it is that the whites didn't pay for the food they had already eaten. The bill was $10.

Place For Everybody In Defense Planning

By GEORGE B. MURPHY, Jr.

WASHINGTON, D. C.— Crystal Bird Fauset is an excellent example of the calm, alert and efficient type of women who surround Director Fiorello LaGuardia and his assistants Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the National Office of Civilian Defense here.

If you haven't yet felt the urgency of the crucial situation in which our country finds itself today; if you don't yet understand how important it is for all our citizens to become mobilized as a working unit if we are to destroy the paralyzing slavery that is Hitler, I suggest you talk with Mrs. Fauset.

She understands what this problem is She knows what needs to be done, and what is more important she has absolute faith in the ability of Negro people to do their full share of the job once they get the proper direction.

PLACE FOR ALL

When she tells you that the important thing to remember about the Civilian Defense Program is that it is an agency that "offers a place for every citizen of our country, no matter what his background or training, to volunteer full service somewhere along the line," you get some idea how big and all-inclusive this program of civilian defense is.

Mrs Fauset is a special assistant to Mayor LaGuardia, whose special duties have to do with giving force and direction to the full integration of Negro citizens in civilian defense. She has an office on the ninth floor of what was formerly the DuFont Circle Apartments.

When I walked into her office unannounced a little before 9 a.m. I expected to have to wait for her to show up. Instead I found this professional looking Negro woman, the first woman of her race to sit in the Pennsylvania legislature, busy at her desk She had had her breakfast, arrived at her office at 8 and participated in two conferences before I got there.

She didn't want to go into all phases of the program just yet, she told me, when I began asking a lot of questions, because every phase of the work hasn't been worked out completely yet. But here's her view on what needs to be done now:

MUST ENROLL FIRST

"We've got to get our people to understand, and quickly too, that they must enroll at once at the volunteer defense office in their community. All of them may not be eligible to become air-raid wardens, because everybody can't do this type of work. It takes a careful selection of personnel, considerable training, etc. But everybody can enroll in one of the units in civilian protection, community activity programs, consumer services, recreation divisions, health, nutrition, informal education, child care or anyone of the scores of such services offered in civilian defense.

"The important thing at the moment is for all of our organizations to get busy, exert their initiative, go out to the civilian defense office and enroll. We want our people to serve on local, state and regional councils.

"It is my belief that Negro citizens must take advantage of every normal opportunity to make normal community contacts. This is the sort of thing that makes for normal relationships, and this is the type of relationship that we'll need to draw on a great deal during this and the coming period."

NEW YORK IS MODEL

New York City, Mrs. Fauset says, is the model for the country. "There we have the air-raid warden service already beginning to function," she said. "Judge James S Watson, for instance is a Zone Warden, who has charge of an area comprising fifty thousand people, Negro and white in Harlem. In Brooklyn Mr. George Wibecan occupies a similar post. These men carry an important responsibility for the protection of all these people, their health and their general welfare."

The air-raid warden service is set up according to police precincts, she says, with the commanding officer in the precinct as the chief warden. Next comes the Zone Warden and then the basic unit officer, the sector warden, who with his assistants, has charge of an area housing five hundred persons.

There were a lot of things that Mrs. Fauset wanted to talk about, plans still in their formative stages, but she resolutely held them back, looked at her watch and said pleasantly but finally, "I'm sure that I'll have more to tell you when you come in to see me again, because we want all of our people to understand this program so well that they make it a definite part of their every-day thinking, just as they would, let us say, in rearing their children."

Race Employment Gains, OPM Says

WASHINGTON—(ANP) — Negro employment in certain defense projects is definitely on the increase, says the office of OPM, pointing out that at Edgewood arsenal, some 16 miles north of Baltimore, Md., is one of the spots where the percentage of Negroes employed has reached a high point.

Negro civil service employes comprise 12.5 percent of the total skilled and unskilled workers.

200 LABORERS

Of this number only 200 are listed as laborers.

At the same spot, the construction quartermaster supervising the erection of new additions to the plants shows 17.5 per cent of the total workers Negroes. For the most part these 54 workers are chauffeurs and truck drivers. Recently a truck drivers' strike was attempted here, but the army stepped in, put all of the work under the supervision of the quartermaster and hired Negroes, who are rendering efficient service.

Two construction companies are engaged in the development of the plant. One of them, the Cummings Construction company employs some 1,224 Negroes out of a total of 2,223 employes and the Riggs Construction company has 500 Negroes out of the total of 1,600 men engaged in constructing the plant and its additions.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS

Most of the Negroes in the larger unit are cement finishers and skilled workers while the other group is chiefly concerned with construction of water mains and similar work.

Seventy-five percent of the Negro workers commute daily from Baltimore, using their own cars vintage of 1918 and upwards.

Since the government originally allotted some $20,000,000 for construction at this spot, an dan additional $7,000,000 more recently the work here shows signs of developing into an almost permanen situation by which the colorec workers will profit.

This plant is engaged in making explosives for the army and gas masks.

PLAN TO PUNISH VIOLATORS OF RECENT EXECUTIVE ORDER

NEW YORK, July 24—(ANP)—That greasing operation on machinery intended to handle expected complaints of violation of President Roosevelt's executive order barring racial discrimination in employment policies and practices of holders of defense contracts, which has been quietly going on for several weeks was officially confirmed here early last week at the district office of the bureau of employment security, Federal Security agency. This information was disclosed exclusively to the ANP.

Within three days after the issue of the order on June 25, and in spite of the delay in naming the Committee on Fair Employment Practice, Office of Production Management, charged with administering the order, instructions were forwarded to all regional offices of the United States Employment Service covering methods to be used to give effectiveness to the announced policy of the administration.

In addition to those instructions it was learned an in-service training course for employes of the New York State Employment service, cooperating agency of the USES, will be instituted in a week or two designed to "adjust the thinking" of the workers and give "implementation" and meaning to the order to the end that its terms and intentions may be successfully carried out.

On Thursday, Dr. Warren Brown, secretary to the National March on Washington committee, conferred here for one hour on the subject of procedure with D. J. Hoose, in charge of in-service training within industry, OPM; and S. Parks Harman, officer in charge, bureau of employment security, FSA. By virtue of his heading up the regional office for this bureau, Mr. Harman is also chairman of the labor supply bureau of the division of labor supply, OPM, for the same area. It is in the latter capacity that he will function as the representative of the fair practice committee.

Points Covered

The basic points covered in the discussions were boiled down to the following method:

1. Any complaint of racial discrimination is to be reported to the local office of the state employment service. A field worker will be directed to ascertain the facts of the case from the side of both applicant and employer.

2. In the event the employer is found at fault, he will be informed of the President's executive order and immediate adjustment will be sought.

3. Failure to reach a solution through these preliminary efforts will result ni a referral of the case to the office of Mr. Harman for review and adjustment.

4. If satisfaction is not then obtained, the entire case is to be referred to Washington for the consideration of and adjudication by the six-mar· committee.

Mr. Harman, who confirmed the authoritativeness of the moves already made, explained it as the desire of his office and that of OUM, to get and settle the complaints as close to their sources as is possible and just as quickly.

Same Procedure for All States

The procedure outlined here was said to be the same as that which will be followed in the 48 states and three territories. In this way the necessity for establishing new machinery is expected to be obviated inasmuch as each state is similarly organized as New York in order to participate in the benefits of social security.

"There will be a concerted effort," Mr. Harman stated, "to use all resources available to implement the national policy as stated in the President's executive order and dealing with problems of labor supply in national defense industries. The more clearly we all see the problems involved and the reasons for the policy, the less our problems are going to be."

Difficulties are definitely anticipated both by government officials and representatives of the march on Washington. One difficulty identified is expected to arise out of the action of "prejudiced groups of younger white employees" who are seeking to keep out the Negro worker in spite of a probable willingness on the part of employers to hire them.

In the conversation of July 10, Dr. Brown was informed that industry prefers to employ "greenhorns" rather than graduates of trade schools. The reason is that that firms engaged in the performance of intricate operations find it easier to acquaint the unmoulded worker from the start with the way they want a thing done than to have to undo what has been taught in the schools, which can only give a fundamental insight into plant operations.

Dr. Brown nevertheless emphasized the importance of Negroes continuing to register for vocational courses wherever it is possible.

U. S. NAVY DEFENDS JIM-CROW POLICY

47d

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24— Representatives of six national organizations financed and officered by white people got "exactly nowhere" in a recent interview with representatives of the United States Navy when they protested a strong protest against the virtual exclusion of Negro Americans from the Navy.

The delegation, which called upon both Army and Navy officials, was composed of representatives of the Union for Democratic Action, Friends of Democracy, Council for Democracy, Student Defenders of Democracy, and the Committee to Defend America By Aiding the Allies. Not represented in person, but 10 percent in support of the protest, was the Fight for Freedom Committee. The Navy interview is reported as follows:

NAVY DEFENDS POLICY

"Compared with the satisfactory and friendly character of the interview with representatives of the War department, our interview with the representatives of the Navy department got exactly nowhere. They admitted the existence of discrimination, defended it, and insisted that they would continue the policy. Despite a long and sometimes slightly heated interview, the only thing we could get from them was a grudging statement that they might reconsider their policy in view of the President's proclamation against discrimination in employment in the defense industries. We pointed out specifically that continuation of discrimination in the Navy meant that the President as commander-in-chief of the Navy was setting a bad example to the employers in the defense industries, but even that argument did not change their attitude."

TRUMAN PROBERS ASKED TO STATE SCOPE OF PLANS

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 31—The special Senate committee investigating the National Defense program was asked last Monday to disclose its program for its inquiry into racial discrimination.

In a letter to Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri, chairman of the committee, the Committee on the Participation of Negroes invited attention to published reports that the projected inquiry into racial bias in the National Defense program is intended to be a whitewash.

It asked Senator Truman to make known the scope of the projected inquiry and the names of persons who are likely to be invited or subpoened to appear.

WHITE OPPOSES HEARING

Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, spent two days here last week conferring with Senate leaders in an effort to get the N.A.A.C.P. resolution reported from the Committee on Education and Labor, where it has been blocked for sometime.

While emphasizing that he was speaking only for himself and his views were not officially those of the N.A.A.C.P., Mr. White said he believes that if hearings are held by the Truman committee, they will mean the end of more thorough hearings under the N.A.A.C.P. resolution.

TEXT OF LETTER

The text of the letter of the Committee on Participation of Negroes in the National Defense program, addressed to Senator Truman, follows:

"As you doubtless have noted, reports have appeared in the press to the effect that the projected hearing by your committee so far as it affects Negroes in the defense effort is intended to be a whitewash and a means of preventing a full hearing under other auspices.

"Quite naturally this committee would not wish to risk being regarded as a party to any such procedure. Its course must be evident to you.

"Accordingly, we would appreciate very much a statement of the general program indicating the persons who will appear and what limitations, if any, there will be upon the scope of subject matter pertinent to the problems under consideration by your committee."

The President's Anti-Jim Crow Committee

After ten days of struggle, two colored and four white men were named on a committee to carry out President Roosevelt's executive order banning racial discrimination in defense industries.

Originally, the committee was to be composed of five persons, two of whom were to be colored. Both labor and management jockeyed for power to nominate the members and opposition developed to naming more than one colored member. In the compromise effected, the committee was increased to six, divided equally between labor and management, and two are colored.

Now that this is out of the way, it is to be hoped that the committee will get down to work.

The general feeling is that it was a mistake to call off the march on Washington, but the majority of people are willing to give the President a chance to work out a program for settling jim crow in industry without a labor demonstration.

If the President's executive order can do it, this new committee has a chance to demonstrate its effectiveness.

If the committee and OPM fail in their task, and defense industries continue to bar colored workers or appear to comply by hiring a few colored persons in menial capacities, the march on Washington should take place before the snow flies.

We have heard promises before. Nothing will be satisfactory now except that which will quickly bear fruit.

THE OPM APPOINTMENTS

President Roosevelt named Milton P. Webster, vice president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and Earl B. Dickerson, Chicago attorney, to serve on a committee along with whites to investigate discrimination against Negroes seeking work in National Defense industries. The President made these appointments following requests and demands made by the Negro press and Negro leaders. That is as it should be. And we see nothing to be alarmed or to rejoice over as a result of members of our race being on this committee because this is America and America is supposed to be a Democracy and the home of the brave and the land of the free. But we do feel that with members of our group on the committee there will be little chance for white-washed investigations. We do have confidence in the men selected that they will not betray their people. Both men are capable and regardless to who suggested them to the President it is of little importance at this particular time when the thirteen million Negroes are fighting for freedom.

Last week the Pittsburgh Courier mentioned in an editorial under the caption, "The OPM Committee Appointments" that two or three newspapers had taken the lead in this fight along with the Negro Press. That is true. The Negro press has been united with a solid front in fighting to break down defense discrimination and segregation existing in the defense program. The fight has been so obvious and so general on the part of the Negro press until it can hardly be pointed out that any one or two newspapers took the lead. The Negro press as a whole has taken the lead and not the Kansas City Call, the Black Dispatch or the Pittsburgh Courier. The entire Negro press has mobilized national opinion and awakened the consciousness of the Negro to demand his rights as an American citizen. And in the midst of a great united fight to do away with defense discrimination no single newspaper or individual leader should take out time to pat himself or herself or the newspaper on the back. Such action indicates selfishness. The big program is the advancement of thirteen million Negroes in this country. As to who takes the lead and who does the most is insignificant. It is all right to toot your own horn but sometimes it is better to let somebody else play the music while you dance.

The OPM committee is very much needed. And we sincerely hope that it will function and not serve as a rubber stamp to appease the thirteen million Negroes for the present administration. There will be plenty of investigating for them to do. So the committee will not have much time for loafing. It won't be hard for them to find segregation and discrimination against Negroes. We will be looking forward to more favorable conditions on the part of American industry toward the Negro laborers, especially since William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor is on the committee. If the committee can straighten out discrimination in Mr. Green's organization which has on every occasion side tracked and evaded the problem of discrimination against the Negro, that alone will be sufficient for the existence of the committee.

LET'S HOPE IT WORKS

Following a promise made last month, President Roosevelt has named a committee which will handle complaints against firms discriminating against Negroes in defense industries. The personnel of the group is listed elsewhere in these columns.

The president selected representatives of capital and labor for as the white members while a lawyer and a newspaper men represent the Negro. At least the committee is influential and if its hands are not tied, it is in a position to do a great amount of good.

Of course a great deal will depend upon the aggressiveness, persistency and diplomacy of the Negro members; much will depend upon William Green of the A. F. of L. who, though often expressing a willingness to give the Negro equal opportunity in industry, heads an organization many of whose units exclude Negroes from membership.

There never existed a better reason why Negroes should be permitted to participate freely in industry as today; there never was a better chance to break down some of the long standing barriers that have prevented them from enjoying full economic opportunity. The machinery seems to be set to make things work. And it will if those in authority do their share of the job.

"Don't Shake A Nigger's Hand"

Quoting from an editorial in PM which told how army officers at Camp Upton, New York, in speaking to draftees about to be sent to Camp Croft, South Carolina, warned them 'not to drink with niggers,' and that 'down there you don't shake a Negro's hand when he says goodby," the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People protested to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson that the action on the part of "responsible officers of the United States Army is viciously anti-democratic."

The editorial was based on a letter written by a white soldier who was among the group warned against fraternizing with colored soldiers. The men were also told that if they got into trouble while with Negroes 'it's you men who're going to be locked up, not the nigger.'

The NAACP called for an investigation at Camp Upton to determine which officers were guilty and asked that prompt action be taken. It was also suggested that the War Department issue a memorandum to all officers of the Army on the subject.

Chicago Mayor Urges Negroes Be Employed

CHICAGO, Aug 14 (ANP)—An appeal was made to industries in the Chicago area this week by Mayor Edward J. Kelly in which he urged such firms to employ Negro workers. The mayor said that "drawing a racial line in defense work made a mocker of the whole defense effort." The mayor said he believed industry should have a policy of hiring a fair proportion of Negro workers. Mayor Kelly recently was appointed chairman of civilian defense activities in Chicago by Mayor LaGuardia of New York City, who is commissioner of Civilian Defense, nationally.

NIMITZ AGAIN DECLARES NEGROES "TOO BRILLIANT" FOR SERVICE IN NAVY

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a recent interview with a committee composed of representatives of interventionist organizations, largely white, Admiral Nimitz, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, repeated once more his statement of some months ago that Negroes are "extremely brilliant" and would win promotion so fast in the Navy that they would cause resentment and discord among white sailors.

The remarks, made in a conference in Washington on June 30 is reported by H. M. Finck, Director of the American League for Tolerance Committee as follows:

"Negroes are extremely brilliant and in the very short space of a year are able to rise to the rank of chief petty officer and that is very much resented by white sailors causing much discord within the ranks."

FEP Seeks Negro Training School Near Southern Shipbuilding Yards

Alabama Officials Show Considerable Opposition to Plan But FEP Insists on Policy Being Carried Out—Some Yards Refuse to Hire Negroes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11—(ANP)—The Fair Employment Practice committee's attention is occupied with the development of high-grade vocational training schools for Negroes in the vicinity of shipbuilding yards along the Atlantic and Gulf seaboards, it was announced last Tuesday. Considerable progress toward the desired objective has been made in some yards, particularly in the Carolinas, but in Alabama, officials report strong resistance both from State vocational leaders and labor unions.

Negro workmen have been employed in great numbers at Hog Island shipbuilding yards ever since the last World war,, and particular pride is taken in their accomplishments in ship construction.

DEC 13 1941

At Mobile, one shipbuilding company holding a contract with the AFL Metal Trades council employs no Negro workmen, while another company holding a CIO contract has about 20 per cent Negroes employed in unskilled and semi-skilled jobs. Equal treatment is given Negro workers at Pascagoula, Miss., and Charleston, S. C., according to the FEPC. Training schools will soon be established at Wilmington and Charleston.

Officials are distressed over resistance shown by Alabama officials to the organization of a vocational school for Negroes, since defense contracts now specify that there shall be no discrimination against any person because of "race, creed, color or national origin." However, the committee has let it be known that it expects Alabama's State Board of Vocational Education to work out a satisfactory solution to the problem.

Plants Deny Job Jim Crow At F. E. P. C. Hearings on W. Coast

NOV 1 1941

LOS ANGELES, ANP.—Defense industry personnel chiefs, Tuesday testified that no racial barriers exist at their plants but admitted that only a decimal percentage of "minority races" are on their payrolls.

The testimony was given at the first day's session of the committee appointed by President Roosevelt to investigate charges of racial discrimination in the hiring of workers for national defense industries.

NOV 1 1941

Personnel officers of aircraft and shipbuilding stands accounted for the scarcity of Negro workers on their payrolls in several ways.

One executive said his company hired through union hiring halls and that no Negroes were sent when his company called for men.

Another testified that white workmen had threatened to go on strike if Negroes or Mexicans were promoted from lower labor brackets.

Return To Jobs After Union OK's Colored Worker

NOV 29 1941

COLUMBUS, Ohio—Aircraft workers in the tool and die division of Curtis-Wright plant here walked out Wednesday because of the appointment of a Negro to the staff. An entire shift of 225 men refused to work after local union officials were reported to have stated that Negroes should be segregated. The strike ended Saturday when the workers voted to return to work after Richard Frankensteen, national director of the CIO Aircraft Division, repudiated the local leaders.

The strikers are affiliated with the United Automobile Workers. They began the strike after it was reported that, in accordance with the recent order of the President, the plan officials had hired a colored man.

Ties Up Production

The walkout spread and affected almost 500 men in both day and night shifts, besides tying up production in virtually every department of the plant.

Focal points of the matter seem to be William Gibson and Carl Copeland, organizers for the union. Both men were frequently quoted in the newspapers as to their stand on the issue of a Negro being employed at the plant.

NOV 29 1941

According to reports Copeland said that someone in the plant, "must be in the pay of Hitler because a Negro was hired."

The organizer is also supposed to have made the statement that, "in Washington Negroes work in separate places and in the Army and Navy they are segregated, so why not here?"

He announced that he had asked FBI officials to check on the plant because he had never seen a Negro die or tool worker in his travels all over the country and wasn't sure that the man hired was really a Negro.

Matter Of Contract

NOV 29 1941

Other union officers said that the question wasn't raised over the hiring of a Negro but over negotiations with the company in regard to the number of colored workers hired.

The union wants to exercise some control over the number of Negroes employed and the departments in which they are employed. Consequently they have asked the company to sign an agreement, which request they claim has been refused.

We Are Americans, Too!

An Editorial

DEC 1 3 1941 DEC 1 3 1941

The United States of America is at war with the Empire of Japan. Events of the past days...momentous events which are being written on the pages of world history in the red ink of human blood...thrust upon the American people a war which they did not welcome nor desire.

* * *

But since war has come, a United Nation of United Americans . . . 130,000,000 strong. . . is moving forward to meet the enemy with every weapon and resource at our command.

* * *

The United States did not ask for this war. It was forced upon us in one of the most dastardly, cunning and deceptive fashions ever recorded on the infamous pages of human crimes.

* * *

Colored America, among the most loyal segment of this heterogeneous population which is America, stands solidly phalanxed, hands joined in this titantic struggle to defeat a common enemy.

* * *

We are Americans, too ! From 1619 to the present day, we've worked to make America ours. Our sweat and our blood, our hopes and our ambitions, our successes and our failures, are intangibly wrapped up in these forty-eight States which today present a united front...The United States of America !

DEC 1 3 1941

From Bunker Hill to Metz, our life's blood has flowed; co-mingling with the life blood of other Americans.

* * *

From the cotton-fields and cane-breaks of Dixie, our sweat and our toil has made of impenetrable wildernesses, fertile fields which made this beloved country of ours the most precious gift we have.

* * *

From the industrial centers of the East, from the open plains of the mid-west and from the far-reaches of the Pacific, the Negro has played his role in pushing America ahead.

* * *

Through slavery and with the shackles of bondage removed . . . the Negro has fought to move ahead. He's fought persecution and segregation. He's fought proscription and abuse. He's fought to become an integral part of this country which he loves and for which he's sacrificed his life.

DEC 1 3 1941

There is no other country for the American Negro. He's fought for what he feels he so justly and richly deserves. But he's fought clean.

America knows the unswerving loyalty of its 13,000,000 Negroes. No spies, no saboteurs habitate our ranks. There are no Benedict Arnolds among us.

* * *

And now that OUR country is at war, forgotten are the differences under which we have labored. Buried deep in the recesses of our minds are the injustices to which we have been subjected.

* * *

The Army of the United States is OUR ARMY !
The Navy of the United States is OUR NAVY !
In striking at the United States, Japan strikes a blow at us. This soil belongs to the 13,000,000 Black Americans as certainly and securely as it does to any white Southerner, any white Northerner, any white Westerner.

This is our native land. . . OUR COUNTRY!

* * * DEC 1 3 1941

Let the German-American fall away from its defenses; let the Japanese-American desert its ramparts; let the Italian or other Americans sabotage its vital interests... but let us...NEGRO AMERICANS...cling to and protect that which is ours...THIS AMERICA !

* * *

Colored Americans have no kinship. . . of any kind. . . no common interest, with the yellow Japanese. Japan's alignment with the Axis powers and her diabolical attack on our islands bases has stamped her as belonging to the forces of bigotry, hatred and oppression.

* * * DEC 1 3 1941

Japan has had her full share of opportunism and even of racial arrogance. She has not treated the Chinese as brothers. She has not been the liberator of the Koreans. Her alliance with Germany is unholy. As a matter of easy conjecture, it can be said that Hitler dictated the Japanese declaration of war. Japan is gambling, not planning.

* * *

Our duty is to continue the fight within, as well as without, against our enemies. We have felt all along that this war was inevitable. We do not deplore it. Perhaps it will be the chastening rod to whip America into a real democracy.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Courier knows that the American Negro is going to go "all-out" to win this war !

* * *

The Pittsburgh Courier solemnly pledges its "all-out" effort to keep the banners of liberty, justice and equality flying over our ramparts.

* * * DEC 1 3 1941

The Pittsburgh Courier, however, also pledges to continue unrelenting warfare against the enemies within our gates.

* * *

Racial prejudice within the United States must be dealt a knockout blow. We feel that this knockout blow must be delivered to unite all the people in a common defense.

* * *

* * *

The Pittsburgh Courier calls upon American Negroes in every part of this vast country of ours, to support the President and the Congress that America may be victorious.

* * *

We call upon the President and the Congress to declare war on Japan and against racial prejudice in our country.

* * * DEC 1 3 1941

Certainly, we should be strong enough to whip both of them.

Boeing Aircraft Barring Negroes

DEC 1 1 1941 DEC 1 1 1941 DEC 1 1 1941

CHICAGO—(ANP—The Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle, holders of extensive contracts to manufacture aircraft for the army and navy, "has no place for Negro workers" in its plant. Saturday, their representatives sent here to interview workers because of a scarcity of available labor in the northwest, flatly refused the application of Robert L. Weaver, a qualified engineering draftsman of this city, because of his color, or because of his race for Mr. Weaver is quite as light in complexion as the swarthy Boeing representative who turned him down.

Weaver, who completed his year's enlistment with the 184th field artillery Nov. 24, receiving a transfer to inactive service, was advised by the Michigan Employment service to whom he applied for work that Boeing was in need of men and was sending a representative to Chicago Dec. 4, to hire all available skilled men. Weaver's discharge papers cite the fact that he is draftsman and grade him as excellent.

When Weaver kept an appointment made with the Boeing representative, whose name was Jones, at the Illinois Employment service offices at 20 North Wacker Drive, Jones was quite cordial until he asked Weaver his race and was told "American Negro". Jones reddened and then produced a book which said that "only Caucasians could be hired".

NO TIME FOR PREJUDICE

This discrimination, as President Roosevelt pointed out in his memorandum to the OPM, is "entirely unrelated to efficiency and productivity." It is the result of unreasoning prejudice on the part of either workmen or employers. It is not confined to any one region, and is perhaps more systematic and universal in the West Coast aircraft industry than in any other place.

Fundamentally the Negro has about as great a stake in the fight between the New Deal and the New Order as any other group. The spectre of a Hitler-dominated world, with repression and cruelty aimed at every racial minority, falls heavily upon him.

The American Negro has demonstrated a loyalty and a willingness to bear his share in the responsibilities ahead. This time, as 23 years ago, selective service calls upon him to serve in direct proportion to his numbers.

There is small wonder that Negro leadership has been concerned, and at times angered, by systematic exclusion of members of this race. This is an exclusion entirely unrelated to questions of social relationships. It is either economic, or is based on the whimsies of color prejudice.

To turn away a skilled workman simply because he is a Negro is a blow against the cause for which all of us are fighting. In the first place, our nation needs every ounce of its productive energy; to sacrifice to any degree the contribution that this one-tenth of our population can make is foolish. We need to maintain a healthy economic system during this emergency, and this cannot be done if the ravages of unemployment fall disproportionately on a single population group. Finally, and of importance to all of us, the issue at stake and the issue which all of us are being called upon to sacrifice for, is the survival of democracy. Now, more than ever before, we need to strive to be unlike, rather than like, the sowers of hatred and prejudice.

If some Negroes are to be called upon to risk their life for $21 a month, simple justice requires that other Negroes be given an opportunity to fill jobs building ships, guns and planes. Ability, not color, must determine fitness to serve.

Roosevelt Orders More Defense Jobs For Negroes

Demands OPM Work To Put End to Racial Bias; Letter Sent To Knudsen, Hillman

President Roosevelt last night directed the OPM to act immediately toward ending "Nation-wide" discrimination against Negroes in defense industries.

He charged that "other minority racial, national and religious groups" have felt the effects of discrimination "in many localities" at a time when the Nation is combatting "the increasing threat of totalitarianism."

The situation, he told the defense officials, is "a matter of grave national importance" and insisted that "immediate steps must be taken to deal with it effectively."

Sent to OPM

Mr. Roosevelt's memorandum, addressed to William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, director and co-director of the OPM, follows:

"Complaints have repeatedly been brought to my attention that available and much-needed workers are being barred from defense production solely because of race, religion, or national origin. It is said that at a time when labor stringencies are appearing in many areas, fully qualified workers are being turned from the gates of industry on specifications entirely unrelated to efficiency and productivity. Also that discrimination against Negro workers has been Nation-wide, and other minority racial, national and religious groups have felt its effects in many localities. This situation is a matter of grave national importance and immediate steps must be taken to deal with it effectively.

"I note with satisfaction that the Office of Production Management has recognized the seriousness of this situation, and that on April 11, 1941, it addressed a letter on the subject to all holders of defense contracts. As Chief Executive of the Nation, I place the full support of my office behind your statement to the effect that, 'All holders of defense contracts are urged to examine their employment and training policies at once to determine whether or not these policies make ample provision for the full utilization of available and competent Negro workers. Every available source of labor capable of producing defense materials must be tapped in the present emergency.'

"No nation combating the increasing threat of totalitarianism can afford arbitrarily to exclude large segments of its population from its defense industries. Even more important is it for us to strengthen our unity and morale by refuting at home the very theories which we are fighting abroad.

"Our Government cannot countenance continued discrimination against American citizens in defense production. Industry must take the initiative in opening the doors of employment to all loyal and qualified workers regardless of race, national origin, religion or color. American workers, both organized and unorganized, must be prepared to welcome the general and much-needed employment of fellow workers of all racial and nationality origins in defense industries.

"In the present emergency, it is imperative that we deal effectively and speedily with this problem. I shall expect the Office of Production Management to take immediate steps to effectuate the full utilization of our productive man-power."

Latest Booklet Exposes Race In Nat'l Defense

Evidence Shown How Negro Victim Of Discrimination

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—Spurred on by the publication of a pamphlet, "Negroes in Defense," local publications editorially defended the position of the Negro in the United States today and asked that the condition be remedied through the efforts of individuals and organizations so that there would be no such stigma remaining to discredit this Democracy in the eyes of the world.

The publication, one of a series produced by the Council for Democracy, a New York organization, is full of concrete facts and evidence that the Negro is being discriminated against unjustly and points out specific examples of what is being done against the Negro.

POINTS OUT INJUSTICE

Quoting from several articles, one of which is supposed to be Hitler's "Nazi Plans for Negroes" one item states, "the freeing of the slaves was one of the two great catastrophes of the present civilization." Enlarging on this particular line, the booklet points out injustice after injustice.

The Council for Democracy, an organization sponsored by two well-known social organizations, in the past has remained in the back ground and was content to offer its services and assistance to other organizations fighting injustices to minority groups in the United States. But when the council whose main offices are at 285 Madison Avenue, New York City, found the results were not what it expected, it jumped into the battle itself and began pounding away for civil rights and liberties for these minority groups.

One of the other creations of the organization is a monthly release which sets forth for newspaper publication, articles and information pertinent to national questions.

OBTAIN EXPERT ADVICE

In preparing this newest booklet, which is now ready for release and will be sent upon application and purchase price of 10 cents, the council sought the advice of some of the best minds in the Negro cultural group. They included Dr. Robert C. Weaver, Dr. Ira DeA Reid, Dr. Joseph C. Houchings, and many others whose names are well-known in similar fields.

Included in the board of directors are some of the outstanding personages in the United States, from various fields. The purpose of the organization as expressed in its own statement is "This council exists to work and spend in the defense of the democratic system and the aggressive promotion of that idea."

Defense Chiefs Discuss More Jobs for Negro

Meet at White House; LaGuardia Predicts Solution of Problem

A committee of top defense officials drafted a program yesterday to put into force President Roosevelt's recent edict that discrimination against Negroes in defense industries must be stopped.

Meeting with the President at the White House, the group of top defense directors heard the Negro case presented by two spokesmen for their race—Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters.

LaGuardia Predicts Solution

Attending the seminar on the problem with President Roosevelt were, in addition to Randolph and White, Secretary of War Stimson, Navy Secretary Knox, Production Directors Knudsen and Hillman and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, director of civilian defense.

LaGuardia, spokesman for the Government chiefs, said there "has been some discrimination in the employment of Negroes" on defense jobs and he said that the official group that discussed the situation yesterday would be able to find a solution.

Civil Defense Aides Named

He did not indicate what steps would be taken to instrument the President's order of last Sunday that more defense jobs be opened to members of the colored race.

A fine example of the kind of democracy the President is trying to achieve, said La Guardia, was the fact that the representatives of large groups of Negroes sat down to discuss their problems in the White House yesterday around a table with the Chief Executive, and received

Impetus of yesterday's action was Mr. Roosevelt's memorandum June 12 to Knudsen and Hillman saying that "our Government cannot countenance continued discrimination against American citizens in defense production."

He ordered the OPM to take "immediate" steps to remedy the situation, citing the fact that it had 'repeatedly" received complaints of discrimination.

LaGuardia also announced yesterday the appointment of three divisional heads of the civilian defense program

Dean James M. Landis, of Harvard Law School, was named director for the First Corps Area, with headquarters at Boston. Frank D'Olier, president of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., was named director for the Second Corps Area, comprising New York, New Jersey and Delaware. Raymond J. Kelly, of Detroit, past national commander of the American Legion, was selected as directed for the Sixth Corps Area, with headquarters at Chicago.

Six other regional directors, including the director for the Washington area, remain to be named.

JOBS FOR ALL

While national attention has been focussed on wages and union labor problems, one important phase of the American labor situation has been overlooked. The right to work seems to be denied to a large number of Americans who need work. They are negroes, unorganized and lacking spokesmen.

The President has found it necessary to bring this matter to the attention of Messrs. Knudsen and Hillman, directors of the Office Production Management. "Complaints have repeatedly been brought to my attention," he said, "that available and much needed workers are being barred from defense production solely because of race, religion or national origin. Also that discrimination against negro workers has been nation-wide. Industry must take the initiative in opening the doors of employment to all loyal and qualified workers regardless of race, origin, religion or color."

Of course he is right. And it is not only a matter of justice but of common sense. Today, especially, when the whole country is one great workshop for national defense, it should have the services of all its people, and all should have a fair and honorable share in the work.

Amsterdam News
New York, N. Y.

F. D. R. On Right Track

George Washington and Abraham Lincoln stand alone as the two most illustrious presidents of the United States. Each of them is definitely linked with a period which marked a turning point in the history of the country. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt looms as the next great American chief executive.

Several months ago, following a survey of the conditions in the defense program which revealed that Negroes were being systematically barred from employment purely on a basis of color, The Amsterdam Star-News was quick to advocate an executive order from President Roosevelt as the only means of stopping the discrimination. At first this newspaper was just a voice crying in the Wilderness, but soon the idea captured the imagination of Negro leaders and a campaign, backed by the Amsterdam Star-News was launched.

Last week Mr. Roosevelt performed the first act in what might become an event of historic importance when he sent a memorandum to the co-chairmen of the Office of Defense Production, which said in part: "Complaints have repeatedly been brought to my attention that available and much-needed workers are being barred from defense production solely at a time when labor stringencies are appearing in many areas, fully qualified workers are being turned away from the gates of industry on specifications entirely unrelated to efficiency and productivity. Also that discrimination against Negro workers has been nation-wide, and other minority racial, national and religious groups have felt its effect in many localities. This situation is a matter of grave national importance, and immediate steps must be taken to deal with it effectively."

This, we regard as a big step forward, but it is only a step. President Roosevelt must follow through. He must give something more than moral force to his words; he must back them up by his authority as commander-in-chief of the nation, with an unlimited emergency on his hands.

In his memorable Emancipation Proclamation, Pres. Lincoln freed the Negro from physical slavery, but down through the years the children and children's children of those slaves have been continued in virtual slavery by the iron yoke of economic bondage. President Roosevelt can correct this; he can bring full realization to the dream and hope of the martyred Lincoln, that the Negro should be wholly free.

The essential difference between a memorandum and an executive order is that one merely suggests what policy ought to be pursued, while the other outlines the policy that MUST be pursued, with the army, navy and marines standing by to see it through.

We have never believed there was any sincerity in the jim crow practice of employers. We have always regarded the policy as just another part of the program to keep alive the slavery psychology so that it would be comparatively easy to exploit workers, Negro workers especially. Except among the poor white elements of the Tobacco Road type who are as much the victim of propaganda as the Negro, no one actually considers the Negro an inferior being. The whole plan is designed to confuse the Negro problem so as to keep him in the poverty class.

The argument that Negro and white workers cannot get along together harmoniously is a base lie, conceived by plotters and fostered to support a vicious economic system. Wherever the races have been told they had to work together, they have done so with the most satisfactory results. The practice can be made nationwide, and discrimination in American factories will disappear entirely if the President really toughens up.

We believe the President ought to give force to his plan by making the memorandum with certain changes an executive order. We believe, further, that the majority of the plant officials will go along, so will the unions who are partly to blame for the jim crowism. Those officials who don't go along should be adequately punished. Certainly they wouldn't like jail, and heavy fines would help defray our defense costs.

Who knows but that in years to come, instead of declaring February 12 and 22 as national holidays in honor of the birthday anniversaries of our two most illustrious presidents, January 30 will become an equally important day in American history, the birth date of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Great presidents really become great through the exigencies f the times. Mr. Roosevelt may yet perform the deed that will rank him with Washington and Lincoln —breaking the economic shackles of 20,000,000 American citizens may be just the thing.

Democracy In Defense

For many months now, we have been hearing charges that Negroes have been systematically excluded from employment in certain defense industries, particularly in aircraft factories whose very existence was made possible by government contracts. These charges have been investigated by responsible newspapers and national publications and found to have basis in fact.

Skilled Negroes—graduate engineers, technicians, mechanics—have been excluded purely upon the ground of their color, from employment in factories which were admittedly short of trained personnel and were desperately endeavoring to secure it. The Labor Division of the OPM has been deluged with complaints alleging this sort of discrimination, has looked into many of them and has found them unfortunately to be substantiated.

The point has been reached where President Roosevelt is forced to take cognizance of the situation. His appeal to the nation to put an end to discrimination against loyal minority groups in defense industries is so eloquent and reasonable that we shall quote from it extensively, since its power would be diminished in any paraphrase.

"No nation combating the increasing threat of totalitarianism," says the president, "can afford arbitrarily to exclude large segments of its population from its defense industries." It is "even more important for us to strengthen our unity and morale by refuting at home the very theories which we are fighting abroad.

"Complaints have repeatedly been brought to my attention that available and much-needed workers are being barred from defense production solely because of race, religion or national origin. It is said that at a time when labor stringencies are appearing in many areas, fully qualified workers are being turned from the gates of industry on specifications entirely unrelated to efficiency and productivity. Also that discrimination against Negro workers has been nation-wide, and other minority racial, national and religious groups have felt its effect in many localities . . ."

"Our government cannot countenance continued discrimination against American citizens in defense production. Industry must take the initiative in opening the doors of employment to all loyal and qualified workers regardless of race, national origin, religion or color. American workers, both organized and unorganized, must be prepared to welcome the general and much-needed employment of fellow workers of all racial and nationality origins in defense industries.

"In the present emergency it is imperative that we deal effectively and speedily with this problem. I shall expect the Office of Production Management to take immediate steps to facilitate the full utilization of our productive manpower."

We believe that the president's appeal will be heeded by all truly patriotic employers and workers, whose devotion to American ideals and the high cause of world democracy is genuine and surpasses mere lip-service. Human prejudices are of course often deep and tenacious, but they do yield to reason and, to better acquaintance with the object of prejudice.

American Negroes and other minority groups who have been the victims of discrimination in defense employment are on the whole anxious to serve America and to strike a blow against the man who in the world today is the outstanding exponent of all the darkest and most loathsome prejudices with which the frail human mind is afflicted. We must not bar any Americans from taking part, to the best of their ability, in the common struggle.

This means not only permitting the skilled to exercise their skills, but furnishing all groups with equality of opportunity in securing the training that they desire and that the country needs. The Negro, particularly, is caught in a vicious circle in this regard. He is barred from securing training in many skilled occupations on the ground that, if trained, he would not be permitted to engage in the occupation because of his color. Training, as well as employment, must be equally available to all.

"Negroes And Defense"

I wish to thank you for your splendid editorial, "Negroes and Defense," of June 12. As one who is sorely concerned about the present situation of my people, and greatly distressed about the future of the thousands of young people who are turned out of our schools each year with no open doors, no opportunity for making a living, I am anxious to extend my heartfelt gratitude for the sentiments expressed in it.

The plight of the Negro in this country is by far more serious now than it has been within the last 25 years. Even in the most menial positions there is the rankest discrimination against the Negro. Read the "Want-Ads" in our daily papers and see how few jobs are open to colored people.

The Negroes of this country, 13,000,000—one in every ten persons—know no other country. They are ready and anxious (as in the past) to serve our country. They are loyal; there are no Fifth Columnists among them.

We are importuned to register for defense, conservation, and to buy Defense Bonds. What incentive is there for loyal patriotism when our Government, through its high officials, closes the avenues for a livelihood to these self-same citizens? Industry has taken its cue from these officials and refuses to hire Negroes in their plants. How does America stand with those countries which Hitler has subdued, when they learn, as surely they know, how America is treating one-tenth of its population in this gigantic struggle to save democracy. I have long since prayed that there would arise in these troublous times someone courageous enough to call attention to this inhuman treatment of the Negro.

All we ask is that we may have the privilege of living under the true democratic way of life of which our country boasts. Again, thank you for your courageous and just editorial.

DISCRIMINATION

The President's directive for the Office of Production Management to look into the question of discrimination in essential industry aganst part of the American people because of "race, religion or national origin" is admittedly in the interest of Negro labor. The earnest effort of Negro organzations to bring the plight of their people to government attention thus bears fruit. But the President's fine phrasing is by no means the answer to the problem.

Reduced to its simplest terms, two men want one available job. Regardless of the reason for hiring one and not the other, there is discrimination against the unhired man. If you prefer white to Negro labor, is there any sound reason why you should hire a Negro yardman or cook instead of a white person on the same job? Well, if you carry the same theory on into an industry employing say a thousand workers, is there any essential difference? Indeed, in the case of mass employment, management may have to reason in terms of the prejudices of its other employees.

If there are enough jobs to go around, a job for every worker, the problem would fall of its own weight. Prejudices disappear in the face of emergency.

In government employment, especially if civil service is fairly and equitably applied, racial prejudice could not bar equality in treatment before the law. But in private employment, the fact remains that no American who respects the guarantees of the Constitution, can justly ask any individual or corporation to put one man before another. In other words, it is just as unfair to insist that a man must be hired because he is a Negro as it is to say that he must not be hired because he is one.—Dallas Morning News.

Discrimination In Defense

This country is speeding up to an all-out defense effort in behalf of the democratic principles of life. We cannot call ourselves doing our best unless in that effort we display the principles for which we would fight.

If we would protect this country against the dark prejudices of Nazism, then we should strive to eliminate prejudice from the defense program. If we would remain free, and deserve to be free, then we must give the maximum freedom possible to all persons in our midst who are entitled to it by law.

Something of these principles must have been in the mind of President Roosevelt recently when he sent to the Office of Production Management a memorandum ordering equality of treatment in defense work for all persons regardless of race or religion or national origin. The president must have realized that it would do little good to protect the country against Nazism if we were guilty of some of the worst phases of Nazism.

The executive order was based, said the president, on repeated reports that "available and much-needed workers are being barred from defense production solely because of race, religion, or national origin." It is a sad indictment of any Americans that in the very hours when their traditional liberties are under serious threat they should deny to other Americans the fundamental right of work they are qualified to do.

Chiefly but not exclusively, the discrimination is being practiced against Negroes. As a result of the discrimination, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is reported planning a "March of Jobs" to Washington. The march would dramatize the situation, certainly dramatize it too much, and it would tend to create the idea that the discrimination the president had in mind was directed against Negroes alone. That is an unfounded opinion which it would be well to avoid. In view of the president's order there is no justification whatever for such a "march."

The discrimination in defense jobs is more important even than the continuing question of reaching the best adjustment between the white and Negro races. Discrimination of any sort is a serious blow just now to national morale. We cannot hope for 100 per cent response to the defense program when the program itself alienates directly large numbers of people and indirectly touches all those who put their patriotism upon the high plane of justice to all and special rights to none.

In a sense that memorandum to OPM was a memorandum to all the people. The OPM can make and enforce provisions compelling industries in defense work to avoid all discrimination in their employment. Police officers can see that those orders are enforced. But you can't in a free country legislate a people into loyal and proper attitudes.

The order of the president calls upon all Americans to be above prejudice in their individual attitudes. It calls upon them to be Americans, and they cannot be as long as there is discrimination in defense production.

No Time for Prejudice

From Montgomery Advertiser

NEGROES are being discriminated against in defense industries. This discrimination, as President Roosevelt pointed out in his memorandum to the OPM, is "entirely unrelated to efficiency and productivity." It is the result of unreasoning prejudices on the part of either workmen or employers. It is not confined to any one region, and is perhaps more systematic and universal in the West Coast aircraft industry than in any other place.

Fundamentally the Negro has about as great a stake in the fight between the New Deal and the New Order as any other group. The spectre of a Hitler-dominated world, with repression and cruelty aimed at every racial minority, falls heavily upon him.

The American Negro has demonstrated a loyalty and a willingness to bear his share in the responsibilities ahead. This time, as 23 years ago, selective service calls upon him to serve in direct proportion to his numbers.

There is small wonder that Negro leadership has been concerned, and at times angered, by systematic exclusion of members of his race. This is an exclusion entirely unrelated to questions of social relationships. It is either economic, or is based on the whimsies of color prejudice.

To turn away a skilled workman simply because he is a Negro is a blow against the cause for which all of us are fighting. In the first place, our nation needs every ounce of its productive energy; to sacrifice to any degree the contribution that this one-tenth of our population can make is foolish.

If some Negroes are to be called upon to risk their life for $21 a month, simple justice requires that other Negroes be given an opportunity to fill jobs building ships, guns and planes. Ability, not color, must determine fitness to serve.

A Serious "Bottleneck"

The attempt organization of unions by the Negro carpenters in Tulsa and Oklahoma City meets with the approval of the Black Dispatch. The movement started recently in Tulsa, where the white carpenters' union was advised by a representative of the American Federation of Labor, a Negro union would be chartered if there was continued refusal to permit Negroes holding cards in the white local.

And this is as it should be. Why should the government award contracts totaling millions of dollars in building construction where a part of the citizens cannot work? The right of labor to collectively bargain through labor unions has been held constitutional, but there is no law either constitutional or moral that would infer a part of the citizenship should have such privileges and rights while another group is barred.

Labor unions now occupy about the same status in the industrial arena political parties hold in elections. It has been said political parties are social clubs but who is it can argue that in the solid south nomination in one of these "private primaries" is not equivilant to election? It is obvious that we have delegated so much power and authority to party primaries that unless citizens may freely participate in them their government has been taken from them.

So it is with labor unions. All government contracts provide that union labor shall be used. Uncle Sam has a right to look over his glasses, whenever he makes a move, to determine whether the action taken will discriminate against any unit of the population.

We have in recent months received letters from Fort Sill, Ada, and other sections of the state all telling the same story of discrimination against Negro carpenters. In every instance Negro carpenters cannot receive employment because they do not have union cards.

In the Congressional Record a few weeks ago we read several pages covering complaints against labor unions charging $50.00 initiation fees and placing incompetent white men, who paid this exorbitant fee, upon federal jobs who were unable to hardly drive a nail straight. This is plain unadulterated graft and fraud upon the government. This is one of the "bottle-necks" that should be gotten out of the defense setup.

Think of the government attempting to speed up a defense program, and a bunch of union grafters jamming the works with a lot of incompetents forced to pay a $50.00 fee. While this graft goes on standing outside of our industrial establishment are competent Negro carpenters, willing to work, but unable to get a union card which the government has agreed applicant must have before he can be employed.

This sort of thing smacks of the graft that made the Maginot Line a worthless, crumbling pile of mortar, when Hitler's invading legions assaulted the French. It is said that French contractors, in order to make money, had failed to put enough cement and rock into the structure, supposed to be impreginable. In the hour of crisis the weakness of the wall built by grafters unwittingly delivered their country into the hands of the enemy.

And so it is right here in America. Keeping competent Negroes out of the defense setup, while admitting incompetent whites, not only stymies our preparations for war but it exposes the cancer of hypocrisy that has entered the vitals of government under the blanket of race prejudice.

Indefensible Discrimination

Senator Wagner, of New York, charges in a letter to Director Knudsen of the Office of Production Management, that some aircraft plants working on defense contracts have been guilty of "flagrantly violating" defense project rules forbidding contractors to discriminate against workers because of race or color. Barring Negroes from employment on such projects, declares the New York Senator—> mocks the very principles of democracy we are preparing to defend—the very principles of equality and human dignity which the President has proclaimed as the essential basis for lasting peace and world reconstruction.

Even more glaring is the similar discrimination against Negro workers reported in connection with the defense housing projects, for whereas airplane construction calls for skills that only a small proportion of Negro workers possess, housing construction calls for skills possessed by Negro workers in large number. The Federal Works Administrator, proceeding under the Act of October 14, has instructed companies executing defense housing projects that—

> There shall be no discrimination by reason of race, creed, color or political affiliations, in the employment of persons, qualified by training and experience, for work in the development of defense housing at the sites thereof.

Despite these government instructions, discrimination against Negro workers solely because of their color, continues to be the rule. They are employed in the unskilled, day-labor classifications, but seldom as skilled carpenters, bricklayers, etc.,—in Southern defense projects hardly at all. Contractors might be willing to abandon this discrimination, but apparently the unions are not. Between union ostracism and contractor anxiety to avoid labor troubles, the skilled worker with a dark skin is cheated of his right to participate on an equitable footing in the work-benefits of the national defense program. The able-bodied Negro male is good enough to be drafted as a soldier to fight the nation's battles, but not good enough to be given a job befitting his skill in building the nation's barracks.

We can think of no form of discrimination as stinking with injustice as this. It cries for correction. It cries first to organized labor which sits at the first toll-gate, and second to the government of the United States which is under the highest moral obligation (to say nothing of its legal obligation) to prevent one element of the working citizenship from destroying the equal rights of another element in public works paid for out of the public purse.

Negro Workers on Defense

The Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch

ACCORDING to information which the Ledger-Dispatch has not as yet been able to verify or refute, a situation exists in connection with the national defense effort which works an injury and an injustice. This information is that in a vast deal of construction work, certainly here in Virginia, and apparently elsewhere, sharp discrimination is being made against skilled Negro workers—such men as carpenters, bricklayers, welders, steamfitters and the like. The reports that have reached this newspaper are that such skilled Negro workers are turned away, while signs confront them indicating that workers in their several lines are wanted.

It goes without saying that in such construction work as these men are capable of employment, there is need for haste and yet more haste. It follows, also without saying, that to refuse these men employment while the work goes undone for lack of adequate labor is to slow down construction and thus impede defense preparations. It also goes without saying that, at such a time as this, on such work as this, on Federal construction, it is indefensible discrimination that bars the employment of skilled Negro workers. If it is defended on the ground that strife would follow the placement of Negro workers with white workers, that defense is answered by the reminder that there's enough of this work, there are enough units under construction, to separate the skilled workers of the two groups.

Recognizing the injustice of this discrimination, Federal Works Administrator Carmody has issued an order prohibiting it in connection with the defense housing program. Our information—for which, as has been said, we do not vouch—is that this order has not been followed by all-out compliance.

In the circumstances which we have briefly outlined, it seems to the Ledger-Dispatch that prompt investigation by authority is in order—and such action as many be indicated.

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — The most stirring appeal for the stoppage of discrimination against Negroes was that of Rep. Martin O. Sweeney, Cleveland Democrat, made in congress Wednesday, when the congressman cited instance after instance of the Negroes' ability and persecution.

"If we can take our colored boys, put them in camp and eventually make cannon-fodder out of them, we should give some consideration to their brothers at home and permit the trained and skilled colored workers an opportunity to work in defense industry," he said. "Today in many cases they find the door locked against them because of their color."

Negroes in Defense Work

From the Richmond Times-Dispatch

In Virginia, and in other States, unfair discrimination against skilled Negro workers is hampering the arming of America, and contributing to the lag in the defense program. "All-out" defense cannot be achieved, so long as a large body of skilled men is prevented by arbitrary rulings and subtle prejudice from putting its capabilities to maximum use.

This is wholly aside from the injustice involved. In a Commonwealth with some 700,000 Negro citizens out of a total population of 2,677,000, it is only right and proper that such a large element be given an adequate share in the benefits of the defense program. Moreover, if 700,000 Virginia citizens are discriminated against in the program, and something like 15,000,000 Negroes in the country as a whole, the effect on national morale and on the prospects for national unity, are apt to be serious.

Camp Lee affords a well-nigh perfect example of the sort of exclusion of skilled Negro workers which is going forward in this State. Hundreds of carpenters, bricklayers, roofers and other skilled members of the building trades are at work on the construction of that great cantonment, but there is understood to be only one Negro among them. It is understood, furthermore, that white men are being brought in from other States and given these jobs, although there are skilled Negro workmen in Virginia thoroughly capable of taking them.

In the Newport News area, the story apparently is the same, although there is conflicting evidence on the point. The Norfolk Journal and Guide quotes George L. Zuidema, contractor's executive officer at Fort Eustis, as saying that while he had "seriously considered hiring colored carpenters to meet our requirements." The Journal and Guide points out, however, that the State Employment Office "in nearby Newport News is still calling for white carpenters, and a large sign on its door reads plainly 'Carpenters Wanted.'" Mr. Zuidema is said to have made the above quoted declaration, in response to an inquiry from Rep. S. Otis Bland, who had received a petition from 25 Negro carpenters desirous of working on defense construction in the area. It was stated that over 1,100 Negroes are employed in this particular contractor's organization, but that they are all performing tasks requiring no skills.

It is in the skilled trades that shortages are being experienced in the defense program throughout America, whereas there is ample common labor to take care of all requirements, certainly for the present. But if skilled men are to be left idle, simply because they are colored, the shortages in this field may grow worse, instead of better, and the defense program, so vital to America's survival, may fail.

The skills, actual and potential, of the Negro ought to be utilized to the fullest. In so far as it lies in their power, any contractors who are not giving Negroes their rightful share of the skilled work for which they are fitted, should endeavor to rectify this injustice. And agencies for the training of Negro workers in skilled trades should everywhere be developed and encouraged.

The Big Protest

JAN 19 1941

THE year's first issue of the Nation magazine hurls forth an article, penned by Dr. Metz P. Lochard, entitled "Negroes and Defense" in which it takes America to task for the discrimination and segregation confronted by Negroes in the armed forces of the nation, condemns the policies of the defense industries for their refusal to employ Negroes and proposes to state the attitude and sympathies of the colored race on the European conflict.

Dr. Lochard points out that the Negro has not decided to surrender his democratic rights even though the country is undergoing an emergency. For that reason he is fighting, the article points out, to become fully integrated into all branches of the defense program. We hasten to agree with the proposition that the emergency that is faced by this nation should not be an excuse for the colored race to lie down and forget to command their rights. No other group has done it and no one will be requested.

"The Negro problem is a major problem of American democracy. If the black man is called upon to defend this democracy, he has a legitimate claim to those rights which are guaranteed by the fundamental laws of is urged to protect. If this be an incorrect the form of political government which he view," the article continues, "the Negro has no reason, except human compassion, to be exercised about a war fought by white folk, for the exclusive benefit and glorification of white folk. He should be given the unconditional choice between fighting as a slave for the perpetuity of a nefarious system and fighting as a free man for free institutions."

Those "multiple tolitarian" vacuums and "fascist air bubbles" of American democracy which envelopes the Negro and excludes him from full participation in the national defense program will be removed only if he is a militant minority which has the strength of its conviction and demands here and now that it be treated in a manner consistent with the democratic process for which it soon may have to defend.

If the Negro public and press keep open this channel of protest againt the despicable discriminatory conditions under which the race now finds itself we shall benefit not only in obtaining the right to fight for democracy in a democratic way and under democratic conditions, but at war's end the sentiment thus created will carry through and avert the embarassing conditions that faced the Negro after the Armistice of the last World war.

Reply From Fort Eustis

FEB 22 1941

THE position taken by the contractors' excutive at Fort Eustis that no Negro carpenters have been employed because of his long established practice to segregate workers by trade on projeccts under his supervision, is untenable in the light of the national emergency, and the official concern over the shortage of skilled workers to complete national defense projects with dispatch and efficiency.

During the almost two hours he conferred with representatives of this newspaper last Friday by appointment, the executive emphasized his loss to understand why the non-employment of Negro carpenters should be made a cause celebre. Citing the fact that he advanced to his present responsible position by diligence and hard work, and at one time served under a Negro foreman in Norfolk, he felt hurt that he should come in for criticism instead of praise as a friend and benefactor of the Negro since he has hired hundreds as laborers, and some as cement finishers, yarners, and helpers to white skilled mechanics. He pointed proudly to the fact that of the 5,800 employes on the project, 2,300 are Negroes, but, significantly, he was not in a position at the time to break down these figures to show how many Negroes were actually working in the skilled trades mentioned, and the hourly wage received in each category.

Asked to state definitely when he thought he would reach a decision to hire or not hire Negro carpenters, the contractors' executive said he didn't know. Asked as to the possibility that some would be hired before the project is completed, he didn't know that either. He replied "No" to the question whether there is an understanding with white unions not to hire Negro carpenters. Asked if white carpenters on the project told him they would walk out if Negroes were hired, the executive said he preferred not to be quoted on this point.

In view of his admission that he has never employed Negro carpenters on any project under his supervision, and that his final answer to the question of their employment at Fort Eustis is contained in his established policy to segregate workers by trades, the logical assumption is, that unless some power higher than he intervenes, no Negro carpenters will be employed by him.

The serious economic, social and patriotic consequences of his position, notwithstanding, the hiring agent says to Negro Americans in effect: Be thankful for what I have already done for your people. I am "still considering" the employment of Negro carpenters, but bear in mind that my established policy (which I have found highly beneficial) is to segregate workers by trades.

We repeat that Democracy is on trial at Fort Eustis. The contractors' executive dares to pit his policy of hiring American workmen against the Democratic policy of justice and equality for all. It remains to be seen what defense officials in Washington, to whom he and the contractcors are responsible, and Virginians as a whole will do about it.

White Man Hits Discrimination In U.S. Arms Service

JAN 19 1941

NEW YORK—Because he sincerely believes in true democracy, Roger Starr, young New York writer, filed with his local draft board Wednesday, July 9, a vigorously worded protest against the denial of democratic rights to Negro Americans. The protest accompanied's Starr's questionnaire in which he placed himself in class I.

Specifically named by Starr as weakness in the democratic system were discrimination against Negroes in the administration of the Selective Service Act, segregation of Negro troops from white, denial of equal opportunity to Negroes in the aid corps, their total exclusion from the marine corps and relegation in the navy to mess attendant, and anti-Negro training and employment policies by large corporations.

THE OPM COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS

In appointing members to the recently authorized committee to investigate discrimination against Negroes seeking work in national defense, President Roosevelt has made some excellent choices.

Since the President seemed to think a white man should head a committee primarily concerned with discrimination against Negroes, he could have made few better choices than Mark F. Ethridge of Louisville, Ky.

Negroes can feel no enthusiasm over the choice of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who has on every occasion ducked and evaded the issue of color discrimination in the organization he heads, and thus can with poor grace pass upon discrimination practiced by employers.

However, the choice of Philip Murray, CIO head, and a labor leader of proved friendliness to Negro workers, will offset the appointment of the bumbling and timorous Green.

We commend the choice of Attorney Earl B. Dickerson of Chicago as one of the Negro members. He is a man of courage, integrity and repute who will add lustre and judicial balance to the committee, and can be depended upon to be watchful of Negro's interests.

Milton P. Webster, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, is not known nationally except in narrow circles, but he is a plain, outspoken man who can be depended upon, we believe, to speak up for Negroes.

Of David Sarnoff much that is commendable can be said but what we can expect from him on this committee is problematical. There is little or nothing in the employment record of the Radio Corporation of America, which he heads, to indicate any especial friendliness to Negroes.

It is ironical that those heading the agitation over a period of years for fairplay in national defense had nothing to say about these appointments and were in no instance asked to join this committee.

The Negro recommendations were made by Walter White and A. Philip Randolph, and it is believed that they also recommended Mark F. Ethridge of Louisville, Ky., as chairman.

Although this fight could not have been waged at all without the Negro press which, led by the Kansas City Call, the Black Dispatch and The Pittsburgh Courier, mobilized national opinion, it is significant that no Negro editor was asked to serve or suggested for membership, although a white editor was.

Also ignored were members of the Committee for Participation of Negroes in National Defense, which includes such nationally known figures as Dr. Rayford W. Logan and Dr. Emmett J. Scott of Washington, D.C.

As a result we have a committee, the majority handpicked by Messrs. White and Randolph which, while good, is not truly representative, what with no Negro from the East, South or Far West upon it.

Therein always lies the danger of two or three individuals being accepted by the Administration as spokesmen for 13,000,000 people without any mandate from these people.

CHICAGO LAWYER, WEBSTER CHOSEN

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 24—In an effort to expedite his executive order and impliment it with the proper machinery, President Roosevelt last Saturday announced the names of members of the Committee on Fair Labor Practices under the Office of Production Management. Two prominent race members were named along with four outstanding white labor and business leaders.

Representing the race are Attorney Earl B. Dickerson, Chicago Alderman and political leader, and Milton P. Webster, vice president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and active trade unionist.

MARK F. ETHRIDGE HEADS COMMITTEE

Heading the committee to investigate complaints of discriminations against Negroes seeking employment in defense industries and Federal agencies will be Mark F. Ethridge, vice president and general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and liberal white leader.

Other members of the committee are: Phillip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America.

The Committee was created following a national protest on vicious discriminations in industrial plants holding defense contracts and the exclusion of race members from the training programs and other functions by Governmental departments. This protest was led by The Pittsburgh Courier, the Committee on Participation, the NAACP and the March on Washington committee.

RANDOLPH, CAYTON'S NAMES WERE SUGGESTED

Acting on the protests, President Roosevelt issued his order on June 25, reaffirming the policy of the Government against discriminatory practices in the hiring of defense and Government workers because of race, creed, color, or national origin.

The committee will serve without pay and will investigate all complaints and take whatever steps are necessary to correct the abuses found to exist.

Among those proposed to the President for inclusion on the committee were Horace B. Cayton, labor expert and Courier columnist, and A. Phillip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and leader of the March on Washington movement.

ANOTHER STEP

The appointment by President Roosevelt of a committee to investigate complaints of discrimination against Negroes seeking to work in defense industries and the government, looks to us like another forward step toward helping Negroes to find their rightful place in this government. Then, too, we are further pleased by the fact that two Negroes are members of this committee, both of whom are able advocates of the rights of minority groups.

But, however enthusiastic we may be because of this step, we are not blind to the fact that this committee has a hard and herculean task to perform if it is to get the full benefit of the possibilities of its work. This committee based upon the President's previous statement will have the full power of the government behind it. Therefore, when it goes to an industry to inquire why it is that no Negroes are given places among the skilled workers, it will speak with authority. The answer, of course, in the final analysis, will be that it is because of their race. In connection with such an answer will be the statement that trade unions, both the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L., will not work with Negroes who are not members of their union and in most cases unions will deny Negroes the privilege of joining their organizations. It will be interesting to note that the Office of Production Management in the national defense stated that some trade unions were admitting Negroes as helpers but not as apprentices. They would not admit Negroes as apprentices, as will be noted, because of the fact that apprentices are in line to become members of the union. Thus, no Negro apprentices. It is this sort of practice which we hope this investigating committee will investigate with a scrutinizing eye. This sort of practice is even more reprehensible in its violation of American democratic principles than the frank admittance of discrimination by the heads of the big industries. Then, too we should remember that America faces a crisis without parallel in history. Our very existence as a nation is threatened and only through teamwork will security come for all. Every man, woman and child has a part to play if the job is to be done "jam up". The President of the United States in his address July 4 sounded a call for loyalty, unity, efficiency and toil on the part of Americans. All Americans were included in this call—not just those who are members of unions or those who belong to a certain racial group or those who have money. To make the United States safe, every man must be given an opportunity to work—not every man for himself but every man for the common good of all. That cannot be accomplished by denying a large segment of the country's population the right to work. He who would deny a man the right to work denies him the most precious right of citizenship — denies him of bread and butter which is necessary to his very existence. No greater injustice can be done to those who want to work.

With these thoughts before it this new committee will be able to get at the core of the evil in a very short time.

EDITORIALS DEMAND NATION BACK OPM's FIGHT FOR NEGROES

NEW YORK, July 24—The 21,000,000 Catholics in this country have been urged to give full support to the efforts of the Office of Production Management and of the President of the United States to integrate Negroes into the employment and training phases of the national defense program, officials of OPM were informed this week.

The admonition was contained in a series of editorials in leading Catholic publications throughout the country. A digest of these editorials was forwarded to the Negro Employment and Training Branch of OPM by George K. Hunton, editor of the Interracial Review in New York City.

Typical comments from outstanding Catholic publications, including four editorials on the subject in the publication edited by Mr. Hunton, declared:

INTERRACIAL REVIEW—"The present emergency demands an immediate reform. The age-old pattern of anti-Negro prejudice must not become a part of our national defense program. To allow this would be a grave injustice to loyal Americans; it would endanger national unity; it would seriously impair the international influence and prestige of American Democracy. Democracy must function democratically!"

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) VISITOR —"A man's only qualification for a job in defense industry today is his ability to do the work the government wants done. If a man has the technical skill which defense industry requires, the nation needs that man, and the President is determined that the nation shall not be deprived of his services. Every patriotic citizen and any man who claims a bit of business sense should see that the same way."

THE CATHOLIC TRANSCRIPT (Conn.) — "The American way is incomparably superior to the totalitarian way. But it must not be confined to the statute books, commencement addresses, and the oratory spouted at patriotic rallies. It must be put to work. The President has taken a step in that direction."

THE COMMONWEAL (N. Y.)— "The Americans classed as Negroes on our remarkable and arbitrary racist principles number around 13,000,000. These fellow-Americans are numerous, and they are equipped to do an infinite number of things we all see are crying to be done. Employers, labor unions, societies, the State, individuals must unite in memorializing ourselves to be less racist, more prudent in self-interest and more virtuous. Jews and Catholics, as distinguishable minorities with avowed moral principles and great social and physical dangers, ought to be the first to unite with Negroes to take up this lead."

THE COLORED HARVEST (Md.)—"In this world emergency when national unity is of paramount importance it is vital that not nine-tenths but ten-tenths of ourp eople be envisoner in plans for war scale producion."

CATHOLIC TELEGRAPH-REGISTER (O.)—"The defense effort is supposed to represent democracy in action. But the refusal to permit one-tenth of the nation to participate in this effort is worthy of Hitler himself—and even he would not make the mistake of ignoring the great value of Negro skilled labor, if it were at his command."

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) CATHOLIC — "The mobilizing of the man power and the industrial power of the United States for defense, against any danger that may threaten, is a proper and necessary step in view of the existing world situation * * * The freedom and justice for which this nation stands must dominate these aims, and it follows that in the measures taken for defense there should be no violation of those great principles."

THE PILOT (Mass.)—"Is it not a pleasant admission that racial discrimination is practiced in this country. Our professors rage at the Nazi blood-cult philosophy, but we do tolerate an abhorrent practice which is milder in degree than the Nazi practice, but the same in kind. * * * The 'bottle-neck' which most worries our leaders is the lack of skilled help. Our Negro population could do something at least to relieve this embarrassment."

THE SIGN (N. J.)—"Apart from any such danger, most Americans and—now that it has been called to their attention—most employers and unions will want to see an immediate correction of this abuse. Planes and tanks will not save democracy if it is not practiced by those who declare themselves its champions, and this is a plain case of not practicing what we preach."

America, of New York City; The Catholic Universe Buleltin of Cleveland, O. and the Catholic Register of Denver, Colo., are included among other Catholic publications which have commented on the Negro and the national defense program.

YOUNG NEW YORK WRITER HITS JIM CROW

NEW YORK, July 24—Because he sincerely believes in true democracy, Roger Starr, young New York writer, filed with his local draft board a vigorously worded protest against the denial of democratic rights to Negro Americans. The protest accompanied Mr. Starr's questionnaire in which he placed himself in class I.

"You will note that I have appropriately filled out the part of my questionnaire dealing with my racial ancestry. As a white, the Army wants to place me in a unit with white troops * * * I should prefer being placed with Negro troops, for then they would become mixed troops; American troops. Certainly there are others beside myself who went to school with Negro boys, who learned beside them the history of our country and the theory of its government and who want to be allowed to contribute their services to their country under conditions that do not hold that theory to ridicule."

Specifically named by Mr. Starr as weaknesses in the democratic system were discrimination against Negroes in the administration of the Selective Service Act, segregation of Negro troops from white, denial of equal opportunity to Negroes in the air corps, their total exclusion from the marine corps and relegation in the navy to mess attendant, and anti-Negro training and employment policies by large corporations.

JUSTICE FOR THE NEGRO

By Oswald Garrison Villard

JAN 2 1941

If the colored people of the United States do not remember the Supreme Court in thier prayers they are singularly ungrateful. Again and again it has justified itself as the sole bulwark of such liberties as they are permitted to have. A number of innocent Negroes would be dead today had the Supreme Court not intervened in their behalf and made impossible the judicial lynchings which threatened them. It was the Supreme Court which put an end to segregation by cities in the south. Twice it set aside the opinions of the supreme court of Alabama in the Scottsboro cases. Later it upheld the right of a Negro citizen of Missouri to enter the state univerity school of law.

Now the court has just unanimously ruled that exclusion of Negroes from a Texas grand jury was ground for reversing the conviction of an eighteen-year-old Negro sentenced to life imprisonment for rape. The effect of the decision was to free the prisoner after two years in jail because of the statute of limitations. What is more remarkable is that the opinion was written and handed down by Justice Hugo Black whose appointment to the Supreme Court was bitterly fought because he had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan which is committed to hostility to the Negro and would strip him in the south of such few privileges and rights as he may have.

Justice Black wrote in his opinion that the Texas jury law could be administered without racial discrimination but that the discretion permitted by the law in the selection of grand jurors could be applied to exclude Negroes. It is "inescapable," he declared, that this was done in Harris county in which the Negro. Edgar Smith. was convicted. To quote his words:

"What the fourteenth amendment prohibits is racial discrimination in the selection of grand jurors. Where jury commssioners' limit those from whom grand juries are selected to their personal acquaintances, discrimination can arise from commissioners who know no Negroes, as well as from commissioners who know but can eliminate them. If there has been discrimination, whether accomplished ingeniously or ingenuously, the conviction cannot stand."

Justice Black then cited testimony to show that Negroes had long been excluded from the grand jury in Houston county although Negroes constituted more than twenty per cent of the county's population and almost ten per cent of the poll tax payers. He is convinced that a minimum of from 3,000 to 6,000 qualified Negroes is available for grand jury service, and that during the years from 1931 to 1938 inclusive only five Negroes served on the grand jury. What this means he described in these words: "For racial discrimination to result in the exclusion from jury service of otherwise qualified groups not only violates our Constitution and the laws enacted under it but is at war with our basic concepts of a democratic society and a representative government."

That these splendid words, so truly American and so just and in keeping with the highest tradition of our highest court, should have come from a southerner is enough to hearten the gloomiest, and to cheer no end the colored people who are particularly despondent at this moment because they are getting anything but a square deal in the new defense program. By contrast with this decision the treatment of the Negro by the Roosevelt administration and by the military authorities savors of the rankest discrimination. In an hour when everybody is talking of unity and of presenting a united front to enemies overseas and burying the political hatchets of the campaign just ended, it is a pity that 13,000,000 of our fellow citizens are more than ever compelled to feel that they belong to an inferior class of citizens. It is no answer to say that if Hitler came over here the plight of the Negroes would be far worse and that they are lucky to be as well off as they are. That may freely be admitted but it is not in point. We are told now that we must arm for dear life. There is magnificent soldier material among our colored people, and yet they are practically notified that they must look forward to an inferior status, precisely as was the case in the last war.

The Right to Die

In that war to make the world safe for democracy colored men were drafted, often out of proportion to their quota in states in which they live but are not allowed to vote, to serve on juries or to participate in the conduct of government. It was demanded of them that they be patriotic and go abroad to die for the country that denied them most of their constitutional rights. In some cases sixty per cent of the drafted men in some districts were colored when only twenty per cent of the total population were Negroes. When they returned to this country some of the conscripts were lynched while still in uniform for the crime of boasting that they had been received on terms of equality and friendship by French men and women. Except in New York city, and possibly a few other places, no colored men have been appointed to the draft boards. The metropolis has given some sixty colored men seats on the drift boards and appointed some Negro doctors to the medical boards. But in the main there is no guarantee that the unfairness of the last war will not be repeated in this armament program.

Indeed we have an example of the kind of things that may be expected in the south, if not in the north, in a recent utterance of Tennessee. When he was appealed to by colored citizens of his state for appointments to the draft boards he said that they would not get any, that the colored people of Tennessee contributed nothing to the welfare of the state, but that they had better warn their young men to register or they would be promptly sent to jail for the full term provided in the law and fined $10,000 in addition. The plain intimation was that they were lucky to be allowed to live in Tennessee at all, that they must be ready to be drafted and to keep their mouths shut.

Race Discrimination in the Army and Navy

We were told when Congress passed the conscription law that it provided the most democratic way of protecting the country. It is so democratic that today no colored man is allowed to enlist in the aviation force. Our navy, which so many people desire to have go into action tomorrow to preserve democracy abroad, allows no colored American to serve under the flag either on shipboard or in the marines except as a servant. The President and the war department have promised that if and when officer training camps are established there shall be one for colored officers—a nice, happy, Jim Crow camp with white instructors. But as the army also says that it believes it has in sight all the officers it needs for an army of three million men, and declares that it has no present intention of establishing officer training camps, anyone can figure out for himself how soon that camp for colored officers will be established and how many colored officers there are going to be in this wonderful new democratic army of conscripts.

The colored people are particularly disturbed by the situation in the navy. While a few colored men have slipped through West Point in the face of discrimination and often complete ostracism, no colored man has ever been graduated from Annapolis or, navy men say frankly, would be allowed to remain alive there. A sample of what may happen even to the Negro servants in the navy is afforded by the virtual arrest of nine Negro mess attendants attached to the U. S. S. Philadelphia for signing a letter to the Pittsburgh Courier protesting gainst the treatment of Negroes in the navy.

No Negro Aviators

Commenting upon this case the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People wrote to the secretary of the navy, Colonel Knox, that the colored people "are bitter about the treatment of their men in the armed forces of the nation. The army has made some gestures toward improvement, but the navy seems unable to adjust itself to the times. This association believes and urges once more —as it will continue to urge—that the United States navy, maintained by the money of all the people for the protection of all the people, should tear down every restriction against enlistment and training which is based upon race, creed or color, and should open up enlistment in all branches of the navy to American citizens without ragard to color."

Conditions in the aviation branch of the army are very much the same as in the navy. There is some talk about opening up some units in which colored aviators or mechanics may serve, but so far nothing has been worked out. I am not forgetting, of course, that during the last days of the campaign, when Mr. Roosevelt was so worried about his reelection, he hastily appointed a colored colonel—excuse me, the colored colonel in the army—to be a brigadier-general contrary to the custom of not appointing to this rank an officer who is nearing the age of retirement, and also that he appointed a Negro civilian aid to the secretary of war. But these were so obviously cheap political moves that the colored people just laughed at them.

No Chance in Industry

What the colored people also find very hard to bear is that the great industrial preparedness program is doing nothing to believe unemployment among Negro youth. Thus, seventeen colored boys graduated from a vocational class in New York especially to prepare young men for service in the armament factories. Their white classmates, who had received exactly the same mechanical training, were immediately snapped up by armament concerns, but not a single vacancy has presented itself to those seventeen colored boys. One of the great airplane plants in California boasts that it does not draw the color line; to prove that it points to one colored engineer, its sole Negro employee. General Motors has received huge contracts from the government for trucks and other military equipment, yet it employs only a very small percentage of Negroes. Everyone knows that there is a tremendous demand for labor in the skilled groups in the factories engaged in building airplanes tanks and, so forth. But when a colored boy, however capable, presents himself, why, it is just too bad but there do not happen to be any vacancies.

Could there be anything more unjust than to demand of men that they shall serve the state involuntarily and be ready to die for it and yet be denied not only all special rewards emoluments but the simplest justice, and above all equality? Yet the fact is that in every war this country has fought it has been glad to turn to the colored people. Even the Confederacy in its last days enlisted slaves, not only for manual labor but to fight, and Lincoln and the governors of some states who were importing foreigners by the shiploads without their knowing a single English word, were happy to raise one Negro regiment after another. Would it not be worth while just from the military point of view, if from no other, to treat the Negroes so that they would be eager to serve their country instead of being only sullenly obedient?

Barriers Removed At Ten Spots

Many Youths Get Apprenticeship Training Courses

FEB 27 1941

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (ANP)—One of the strangest paradozes of the national defense program—but one which may increase the ranks of skilled Negro workers and add hundreds of dollars to the race's annual income was uncovered here this week in connection with the U. S. Navy department.

In an exclusive interview with Dr. Robert C. Weaver, administrative assistant in the division of the labor supply of the NDAC, it was revealed.

Although the navy restricts its Negro recruits to the rank of messmen the U. S. Navy department itself maintains no barriers to the enrollment and subsequent employment of Negro apprentices in its 10 U. S. Navy yards. In fact, its certification regulations for mechanical workers at navy yards make more difficult the practice of racial discrimination by appointing officers than do the rules established by federal and civil service commissions.

FEB 27 1941

TRAIN APPRENTICES

As a result of these regulations, 103 Negro apprentices were being trained in shipyard apprentice schools on Oct. 1, 1940, and more than 5,000 Negro skilled and semi-skilled workers were employed in U. S. Navy Yards in Boston; Charles, S. C.; Mare Island, Calif.; Brooklyn; Philadelphia; Portsmouth, N. H.; Puget Sound, Wash. and Washington, D. C.; Norfolk, Va.

FEB 27 1941

The exact number of Negro employes in the U. S. Navy Yards, 118 professional and technical workers; 103 artisans, skilled workers; 4,153 semi-skilled workers; 557 unskilled workers and 103 apprentices, was released to the ANP by Dr. Weaver from a survey which the navy department conducted at his request last September.

Pointing out that apprentices receive 36 cents per hour while in training and that the more than 5,000 Negro skilled and semi-skilled workers are receiving wages ranging from $4.42 to more than $10 a day, Dr. Weaver urged Negro youth to apply for ship yard apprentice positions at their local U. S. district Civil Service offices.

ALL HAVE CHANCE

"Any youth who places high on the apprentice list in the semi-annual examinations has an excellent chance for appointment to an opening in one of the yards," Dr. Weaver said, "for the appointing officers of the apprentice schools are not permitted to choose one from the three highest. He must appoint the highest eligible."

To substantiate his statement, Dr. Weaver read Section 94 of the navy department's civil personnel regulations. It reads:

"Certification (apprentices) the name of the highest eligible who has indicated his willingness to accept employment in the particular trade in which a vacancy exists shall be certified. Employment will remove his name from the eligible register and he will not be eligible for employment under any of the other ratings specified in his application."

FEB 27 1941

This regulation differs materially from the 1-in-3 system maintained in most civil service rules. This latter system has drawn criticism from Negro eligibles who have accused appointing officers of discriminating against them because of their race.

OTHER JOBS OPENED

Although stresssing the opportunities for Negro apprentices, Dr. Weaver also urged skilled and semi-skilled Negro shipyard workers to compete for the large number of civil service jobs now open in the U. S. Navy Yards.

"At the present moment, in the navy yard in Boston," he said, "applications are now open for competitive examinations in at least 40 categories, ranking from anglesmith to welder. At the Brooklyn Navy yard skilled workers are being sought in 23 categories. These jobs pay for 68 cents to $1.14 per hour.

"In the same way, pipe fitters are being sought for the Charleston Navy Yard a $7.84 to $8.80 a day. iron-workers boiler markers, sheet metal workers and similar workers are needed at the Norfolk Navy yard at $7.52 to $8.48 a day. Machinists and toolmakers are needed at the Philadelphia Navy yard. These men will be paid from 94 cents to $1.12 an hour. Applications for examinations for any of these and scores of others may be obtained at any U. S. District Civil Service Commission office."

CITES PERCENTAGES

According to the navy department survey made public by Dr. Weaver, Negro workers constitute 2.01 per cent of the 10,895 technical and professional workers in the 10 navy yards, (as of October 1, 1940) 1.83 per cent of the 54,737 skilled workers; 14.56 per cent of the 28,521 semi-skilled workers. 78.01 per cent of the 714 unskilled workers and 2.91 per cent of the 3,537 apprentices in training on that date.

FEB 27 1941

"Our current drive for a two-ocean navy, and the possibility that naval vessels of Great Britain may be repaired in American Navy yards can mean increased job opportunities for Negro workers," Dr. Weaver concluded, "But Negro workers themselves must help create these opportunities. They can do this by taking navy department civil service examinations and by seeking enrollment in the navy yard apprentice schools."

Amsterdam News
New York, N. Y.

Now, Mr. Knudson

In replying to the request from the N. A. A. C. P. that he use his influence to see that the General Motors Corporation doesn't deny jobs to Negroes, William S. Knudsen, top man in the United States Defense production setup said: "Every organization in a position to assist in facilitating the defense program will utilize all qualified personnel at its command, but I have no control over the employment policies of the General Motors Corporation since severing active relationship with the company to become Director General of the Office of Production Management for National Defense."

Mr. Knudsen's statement is forthright. But while we accept Mr. Knudsen's statement as forthright, we believe he hedged. We believe officials of the N. A. A. C. P. are well aware of the fact that the former president of General Motors, in his new position, is not in control of the company's employment policies. He was not asked if he was in control of the company's policies; he was asked to use his influence to see that a manufacturer engaged in making materials for our national defense under contract with the federal government does not discriminate against Negroes. We believe the N. A. A. C. P. merely mention General Motors because it felt Mr. Knudsen would have a sort of pride in his old company. Yet, we are sure the association wants Mr. Knudsen to use his influence to prevent each and every manufacturer, especially those working on national defense orders from practicing discrimination.

With the nation struggling for all it is worth to prepare itself for "things to come," when it will need the loyality and strong heart of every citizen in the land, it is tragic that any part of that citizenry should have to beg to help. Yet that is the case. And, in spite of all this, they say this whole fight is to preserve Democracy .... or is it simply Mockery.

1st Lady To Testify At Bias Probe

FEB 22 1941

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Philip Murray, president of the Conggress of Industrial Organizations; A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and Lester Granger, assistant executive secretary of the National Urban League, will be among the prominent witnesses to testify at a preliminary senate hearing to investigate discrimination against Negroes in National Defense, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced this week.

FEB 22 1941

The hearing, according to the N.A.C.P., is scheduled to take place in Washington, D. C., just prior to the introduction of a resolution in the senate calling for an investigation of discrimination against the Negro in the government's national defense program.

Introduction of the resolution which is being sponsored by several senators, has been held up because of the illness of Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, who with Senator Warren Barbour, of New Jersey, is taking the lead in organizing the plans for pushing the resolution.

Rabbis Score Discrimination Against Race

Urge Speedy Rectification Of Justice

JUN 2 1941

NEW YORK, N. Y.—(SNS)— A resolution condemning discrimination against Negroes in the national defense program was passed at the recent 52nd annual meeeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis in Atlantic City, N. J.

The resolution proposed by the Committee of Social Justice through Rabbi Edward L. Israel of Baltimore reads as follows:

"Rare discrimination in employment in defense industries, resulting in some points in the utter exclusion of Negroes from labor opportunities has been so flagrant that the president has been forced to refer publicly to it.

"Our commission with the endorsement of this conference has frequently declared its opposition to 'Jim Crow' tactics in economic life. It is highly essential that in a nation dedicated to the preservation of democracy, essential principles of democracy should be observed in our economic life and especially in those industries preparing for national defense. We deplore the economic discrimination that exists against Negroes and urge a speedy rectification of this injustice."

OPINION

Army Hospitals to Ban Our Doctors and Nurses

In announcing that 110 colored medical officers and nurses will be called to active service within the next 60 days, the War Department says:

"In the large general army hospitals it is not planned to use colored professionals, although colored patients will be accommodated without discrimination, receiving the same treatment and facilities as other patients."

FEB 8 19

This question immediately arises:

If colored patients are to be treated without racial discrimination, why shouldn't colored doctors and nurses serve without prejudice, too?

The secretary says that large army hospitals are to be "general," which, in our dictionary, means universal. Can these "general" hospitals be at the same time for everybody and exclude somebody?

Let the War Department answer that one. We don't think it can, but we cite this whole business as another example of Secretary Stimson's fiddling with the defense program while the fires of Hitler's war burn closer and closer to what we call democracy.

* * * *

Just for the sake of the record, we insert here apropos of the above, a sentence from President Roosevelt's New Deal platform on which he was elected to office last November. It reads:

"We shall continue to strive for complete legislative safeguards against discrimination in government service and benefits, and in national defense forces."

APM Backs Senate Bill For Probe of Jim-Crowism

MAR 1 1941

The American Peace Mobilization yesterday launched a campaign of full support for a Senate resolution to investigate the exclusion of Negroes from the national defense program.

In telegrams to the four Senators who sponsored the resolution, Frederick V. Field, executive secretary of the Peace Mobilization, extended the full support of his organization to the proposed probe.

MAR 1 1941

"American Peace Mobilization extends full organizational support to your resolution to investigate exclusion of Negroes from the national defense program," Field wired. "Local branches of our organization are accumulating much evidence of discrimination throughout the country. We would greatly appreciate having witnesses testify at hearing on the resolution. Kindly notify us where and when."

The resolution provides for a special committee of eight Senators to be appointed by the Vice-President, and asks $25,000 for the investigation.

The National Negro Congress also has indicated full support for the probe.

MAR 1 1941

"There can be no successful defense of democracy and no winning of our country to the cause of peace," Field said, in announcing his support of the inquiry, "so long as the Negro people are discriminated against and excluded from the full processes of American life. Only with the full participation of the Negro people can America win her way to peace and real democracy.

"One of the major problems to come before the American People's Meeting in New York on April 5 and 6 will be the question how best this full integration can be accomplished."

"Social Equality" - - Our Economic Blind Alley

FEB 1 - 1941

NOT unexpectedly, the current discussion of discrimination against skilled Negro labor on defense jobs has raised in some quarters the old bugaboo, "social equality." The Lynchburg News, which deplores the discrimination, could not resist the impulse to throw in the following extraneous gem: "It is idle to try to convince the average Virginian of the virtue of social equality. He is dead against it. But economic equality is another thing." A Danville resident, one Mr. Guy C. Stephens, takes the Richmond Times-Dispatch to task for enlisting "in the great crusade to change the traditional relationship between the white and colored races." Mr. Stephens associates with the Negro's protest against discrimination in the Navy and Army his protest against discrimination on defense jobs. He declares bluntly that there is no place for the Negro in the Navy or Army, because his skin is black, which is the Hitlerian philosophy. He concedes that Negroes may fight for their country as menials in the Navy and in separate units in the Army. Mr. Stephens admits that economic discrimination is increasing, but opines that this "increase is due to agitation by union men who want to keep the skilled trades white." He also expresses the opinion that "a good part of it is also caused by this agitation for social equality."

The Petersburg Progress-Index says that "the point in question is not one of social equality at all," and observes that, "since white and colored people manage to work together in undertakings which might be cited, we suspect that those who are charged with adopting this policy are suffering from exaggerated fears."

FEB 1 - 1941

That is a fairly true picture of the conflicting emotions which arise among whites when Negroes ask for economic opportunity. When a Negro asks for economic opportunity he is, in a realistic sense, asking for economic equality. Without economic equality in the American system he is consigned to a position of economic insufficiency, reflected in the lowest possible living standards; in poor housing, poor health, illiteracy, incompetency and crime. The Negro's appeal for economic opportunity—or equality—registers upon many white people as an appeal for social equality. That is how Mr. Stephens discovered that union men "want to keep the skilled trades white." This is inconsistent with tradition. Long before the war between the states there were thousands of skilled Negro mechanics in the South, and they found employment. For 50 years following the war between the states much emphasis was placed upon the training of Negroes as skilled workers, such as carpenters, bricklayers, painters, plasterers, iron workers, tinsmiths and so on, and they were quite generally employed on construction work, public and private. This condition was not changed or disturbed until unionism entered the South. Union men are not trying, therefore, to "keep the skilled trades white." They are trying to "make" the skilled trades white. Where does this lead the Negro in view of the displacement of common hand labor by the machine? It leads to economic extermination.

Both the Lynchburg News and the Petersburg Progress-Index agree that economic equality as sought by the Negro differs from social equality. That is a vitally important point upon which the socially and politically responsible white people of Virginia, and of the entire South, are called upon to define and establish a policy which is fair and under which the Negro can survive. It is straining the question of "social equality" beyond any reasonable interpretation or practice to set up the proposition that it is an invasion of it to employ Negroes as skilled tradesmen. If Negroes are to be excluded from such employment upon the grounds of "traditional relationship," the exclusion will be accomplished under entirely false colors and contrary to historic precedent.

Figures Speak For Themselves

Investigation into the employment situation in Newport News bears out fully the previous statement of the Daily Press that there is very little discrimination against the Negro in the matter of employment. Nearly half of the workers at Fort Eustis, a government defense project are Negroes, a third of the men employed at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company, where highly skilled workmen are required are Negroes. The Virginia Engineering company engaged on a defense project north of the city has 55 per cent of the workers Negroes. Other contractors made similar reports as to employment ratios.

On the whole, there is evidence to support the belief that the Negro fares better in opportunities for work on the Peninsula than elsewhere in the State, and perhaps in the nation.

The Peninsula is not only dependent upon its Negro workers, but appreciates fully the services rendered by them.

That state of utopia has never been attained in this country when an individual or a group of citizens can demand and obtain exactly the type of work they believe they are fitted for. Thousands of youths are turned out every year from institutions of learning supposedly skilled in certain directions. They are both white and colored. Some times these youths are fortunate enough to obtain just the work they desire. More often they must take what is offered. That is the way of life here and everywhere. The man must fit into the job and prove his worth. If he expects the job to be fitted to him, he seldom succeeds at anything.

The figures on the employment of the Negro in this area speak for themselves, as does the work which is performed. And the harmony which has always prevailed between whites and Negroes is in no small part due to the fair distribution of work among both races, according to abilities.

DRIVE FOR INTEGRATION

An intensive drive is being made this month by Urban League branches all over the country to assure the inclusion of Negroes in vocational training programs made possible thru a Congressional appropriation of $70,000,000 to be administered by the U. S. Office of Education. The drive will be conducted in connection with the League's Ninth Annual Vocational Opportunity Campaign, which will be held during the week of March 16-23.

SEND-OFF FOR OHIOANS

Several hundred dollars was subscribed by Cleveland citizens and merchants in the East Side to finance the "sendoff" for Company E, of the 372nd Infantry, who will entrain this week for Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio.

The "sendoff" will take place in the Coliseum. Lawrence O. Payne, Ohio Parole Commissioner, and a former member of the outfit, gave a brief history of the exploits of the regiment, which won the coveted French Croix de Guerre.

ARMY DAY APRIL 7

Since April 6, originally set as Army Day by the Military Order of the World War, falls on Sunday, celebrations this year will be on Monday, April 7, 1941. Maxwell Field To Help Form Negro Air Unit

MAR 28 1941

Assigned Quota Of 60 In Recruiting First Outfit Of Kind

Southeast Air Corps Training Center authorities said here Thursday that Maxwell Field had been assigned a quota of 60 negroes to be enlisted for the 99th Pursuit Squadron, first negro tactical unit in the Air Corps, which is ot be formed at Tuskegee this Summer.

In all, it was said, the squadron would have 276 soldiers, including mechanics and technical specialists, 33 flying cadets who would be trained as pilot officers, and six to 14 non-flying officers.

In outlining plans for the new squadron Southeast Training Center authorities said:

"Training of pilots will be started about Oct. 1 at Tuskegee Institute. Applications for flying cadet appointments will be received by Corps Area commanders. Standards for appointment will be the same as for white applicants who must be unmarried and between 20 and 27 years old. They must have completed at least two years of college work or pass a written examination.

"Flying cadets are paid $75 a month and receive a $1 a day ration allowance. The Tuskegee course will require 30 weeks. Those who successfully complete the course will be appointed second lieutenants, Air Corps, Reserve, and be subject to call to active duty.

"At least four of the non-flying officers will come from existing ground units of other arms of the service. Negro officers desiring service with the Air Corps, for a year of non-flying duty, may apply to their commanders. They will be needed about Sept. 1.

"Two more prospective negro non-flying officers will enroll as students April 7 at New York University in engineering courses. Upon completion of their work there they will go to Chanute Field, Ill., to complete their training.

"Enlisting of the 276 soldiers for duty as mechanics and other technical specialists will be started immediately. They will be recruited in various parts of the country and sent to Chanute Field for training April 1. On completion of their training they will go to Tuskegee. Candidates must be high school graduates.

"A nucleus of 14 enlisted men from existing negro units has been ordered to Chanute Field to prepare for reception of the recruits and instructors will be provided by Scott Field, Ill., and Lowry Field, Colo."

Enlistment quotas follow: Maxwell 60; Mitchel Field, N. Y., 40; Bolling Field, D. C., 40; Patterson Field, Ohio 30; Chanute Field, Ill., 50; San Angelo, Texas, 30; and March Field Calif., 26.

Yergan Flays Policies: NNC Urges Negroes to Back Union in Ford Fight

Dr. Max Yergan, president of the National Negro Congress, attacked the rampant discrimination in current national defense projects at a mass meeting sponsored by the Washington Council of the congress at Mount Carmel Baptist Church, Wednesday night.

APR 5 1941

He cited the alarming proportions reached by job insecurity among Negroes and demanded that the Federal government act to compel airplane companies to employ colored men and women in skilled and white collar occupations.

The mass meeting also addressed a letter to President Roosevelt, demanding 7,000 jobs for colored workers at the Glenn-Martin plant at Middle River, Md. The demand will be followed by 7,000 applications for colored men and women to be filed with the company immediately.

APR 5 1941

Negro automobile workers in the Ford plant at River Rouge were called on to cease strike-breaking activities and stand with the labor union now fighting to force the Ford officials to unionize the plants.

Attention of the President was called to the $722,000,000 worth of contracts let to the Glenn Martin Company by the Government, beside funds being granted by the Government for doubling the size of the plant.

More to be Added

While 18,000 persons are now employed there, 20,000 more are soon to be added. The demand for 7,000 jobs for colored workers was based on the proportion of population in the area.

The Federal Government was described as the worst offender in discriminatory practices of racial character, and an alleged statement of Chairman Mitchell, of the Civil Service Commission, was quoted: "That Negro workers for the Government should be employed on a segregated basis and in segregated units."

John P. Davis, secretary of the NNC; J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the Elks; the Rev. Arthur Gray, Sterling A. Brown and the Rev. F. A. Hailstorks were other speakers.

"PREJUDICED SOUTHERN OFFICERS SHOULD BE TRANSFERRED"--PRATTIS

By P. L. PRATTIS

CAMP BLANDING, Fla., July 17—At least 50 per cent of the Southern white officers assigned to Negro troops in Southern camps should be transferred to other units (white units) for the good of the service. That step should be taken in the interest of efficiency and morale among colored troops.

There will be many persons to dispute such a suggestion. The Southerners themselves would argue against it. So would many of the Negro soldiers. I can put up a strong argument against it.

MET MANY FINE WHITE OFFICERS

In the present tour of Army camps, I have met many fine southern gentlemen and officers in command of colored troops. I would say that the best men, emotionally, I have met have been southerners of the upper grades. I have seen them who would go to hell and back for their men. I have seen others who have recognized the handicaps under which the Negro labored in civilian life and are patient to help him catch up in the Army. I have seen southern white officers who favored Negro officers. Some have said they would be glad to have Negro officers in their commands. Others have said they would serve side by side with Negro officers.

SHOULD ALLOW FEW OF MEAN ONES TO STAY

I want to give full credit and tribute to these men. I have shaken the hands of most of them. We have talked across the chasm of race and have seen eye to eye. I would say, let them, and others like them, stay with Negro troops. I would even suggest that a few of the mean and prejudiced ones be allowed to stay so that some of the meanness and prejudice could be kneaded out of them.

But I am convinced that the War department should transfer the rest, for the benefit of themselves, the Army and the Nation.

In the first place, Negroes have a right to object when they are cornered in a spot with no backdoors like the Army and find that, for the most part, their traditional and actual enemies have been placed outside the front door with orders to keep them quiet and confined.

Down the line somewhere somebody seems to have sold the idea to somebody else in the War department that southern whites are the men to command Negro troops. Southern whites themselves have probably helped to sell the notion. They have been so used to bullying Negroes around in civilian life that they think the only difference in the Army is a uniform.

ARMY DISCIPLINE ISN'T SLAVE DRIVING

Of course, that's a mistake. The southern Negro in civilian life stands for a lot of booting around because he's hungry and wants a job. But in the Army, he's got a job and is not hungry and he doesn't want any stuff. He's felt like a man all the time. When he gets in the Army, he thinks he's getting his first chance to act like a man.

Thus the attitude of the average white southerner runs counter to what the average Negro soldier wants to act like. That does not make for morale. Even Army discipline isn't slave driving.

It is bad enough to have white commissioned officers exclusively over Negro troops, whether they are from the North or South. Nobody would think, yet awhile, of putting Negro commissioned officers in command of white troops. But it is an unnecessary mistake to corral thousands of men and put them at the mercy, generally, of their worst enemies.

CHANGE WOULD DO SOUTHERNERS GOOD

Furthermore, a change would do these southern whites some good. Most of them are not tested in their command of Negro troops. It's not possible to tell whether a southerner has real qualities of leadership by placing him in command of Negroes. He can and does take advantage of him. If it is desired to give these southern whites the real test (and it should be), place them with their own kind, southern Negroes, southern whites, and let them develop leadership of their own merits against the merits of their kind. If they think they're so damned superior, they should welcome the opportunity. But most of them won't.

They just love to boss Negroes.

And that is the big reason, they should be transferred, sent North, West or anywhere, to new jobs and new responsibilities. Let some of the reserve officers who have known colored boys in high schools and colleges of the North have a chance, not only to command colored troops, but to develop in the colored soldier full appreciation of himself as a soldier.

I'll compromise. You can leave the southern white colonels, some of the juniors and a few of the captains with colored troops. But those fresh, unreconstructed second lieutenants, arrogant first lieutenants and pompous captains should be given jobs with their own to test their nettle.

EDITORIAL

TORPEDOING THE PRESIDENT'S ORDER

Rumors are rife in Washington that Sidney Hillman, OPM co-chief, is planning to sabotage the committee authorized by President Roosevelt in his recent order designed to end discrimination against Negroes in defense industries.

* * *

Hillman's reported plan is to load down the committee with subservient labor leaders, stooges of national insignificance, who will smother investigations and stall on remedial measures, thus perpetuating the OPM "do-nothing" policy on defense discrimination.

* * *

We warn the President and Mr. Hillman that unless a strong, courageous, active committe of nationally prominent and liberal persons in whom American Negroes have confidence is appointed, the high enthusiasm and morale engendered by the President's order will be destroyed.

* * *

The President's order will become a farce unless there is a committee with backbone and determination to enforce it.

American Negroes are in no mood to tolerate any more run-arounds.

* * *

We want a man of the calibre of Mayor LaGuardia of New York City as chairman of the committee; we want two or three nationally-known Negro members who will really function in running down and ending all cases of color discrimination in defense.

* * *

The traditional patriotism of the American Negro will be severely shaken if this committee turns out to be just another one of those things.

of such unlimited possibilities that it is bound to have the strongest opposition from those who are wedded to custom. It will take all the craft and patience with which the National Association has fought lynching into decline, to win opportunity for Negro labor.

For that reason we wish Walter White had been more diplomatic in his public utterances about the offer of Senator Truman's Senate committee to make a limited investigation of discrimination against Negroes. We know Senator Harry S. Truman. He is from Missouri where his public record is such that in both his candidacies for the U. S. Senate, he received the majority of the Negro vote. He is a man of his word. Whatever others have in mind, Truman meant what he said when he announced [illegible] he would hear some witnesses. That was an offer of a part of a loaf which could be put to good use while the loaf is coming. Instead White impugns the motives of the Truman committee by saying: "The N.A.A.C.P. has opposed and will continue to oppose the attempt to hoodwink Negroes whether the hoodwinkers be white or Negro." He is wrong when he says: "The only kind of hearing that would do any real good would be one of sufficient length to go completely into the subject in all its phases." Anything beats nothing.

We admire Walter White's zeal, and glory in his record. But this time he seems to forget that in a country like ours social gains are almost always partial gains made by compromises, even for the groups more numerous and stronger situated than are Negroes. We hope that senate resolution 75 passes. But whether it is getting through, it will help some if we can have Kindelberger brought before the Truman committee and there shown the American way and persuaded to put a thousand Negroes to work.

Negro Leaders Confer With Plane Plant Heads

Officials of Negro Congress Hopeful the Parleys Will Break Down Discrimination Against Negro Job-Seekers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Officials of the National Negro Congress expressed themselves as being "pleased with the trend of our conversations," following a two-hour conference with President Glenn L. Martin and other officers of the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Company today.

The conference, which represented the culmination of a campaign conducted by the National Negro Congress for the past several months to open up skilled jobs for Negroes in the Aircraft plant, took place in the Company's main office located at Middle River, Maryland, some twenty miles outside of Baltimore.

Beyond pointing out that the Conference was called at the instance of the Negro Congress, and agreed to by Glenn L. Martin, for the purpose of exploring the full possibilities of integrating Negro skilled workers in the plant, officers of the National Negro Congress would make no further comment, preferring they said to await developments.

Participants in the Conference in addition to Mr. Martin, included: W. D. Siemon, Personnel Manager of the Company, two vice-presidents of the firm; and John P. Davis and George B. Murphy, Jr., National and Administrative Secretary respectively of the National Negro Congress.

According to War Department officials, the Martin Company on June 30, received $166,261,526 in defense contracts, bringing the total of the company's contracts to date to more than 616 million dollars. The contract was consummated five days after President Roosevelt's Executive Order making it mandatory that defense contracts contain anti-discrimination clauses. It contained no anti-discrimination clause. War Department Officials told the Congress that this was due to the fact that the contract had been "discussed" prior to issuance of the President's order.

The National Negro Congress then sent a telegram to the President, urging the Chief Executive to take action to prevent the War Department's deliberately making use of tactics which will hinder carrying out of the President's Order. The telegram said in part:

"We [illegible] advised that officials of the War Department contend that any contract upon which any discussion has been held prior to your order is not subject to the provisions against discrimination. If this interpretation of the phrase "Hereafter negotiated," is allowed to stand then it is clear that contracts not yet signed, amounting to billions of dollars, may be authorized without any protection against discrimination. We cannot believe such an interpretation is within either the letter or the spirit of your Executive Order."

Copies of the telegram were also sent to Secretary of War, Henry Stimson; Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox; officials of the Office of Production Management, and to William H. Hastie, Civilian Aide to the Secretary of War.

First Lady Lauds Order Banning Defense Bias

The Executive Order of the President was highly praised by Mrs. Roosevelt as a first step and suggested that we may go on to others.

This attitude was expressed in the following letter addressed to A. Phillip Randolph by Mrs. Roosevelt:

"THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Campobello Island, N. B.
June 26, 1941

My dear Mr. Randolph:

Thank you for your wire. I am very glad the march has been postponed and delighted that the President is issuing an executive order on defense industries.

I hope from this first step, we may go on to others.

Very sincerely yours,
MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT."

No person in the country has manifested a finer spirit of sincerity in seeking and working for the elimination of discriminations against Negroes in national defense than has Mrs. Roosevelt, commented Mr. Randolph. While she was opposed to the march on Washington, she has also been opposed to all forms of discriminations on account of race, creed, color or national origin, concluded the National Director of the March on Washington, Randolph.

Soldiers Don't Like Camp Segregation---And Show It

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Resentment against the army's discriminatory policy toward the race, flared into the open because they refused to sit in the jim crow section of the camp theatre.

Colored soldiers have organized a boycott of the theatre as a result of the incident, it is reported.

In accordance with the Fort's jim crow policy, colored selectees are forced to sit in the first six rows of the movie theathe, "almost on top of the screen."

In the above instance, the two soldiers seated themselves near the center of the theatre. They were ordered to move to the segregated section by a white M.P. (military police). The soldiers objected, pointing out that their money was "as good as the next soldier's." They were put out.

On the following day, one imprisoned selectee is reported to have been freed and ordered transferred to another camp.

When a delegation of colored soldiers complained to the non-commissioned officer in charge of the theatre, he is said to have told them curtly, "I can only execute the orders handed down to me."

Soldiers stationed at the camp have expressed bitterness over what they said is "just another example of the sort of Hitlerist race policy adopted toward us by the Army, a policy which is certainly not conducive to building morale among soldiers, who are being asked to fight for democracy, something we do not have."

Lower Defense Jobs Bars In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(ANP)—Several hundred Negro building trades workers are now employed on various defense projects in this area as a result of the removal of trade union bans against them in local labor unions, Thomas A. Webster, executive secretary of the Kansas City Urban league reported this week to the Office of Production Management.

As a result of the activity of the Negro employment and training branch of OPM, Negroes have been admitted to the carpenters and bricklayers unions in that area, and an agreement has been reached for their admission into the painters union through an all-Negro local similar to the one formed by the carpenters in Greater Kansas City.

According to Mr. Webster's report, 131 Negroes, including 24 carpenters and seven hod carriers, were employed last week in the construction of the North American Aviation factory in Kansas City, Mo. The Patti Brothers company is erecting this project. One Negro foreman is in charge of a mixed crew on this job.

More than 430 Negro building construction workers are employed in the erection of the Lake City Ammunition plant near Kansas City including 100 hod carriers, five bricklayers, 26 carpenters and more than 300 laborers, plumbers and heavy construction laborers. Negro painters are expected to be employed on the job soon as the result of an agreement reached with the Painters District council. The council has agreed to permit the Negro painters to apply for an A. F. of L. charter so that they may work on union jobs in this area.

The Office of Production Management entered the trade union picture in this area when Negroes were barred from working on the closed shop construction job at Fort Riley Kan. As a result of OPM intervention, the Negroes were granted an A. F. of L. charter and permitted to work on the Fort Riley job. Since tthen more than 100 Negro carpenters have worked on closed shop jobs at Fort Leonard Wood and at other sites in this area.

Kentuckian Is Denied Position Because Of Race

Engineering Offer Withdrawn After Race Discovered

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(ANP)—When the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practices meets it is reported one of the first cases submitted for consideration will be that of John Leroy Wallace whose attorney, Wendell McConell, contends that his client has been discriminated against.

According to the information obtained, Mr. Wallace, who is now in Louisville, received a wire from the U. S. Engineer office requesting that he wire whether he was available for a probational appointment as junior civil engineer at $2,000 per annum.

A letter of confirmation was received on May 26 in which he was asked to reply immediately. Further wires and letters were sent back and forth whe on June 4 Mr. Wallace received wire telling him to report for duty immediately at Nashville.

SISTER INTERVENES

About this time, Mr. Wallace's sister is said to have intervened writing the army engineer asking if they knew Mr. Wallace was colored. This, she said, was done in order to prevent him coming to Nashville and being turned down on account of his race.

"I called the man," her letter said in part, "he said you were told to report to work and that he hadn't had time to answer your papers. Then I asked him if he knef you were a Negro. He sounded very surprised. He said, in that case to avoid embarrassment, he would write you withdrawing the offer."

The same day, Mr. Wallace received a wire from the office as follows:

"Reference telegrams this office, June 14, 1941, offer of employment withdrawn."

WANTS TO APPEAR

In his petition through Mr. McConnell, Mr. Wallace asks that he be granted permission to appear before the committee to present his complaint and that immediate steps be taker to redress the grievance done the petitioner and that other and further steps be taken as the nature of the case may require and as to the committee may seem proper.

At present, Mr. Wallace is employed by the Seagram Distillery as chief of the service division in the Louisville distilleries.

This case, the first to be presented to the committee is expected to establish and open the way for further decisions in cases where Negroes have been flagrantly discriminated against because of their color.

LaGuardia Says FDR's Order Is "Historical"

Crowded Church Tell of Progress Hears Speakers

By ERNEST E. JOHNSON

NEW YORK — (ANP) — Three thousand persons crowded into Salem M. E. church here to hear A. Philip Randolph, Mayor Fierella H. LaGuardia, David Sarnoff and other personages identified with the circumstances surrounding the executive order issued by President Roosevelt barring discrimination in the national defense program. The occasion also marked the first public report from the Negro March on Washington committee since its national director, Mr. Randolph, told a nation-wide radio audience on July 1 that the projected march had been found "unnecessary at this time" and therefore postponed.

No attempt was made to evade the fact that considerable criticism had been levelled at the march committee for its decision to call off the demonstration. In fact, the meeting was intended to give full explanation of the factors involved which prompted this momentous decision. Mr. Randolph, in a clear and forthright manner, succeeded in doing just that.

LAGUARDIA PRAISED

However, the remarks of Mayor LaGuardia, described by all previous speakers as the "unrelenting champion in favor of the executive order," along with the committee, were no doubt the climax of the evening.

"I am glad to be called upon to join in the discussion," he opened. "of what is a real landmark in the progress of democracy. I believe the executive order signed by President Roosevelt will remain one of the important public documents in our history, and the man who signed it will take his place among the true champions of liberty and true democracy.

"It may not be a literary gem," he continued. "Its meter might be defective in its poetry, but I am in a position to tell you that the man who signed it believed in it, in every line of it, in every word of every sentence of it."

He minced no words in lauding members of the March on Washington committee for their sincerity in tackling a problem which had become "a public scandal against minority groups."

WANTS BOARD TO SUCCEED

Turning his attention to the members of the Fair Employment Practice committee, named under the order, the fiery little mayor said: "This board may be a success for a time. It will have the opportunity to demonstrate to the entire country what the Negroes of America have produced in the last generation. No group nor race has made as much progress in 70 years as the Negro. You have accomplished and you have produced men and women in the sciences, arts, industries, and professions and athletics that has taken other races generations to produce."

Considered a paramount importance was the admonition of the speaker, also civilian defense administrator, to guard against claims of discrimination by industry to cover up "incompetency, dishonesty and immorality." While this remark met with the wide approbation and had its proper relation to the subject under discussion, many were quick to see the mayor making an indirect defense of his order suspending a Negro city employe on a charge of alleged "moral turpitude."

REVIEWS 'MARCH' PLAN

Mr. Randolph also reviewed the circumstances leading to the idea of the march pointing to the need for the development of "the technique of mass pressure," a thing new to the Negro. He scored the "dreadful conspiracy of silence" on the part of the white press with one exception, that of "P.M." There was praise for the efforts of Mayor LaGuardia and disdain for William S. Knudsen, co-director of Office of Production Management.

Coming to the controversial point, he said: "Simply stated, the march was postponed because its main objective, namely the issuance of an executive order banning discrimination in national defense, was secured in conference with the President.

"What about discrimination in the departments of the federal government? This was one of our objectives. While it was one of our objectives, it was not our main objective. We consider that it is more important to get jobs for Negroes in national defense, so that they may get milk and bread for their babies than to get them in the army or navy or air corps, although we shall continue to fight to abolish discriminations in all departments of the government and the armed forces of the nation. This will be the next step in the fight of the march committee movement.

DEFENDS ACTION

"The National Negro March on Washington Committee would have been placed in an untenable, absurd and ridiculous position had it rejected its chief objective when offered by the President on the grounds that we didn't get everything we wanted as a pretext for marching anyhow.

"I want to make it clear 'that the purpose of the march on Washington movement was not to serve as an agency to create a continuing state of sullen unrest and blind resentment among Negroes against discriminations. Its purpose was and is to achieve a specific and definite thing, namely, elimination of barriers to jobs for Negroes."

Declaring that the march committee will be retained and expanded, the national director in stirring and dramatic fashion so typical of him, let is be known that 'we want one million Negroes organized in these committees to make a power that must be reckoned with."

Bessye Bearden, a deputy collector of internal revenue and leader in women's organizations, pledged the continued support of Negro women. Mrs. Bearden, active in eastern democratic political circles, was one of the few such persons willing to take a hand in the march on Washington when politicians everywhere were dropping it like a hot poker.

Training Depends On Answer

No More Courses For Negro Youth Until Jobs Sure

KANSAS CITY. Kas.,—(Special) —"Will North American Aviation hire skilled Negro workers who are being trained for airplane construction work in the Kansas City area?" This is the big question relative to the defense training of Negroes in this city, it was revealed here this week.

Several shop foremen and company officials from the Inglewood Cal., plant of North American Aviation are in Kansas City, visiting the defense training classes and looking after details at the bomber plant. None of these men, however, have been able to give an opinion as to whether Negroes will actually be given an opportunity to ply their skills at the bomber plant when the defense construction boom gets underway, according those in charge of the emergency defense training schools.

21 In Evening Class

At the Ninth and Washington center of emergency defense training, there are 21 Negro men registered and working during the evening shift (6 to 12) in a beginning drilling and riveting class.

According to L. E. Falgren, supervisor of vocational education, an additional group of young Negro men have registered and qualified for the defense training, but a class for them will not be okayed by the state board of vocational education until there is greater certainty that the Negroes already in training will be hired at the Fairfax bomber plant.

Already four men (all white) have been sent to work at the bomber plant and by late August requests for about 50 more men are anticipated, Falgren said. From September until the plant is operating at capacity he stated that the number of men called from the Sumner and Argentine division trainees groups would increase rapidly.

Request Custodial Employe

According to J. A. Woulf, manager of the Kansas City, Kas., branch of the state employment office, a request for a Negro custodial employe has been replied to, but as far as he knows no one has been hired for the job.

Negro trainees in the Sumner defense classes are not being trained for custodial jobs, but are being prepared for drilling and riveting jobs.

White trainees are being taught drilling and riveting and in addition four specialized courses are open to them. These courses are offered in cable splicing, enclosures, tube bending and precicion assembly, among the most specialized of airplane manufacturing skills. Training for Negroes and whites is given in separate classes.

Queried as to whether men are given any choice of the kind of skilled training they are to receive when they register at the state employment office (from whose rolls trainees are taken) Falgren was unable to say "yes" or "no." He thought Woulf of the state employment office might be able to answer that question.

Woulf Could Not Answer

Woulf, however, stated that he could not answer that question because his contact with the trainees ended after their applications to the defense training school were accepted. He was of the opinion, however, that the specialized courses offered were for advanced students. Falgren stated that all courses offered at the Ninth and Washington training center were beginning courses including those in the specialized fields.

Since a committee of Negro citizens called on him recently, Falgren has changed the lunch recess period of the Negro men to concur with those of the white men. Moreover, all trainees now enter by the same door. In making this concession to the Negro citizeary, however, Falgren has remained vigilant to see to what extent Negroes and whites mingle.

As a result of a visit to Inglewood, Falgren said he learned that the North American officials regard the racial employment problem as an employee problem. White men, in California he said, showed an unwillingness to work with Mexicans. It is asserted, therefore, that white men in Kansas will be unwilling to work with Negroes.

And the big question remains: "Will North American Aviation hire the skilled Negro orkers who are being trained for airplane construction work in the Kansas City area?"

Wichitans Will Get Training

Win Fight for Entrance to Defense Classes

WICHITA, — The fight which Negro citizens of Wichita have been making for several months was won here Friday, August 1, when the State Conncil of Vocational Educational Administration voted unanimously to train Negroes in the four defense classes now operating here. The classes are in woodworking, sheet metal, machine shop and welding. Negroes and whites will be trained in the same classes.

The defense training program was opened to Negroes at a meeting held in the Lassen hotel with the following persons present:

Channing R. Dooley, chief, Training within Industry branch of the OPM.

Mrs. Ann Laughlin, NYA director for the state of Kansas.

J. C. Woodin, director of Vocational Training in Wichita.

Lewis W. Clymer, field representative, Negro Employment and Training Branch, OPH.

Glenn Warders, director, Kansas State Employment Service.

C. M. Miller, direrton of vocational education, state of Kansas.

C. W Corsaut, manager, Wichita office, State Employment Service Charles Newell, director, Unemployment Compensation division, state of Kansas.

The personnel directors of three Wichita Aircraft companies also were present: Mr. Thumbell, Stearman Aircraft; Warren E. Blazier, Beech Aircraft, and Wymon Russ, Cessna Aircraft.

Efforts to determine the policy of these companies in hiring Negroes brought no solution. The personnel directors suggested that the matter would have to be taken up with the company directors.

The part of the conference dealing with the training of Negroes, however, was highly successful. Up to now, only whites have been given defense training in the Wichita area, Negroes having been barred entirely.

Another Case of 'We Didn't Know You Were Colored'

HOUSTON. — John Walls, summer school student at Wiley college, was the victim of a case of "We Didn't Know You Were Colored," here last week.

His application for the army air corps was accepted and he was told to report at Houston not later than July 18, to get transportation to Ryan field in California. He left his school work and came here only to be rejected on the excuse that he had a murmur in his heart."

The officer in charge of the local office admitted that it was not a physical defect that kept Walls out but his color. The officer said that Ryan field is for white boys only.

Segregation Is the Breeding Place

• The country will be gravely concerned over the news from Fort Bragg, North Carolina, of a serious altercation between soldiers which resulted in the death of a Negro and white draftee, and the wounding of three white and two Negro draftees.

The facts at this writing, are not yet clear as to what took place or where the responsibility is to be fixed.

But this much is clear. Segregation and discrimination against Negro soldiers breeds antagonism between Negro and white troops and intensifies violations of Negro rights. It promotes a spirit of lawlessness and contempt for Negro citizenship rights. Yet this is an official policy of the Administration and the army officials.

If Negroes and whites were in the same regiment, living in fraternity and equality as soldiers, the atmosphere of antagonism would be eliminated. This is all the more important in those states in the deep South, where reactionary officials in power specialize in denying the Negro people their constitutional liberties and in pitting white against Negro to the detriment of both.

Jim-crowism in the armed forces violates the spirit of President Roosevelt's order against job-discrimination in defense industries. This order should be extended to enforce full equality in the armed service.

Conditions of discrimination make more difficult the unity of the people against Hitlerism and militates against a strong fighting morale in the army. A thorough investigation should be made into the facts of the Fort Bragg occurrence by the War Department. Segregation and discrimination should be outlawed in the armed forces and the Administration should take every step to guarantee the citizenship rights of Negro draftees.

Roosevelt Speaks:-

Affirms Policy for Full Participation by All Persons In Defense Program — Creates Enforcing Committee.

WHEREAS it is the policy of the United States to encourage full participation in the National Defense program by all citizens of the United States, regardless of race, creed, color or national origin, in the firm belief that the democratic way of life within the Nation can be defended successfully only with the help and support of all groups within its borders; and

WHEREAS there is evidence that available and needed workers have been barred from employment in industries engaged in defense production solely because of considerations of race, creed, color or national origin, to the detriment of workers' morale and of national unity:

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the statutes, and as a prerequisite to the successful conduct of our national defense production effort, I do hereby reaffirm the policy of the United States that there shall be no discrimination in the employment of workers in defense industries or government because of race, creed, color, or national origin, and I do hereby declare that it is the duty of employers and of labor organizations, in furtherance of said policy and of this order, to provide for the full and equitable participation of all workers in defense industries, without discrimination because of race, creed, color, or national origin;

And it is hereby ordered as follows:

1. All departments and agencies of the Government of the United States concerned with vocational and training programs for defense production shall take special measures appropriate to assure that such programs are administered without discrimination because of race, creed, color, or national origin.

2. All contracting agencies of the Government of the United States shall include in all defense contracts hereafter negotiated by them a provision obligating the contractor not to discriminate against any worker because of race, creed, color, or national origin;

3. There is established in the Office of Production Management a Committee on Fair Employment Practice, which shall consist of a chairman and four other members to be appointed by the President. The chairman and members of the committee shall serve as such without compensation but shall be entitled to actual and necessary transportation, subsistence and other expenses incidental to performance of their duties. The committee shall receive and investigate complaints of discrimination in violation of the provisions of this order and shall take appropriate steps to redress grievances which it finds to be valid. The committee shall also recommend to the several departments and agencies of the Government of the United States and to the President all measures which may be deemed by it necessary or proper to effectuate the provisions of this order.

'NO TIME FOR PREJUDICE' SAYS SOUTHERN WHITE DAILY

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — (By Samuel A. Boyea for ANP)—The wisdom of Dr. Rayford Logan's advi[ce] the Negro "Study War Some More," is being revealed daily in this crisis-born national attempt to give the Negro his due.

Most recent evidence of the beneficial results the Negro is securing from the impending world-wide disaster came in the form of an editorial in the sedate pillar of Southern respectability, the Montgomery Advertiser of Wednesday, June 18. The Advertiser, a morning newspaper, has from some time been catering to Negro interests. But most of their best stands on the part of the Negro bore the stigma of mawkish patronage and the stamp of the "yes but" school of argument.

On Wednesday, however, the old lady of Montgomery could bare it no longer and went down the street of equality doing a "congeroo." Said the Advertiser in the first leaderette of the day; "Negroes are being discriminated against in defense industries.

"This discrimination, as President Roosevelt pointed out in his memorandum to the OPM, is entirely unrelated to efficiency and production. It is the result of unreasoning prejudice on the part of other workmen or employers. It is not confined to any one region, and is perhaps more systematic and universal in the West Coast aircraft industry than in any other place.

"Fundamentally the Negro has about as great a stake in the fight between the New Deal and the New Order as any other group.

"The spectre of a Hitler-dominated world with repression and cruelty aimed at every racial minority, falls heavily upon him.

Demonstrated Loyalty

"The American Negro has demonstrated a loyalty and willingness to bear his share in the responsibilities ahead. This time, as 27 years ago, selective service calls upon him to serve in direct proportion to his numbers.

"There is small wonder that Negro leadership has been concerned, at times angered, by systematic exclusion of members of this race. This is an exclusion entirely unrelated to questions of social relationships. It is either economic, or is based on the whimsies of color prejudice.

"To turn away a skilled workman simply because he is a Negro is a blow against the cause for which all of us are fighting. In the first place, our nation needs every ounce of its productive energy; to sacrifice to any degree the contribution that this one-tenth of our population can make is foolish. We need to maintain a healthy economic system during this emergency, and this cannot be done if the ravages of unemployment fall disproportionately on a single population group. Finally, and of importance to all of us, the issue at stake and the issue which all of us are being called upon to sacrifice for is the survival of democracy. Now, more than ever before, we need to strive to be unlike, rather than like, the sewers of hatred and prejudice.

"If some Negroes are to be called upon to risk their lives for $21 a month, simple justice requires that other Negroes be given an opportunity to fill jobs

SECOND EMANCIPATION?

THE EXECUTIVE ORDER by President Roosevelt, as part of his Fourth of July Proclamation, may go down in history as a second Emancipation Proclamation, for this is the second time in history of this country that an Executive Order affecting the Negro directly has been issued. The first was issued by Abraham Lincoln in 1863 outlawing human slavery in this country.

In his proclamation of June 25, President Roosevelt ordered all federal departments and agencies dealing with vocational and training programs to take special measures to avoid discrimination. Henceforth all agencies must include provisions in defense contracts to avoid discrimination in employment because of race or color. At the same time a special committee within the OPM was set up to investigate complaints of discrimination.

This action by the President came only after political pressure to have the March on Washington called off had failed, and the committee had assured Mr. Roosevelt that only an executive order would halt the march. The leadership of A. Philip Randolph and Layle Lane in organizing the movement was an important factor in gaining the victory for the Negroes.

However, as Mr. Randolph pointed out in calling off the march, the act of the President does not meet the vital and serious issue of discrimination against persons on the basis of race, color, creed or national origin in various departments of the government itself. This is particularly true in the armed forces of the country where discrimination is most rife.

Nevertheless it is a partial victory, and if the order is enforced in industrial plants holding government contracts, thousands of jobs should be immediately available to Negroes.

Now that the President has gone this far, it should not be hard to convince him that "the democratic way of life within the nation" makes it necessary for the federal government itself to set the example for private industry by abolishing discrimination in all departments of the federal government.

While many individuals and organizations cooperated in the mass movement that brought about the executive order, it is our opinion that most of the credit for this victory is due Miss Layle Lane, who initiated the movement through the suggestion of Oswald Garrison Villard, who in a letter contributed to Miss Lane's column on this page early this year, said that Negroes did not realize the power they possessed as a group. Said Mr. Villard.

> "Now if 13,000,000 white Americans wanted a just bill they would get it, because they would make life miserable for Congress, would become such a pressure group that newspapers would fall in line and public sentiment would swing to them."

Miss Lane, with the assistance of Mr. Randolph, got busy and formed a committee to make the Negro a pressure group for jobs in defense industries. The movement soon gained nationwide support and local committees were formed. With the united support of the Negro press, the movement attracted the attention of government officials who were quick to realize that the publicity resulting from the march could be used by the dictator nations to prove that there was no real democracy in this country. The executive order followed when other efforts to have the march called off failed.

Evidently, Mr. Villard was right when he said that the Negroes need to become a pressure group. Pressure during the last presidential campaign caused the President to name Benjamin O. Davis a general, and the changing of the War Department policy to the extent of giving the Negro a proportionate part of the personnel of the U. S. Army. and pressure caused the executive order ending discrimination in defense industries.

Perhaps if we continue to exert pressure on the government, we can secure a federal anti-lynching bill and a change in the policy of the Navy Department and other federal bureaus as they affect the Negro.

We congratulate the President on his issuance of his executive order and hope that he will have the courage to extend it to all branches of the federal service, so that it can

FEW NEGRO 'MP'S' NONE IN FOUR CAMPS; THOSE AT FT. BENNING HAVE LITTLE TO DO

FORT BENNING, Ga., July —One of the first puzzles that confronts you in the Army is the white military police. You wonder why if colored soldiers can be broken up into all sorts of work and service detachments some of them cannot be assigned to detachments of military police.

There are 8,000 colored soldiers at Fort Bragg, but there are no colored military police. There are none at Camp Lee, Camp Croft, Camp Wheeler, Fort Jackson or Camp Blanding. You get the impression that the military police are some special kind of white soldier gods.

But there are colored military police at Fort Benning, recently organized. They stick rather close to the colored area, and they are police, and they wear the arm band, although it is of a lighter blue than that worn by the whites and has on the letter "P" on it instead of the "MP" on the bands worn by the whites. As far as could be determined, their job seemed to be to keep down minor disorders among the Negro soldiers. None of them were seen directing traffic and there didn't seem to be any camaraderie between them and the white "MP's."
